each of said cities at least two years' prior notice in writing. No notice on the part of either the cities or the company shall be given more than three years prior to the expiration of said twenty-five-year period. The said contract shall contain such other provisions and conditions, not affecting the term or the rental, and following, so far as the same is applicable, the form of the contract made between the city of Boston, acting by the commission, and the company, for the use of the Washington street tunnel, as the commission and the company may agree upon, or, in case of difference, as the board may determine. The provisions of this act, in so far as they declare, define or establish the terms and conditions for the construction, tenure, maintenance and operation of the subway, shall be embodied in and made a part of said contract. The use of the subway shall begin when, in the opinion of the commission, a reasonable time after completion has been allowed for equipment. The net cost of the subway shall be deemed to include, except as otherwise provided herein, all expenditures incurred in acquisition and construction, including damages, expenses of the commission, including such part of the compensation of its members, its chief engineer, secretary and office employees as the commission may from time to time determine to be equitable and proportionally chargeable to the work authorized by this act; and interest on the debt incurred in construction prior to the beginning of the use, at the rate of three and one quarter per cent per annum. The commission shall determine the cost of the construction of the part of said subway situated within the city of Everett, and also the cost of construction of the part of said subway situated within the city of Malden, and the rental payable under said contract shall be paid to the respective cities in proportion to the cost of the part of the subway within each of said cities.

Work not to be begun until plan has been filed, etc.

Section 28. The commission shall not begin the work of construction until it has filed, in the office of the engineer of each of said cities, a plan signed by the commission, showing the proposed route and the general form and method of construction and the location of the proposed tracks, stations, approaches and connections, and the alignment and grade of the part of said subway, and its appurtenances, to be located within such city, and the said plans shall be submitted to the company for its examination.

Any such plan, so filed, may be altered at any time by a new plan signed, submitted and filed in like manner.

Preliminary investigations, plans, etc.

SECTION 29. The commission shall, immediately after the receipt of the request from said cities specified in section twenty-six, make such preliminary investigations, surveys and plans as it may deem expedient, and to that end may enter upon any lands, and place and maintain marks thereon, and may make excavations and borings and do all other acts necessary for such investigations and surveys and may expend such sums as it deems necessary therefor. The expense of such investigations and surveys shall be deemed a part of the cost of the subway. The construction of the subway shall be begun immediately after the contract for the use of the subway has been executed by the commission and the company.

Contracts.

SECTION 30. The commission may make contracts in the name of each of said cities for the work herein authorized to be done within the limits of such city, but all contracts involving two thousand dollars, or more, in amount, shall be in writing and shall be signed by a majority of the commission; and no such contract shall be altered except by an instrument in writing signed by the contractor and a majority of the commission, and also by the sureties, if any, on the bond given by the contractor for the completion of the original contract. No such contract and no such alteration of any such contract shall be valid or binding on either of said cities unless executed in the manner aforesaid.

Public ways to be kept open for travel between certain hours.

SECTION 31. All work done by the commission under this act under or near public streets and places shall be conducted, so far as may be practicable, in such manner as to leave such streets or places, or a reasonable part thereof, open for travel between the hours of seven in the forenoon and six in the afternoon of each secular day, except legal holidays: provided, however, that any public way or place may, if the commission deems it necessary, be closed to public travel for distances not exceeding one third of a mile each along the line of construction.

Proviso.

Public ways may be used, lands taken, etc.

SECTION 32. The commission may, for the purposes of this act, use public ways and lands without compensation therefor, and may take, or acquire by purchase or otherwise, for either of said cities, lands in fee and easements, estates, and rights in land, including the right to go under the surface thereof, or through or under buildings or parts of buildings thereon; and such taking, in fee or otherwise, may be made whether the lands taken or otherwise affected are held under or by title by right of eminent domain, or otherwise, and may be made for the purpose of providing locations for pipes, wires, conduits and other structures, the relocation of which is made necessary or expedient by the construction of any subway or tunnel authorized by this act. The taking, under this section, of an easement, or other estate or right in a given parcel of real estate, whether such parcel consists of unimproved land or of land and buildings, may be confined to a portion and section of such parcel fixed by planes or other surfaces of division, below, above or at the surface of the soil; and in such cases no taking need be made of upper or lower portions or sections, except of such easements therein, if any, as the commission may deem necessary. The commission, to make any taking by right of eminent domain shall cause to be recorded in the registry of deeds for the southern district of the county of Middlesex a description of the lands, easements, estates or rights to be taken, as certain as is required in a common conveyance of land, with the statement that the same are taken under authority of this act, which description and statement shall be signed by the commission; and the lands, easements, estates or rights therein described shall, upon such recording, be taken for and shall vest in the city for which the taking is made. The commission shall, so far as may be practicable, notify all known owners of such proposed taking, but the validity of the taking shall not be affected by want of such notice.

Description of lands, etc., taken to be recorded, etc.

Section 33. The commission may sell the buildings and other structures upon any lands acquired by it, or may remove the same; and shall sell, if the sale be practicable, or if not, shall lease any lands or rights or interest in lands, or other property acquired for the purposes of this act, whenever the same shall, in the opinion of the commission, cease to be needed for the said purposes. The proceeds of the sales and leases, and the fair valuation of such lands or other property, no longer needed for the said purposes, but not actually sold, as agreed upon by the commission and the company, or, in case of difference, as determined by the board, shall be deducted from the cost of the subway in the city within which such lands are situated, for the purpose of ascertaining and paying the rental thereof.

Certain property may be sold or leased, etc.

Proceeds, how applied.

Damages.

Section 34. The commission may determine and award the damages sustained by any person by reason of any property, except public ways or lands, taken or injured by the commission under authority of this act, and may agree with any such person as to the amount of his damages, which amount the city in which such lands are situated shall be liable to pay. If any such person is dissatisfied with such award, or cannot agree with the commission upon his damages, the same may be determined by a jury in the superior court for the county of Middlesex, on petition therefor of such person or of the commission against the city in which such lands are situated, filed in the clerk's office within two years after the property is taken, entered upon or injured; and judgment shall be entered upon the determination of the jury, and costs shall be taxed and execution issued in favor of the prevailing party as in other civil cases. The members of the commission shall not be liable, personally, for any such damages. The provisions of sections seventeen to twenty-five, inclusive, and of section one hundred and fourteen, of chapter forty-eight of the Revised Laws, relating to procedure in the case of damage to estates in which several parties have different, or several interests, shall apply to proceedings in such cases under this act.

Persons aggrieved may apply for a jury.

Certain provisions of law to apply.

Removal or relocation of certain tracks, conduits, etc.

Section 35. The commission may order the temporary or permanent removal or relocation of any surface tracks, or of any conduits, pipes, wires, poles or other property of any person or corporation, which it deems to interfere with the construction or operation of the subway authorized by this act, and shall plan new locations for any such structures so removed or relocated. Such orders, to the extent specified therein, shall be deemed a revocation of the right or license to maintain such tracks, conduits, pipes, wires, poles or other property, and the owners of such tracks or other property shall comply with said orders without expense to the city in which such streets are situated. If any such owner shall fail to comply with the order of the commission within a reasonable time, to be fixed in the order, the commission may discontinue and remove such tracks, conduits, pipes, wires, poles or other property, and may relocate the same, and the cost of such discontinuance, removal or relocation shall be repaid by the owner to the city in which such streets are situated. No such discontinuance, removal or relocation shall entitle the owner of the property thus affected to any damages on account thereof. Any such structures in or upon private lands may be removed and relocated by the commission, or if removed and relocated by the owner thereof, the reasonable expense of such removal and relocation shall be paid to him by the commission. Any gas or electric lighting company may shut off the gas or current from any pipes or wires affected by any acts done hereunder, so far as may be necessary to avoid danger of escape or explosion of gas, or other danger.

Gas or electricity may be shut off when necessary.

SECTION 36. Upon the determination by the commission of any important question relating to any plan or work herein provided for, except an award of or agreement upon damages as provided in section thirty-four hereof, the company may, within three days after notice of such determination, apply to the board for revision of the same, and, thereupon, the board may consider and finally determine such question.

Determination of certain questions.

SECTION 37. The company, for the equipment of the subway which the cities are authorized to construct under section twenty-six of this act, and for all expenditures by the company required or authorized for the equipment of the said subway, may, from time to time, in the manner and under the requirements prescribed by law, issue and dispose of such amounts of its capital stock and bonds, or of each, at its option, as may be necessary therefor. In respect to the equipment, use and operation of the railway to be situated in the subway, and to transportation therein, the company shall have all the powers and privileges, and be subject to all the duties, liabilities, restrictions and provisions set forth in the general and special laws now or hereafter in force applicable to it. To provide for proper connections with any subway station authorized by this act, the company may make such alterations or extensions of its surface tracks and appurtenances as the board may approve.

Issue of capital stock, etc.

Alterations, etc., of surface tracks, etc.

SECTION 38. The subway authorized by section twenty-six shall be considered a part of the elevated railway operated by the company; and the railroad commission, subject to the provisions of the contract, shall have and exercise the same power and control over the said subway, in all respects, that are conferred upon the board of railroad commissioners in regard to the elevated structure by chapter five hundred and forty-eight of the acts of the year eighteen hundred and ninety-four, and by chapter five hundred of the acts of the year eighteen hundred and ninety-seven, and by any other laws relative thereto. The provisions of the compensation clause of section ten of chapter five hundred of the acts of the year eighteen hundred and ninety-seven shall, for the purpose of distribution of the tax thereby imposed, include the additional track mileage of the company constructed in the subway authorized by section twenty-six of this act.

Certain provisions of law to apply.

Everett-Malden Subway Loan, Act of 1913.

SECTION 39. The treasurer of each of said cities, for the purpose of paying the necessary expenses and liabilities incurred under this act, shall from time to time, upon the request of the commission, issue and sell at public or private sale bonds of such city, registered or with interest coupons attached, as he may deem best, to an amount not exceeding the cost of the subway within the limits of such city, as determined by the commission. Such bonds shall be designated on their face Everett-Malden Subway Loan, Act of 1913, shall be for such terms, not exceeding fifty years, and shall bear interest semi-annually at such rate, not exceeding four per cent per annum, as the mayor and the treasurer of the city issuing the bonds shall determine. The debts incurred by each of said cities from time to time under the provisions of this act shall not be included in determining the statutory limit of indebtedness of the city. The proceeds of the said bonds shall be used by the commission to meet all damages, costs, and expenses incurred by the commission in carrying out the provisions of Part III of this act. The bonds shall be payable by such annual payments beginning not more than five years after the date thereof as will extinguish each loan within fifty years from its date, but all loans issued subsequent to the completion of said subway shall be payable by such annual payments beginning not more than one year after the date thereof as will extinguish each loan within fifty years from its date; and the amount of the annual payment of any loan in any year shall not be less than the amount of the principal of said loan payable in any subsequent year. Each authorized issue of bonds shall constitute a separate loan. All rents, tolls, percentages, or other annual compensation received by the city for any use of the subway constructed under authority of this act, shall annually be used by the treasurer of such city to meet, (1) the payment of said bonds as they mature, (2) the interest on the subway bonds issued by such city; and the surplus, if any, shall be placed in a fund for the purchase or cancellation of bonds issued under authority of this act. The proceeds from any sale of lands, rights or other property acquired under authority of this act shall be paid into the said fund of the city in which such lands or other property is situated, or shall be used for construction, as the commission may determine.

Subway to be property of cities.

Section 40. Each of said cities shall severally hold and enjoy in its private or proprietary capacity that part of the subway built under the provisions of Part III of this act, within its limits, and the company shall, in accordance with its contract, pay to such city such portion of the rental for the subway as is proportional to the cost of the construction of that part of the subway within the limits of such city as determined by the commission; and the part of the subway owned by each of said cities shall never be taken by the commonwealth except upon payment of just compensation: provided, however, that each of said cities shall, at the time of authorizing said loan or loans, provide for the payment thereof in accordance with the provisions of section thirty-nine of this act; and when such provision has been made a sum which, with the income derived from rents, tolls, percentages, or other compensation received by the city for any use of the subway under this act, and the amounts received from the sale of lands or rights taken or purchased hereunder, will be sufficient to pay the interest as it accrues on the bonds issued as aforesaid by the cities and to make such payments on the principal as may be required under the provisions of this act shall, without further vote, be assessed by the assessors of the city annually thereafter, in the same manner in which other taxes are assessed, until the debt incurred by said loan or loans is extinguished.

Proviso.

Part IV.

Enforcement of provisions of act.

Section 41. The supreme judicial court or superior court, upon application of either of said cities, the company, or of any other party in interest, may enforce, or prevent the violation of, any provision of this act by any appropriate process.

Time of taking effect.

SECTION 42. This act shall take effect upon its acceptance by the mayor and the board of aldermen of the city of Everett, and by the mayor and the board of aldermen of the city of Malden, and by the company by vote of its board of directors, and return thereof made to the secretary of the commonwealth within two months after its passage.

If act is not accepted, the time for construction of elevated railway shall be extended for certain period, etc.

SECTION 43. In case this act shall not be accepted as provided in section forty-two, then the period specified in chapter four hundred and ninety-seven of the acts of the year nineteen hundred and seven for the construction by the company of an elevated railway for the cities of Boston, Everett and Malden, authorized by said chapter four hundred and ninety-seven, is hereby extended for a period of eighteen months. This provision shall not be construed to limit in any way the power of the board to allow further time for the construction of said elevated railway as provided in section six of the said chapter four hundred and ninety-seven. This section shall take effect upon the passage of this act. Approved June 13, 1913.

Chap. 778 AN ACT RELATIVE TO THE LAYING OUT AND CONSTRUCTION OF HUMPHREY STREET IN THE TOWN OF SWAMPSCOTT.

Be it enacted, as follows:

Preparation of plans and specifications for laying out and construction of Humphrey street in Swampscott.

SECTION 1. The Massachusetts highway commission is hereby authorized and directed to prepare forthwith detailed plans and specifications for the laying out and construction of Humphrey street in the town of Swampscott from Monument square to the junction of Humphrey and Orient streets to a uniform width of seventy feet, in such manner as to widen, straighten and relocate said street. Said plans and specifications shall be subject to the approval of the county commissioners of the county of Essex, and the selectmen of the town of Swampscott, or a majority thereof. Copies of the plans and specifications shall be filed by the Massachusetts highway commission with the county commissioners of the county of Essex and the selectmen of the town of Swampscott.

Street to be laid out upon approval of plans, etc.

SECTION 2. Upon the approval of the plans and specifications provided for in section one, the county commissioners of the said county are authorized and directed, subject to the provisions of chapter forty-eight of the Revised Laws and all amendments thereof and all other general laws which may be applicable, to lay out said Humphrey street in accordance with said plans and specifications.

Relocation, etc., of existing ways, etc.

Section 3. For the purpose aforesaid, said county commissioners are hereby authorized to relocate, alter, widen and discontinue existing highways or other ways or parts thereof, and to order specific repairs thereon, and to take in fee simple or to acquire by purchase or otherwise, any lands, rights or easements and any property which, in their judgment, may be required to carry out the purposes of this act; to purchase or take in fee any or all of the lands and property adjoining the proposed highway between said Monument square and said Orient street, but not exceeding two hundred feet in width of said property on each side of the proposed highway measured from the boundary line thereof. Upon the completion of the layout of said highway said commissioners are hereby authorized to sell any land or property taken or purchased by them under authority hereof, and not needed for the purpose aforesaid. In order to take any land or rights in land the commissioners shall cause to be recorded in the registry of deeds for the southern district of the county of Essex, a description of the lands or rights taken with a statement, signed by them, of the purpose for which they were taken, and with a plan of any land so taken.

Description of lands, etc., taken to be recorded, etc.

Damages.

Section 4. Said county commissioners shall estimate the damage to property, if any, sustained by any person or corporation, by any taking of lands, rights or easements, or by the laying out of the highway, as aforesaid, by the relocation, alteration, widening or discontinuance of existing highways or other ways or by specific repairs ordered to be made thereon. Any person aggrieved thereby may proceed, within one year after the filing of said statement, to have his damages determined in the manner provided by chapter forty-eight of the Revised Laws and any act in amendment thereof or in addition thereto, but in no event shall interest be recovered against the county for more than four per cent per annum.

Construction of sidewalks, etc.

Section 5. Upon the completion of the layout of said Humphrey street as aforesaid, the Massachusetts highway commission shall construct said street to the finished subgrade line, and shall construct sidewalks with curbs, the necessary retaining walls, and all necessary means of drainage, including any changes which may be necessary in the present underground structures and connections, and shall build a roadway above the finished subgrade of wood block pavement upon a cement base, or some other suitable material, from a line eighteen inches outside the car tracks to the sidewalk curb on each side, in accordance with said plans and specifications.

Work which shall be done by street railway company.

SECTION 6. The Bay State Street Railway Company shall do the work within the double track location to be granted to it under the direction and to the satisfaction of the Massachusetts highway commission.

Apportionment of cost.

SECTION 7. The cost and expense incurred under the provisions of this act shall be borne as follows: The county of Essex shall pay the cost of the layout of said street, and the cost of all land and grade damages. The town of Swampscott shall pay the cost of the necessary grading to the finished subgrade line, of the sidewalks, of all curbs and retaining walls, and of all necessary means of drainage including any changes which may be necessary in the present underground structures and connections. The commonwealth shall pay the cost of the remaining work which shall include the construction of the road above the finished subgrade from a line eighteen inches outside the car tracks to the sidewalk curb on each side.

County commissioners may borrow money, etc.

SECTION 8. For the purpose of meeting the expenditures to be borne by the county of Essex under the provisions of this act, the county commissioners of that county are hereby authorized to borrow from time to time on the credit of the county sums not exceeding one hundred thousand dollars in the aggregate, for periods not exceeding twenty years.

Issue of bonds, etc., by the commonwealth.

SECTION 9. For the purpose of meeting the expenditures hereby authorized to be made by the commonwealth, the treasurer and receiver general is hereby empowered, with the approval of the governor and council, to issue bonds or certificates of indebtedness to an amount not exceeding seventy-five thousand dollars, for a term not exceeding ten years. Such bonds or certificates of indebtedness shall be issued as registered bonds and shall bear interest at a rate not exceeding four per cent per annum, payable semi-annually. They shall be designated on their face, State Highway Loan, shall be countersigned by the governor, and shall be deemed a pledge of the faith and credit of the commonwealth. The principal and interest thereof shall be paid at the time specified therein in gold coin of the United States or its equivalent; they shall be sold at public auction or disposed of in such other manner and at such times and prices, in such amounts and at such rates of interest, not exceeding the rate above specified, as shall be deemed best.

Issue of bonds, etc., by town of Swampscott.

Section 10. For the purpose of meeting the expenditures hereby authorized by the town of Swampscott, said town is hereby empowered to issue bonds or notes to an amount not exceeding fifty thousand dollars, for a term not exceeding twenty years. Such bonds or notes shall be payable by such annual payments, beginning not more than one year after the date thereof, as will extinguish each loan within twenty years from its date, and the amount of such annual payment of any loan in any year shall not be less than the amount of the principal of said loan payable in any subsequent year. Each authorized issue of bonds or notes shall constitute a separate loan. Said bonds or notes shall bear interest at a rate not exceeding four per cent per annum, payable semi-annually, and shall be signed by the treasurer of the town and countersigned by a majority of the selectmen. The town may sell the said securities at public or private sale upon such terms and conditions as it may deem proper, but they shall not be sold for less than their par value. The said town shall, at the time of authorizing said loan or loans, provide for payment thereof as aforesaid, and when a vote to that effect has been passed, a sum sufficient to pay the interest as it accrues on the bonds or notes issued as aforesaid by the town, and to make such payments on the principal as may be required under the provisions of this act, shall, without further vote, be assessed by the assessors of the town annually thereafter in the same manner in which other taxes are assessed, until the debt incurred by said loan or loans is extinguished. The indebtedness authorized by this act shall not be reckoned in determining the legal limit of indebtedness of the town.

Payment of loan.

Certain provisions of law not to apply.

Section 11. So much of chapter forty-seven of the Revised Laws and of any acts in amendment thereof or in addition thereto as provides for the repayment by a county to the commonwealth of any part of the moneys expended by the commonwealth within the county, shall not apply to any moneys paid by the commonwealth for the purposes of this act.

County commissioners not disqualified by reason of residence.

SECTION 12. No member of the board of county commissioners for the county of Essex shall be disqualified from serving under the provisions of this act by reason of his residence in a town within the limits of which said highway is situated, notwithstanding any provision of section twenty of chapter twenty of the Revised Laws.

Repeal.

SECTION 13. All acts and parts of acts inconsistent herewith are hereby repealed.

SECTION 14. This act shall take effect upon its passage.

Approved June 13, 1913.

Chap. 779 AN ACT RELATIVE TO SCHOOL ATTENDANCE AND TO THE EMPLOYMENT OF MINORS.

Be it enacted, etc., as follows:

R. L. 44, § 1, etc., amended.

SECTION 1. Section one of chapter forty-four of the Revised Laws, as amended by chapter three hundred and twenty of the acts of the year nineteen hundred and five and by chapter three hundred and eighty-three of the acts of the year nineteen hundred and six, is hereby further amended by striking out the said section and inserting in place thereof the following: — Section 1. Every child between seven and fourteen years of age, every child under sixteen years of age who does not possess such ability to read, write and spell in the English language as is required for the completion of the fourth grade of the public schools of the city or town in which he resides, and every child under sixteen years of age who has not received an employment certificate as provided in this act and is not engaged in some regular employment or business for at least six hours per day or has not the written permission of the superintendent of schools of the city or town in which he resides to engage in profitable employment at home, shall attend a public day school in said city or town or some other day school approved by the school committee, during the entire time the public schools are in session, subject to such exceptions as are provided for in sections four, five and six of this chapter and in section three of chapter forty-two of the Revised Laws, as amended by chapter four hundred and thirty-three of the acts of the year nineteen hundred and two, and by chapter five hundred and thirty-seven of the acts of the year nineteen hundred and eleven; but such attendance shall not be required of a child whose physical or mental condition is such as to render attendance inexpedient or impracticable, or who is being otherwise instructed in a manner approved in advance by the superintendent of schools or the school committee. The superintendent of schools, or teachers in so far as authorized by said superintendent or by the school committee, may excuse cases of necessary absence for other causes not exceeding five day sessions or ten half-day sessions in any period of six months. For the purposes of this section, school committees shall approve a private school only when the instruction in all the studies required by law is in the English language, and when they are satisfied that such instruction equals in thoroughness and efficiency, and in the progress made therein, the instruction in the public schools in the same city or town; but they shall not refuse to approve a private school on account of the religious teaching therein.

Approval of private schools.

Section 2. Said chapter forty-four is hereby further amended by striking out section two and inserting in place thereof the following: — Section 2. Every person having under his control a child as described in section one shall cause him to attend school as therein required, and, if he fails for five day sessions or ten half-day sessions within any period of six months while such control obtains, to cause such child so to attend school, he shall, upon complaint by an attendance officer and conviction thereof, be punished by a fine of not more than twenty dollars, and no physical or mental condition which is capable of correction, or which renders the child a fit subject for special instruction at public charge in institutions other than public day schools, shall avail as defence under the provisions of this or the preceding section, unless it shall be made to appear that the defendant has employed all reasonable measures for the correction of the condition and the suitable instruction of the child.

R. L. 44, § 2, amended.

Penalty for failure to cause child to attend school.

Whoever induces or attempts to induce a child to absent himself unlawfully from school, or employs or harbors a child while school is in session, shall be punished by a fine of not less than ten nor more than fifty dollars.

Penalty for inducing child to absent himself unlawfully from school, etc.

Section 3. Section three of said chapter forty-four, as amended by section one of chapter two hundred and sixty eight of the acts of the year nineteen hundred and eleven, is hereby further amended by striking out the said section and inserting in place thereof the following: — Section 3. Every child shall have a right to attend the public schools of the city or town where he actually resides, subject to the provisions of section four of this chapter, and to such reasonable regulations as to numbers and qualifications of pupils to be admitted to the respective schools and as to other school matters as the school committee shall from time to time prescribe. No child shall be excluded from a public school of any city or town on account of race, color or religion.

R. L. 44, § 3, etc., amended.

Right of pupils to attend public schools, etc.

R. L. 44, § 4, etc., amended.

Section 4. Section four of said chapter forty-four, as amended by chapter three hundred and seventy-five of the acts of the year nineteen hundred and five and by section two of chapter two hundred and sixty-eight of the acts of the year nineteen hundred and eleven, is hereby further amended by striking out the said section and inserting in place thereof the following: — Section 4. It shall be the duty of the school committee of each city or town to provide for the attendance of all children of school age resident therein and to enforce the same under the provisions of section one of this chapter. But if a child who is required by the provisions of said section one to attend school resides temporarily in a city or town other than that of the legal residence of his parent or guardian for the especial purpose of attending school there in preference to the place of such legal residence, the said city or town may, for the tuition of such child during the period of such attendance, recover from the parent or guardian, whether he resides within or without the commonwealth, a sum equal to the average expense per pupil of such school for that period, unless under the provisions of section three of chapter forty-two of the Revised Laws, as amended by chapter four hundred and thirty-three of the acts of the year nineteen hundred and two, and by chapter five hundred and thirty-seven of the acts of the year nineteen hundred and eleven, or of section five of chapter forty-four of the Revised Laws, such tuition is recoverable from the city or town in which the parent or guardian resides.

Attendance at schools in places other than residence of parents, etc.

Tuition.

A child who is not required by the provisions of section one of this chapter to attend school may, in the discretion of the school committee, be required as a condition of admission to a school in a city or town other than that in which his parent or guardian has a legal residence, to pay as tuition a sum equal to the average expense per pupil in the school which such child seeks to enter, the same to be paid annually, semi-annually or at other periods in advance as the school committee may determine.

Tuition. For the tuition in the public schools in any city or town of any child between the ages of five and fifteen years who shall be placed elsewhere than in his own home by the state board of charity, or by the trustees of the Massachusetts training schools, or kept under the control of either of said boards in such city or town, the commonwealth shall pay to said city or town, and for such tuition of any such child so placed by the trustees for children of the city of Boston, or so kept under the control of said trustees, the city of Boston from its appropriation for school purposes, shall pay to said city or town fifty cents for each week of five days, or major part thereof, of attendance of every such child in the public schools, or, if the school committee of said city or town so desires, an amount equal to the average expense for each pupil of such school during the preceding year, for a period equal to the time during which the child so attends.

Transportation. For the transportation to and from a public school of any child whose tuition is payable by the commonwealth or by the city of Boston under the provisions of this section, the commonwealth or the city of Boston, as the case may be, shall pay to the city or town furnishing such transportation, for each week of five days or major part thereof, an amount equal to the average amount for each child paid by said city or town per week for the transportation of children to and from school over the route by which such child is conveyed.

Settlement of accounts, etc. Settlements of the accounts of the several cities and towns with the commonwealth and with the city of Boston shall be made annually on the first day of April, and the amounts found due shall be paid within three months thereafter. The money received by said cities and towns under the provisions of this section shall be applied to the support of schools. For the tuition in the public schools in any town of less than ten thousand inhabitants of any child between the ages of five and fifteen years not theretofore resident in such town, who is an inmate of an institution containing more than six inmates, such town may recover from said institution the additional school expense incurred, as may be determined jointly by the school committee of said town and the trustees or managers of said institution, or, in case of disagreement between said school committee and said trustees or managers, as may be decreed by the probate court; but no demand shall be made upon said trustees or managers without a vote of the town instructing the school committee to that effect.

R. L. 46, § 1, etc., amended.

Section 5. Section one of chapter forty-six of the Revised Laws, as amended by chapter two hundred and fifty-six of the acts of the year nineteen hundred and two, is hereby further amended by striking out the said section and inserting in place thereof the following: — Section 1. The county commissioners of each county, except the counties of Barnstable, Berkshire, Franklin, Hampshire, Dukes County and Nantucket, shall maintain either separately or jointly with the commissioners of other counties as hereinafter provided, in a suitable place, not at or near a penal institution, a school for the instruction and training of children committed thereto as habitual truants, absentees or school offenders. The county commissioners of two or more counties may, at the expense of said counties, establish and maintain a union school which shall be organized and controlled by the chairmen of the county commissioners of said counties. The chairmen of the respective boards of county commissioners of the counties of Norfolk, Bristol and Plymouth, having the management of the Norfolk, Bristol and Plymouth union training school, shall each be paid the sum of one hundred dollars annually by said counties, respectively. The county commissioners of the counties of Barnstable, Berkshire, Franklin, Hampshire, Dukes County and Nantucket shall assign a training school established by law as the place for the instruction and training of children committed within their respective counties as habitual truants, absentees or school offenders, and shall pay for their support in said school such reasonable sum as the county commissioners having control of said school may determine. For the purposes of this chapter the parental school of the city of Boston shall be deemed the county training school of the county of Suffolk, and commitments from the towns of Revere and Winthrop and the city of Chelsea shall be to the training school for the county of Middlesex..

Establishment, etc., of training schools by counties.

The city or town from which an habitual truant, absentee or school offender is committed to a county training school shall pay to the county within which it is situated one dollar a week toward his support, and reports of the condition and progress of its pupils in said school shall be sent each month to the superintendent of schools of such city or town; but the towns of Revere and Winthrop and the city of Chelsea shall pay to the county of Middlesex, for the support of each child committed to the training school of said county, two dollars and fifty cents a week, and such additional sums for each child as will cover the actual cost of maintenance.

R. L. 46, § 3, etc., amended.

Section 6. Section three of said chapter forty-six, as amended by chapter three hundred and thirty of the acts of the year nineteen hundred and three and by chapter two hundred and twenty of the acts of the year nineteen hundred and four, is hereby further amended by striking out the said section and inserting in place thereof the following: — Section 3. A child between seven and sixteen years of age who wilfully and habitually absents himself from school contrary to the provisions of section one of chapter forty-four of the Revised Laws, as amended, shall be deemed to be an habitual truant, and, unless placed on probation as provided in section seven of this chapter, may, upon complaint by an attendance officer and conviction thereof, be committed to a county training school.

Habitual truants, commitment, etc.

R. L. 46, § 4, etc., amended.

Section 7. Section four of said chapter forty-six, as amended by chapter three hundred and thirty of the acts of the year nineteen hundred and three and by chapter two hundred and twenty of the acts of the year nineteen hundred and four, is hereby further amended by striking out the said section and inserting in place thereof the following: — Section 4. A child between seven and sixteen years of age who may be found wandering about in the streets or public places of any city or town, having no lawful occupation, habitually not attending school and growing up in idleness and ignorance, shall be deemed to be an habitual absentee, and, unless placed on probation as provided in section seven of said chapter forty-six may, upon complaint by an attendance officer or any other person, and conviction thereof, be committed to a county training school.

Habitual absentees, commitment, etc.

R. L. 46, § 5, etc., amended.

Section 8. Section five of said chapter forty-six, as amended by chapter three hundred and thirty of the acts of the year nineteen hundred and three and by chapter two hundred and twenty of the acts of the year nineteen hundred and four, is hereby further amended by striking out the said section and inserting in place thereof the following: —

Habitual school offenders, commitment, etc.

Section 5. A child under sixteen years of age who persistently violates the reasonable regulations of the school which he attends, or otherwise persistently misbehaves therein, so as to render himself a fit subject for exclusion therefrom, shall be deemed to be an habitual school offender, and, unless placed on probation as provided in section seven of said chapter forty-six may, upon complaint by an attendance officer and conviction thereof, be committed to a county training school.

R. L. 46, § 6, amended.

SECTION 9. Said chapter forty-six is hereby further amended by striking out section six and inserting in place thereof the following: — Section 6. The court or magistrate by whom a child has been committed to a county training school may make an order relative to the payment by his parents to the county of the cost of his support while in said school, and may from time to time revise and alter such order or make a new order as the circumstances of the parents may justify.

Support of inmates of truant schools.

R. L. 46, § 8, etc., amended.

SECTION 10. Section eight of said chapter forty-six, as amended by section four of chapter two hundred and twenty of the acts of the year nineteen hundred and four, is hereby further amended by striking out the said section and inserting in place thereof the following: —

Permits to be at liberty may be issued in certain cases, etc.

Section 8. County commissioners, if they think it will be for the best interest of any child who has been committed to a county training school under their control, after notice and an opportunity to be heard has been given to the superintendent of schools, or, if there is no superintendent, to the school committee of the city or town from which such child was committed to said school, may permit him to be at liberty upon such conditions as said commissioners may deem best; or, with the approval of the court which imposed the sentence, they may discharge him from said school; and upon such parole or discharge they shall make an entry upon their records of the name of such child, the date of parole or discharge and the reason therefor; and a copy of such record shall be transmitted to the court or magistrate by whom such child was committed and to the school committee of the city or town from which he was committed.

Parole may be revoked, etc.

If such child, in the opinion of said commissioners, violates the conditions of his parole at any time previous to the expiration of the term for which he was committed to said school, such parole may be revoked. If a superintendent of schools or a school committee furnishes evidence satisfactory to said commissioners of the violation by a child of the conditions of his parole, said commissioners shall revoke such parole, and may thereupon issue an order directed to the attendance or police officers of any city or town to arrest such child wherever found and return him to said school. Such officer shall arrest such child and return him to said school, where he shall be held, subject to the provisions of this chapter, for the residue of the term of the original sentence.

The expense of such arrest and return, so far as approved by the commissioners, shall be paid by the county or counties maintaining said school. A child who has been committed to a county training school, whether he be confined at the county training school or be on parole as provided in this section, shall be discharged from the custody and care of such school upon his becoming sixteen years of age. Releases from the parental school of the city of Boston shall be governed by the provisions of chapter five hundred and fourteen of the acts of the year eighteen hundred and ninety-six, and shall be made by the trustees for children who shall have and exercise the powers given by said chapter to the institutions commissioner of said city.

To be discharged at sixteen years of age.

Releases from parental school of Boston.

Section 11. Section ten of said chapter forty-six, as amended by section four of chapter three hundred and thirty of the acts of the year nineteen hundred and three, is hereby further amended by striking out the said section and inserting in place thereof the following: — Section 10. An inmate of a county training school or of the parental school of the city of Boston who persistently violates the reasonable regulations thereof, or is guilty of indecent or immoral conduct, or otherwise grossly misbehaves, so as to render himself an unfit subject for retention therein, may, upon complaint by the officer in control of said school and conviction thereof, if under fifteen years of age, be committed to the Lyman school for boys; if over fifteen years of age, to the industrial school at Shirley. If a girl who is committed to the custody of the state board of charity under sections three, four or five of this chapter, proves unmanageable in a private family, she may be committed, by the state board of charity, to the state industrial school for girls.

R. L. 46, § 10, etc., amended.

Disposition of vicious inmates.

Section 12. Said chapter forty-six is hereby further amended by striking out section thirteen and inserting in place thereof the following: — Section 13. Attendance officers shall inquire into all cases arising under the provisions of sections one, two, three, four and six of chapter forty-four and sections three, four, five and eight of this chapter, or of sections sixty-one, sixty-two, sixty-three or sixty-six of chapter five hundred and fourteen of the acts of the year nineteen hundred and nine, and may make complaints and serve legal processes issued under the provisions of this chapter. They shall have oversight of children placed on probation under the provisions of section seven; of children suffering want to whom the provisions of chapter three hundred and fifty-six of the acts of the year nineteen hundred and four apply; of minors licensed by the school committee under the provisions of chapter four hundred and nineteen of the acts of the year nineteen hundred and ten, and subsequent amendments thereof; and of children admitted to or attending shows or entertainments contrary to the provisions of chapter five hundred and thirty-two of the acts of the year nineteen hundred and ten. An attendance officer may apprehend and take to school without a warrant any truant or absentee found wandering about in the streets or public places.

R. L. 46, § 13, amended.

Duties of attendance officers.

Truant officers to be hereafter known as attendance officers, etc.

SECTION 13. The officers hitherto known as truant officers shall hereafter be known as attendance officers, and all laws now or hereafter in force relative to truant officers shall apply to attendance officers.

1909, 514, § 56, amended.

SECTION 14. Chapter five hundred and fourteen of the acts of the year nineteen hundred and nine is hereby amended by striking out section fifty-six and inserting in place thereof the following: — Section 56. No child under fourteen years of age shall be employed or permitted to work in, about or in connection with any factory, workshop, manufacturing, mechanical or mercantile establishment. No child under fourteen years of age shall be employed at work performed for wages or other compensation, to whomsoever payable, during the hours when the public schools of the city or town in which he resides are in session, or be employed at work before seven o'clock in the morning or after six o'clock in the evening.

Employment of minors under fourteen.

1909, 514, § 57, amended.

SECTION 15. Said chapter five hundred and fourteen is hereby further amended by striking out section fifty-seven and inserting in place thereof the following: — Section 57.

Employment of minors between the ages of fourteen and sixteen.

No child between fourteen and sixteen years of age shall be employed or be permitted to work in, about or in connection with any factory, workshop, manufacturing, mechanical or mercantile establishment unless the person, firm or corporation employing such child procures and keeps on file accessible to the attendance officers of the city or town, to agents of the board of education, and to the state board of labor and industries or its authorized agents or inspectors, the employment certificate as hereinafter provided issued to such child, and keeps a complete list of the names and ages of all such children employed therein conspicuously posted near the principal entrance of the building in which such children are employed: provided, however, that children who are over fourteen but under sixteen years of age shall be permitted to work in mercantile establishments on Saturdays between the hours of seven in the morning and six in the evening, without such certificate. On termination of the employment of a child whose employment certificate is on file, said certificate shall be returned by the employer within two days after said termination to the office of the superintendent of schools from which it was issued.

Proviso.

Section 16. Section fifty-eight of said chapter five hundred and fourteen, as amended by chapter two hundred and sixty-nine of the acts of the year nineteen hundred and eleven, is hereby further amended by striking out the said section and inserting in place thereof the following: — Section 58. An employment certificate shall be issued only by the superintendent of schools or by a person authorized by him in writing, or, where there is no superintendent of schools, by a person authorized in writing by the school committee, of the city or town where the child to whom it is issued resides during his employment, or in case the child resides outside the commonwealth, of the city or town in which the child is to be employed: provided, that no member of a school committee or other person authorized as aforesaid shall have authority to issue such certificate for any child then in, or about to enter, such person's own employment or the employment of a firm or corporation of which he is a member, officer or employee.

1909, 514, § 58, etc., amended.

Employment certificates, issue, etc.

Proviso.

The person issuing employment certificates shall in each case, before issuing a certificate, receive, examine, approve and file the following papers, duly executed: —

Certain papers to be filed before certificate is issued.

(1) A pledge or promise signed by the employer or by an authorized manager or superintendent, setting forth the character of the employment, the number of hours per day during which the child is to be regularly employed and the name and address of the employer, in which pledge or promise the employer agrees to employ the child in accordance with the provisions of this act, and to return the employment certificate as provided in section fifty-seven.

(2) The school record of such child, properly filled out and signed as hereinafter provided.

(3) A certificate signed by a school or family physician, or by a physician appointed by the school committee, stating that the child has been thoroughly examined by said physician and, in his opinion, is in sufficiently sound health and physically able to perform the work which the child intends to do.

(4) Evidence of age showing that the child is fourteen years of age, which shall consist of one of the following proofs of age:

(a) A birth certificate, or a duly attested transcript thereof, made by a registrar of vital statistics or other officer charged with the duty of recording births.

(b) A baptismal certificate, or a duly attested transcript thereof, showing the age and date of baptism of the child.

(c) In case none of the aforesaid proofs of age is obtainable, and only in such case, the person issuing employment certificates may accept in lieu thereof a passport or a duly attested immigration record, or transcript thereof, showing the age of the child, or other official or religious record of the child's age: provided, that it shall appear to the satisfaction of said person that the same is good and sufficient evidence of the child's age.

Proviso.

(d) In case none of the aforesaid proofs of age is obtainable, and only in such case, the person issuing employment certificates may accept in lieu thereof a record of age as given on the register of the school which the child first attended in the commonwealth: provided, that such record was kept for at least two years during the time when such child attended school.

Proviso.

(e) In case none of the aforesaid proofs of age is obtainable, and only in such case, the person issuing employment certificates may receive the signed statement of the school physician, or of the physician appointed by the school committee, stating that, after examination, it is the opinion of such physician that the child is at least fourteen years of age. Such physician's statement shall be accompanied by a statement signed by the child's parent, guardian or custodian, or in case such child has no parent, guardian or custodian, the signed statement of the next adult friend. Such signed statement shall contain the name, date and place of birth and residence of the child, and shall certify that the parent, guardian, custodian or next friend signing the statement is unable to produce any of the proofs of age specified in this section. Such statement shall be signed in the presence of the person issuing employment certificates by the parent, guardian, custodian, or next friend. The person issuing employment certificates may, before issuing a certificate, require the parent, guardian, custodian, or next adult friend of the child to appear and approve in writing the issuance of said certificate.

Section 17. Said chapter five hundred and fourteen is hereby further amended by striking out section fifty-nine and inserting in place thereof the following: — Section 59. The school record required by section sixteen of this act shall be filled out and signed by the principal or teacher in charge of the school which the child last attended and shall be furnished only to a child who, after due examination and investigation, is found to be entitled thereto. Said school record shall state the grade last completed by such child and the studies pursued in completion thereof. It shall state the number of weeks during which such child has attended school during the twelve months next preceding the time of application for said school record. It shall also give the name, date of birth, and the residence of the child as shown on the records of the school and the name of the parent, guardian or custodian. In case it is found to be impossible to obtain said school record from the principal or teacher in charge of the school which such child last attended, the requirement of a school record may be waived.

1909, 514, § 59, amended.

School records.

No such school record shall be issued or accepted and no employment certificate shall be granted unless the child possesses the educational qualifications enumerated in section one of chapter forty-four of the Revised Laws as amended by section one of this act.

No such school record shall be issued or accepted unless the child has regularly attended the public schools or other lawfully approved schools for not less than one hundred and thirty days after becoming thirteen years of age: provided, however, that the school record may be accepted in the case of a person who has been an attendant at a public day school or other lawfully approved school for a period of not less than seven years, if in the opinion of said superintendent such person is mentally incapable of acquiring the educational qualifications herein prescribed.

1909, 514, § 60, etc., amended.

SECTION 18. Section sixty of said chapter five hundred and fourteen, as amended by section four of chapter two hundred and fifty-seven of the acts of the year nineteen hundred and ten, is hereby further amended by striking out the said section and inserting in place thereof the following: — Section 60. The employment certificate required by this act shall state the name, sex, date and place of birth and the place of residence of the child and describe the color of the hair and eyes and any distinguishing facial marks of the child. It shall certify that the child named in such certificate has personally appeared before the person issuing the certificate and has been examined and found to possess the educational qualifications enumerated in section one of chapter forty-four of the Revised Laws, as amended by section one of this act, and that all the papers required by section fifty-eight have been duly examined, approved and filed and that all the conditions and requirements for issuing an employment certificate have been fulfilled. It shall state the grade last completed by said child. Every such certificate shall be signed in the presence of the person issuing the same by the child in whose name it is issued. It shall state the name of the employer for whom, and the nature of the employment in which, the certificate authorizes the child to be employed. It shall bear a number, show the date of its issue and shall be signed by the person issuing it. No fee shall be exacted for an employment certificate or for any of the papers required by this act. Duplicate employment certificates shall not be issued until it shall appear to the satisfaction of the person authorized to issue certificates that the original certificate has been lost. A record giving all the facts contained on every employment certificate issued shall be filed in the office issuing the same, together with the papers required by section fifty-eight as amended. A record shall also be kept of the names and addresses of all children to whom certificates have been refused, together with the names of the schools which said children should attend and the reasons for refusal. All the aforesaid records and papers shall be preserved until such children, if living, shall have become sixteen years of age. Such records and statistics concerning the issuance of employment certificates as may be prescribed by the board of education shall be kept and shall be open to the inspection of said board, its officers or agents. The blank certificates and other papers required in connection with the issuing of employment certificates and educational certificates under this act shall be designed by and furnished to the local school committees by the state board of labor and industries after conference with the board of education, and the approval of the forms thereof by the attorney-general. Said certificates and papers may bear such further and explanatory matter as may be needed to facilitate the enforcement of this act or to comply with future legislative requirements.

Certain records to be kept, etc.

Blank certificates, etc., to be furnished by state board of labor and industries, etc.

Section 19. Section sixty-one of said chapter five hundred and fourteen, as amended by chapter two hundred and forty-nine of the acts of the year nineteen hundred and ten, is hereby further amended by striking out the said section and inserting in place thereof the following: — Section 61. Whoever employs a person under the age of sixteen years, and whoever procures or, having under his control a person under sixteen years of age, permits such person to be employed in violation of the provisions of sections fifty-six or fifty-seven of this act, shall for each offence be punished by a fine of not less than ten dollars nor more than fifty dollars, or by imprisonment for not more than thirty days; and whoever continues to employ a person under sixteen years of age in violation of the provisions of either of said sections, after being notified thereof by a school attendance officer or by an inspector appointed by the state board of labor and industries, shall for every day thereafter while such employment continues be punished by a fine of not less than fifty nor more than two hundred dollars, or by imprisonment for not more than sixty days; and whoever forges, or procures to be forged, or assists in forging a certificate of birth or other evidence of the age of such person, and whoever presents or assists in presenting a forged certificate or evidence of birth to the superintendent of schools or to a person authorized by law to issue certificates, for the purpose of fraudulently obtaining the employment certificate required by this act, shall be punished by a fine of not less than ten nor more than five hundred dollars, or by imprisonment for not more than one year, or by both such fine and imprisonment. Whoever, being authorized to sign an employment certificate, knowingly certifies to any materially false statement therein shall be punished by a fine of not less than ten nor more than two hundred dollars.

1909, 514, § 61, etc., amended.

Penalties for violation of law as to employment of children, etc.

1909, 514, § 62, amended.

SECTION 20. Said chapter five hundred and fourteen is hereby further amended by striking out section sixty-two and inserting in place thereof the following: — Section 62.

Attendance officers may visit factories, workshops, etc.

Attendance officers may visit the factories, workshops, manufacturing, mechanical and mercantile establishments, theatres, and places of public exhibition in their several cities and towns and ascertain whether any children are employed therein contrary to the provisions of this act and shall report in writing any cases of such illegal employment to the superintendent of schools or the school committee and to the state board of labor and industries or its authorized officers or agents.

Duties of inspectors.

Inspectors appointed by the state board of labor and industries shall visit all factories, workshops, manufacturing, mechanical and mercantile establishments within their respective districts, and ascertain whether any children are employed therein contrary to the provisions of this act, and shall enter complaint against whomever is found to have violated any of said provisions.

Penalty.

An inspector who knowingly or wilfully violates any provision of this section may be punished by a fine of not more than one hundred dollars.

1909, 514, § 63, amended.

SECTION 21. Said chapter five hundred and fourteen is hereby further amended by striking out section sixty-three and inserting in place thereof the following: — Section 63.

Arrest by attendance officers of minors unlawfully employed.

An attendance officer shall apprehend and take to school, without a warrant, any child under the age of twenty-one years who is employed in any factory, workshop, manufacturing, mechanical or mercantile establishment in violation of the provisions of this act, or who is employed in any theatre or place of public exhibition contrary to the provisions of this act, and such attendance officer shall forthwith report to the police, district or municipal court or trial justice within whose judicial district the illegal employment occurs, the evidence in his possession relating to the illegal employment of any child so apprehended, and shall make complaint against whomever the court or trial justice may direct.

Penalty.

An attendance officer who knowingly and wilfully violates any provision of this section may be punished by a fine of not more than one hundred dollars for each offence.

1909, 514, § 64, amended.

Section 22. Said chapter five hundred and fourteen is hereby further amended by striking out section sixty-four and inserting in place thereof the following: — Section 64. Inspectors appointed by the state board of labor and industries, agents of the board of education and attendance officers may require that the employment or educational certificates and lists of children who are employed in factories, workshops, manufacturing, mechanical or mercantile establishments shall be produced for their inspection. A failure to produce to any person authorized by this section who requests the same an employment or educational certificate or list required by law shall be prima facie evidence of the illegal employment of any person whose certificate is not produced or whose name is not so listed. A corporation or other employer, or any agent or officer thereof, who retains an employment or educational certificate in violation of the provisions of this act shall be punished by a fine of not less than ten nor more than one hundred dollars.

Production of employment and educational certificates for inspection.

Effect of refusal.

1909, 514, § 66, amended.

Section 23. Said chapter five hundred and fourteen is hereby further amended by striking out section sixty-six and inserting in place thereof the following: — Section 66. No child who is over sixteen and under twenty-one years of age shall be employed in a factory, workshop, manufacturing, mechanical or mercantile establishment unless his employer procures and keeps on file an educational certificate showing the age of the child and his ability or inability to read and write as hereinafter provided. Such certificates shall be issued by the person authorized by this act to issue employment certificates.

Employment of minors over sixteen and under twenty-one years of age.

Educational certificates, issue, etc.

The person authorized to issue such educational certificates shall, so far as is practicable, require the proof of age stated in section fifty-eight. He shall examine the child and certify whether or not he possesses the educational qualifications enumerated in section one of chapter forty-four of the Revised Laws, as amended. Every such certificate shall be signed in the presence of the person issuing the same by the child in whose name it is issued.

Proof of age required, etc.

Every employer of such children shall keep their educational certificates accessible to any officer authorized to enforce the provisions of this act and shall return said certificates to the office from which they were issued within two days after the date of the termination of the employment of said children. If the educational certificate of any child who is over sixteen and under twenty-one years of age fails to show that said child possesses the educational qualifications enumerated in section one of chapter forty-four of the Revised Laws, as amended, then no person shall employ such child while a public evening school is maintained in the city or town in which the child resides, unless such child is a regular attendant at such evening school or at a day school, and presents to his employer each week a school record of such attendance. When such record shows unexcused absences, such attendance shall be deemed to be irregular and insufficient. The person authorized to issue educational certificates, or teachers acting under his authority, may, however, excuse justifiable absence. Whoever employs a child in violation of the provisions of this section shall forfeit not more than one hundred dollars for each offence, to the use of the evening schools of such city or town. A parent, guardian or custodian who permits a child to be employed in violation of the provisions of this section shall forfeit not more than twenty dollars, to the use of the evening schools of such city or town.

Illiterate minors not to be employed unless attending evening school, etc.

Penalties.

Children not to be prevented from receiving manual training, etc.

Proviso.

SECTION 24. Nothing in this act shall be construed to prevent children of any age from receiving manual training or industrial education in, or in connection with, any school in this commonwealth: provided, that the same has been duly approved by the local school committee or by the board of education.

Repeal.

SECTION 25. Chapter three hundred and eighty-nine of the acts of the year nineteen hundred and six and chapter three hundred and ten of the acts of the year nineteen hundred and eleven and all acts and parts of acts inconsistent with the provisions of this act are hereby repealed.

Time of taking effect.

SECTION 26. This act shall take effect on the first day of September, nineteen hundred and thirteen.

Approved June 13, 1913.

Chap. 780 AN ACT TO AUTHORIZE THE COUNTY OF DUKES COUNTY TO ACQUIRE LAND ADJACENT TO THE COURT HOUSE IN THE TOWN OF EDGARTOWN.

Be it enacted, etc., as follows:

County of Dukes County may purchase

SECTION 1. The county commissioners of the county of Dukes County are hereby authorized, in their discretion, to purchase the parcel of land with the buildings thereon in the town of Edgartown which borders upon and is southeasterly of the court house in the said town and which contains seven thousand square feet, more or less. For this purpose the county commissioners may expend a sum not exceeding three thousand dollars and may issue notes or bonds of the county to that amount. Such notes or bonds shall be signed by the treasurer and countersigned by the county commissioners, shall be payable in annual sums of five hundred dollars, beginning one year after the issue of any such notes or bonds, until the whole loan is paid, and shall bear interest at a rate not exceeding four and one half per cent per annum. The county commissioners may dispose of the said notes or bonds at private sale or otherwise as they may determine to be for the best interest of the county, but such notes or bonds shall not be sold for less than their par value. The county commissioners may remove or cause to be removed any structures upon the said lot, if the same is acquired by them, and any sums received for such structures shall be used in paying for the said lot.

certain land in the town of Edgartown.

Section 2. This act shall be submitted to the voters of the county at a special election to be held in each town in the county at such time as the county commissioners, with the approval of the selectmen of the towns, respectively, may fix, and this act shall take effect upon its acceptance by a majority of the voters of the county voting thereon.

Act to be submitted to voters for acceptance.

Section 3. This act shall become void unless the said property is acquired by the county, as above provided, within two years after the passage of this act.

Act to become void unless, etc.

Chap. 783 AN ACT TO AUTHORIZE THE TOWN OF SANDISFIELD TO REFUND CERTAIN INDEBTEDNESS.

Be it enacted, etc., as follows:

Town of Sandisfield may refund certain notes. SECTION 1. The town of Sandisfield, for the purpose of refunding three thousand four hundred and seventy dollars, represented by demand notes, is hereby authorized to incur indebtedness to that amount and to issue notes of the town therefor. Notes issued under authority of this act shall be payable by such annual payments, beginning not more than one year after the date of the note first issued, as will extinguish the whole loan within ten years from the date of the note first issued, and the amount of such annual payments in any year shall not be less than the amount of the principal payable in any subsequent year. Said notes shall bear interest at a rate not exceeding five per cent per annum, payable semi-annually, and the amount required to pay the interest and principal maturing each year shall be raised by taxation and shall, without further action by the town, be assessed annually by the assessors in the same manner in which other taxes are assessed, until the whole debt is extinguished.

Duties of town treasurer.

Section 2. The treasurer of the town of Sandisfield, with the approval of the selectmen, is hereby authorized to incur indebtedness in behalf of the town under the provisions of this act and to issue notes of the town therefor.

Section 3. This act shall take effect upon its passage.

Approved June 13, 1913.

An Act to change the name, enlarge the membership and increase the powers of the board of railroad commissioners. Chap. 784

Be it enacted, etc., as follows:

Board of railroad commissioners, name changed to public service commission and membership enlarged.

Section 1. The board of railroad commissioners, existing under authority of section one of Part I of chapter four hundred and sixty-three of the acts of the year nineteen hundred and six, shall hereafter be called the public service commission, hereinafter in this act called the commission, and its membership shall be enlarged so as to consist of five competent persons, hereinafter collectively called commissioners and individually referred to as commissioner, with the qualifications and disabilities in said act and this act prescribed. Upon the taking effect of this act the governor, with the advice and consent of the council, shall appoint two members in addition to the members of the board at that time and shall, notwithstanding the term for which any member of the board may have been heretofore appointed and the date of the expiration thereof, designate the terms of all of said members so that one member shall be appointed for five years, one for four years, one for three years, one for two years, and one for one year from the first day of July next. Thereafter, one member of the commission shall annually, before the first day of July, be appointed by the governor, with the advice and consent of the council, for a term of five years from said date. Whenever a new appointment is made, or whenever any vacancy in the commission is filled, the commissioners shall meet and choose one of their number as chairman. The chairman shall be paid an annual salary of eighty-five hundred dollars, and each of the other commissioners shall receive an annual salary of eight thousand dollars. Not more than three commissioners shall be appointed from the same political party.

Compensation.

Duties of the commission.

SECTION 2. The commission shall, so far as may be necessary for the purpose of carrying out the provisions of this or any other act, have general supervision and regulation of, and jurisdiction and control over, the following services, when furnished or rendered for public use within the commonwealth, and all persons, firms, corporations, associations and joint stock associations or companies, hereinafter in this act collectively called common carriers and severally called a common carrier, furnishing or rendering any such service or services: —

a. The transportation or carriage of persons or property, or both, between points within the commonwealth by railroads, street railways, hereinafter called railways, electric railroads, and steamships, including express service and car service carried on upon or rendered in connection with such railroads, railways, electric railroads or steamships.

b. The operation of all conveniences, appliances, facilities or equipment utilized in connection with, or appertaining to, such transportation or carriage of persons or property or such express service or car service, by whomsoever owned or by whomsoever provided, whether the service be common carriage or merely in facilitation of common carriage.

c. The transmission of intelligence within the commonwealth by electricity, by means of telephone lines or telegraph lines or any other method or system of communication, including the operation of all conveniences, appliances, instrumentalities, or equipment utilized in connection therewith or appertaining thereto.

R. L. 109, §§ 24 and 27, amended.

Section 3. Sections twenty-four and twenty-seven of chapter one hundred and nine of the Revised Laws are hereby amended by substituting for the words "commissioner of corporations", and for any other word or words intended to designate said commissioner of corporations in each of said sections, whenever any jurisdiction is conferred with respect to corporations established for and engaged in the business of transmitting intelligence by electricity, the words: — public service commission. Chapter four hundred and thirty-three of the acts of the year nineteen hundred and six is hereby amended by substituting in place of the words "Massachusetts highway commission", and any other word or words intended to designate the Massachusetts highway commission wherever used in said act, the words: — public service commission, — and said act is further amended by repealing section three thereof. Nothing in this act shall affect the compensation at present paid to the members of the Massachusetts highway commission.

1906, 433, amended.

Not to affect compensation of Massachusetts highway commission.

Any investigation, etc., begun by Massachusetts highway commission to be continued, etc., by public service commission.

Section 4. Any investigation, examination, proceeding or appeal undertaken, begun or instituted by or before the Massachusetts highway commission in connection with the supervision of companies engaged in the transmission of intelligence by electricity prior to the taking effect of this act, may be conducted and continued to a final termination by the public service commission, in the same manner, under the same terms and conditions, and with the same effect as though the jurisdiction of the Massachusetts highway commission over such matters had not been terminated; but no order or ruling heretofore made by said last mentioned commission and then in force shall be invalidated by the taking effect of this act. This act shall not affect pending actions or proceedings, civil or criminal, brought by or against the Massachusetts highway commission; but the same may be prosecuted or defended in the name of the public service commission: provided, that the subject-matter thereof is within the statutory jurisdiction of said public service commission. And this act shall not release or waive any right or penalty which may have arisen or may have been incurred, nor shall any right or penalty created or enforceable under this act be a bar to or affect any recovery or indictment for such right or such penalty.

Pending proceedings not affected, etc.

Proviso.

to the commission all books, maps, papers, files and records in its possession relating to the supervision of all companies engaged in the transmission of intelligence by electricity, and the commission is hereby authorized to take possession of all such books, maps, papers, files and records. Upon the taking effect of this act every officer or employee subordinate to or under the control of or connected with the Massachusetts highway commission whose sole duty or exclusive employment relates to or has reference to the supervision of companies engaged in the transmission of intelligence by electricity shall become subordinate to or be transferred to the control of the commission in the same manner as if he were appointed under section nine of this act.

Certain employees to be transferred, etc.

Quorum.

Section 6. Three members of the commission shall constitute a quorum. No contested matter upon which a public hearing by said commission is required by law shall be heard or decided by less than a quorum of the commission. So much of section six of chapter seven hundred and fifty-five of the acts of the year nineteen hundred and eleven as authorizes a hearing upon a contested matter to be held before one commissioner and an order in any such matter made by one commissioner to be confirmed by the commission with the same effect as an order of the commission, is hereby repealed.

Repeal.

Records and official seal.

Section 7. Every vote, recommendation and order of the commission shall be entered of record; and the commission shall have an official seal, which shall be judicially noticed. Copies of all official documents and orders filed or deposited in the office of the commission, certified by a member of the commission, or by the secretary, to be true copies of the originals, under the official seal of the commission, shall be evidence in like manner as the originals in all courts of the commonwealth; and the commission may charge and collect for such copies ten cents for each folio. The fees so collected shall be paid into the treasury of the commonwealth.

Certified copies to be evidence, etc.

Fees.

Expenses.

Section 8. The commission may expend for the salaries and expenses authorized hereby and by other provisions of law, such amount as the general court shall annually appropriate. Sections three and four of Part I of chapter four hundred and sixty-three of the acts of the year nineteen hundred and six are hereby repealed.

Repeal.

Section 9. The commission may appoint a counsel to the commission, and such attorneys as it may deem advisable, for such terms of office or employment and at such salaries as it may deem proper, who shall in the conduct of litigation and court proceedings act under the direction of the attorney-general. The commission may appoint or employ such engineers, accountants, statisticians, bureau chiefs and division heads, assistants, inspectors, clerks, and other subordinates as it may deem advisable, on such terms of office or employment and at such salaries as it may deem proper. The commission may expend such sums to procure opinions, advice, plans, surveys, appraisals, audits, examinations, statistics, information, apparatus, instruments, books, tables, maps, drawings, supplies and sundries, and for travel within or without the commonwealth and expense incidental thereto as it may from time to time deem requisite in the performance of its duties. The commission may, from any appropriations authorized by the general court for the use of the commission, expend such sums as it deems necessary in the performance of its duties under the provisions of this act. The provisions of chapter two hundred and forty-five of the acts of the year nineteen hundred and seven, relative to experts and inspectors of the commission, shall apply to the appointment, employment or continuance in office of any officer or employee of the commission whose salary or compensation is in excess of twelve hundred dollars per annum. The commission may assign to all officers and employees by it appointed or employed such functions and such rank as it shall from time to time deem advisable; but everything done by any such officer or employee shall be subject to the control of, and revision by, the commission. The commission may from time to time cause to be made a compilation of the statutes of this commonwealth relating to common carriers, with annotations.

Section 10. The commission may inquire into the rates, charges, regulations, practices, equipment and services of common carriers in this commonwealth, and elsewhere, rendering any service of a kind subject to its jurisdiction. It may be represented at any public hearings before any legislative committee or public board in this commonwealth, or of any other state or of the United States, with respect to any proposed legislation or action by public authorities within or without the commonwealth affecting any public service within the commonwealth subject to its supervision, whenever in its opinion such representation is desirable in the interests of this commonwealth. It may apply by petition to the interstate commerce commission for relief, and may present evidence and arguments to the said commission, in any case in which it is of opinion that a common carrier subject to its supervision is violating any provision of the interstate commerce law or any valid order or regulation made under authority thereof. The commission may also confer with or appear before boards of other states having powers over any of the common carriers rendering public services of the kind hereinbefore described, when in its judgment the interests of the commonwealth will be promoted thereby.

Commission may petition interstate commerce commission.

May confer, etc., with boards of other states.

To examine books, etc., of common carriers.

Annual audit.

Penalty.

SECTION 11. The commission may, either through its members or by employees duly authorized by it, examine all books, contracts, records, documents, papers and memoranda of any common carrier, and by subpœna duces tecum compel the production thereof, or of duly verified copies of the same or any of them, and compel the attendance of such witnesses as the commission may require to give evidence at any such examination. The commission may provide for an annual audit by employees duly authorized by it of all the accounts of any common carrier or class of common carriers, whenever it deems such action advisable. Any employee or agent of the commission who divulges any fact or information which may come to his knowledge during the course of any such examination or audit, except in so far as he may be directed by the commission, or by a court or judge, or be authorized by law, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall be punished by a fine of not more than one thousand dollars.

Forms of accounts.

SECTION 12. The commission may from time to time establish and prescribe a system of forms of accounts to be used by the common carriers subject to its supervision, or may classify the said common carriers and prescribe a system of forms of accounts for each class. The accounts of all such common carriers shall be kept in accordance with the forms prescribed. The commission may also in its discretion prescribe the forms of records and memoranda to be kept by such common carriers. The forms of accounts established by the commission and the forms of records and memoranda prescribed by it shall conform as nearly as may be to the similar forms from time to time established and prescribed by the interstate commerce commission.

Inspection of property, etc.

Section 13. The commission may, either through its members or responsible agents, engineers, inspectors or examiners duly authorized by it, enter upon any premises occupied by any common carrier for any purpose consistent with the provisions of this act. It may inspect the property, equipment, buildings, plants, factories, power houses, ducts, conduits and offices of any common carrier. It shall have the right in connection with such inspection by its members, inspectors or experts to have such service, of the sort proffered by the common carrier, performed for it as it may reasonably require, including the right to ride upon any locomotive, car or steamship while in service, and to have, upon reasonable notice, the use of an inspection locomotive or car whenever that is necessary in the opinion of the commission, for a physical inspection of all or any of the lines and stations of any railroad or railway under its supervision.

Valuation, etc.

Section 14. The commission may investigate and determine the fair value for any purpose of all the property of any common carrier rendering a public service subject to the supervision of the commission, which is actually used or useful for the convenience of the public, whenever it deems the ascertainment of such value necessary in order to carry into effect any provision of this act. The commission may at any time on its own initiative make a revaluation of such property. In making any valuation under this section, the commission may have access to and use any books, documents or records in the possession of any department or board of the commonwealth or any political subdivision thereof.

Issue of stock, bonds, notes or other evidences of indebtedness by railroads.

Section 15. A railroad corporation may issue shares of capital stock, bonds, notes or other evidences of indebtedness, for the purpose of funding its floating debt, or for any other lawful purpose, and may mortgage or pledge as security for the payment of such indebtedness a part or all of its railroad, equipment and franchise and a part or all of its real and personal property, including property to be afterward acquired. Any mortgage executed by a railroad company shall secure all bonds, notes and other evidences of indebtedness previously issued and then outstanding on equal terms with any other indebtedness secured by such mortgage. Its bonds, notes or other evidences of indebtedness may be issued by any such corporation to an amount which, when added to the amount of all its then outstanding bonds, notes or other evidences of indebtedness, shall not cause the aggregate amount of all its bonds, notes and other evidences of indebtedness to exceed twice the amount of the capital stock of the corporation actually paid in at the time, as determined under the provisions of chapter six hundred and twenty of the acts of the year nineteen hundred and eight; but such of the bonds issued or to be issued under a mortgage as are deposited to retire at or before maturity, bonds or other evidences of indebtedness previously issued and outstanding at the date of such mortgage while so deposited shall not be taken into account in applying this limitation. No bonds, coupon notes, or other evidences of indebtedness payable at periods of more than twelve months from the date thereof shall be issued unless authorized by a vote of the stockholders at a meeting called for the purpose, and no such bond, coupon note or other evidence of indebtedness shall be issued unless countersigned or certified by a person or trust company appointed by the corporation for that purpose.

Proposed issue to be authorized by vote.

Application for approval of issue of capital stock, bonds, etc.

SECTION 16. Before any railroad corporation shall issue any shares of capital stock or any bonds, notes or other evidences of indebtedness payable at periods of more than twelve months after the date thereof, it shall apply to the commission for its approval of the proposed issue to such amount as the commission shall determine to be reasonable and proper for the purpose of funding its floating debt properly incurred for lawful purposes, or reasonable and proper for any other lawful purpose set forth in the application for such approval. The commission shall render its decision upon such an application within thirty days after the final hearing thereon. The decision shall be in writing and shall assign the reasons therefor. Any order of the commission approving any such issue of stock, bonds, notes or other evidences of indebtedness may provide for the application of the proceeds thereof to such particular uses as the commission shall by that order or by some subsequent order specify, and the corporation shall not apply such proceeds otherwise than as thus specified in such order or orders. The decision of the commission as to the amount of stock which is reasonably necessary for the purpose for which such stock is proposed to be issued shall be based upon the price at which such stock is to be issued, and the commission shall refuse to approve any particular issue of stock, if, in its opinion, the price at which it is proposed to be issued is so low as to be inconsistent with the public interest. The provisions of this section shall not require a railroad corporation which is incorporated under the laws of one or more other states or foreign countries, as well as under the laws of this commonwealth, to apply to the commission for approval of the issue of shares of capital stock or of bonds, notes or other evidences of indebtedness for the sole ultimate purpose of providing funds for additions to or improvements of property of such corporation or of any corporation controlled by it through lease or stock ownership, if such property has a situs in another state or country by the laws of which such railroad corporation is authorized to operate a railroad therein and to make such additions to or improvements of such property, nor to apply to the commission for approval of the issue of shares of capital stock, bonds, notes or other evidences of indebtedness for paying, funding or refunding indebtedness incurred for such ultimate purpose; but all such proposed issues and the authority therefor shall, before the issue of such securities, be reported to the commission. Except for such ultimate purpose, such a railroad corporation shall not hereafter without the approval of the commission issue any shares of capital stock, or any bonds, notes or other evidences of indebtedness payable at periods of more than twelve months after the date thereof, in exchange for or to pay for shares of capital stock, notes, bonds or other evidences of indebtedness of any other corporation which are hereafter acquired or contracted for; but if the acquisition or holding of such securities by such railroad corporation shall be authorized by the laws of any state or country in which it has been incorporated, and shall also be permitted by the laws of the state or country in which such other corporation has been incorporated, the commission may authorize the acquisition of such securities by such railroad corporation, and may approve the issue of shares of capital stock, bonds, notes or other evidences of indebtedness by such railroad corporation in exchange for or to pay for such securities, provided that the commission shall find that such acquisition and the terms thereof are consistent with the public interest. the superior court shall have jurisdiction in equity, upon the application of the commission, of the attorney-general, of any stockholder or of any interested party, to enforce the provisions of this and the preceding section and all lawful orders and decisions, conditions or requirements of said commission made in pursuance thereof. A director, treasurer or other officer or agent of a railroad corporation, who knowingly votes to authorize the issue of, or knowingly signs, certifies or issues stock or bonds contrary to the provisions of this or the preceding section, or who knowingly votes to authorize the application, or knowingly applies the proceeds of such stock or bonds contrary to the provisions of said sections or either of them, or who knowingly votes to assume or incur, or knowingly assumes or incurs in the name or behalf of such corporation, any debt or liability except for the legitimate purposes of the corporation, shall be punished by a fine of not more than one thousand dollars, or by imprisonment for not more than one year, or by both such fine and imprisonment. Sections fifty and sixty-five of Part II of chapter four hundred and sixty-three of the acts of the year nineteen hundred and six, sections forty-eight and sixty-six of Part II of the same act, as amended by sections four and five of Part II of chapter seven hundred and twenty-five of the acts of the year nineteen hundred and twelve, and all other acts and parts of acts inconsistent with this or the preceding section, so far as they apply to railroad corporations, are hereby repealed.

Charges for service regulated.

SECTION 17. All charges made, demanded or received by any common carrier subject to the supervision of the commission for any service rendered or performed, or to be rendered or performed by it or in connection therewith in the conduct of its common carrier business, or made, demanded or received by any two or more common carriers joining in rendering or performing any service shall be just and reasonable, and every such common carrier and any two or more such common carriers joining in rendering or performing any service shall be entitled to make, demand and receive just and reasonable charges for any such service, and every unjust or unreasonable charge is hereby prohibited and declared unlawful; but charges heretofore established and set out in any schedule filed as hereinafter provided shall be deemed prima facie lawful until changed or modified by the commission under the powers conferred upon the commission by the provisions of this act, but this provision shall not give to such rates any greater weight as evidence of the reasonableness of other rates than they would otherwise have.

Free service, tickets, etc., prohibited, except, etc.

Section 18. No common carrier shall, directly or indirectly, issue or give any free service, free tickets, free pass or free transportation for passengers or property between points within this commonwealth; but nothing in this act shall be held to prohibit any railroad corporation from furnishing free passes or free transportation to officers or employees of the general court; nor to prohibit any railroad corporation or street railway company from giving free or reduced rate service to policemen, letter carriers and firemen while in uniform or engaged in the discharge of their duties; nor to prohibit any common carrier from giving free or reduced rate service to its employees, or in cases of public emergency, or for such charitable purposes as may be approved by the commission; nor to prohibit any telephone or telegraph company, unless the commission shall otherwise order, from giving service at reduced rates to the commonwealth or to any city or town; nor shall this act be held to prohibit the commissioners, their experts, inspectors and counsel from being transported over the railroads and the railways of this commonwealth free of charge while engaged in the performance of their duties; nor shall this act be held to prohibit the giving by any such common carrier of free or reduced rate service to the classes defined and provided for in the act of congress entitled "An act to regulate commerce" and acts amendatory thereof.

Fixing of rates, charges, etc., subject to commission's approval.

Section 19. Subject to the powers of the commission to regulate and prescribe rates and charges, a common carrier may make commodity, transit, or other classes of rates. The furnishing by any common carrier of any service at the rates and upon the terms and conditions provided for in any existing contract executed prior to the first day of July, nineteen hundred and thirteen, shall not constitute a discrimination unless the commission shall so determine. The commission shall not be prevented from taking such action as it may deem proper by any commitment or agreement of a common carrier entered into by reason of any requirement or recommendation of any board or public officers acting under delegated authority from the general court prior to the enactment hereof. Unless the commission

All season tickets, before issuance, shall be subject to the approval of the commission as to the form thereof and the conditions named therein.

Season tickets.

Schedules of rates, etc., to be filed, etc.

Section 20. Every common carrier shall file with the commission and shall plainly print and keep open to public inspection, schedules showing all rates, joint rates, fares, telephone rentals, tolls, classifications and charges for any service, of every kind rendered or furnished, or to be rendered or furnished, by it within the commonwealth, and all conditions and limitations, rules and regulations and forms of contracts or agreements in any manner affecting the same, in such places, within such time, and in such form, and with such detail as the commission may order. In the case of common carriers the forms prescribed for such schedules and the requirements relative to the filing and publication thereof shall conform, as nearly as may be, to the forms prescribed by and the similar requirements of the interstate commerce commission. No common carrier shall, except as otherwise provided in this act, charge, demand, exact, receive, or collect a different rate, joint rate, fare, telephone rental, toll or charge for any service rendered or furnished by it, or to be rendered or furnished, from that applicable to such service as specified in its schedule filed with the commission and in effect at the time. Nor shall any common carrier refund, or remit directly or indirectly, any rate, joint rate, fare, telephone rental, toll or charge so specified, or any part thereof, nor extend to any person or corporation any rule, regulation, privilege or facility except such as are specified in the said schedule and regularly and uniformly extended to all persons and corporations under like circumstances for the like, or substantially similar, service. Unless the commission otherwise orders, no change shall be made in any rate, joint rate, fare, telephone rental, toll, classification or charge, or in any rule or regulation or form of contract or agreement in any manner affecting the same as shown upon the schedules filed in accordance with this act, except after thirty days' notice to the commission, which notice shall plainly state the changes proposed to be made in the schedule then in force and the time when such changes shall take effect, and such notice to the public as the commission shall order, to be given prior to the time, fixed in such notice to the commission, for the changes to take effect. The commission for good cause shown may allow changes without requiring the thirty days' notice, under such conditions as it may prescribe, and may suspend the taking effect of changes under the circumstances and in the manner hereinafter provided. At the time when any changes take effect, they shall be plainly indicated upon existing schedules, or new schedules shall be printed and filed, as the commission may order. Nothing in this act shall be construed to prevent any telegraph or telephone corporation from continuing to furnish the use of its lines, equipment or service under any contract or contracts in force at the date when this act takes effect, or upon the taking effect of any schedule or schedules of rates subsequently filed with the commission, as hereinafter provided, at the rate or rates fixed in such contract or contracts: provided, however, that when any such contract or contracts are or become terminable by notice, the commission shall have power in its discretion to direct by order that such contract or contracts shall be terminated by the telegraph or telephone corporation party thereto, and thereupon such contract or contracts shall be terminated by such telegraph or telephone corporation as and when directed by such order.

Waiver of notice.

Certain existing contracts not affected.

Section 21. Whenever the commission receives notice of any change or changes proposed to be made in any schedule filed under the provisions of this act, it shall have power, either upon complaint or upon its own motion, and after notice, to hold a public hearing and make investigation as to the propriety of such proposed change or changes. Pending any such investigation and the decision thereon, the commission shall have power, by any order served upon the common carrier affected, to suspend the taking effect of such change or changes, but not for a longer period than six months beyond the time when such change or changes would otherwise take effect. After such hearing and investigation, the commission may make such order in reference to any new rate, joint rate, fare, telephone rental, toll, classification, charge, rule, regulation or form of contract or agreement proposed, as would be proper in a proceeding initiated after the same has taken effect. At any such hearing involving any proposed increase in any rate, joint rate, fare, telephone rental, toll or charge, the burden of proof to show that such increase is necessary in order to obtain a reasonable compensation for the service rendered shall be upon the common carrier. If at a hearing involving any proposed decrease in any rate, joint rate, fare, telephone rental, toll or charge demanded by any common carrier, it shall appear to the commission that the said rate, joint rate, fare, telephone rental, toll or charge is insufficient to yield reasonable compensation for the service rendered, the commission shall have power to determine what will be the just and reasonable rate or rates, fare or fares, telephone rental or rentals, toll or tolls, charge or charges, to be thereafter observed in such case as the minimum to be charged, and to make an order that the common carrier complained of shall not thereafter demand, charge or collect any rate, fare, telephone rental, toll, or charge lower than the minimum so prescribed without first obtaining the consent of the commission, not to be given without a public hearing.

Hearings upon rates, fares, etc.

Section 22. Whenever the commission shall be of opinion, after a hearing had upon its own motion or upon complaint, that the rates, fares or charges or any of them demanded, exacted, charged or collected by any common carrier now or hereafter subject to its jurisdiction, for any services to be performed within the commonwealth, or the regulations or practices of such common carrier affecting such rates, are unjust, unreasonable, unjustly discriminatory or unduly preferential or in any wise in violation of any provision of law, or that the rates, fares or charges or any of them chargeable by any such common carrier are insufficient to yield reasonable compensation for the service rendered and are unjust and unreasonable, the commission shall determine the just and reasonable rates, fares and charges to be charged for the service to be performed, and shall fix the same by order to be served upon every common carrier by whom such rates, fares and charges or any of them are thereafter to be observed. It shall be the duty of every such common carrier to observe and obey every requirement of every such order so served upon it, and to do everything necessary or proper in order to secure absolute compliance with and observance of every such order by all its officers, agents and employees. The commission may, after investigation, authorize a common carrier in special cases to charge less for longer than for shorter distances for the transportation of passengers or property, whenever in the opinion of the commission such authorization is consistent with the public interests, and the commission may from time to time modify or revoke such authorization.

Hearings upon service, etc.

Section 23. Whenever the commission shall be of opinion, after a hearing had upon its own motion or upon complaint, that the regulations, practices, equipment, appliances or service of any common carrier, now or hereafter subject to its jurisdiction, are unjust, unreasonable, unsafe, improper or inadequate, the commission shall determine the just, reasonable, safe, adequate and proper regulations and practices, thereafter to be in force and to be observed, and the equipment, appliances and service thereafter to be used and shall fix and prescribe the same by order to be served upon every common carrier to be bound thereby. The commission shall have power after such a hearing to order from time to time that a railroad company shall operate its lines, of standard gauge, or such parts thereof as the commission shall prescribe, by electric power instead of by steam power, and in its order shall prescribe the time within which the work of electrification shall be done. Before making such order, the commission shall consider the relative importance and necessity of the changes in any specific regulations, practices, equipment and appliances proposed to be included therein and of other changes which may be brought to its attention in the course of the hearing, the financial ability of the carrier to comply with the requirements of the order, and the effect of the carrier's compliance therewith, upon its financial ability to make such other changes, if any, as may be deemed by the commission of equal or greater importance and necessity in the performance of the service which the carrier has professed to render to the public. It shall be the duty of every such common carrier to observe and obey every requirement of every such order so served upon it, and to do everything necessary or proper in order to secure absolute compliance with and observance of every such order by all its officers, agents and employees.

Orders of commission to be obeyed, etc.

Hearings upon a train crew.

Section 24. Whenever the commission shall be of opinion, after a hearing had upon its own motion or upon complaint, that the number of men forming a train crew of any train operating in the commonwealth is not sufficient to operate said train for the safety of the public and the employees of the railroad, it shall thereupon order such changes as it may deem necessary.

Establishment of through routes, joint rates, etc., for passengers or freight.

Section 25. Wherever there is no satisfactory through route for the transportation of passengers or freight at a reasonable rate the commission shall have power by order, after notice and a public hearing had upon complaint, to require any two or more railroad or railway companies whose lines, owned, operated, leased, or controlled by stock ownership, or otherwise, form a continuous or connecting line of transportation, or could be made to do so by the construction and maintenance of switch connection or interchange track at connecting points, or by transfer of property or passengers at connecting points, to establish through routes and joint rates, fares and charges for the transportation of passengers and property, and for the operation of the cars and other equipment for such transportation, within the commonwealth, as the commission may by its order designate; and, in case such companies cannot agree as to the division of rates or the conditions under which such through routes or transportation shall be established or such cars or other equipment operated, the commission shall have power, after due hearing, to determine and prescribe the proportionate portions of such through rates payable to each of such companies, the conditions under which such through routes or transportation shall be established or such cars or other equipment operated, and, in case of railways, to grant locations upon which the grantee company may construct the switch connection or interchange track necessary to the establishment of such through routes or transportation, or to the operation of such cars or other equipment: provided, however, that a railroad or railway company shall have control of and responsibility for the management and operation of all trains or cars while they are upon its railroad or railway as fully as if it owned them. The commission may, upon reasonable terms and conditions, require and order any railroad or railway company which carries freight in carload lots to establish and maintain for the purpose of receiving or delivering freight in carload lots, a switch connection with any private side track constructed on land adjoining the location of any such railroad or railway, if the commission is of opinion that such connection is reasonable and practicable, can be put in and used with safety, and will furnish sufficient business to justify its construction and maintenance, and the commission may grant to any railway company the necessary locations in public ways and places for any switch connection ordered by the commission to be constructed by such railway company.

Orders of commission, how served.

Section 26. Every order of the commission shall be served upon every person or corporation to be affected thereby, either by personal delivery of a certified copy thereof, or by mailing a certified copy thereof, in a sealed package with postage prepaid, to the person to be affected thereby or, in the case of a corporation, to any officer or agent thereof upon whom a summons may be served under the laws of this commonwealth. It shall be the duty of every person and corporation to notify the commission forthwith, in writing, of the receipt of the certified copy of every order so served, and in the case of a corporation such notification shall be signed and acknowledged by a person or officer duly authorized by the corporation to admit such service. Within a time specified in the order of the commission every person and corporation upon whom it is served shall, if so required in the order, notify the commission in like manner whether the terms of the order are accepted and will be obeyed. Every order of the commission shall take effect at a time therein specified and shall continue in force either for a period which may be designated therein or until changed or abrogated by the commission.

Acknowledgment of receipt of orders.

Acceptance, etc.

Procedure to review rulings, etc., of commission by the court.

Section 27. The supreme judicial court shall have jurisdiction in equity to review, annul, modify or amend any rulings or orders of the commission which are unlawful to the extent only of such unlawfulness. The procedure before the said court shall be that prescribed by its rules, which shall state upon what terms the enforcement of the order shall be stayed. The attorney for any party petitioning the supreme judicial court hereunder shall file with the clerk of the court a certificate that he is of opinion that there is such probable ground for the appeal as to make it a fit subject for judicial inquiry, and that it is not intended for delay; and double costs shall be assessed by the court upon any such party whose petition shall appear to the court not to be a fit subject for judicial inquiry or shall appear to be intended for delay. The burden of proof shall be upon the party adverse to the commission to show that its order is invalid. Any proceeding in any court of this commonwealth directly affecting an order of the commission or to which the commission is a party shall have preference over all other civil proceedings pending in such court, except election cases.

Preference over other civil proceedings, except election cases.

Enforcement of orders by the court.

SECTION 28. The supreme judicial court shall have jurisdiction upon the application of the commission to enforce all valid orders of the commission and all the provisions of this act. Whenever the commission shall be of opinion that a common carrier subject to its supervision is failing or omitting or about to fail or omit to do anything required of it by law or by order of the commission, or is doing anything or about to do anything or permitting anything or about to permit anything to be done, contrary to or in violation of the law or of any order of the commission, it shall direct counsel to the commission to begin, subject to the supervision of the attorney-general, an action or proceeding in the supreme judicial court in the name of the commission for the purpose of having such violations or threatened violations stopped and prevented either by mandamus or injunctions.

Act, how construed.

SECTION 29. This act shall be deemed and construed as a remedial act and in enlargement and extension of all previous acts and existing laws conferring upon or vesting in the commission any jurisdiction, powers or discretion with respect to any subject or matter treated in this act.

Repeal.

Except as above provided all acts and parts of acts inconsistent with any provision of this act, and all acts and parts of acts which would in any way limit or prevent the exercise to the fullest extent of any of the jurisdiction, powers, authority or discretion delegated herein to the commission are hereby repealed: provided, that nothing herein contained shall be construed to repeal, directly or by implication, the provisions of chapter five hundred of the acts of the year eighteen hundred and ninety-seven, or to authorize the commission to make any order or take any action inconsistent with the provisions of said act or with any rights which have been acquired by any common carrier under any statute prior to the passage of this act.

Time of taking effect.

SECTION 30. So much of section one of this act as provides for the appointment of additional members of the commission and for the designation of the respective terms of office of the commissioners shall take effect upon its passage, and otherwise this act shall take effect on the first day of July next.

(This bill, returned by the governor to the house of representatives, the branch in which it originated, with his objections thereto, was passed by the house of representatives June 13, and, in concurrence, by the senate June 13, the objections of the governor notwithstanding, in the manner prescribed by the Constitution; and thereby has the "force of a law".)

An Act to authorize the city of Boston to pay an annuity to the widow of Michael D. Greene. Chap. 785

Be it enacted, etc., as follows:

City of Boston may pay annuity to Alice Greene.

Section 1. The city of Boston is hereby authorized to pay an annuity of not more than three hundred dollars to Alice Greene, widow of Michael D. Greene, so long as she remains unmarried. Said Michael D. Greene, who was a lieutenant in the fire department of the city of Boston, while in the discharge of his duties as a member and officer of said fire department, received injuries on the fourteenth day of August, nineteen hundred and eleven, which resulted in his death. The fire commissioner of said city may from time to time order such annuity to be reduced.

Time of taking effect

Section 2. This act shall take effect upon its acceptance by the city council of the city of Boston.

Approved June 13, 1913.

An Act relative to tenement houses in cities. Chap. 786

Be it enacted, etc., as follows:

Part I.

General Provisions.

short title.

Tenement house act for cities.

Section 1. This act shall be known as the tenement house act for cities.

Certain words and terms defined.

Section 2. Certain words in this act are defined for the purposes thereof as follows: — Words used in the present tense include the future; words in the masculine gender include the feminine and neuter; the singular number includes the plural and the plural the singular; the word "person" includes a corporation as well as a natural person.

Certain words and terms defined.

(1) A "tenement house" is any house or building, or part thereof, which is rented, leased, let or hired out, to be occupied, or is occupied, or is intended, arranged or designed to be occupied as the home or residence of two or more families, which families may consist of one or more persons, living independently of each other and doing their cooking on the premises, and having a common right in the halls, stairways, yard, courts, cellar, sinks, water-closets or privies, or any of them. Where the occupants of dwelling houses contiguous and vertically divided, each occupied or intended, arranged or designed to be occupied as the home or residence of one family or more, have a common right in or use in common the halls, stairways, yards, cellars, sinks, water-closets or privies, or any of them, such dwelling houses shall be deemed to be tenement houses and shall be subject to all the provisions of this act.

(2) A "yard" is an open unoccupied space on the same lot with a tenement house between the extreme rear line of the house and the extreme rear line of the lot. A "front yard" is an open unoccupied space between the front line of the house and the front line of the lot. A "side yard" is an open unoccupied space between the side line of the main part of the house and the side line of the lot and shall be deemed an outer court on the lot line.

(3) A "court" is an open unoccupied space, other than a yard or front yard, on the same lot with a tenement house. A court which extends to the street, yard, front yard, or side yard is an "outer court." A court not thus extending is an "inner court."

(4) The "first story" of a building shall be deemed to be the lowest story, the ceiling of which is six feet or more above both the level of the curb and the level of the adjacent ground. In determining the height of any building by stories, the stories thereof beginning with such first story shall be numbered upward.

(5) A "half story" or attic is any story included in the roof, the cubic contents of which, exclusive of cockloft or blind attic not exceeding three feet in height at the highest point, is not more than sixty per cent of the cubic contents of the first story.

(6) A "basement" is a story partly underground but having not less than one half of its height above the level of the curb, and also having one half its height in every part above the level of the adjoining ground. Certain words and terms defined.

(7) A "cellar" is a story more than one half below the level of the curb or the adjoining ground.

(8) An "alcove" is any part of a room partitioned off by fixed or movable partitions of any material, by curtains or portieres or by other contrivance or device, and intended or designed to be used for living purposes.

(9) A "public hall" is a hall, corridor or passageway not within an apartment.

(10) A "stair hall" includes the stairs, stair landings and those parts of the public halls through which it is necessary to pass in going from the entrance floor to the roof.

(11) "First-class construction." A tenement house of first-class construction is one constructed of fireproof material throughout, with floors built of steel or reinforced concrete beams, filled in between with terra cotta or other masonry arches or with concrete or reinforced concrete slabs; wood may be used only for under and upper floors, windows and door frames, sashes, doors, interior finish, hand-rails for stairs, necessary sleepers bedded in the cement, and for isolated furrings bedded in mortar. There shall be no air space between the top of any floor arches and the floor boarding.

"Second-class construction." A tenement house of second-class construction is one of which the exterior and party walls are fireproof and conform to the requirements of first-class construction as defined by law or by ordinances of the city in which it is situated.

"Third-class construction." A tenement house of third-class construction is one of which the exterior walls or parts thereof are of combustible material and do not conform to the requirements of first-class construction.

(12) The word "nuisance" shall be held to embrace all public nuisances as known at common law or in equity jurisprudence; and it is further enacted that whatever is dangerous to human life or detrimental to health, whatever building or erection, or part or cellar thereof, is overcrowded with occupants, or is not provided with adequate ingress or egress to and from the same or the apartments thereof, or is not sufficiently supported, ventilated, sewered, drained, cleaned or lighted, in reference to its or their intended or actual use; and whatever renders the air or human food or drink unwholesome, are also severally in contemplation of this act, nuisances; and all such nuisances are hereby declared unlawful.

Certain words and terms defined.

(13) The word "shall" is always mandatory and not directory, and denotes that the house shall be maintained in all respects according to the mandate so long as it continues to be a tenement house.

(14) Whenever the words "charter", "ordinances", "regulations", "building department", "building inspector", "health department", "board of health", "department charged with the enforcement of this act", "corporation counsel", "city solicitor", "city treasury" or "fire limits" occur in this act they shall be construed as if followed by the words, "of the city in which the tenement house is situated." Wherever the words "is occupied" are used in this act applying to any building such words shall be construed as if followed by the words, "or is intended, arranged or designed to be occupied." Whenever the word "street" is used in this act, it shall be construed as including any right of way dedicated to public use, any public alley, or railroad right of way sixteen feet or more in width, any cemetery or public park.

(15) The "height" of a tenement house is the perpendicular distance measured in a straight line from the curb level, or from the finished grade line of the lot where such grade is higher than the curb, to the mean height above the eaves of any sloping roof, and to the highest point of the roof beams in the case of flat roofs, except that in the case of flat roofs a parapet exceeding three feet in height shall be considered a part of the height of the building, the measurements in all cases to be taken through the centre of the street front of the house. Where a building is on a corner lot and there is more than one grade or curb level, the measurements shall be taken through the centre of the front on the street having the lowest elevation.

(16) "Occupied spaces." Porches, platforms except those on the first story when the basement is not occupied or designed or intended to be occupied for habitation, outside stairways, excepting fire escapes and steps leading to the first story, shall be considered as part of the building and not as part of the yard or courts or unoccupied areas.

(17) A "lot" is the plot of ground covered by and adjacent to a tenement house or a dwelling house and devoted exclusively to the purposes of such house, as shown by the plan of such lot furnished to the building department pursuant to section eighty-four of this act. A "corner lot" is a lot situated at the junction or intersection of two streets each not less than sixteen feet in width, but any lot the outer angle of which is over one hundred and twenty-five degrees shall not be considered a corner lot. Any portion of the width of the front of such lot distant more than fifty feet and any portion of the depth of such lot distant more than one hundred feet from such a junction or intersection shall not be regarded as part of a corner lot, but shall be subject to the provisions of this act respecting interior lots. Certain words and terms defined.

(18) An "interior lot" is any other lot than a corner lot.

(19) The front of a lot is that boundary line which borders on the street. In the case of a corner lot the owner may elect by statement on his plans either street boundary line as the front. The rear of a lot is the side opposite to the front. In the case of a corner lot with streets on three sides, or of a triangular or irregularly shaped lot abutting on two streets at their junction or intersection the rear shall be a side not bordering on a street.

BUILDINGS CONVERTED OR ALTERED.

Section 3. A building not a tenement house, if hereafter converted or altered to such use, shall thereupon become subject to all the provisions of this act affecting tenement houses hereafter erected. Buildings, altered, etc., to become subject to this act.

ALTERATIONS AND CHANGE IN OCCUPANCY.

Section 4. No tenement house hereafter erected shall at any time be altered so as to be in violation of any provision of this act. If any tenement house or any part thereof is occupied by a number of families in excess of the number specified in this act, or is erected or altered or occupied contrary to law, such tenement house shall be deemed an unlawful structure, and the board of health may cause such building to be vacated; and it shall not again be occupied until it or its occupation, as the case may be, has been made to conform to the law, and a permit is obtained in writing from the board of health. Alterations and change in occupancy.

LAW NOT TO BE MODIFIED.

Law not to be modified.

SECTION 5. This act shall be held to provide the minimum requirements adopted for the protection of the health and safety of the community. Nothing in this act contained shall be construed as prohibiting any city from enacting from time to time supplementary ordinances imposing further restrictions, but no city authority shall have power to minimize, avoid or repeal any provision of this act.

SEWER CONNECTION AND WATER SUPPLY.

Water and sewer connections.

SECTION 6. The provisions of this act with reference to sewer connection and water supply shall be deemed to apply only where connection with a sewer and with a water main is or becomes accessible. The questions of the practicability of such sewer and water connections shall be decided by the local board of health, or by the state board of health upon request of the local board.

STATE BOARD OF HEALTH.

Power of state board of health.

SECTION 7. The state board of health shall have power to examine into the enforcement of the laws relating to tenement houses in any city. Whenever so required by the governor, it shall make such an examination and shall report the result thereof to the governor within the time prescribed by him.

TIME FOR COMPLIANCE.

Improvements to be made within one year after acceptance.

SECTION 8. All improvements specifically required by this act upon tenement houses erected prior to the date of its acceptance by a city shall be made within one year from said date, or at such earlier period as may be fixed by the building inspector.

PART II.

TITLE 1. LIGHT AND VENTILATION.

DISTANCE FROM SIDE LOT LINE.

Distance from side lot line.

SECTION 9. No tenement house of third-class construction shall hereafter be erected, enlarged or placed with the side walls, bay windows or other projections, except cornices, belt courses and window sills, nearer than five feet to the line of any adjoining lot, nor shall any lot upon which such a tenement house stands be so changed in size as to bring the side walls or bay windows or other projections except as aforesaid nearer than five feet to the line of any adjoining lot. But any such tenement house may be constructed to the lot line if protected by a fire wall as provided in section forty-six.

If the side walls of any tenement house of first or second-class construction are built to the lot line there shall be no windows or any other openings in such walls.

HEIGHT.

Height. Section 10. No tenement house hereafter erected shall have more than one legally habitable story for each full ten feet of the width of the street, unless such house be set back from the street a distance equal to the excess of its height over that permitted at the street line. On a corner lot the height shall be governed by the width of the wider street, as above, but this height shall not extend along the narrower street a distance greater than twice the width of said street.

YARDS.

Yards. Section 11. Behind every tenement house hereafter erected there shall be a yard extending across the entire width of the lot and at every point open from the ground to the sky unobstructed, except as hereinafter provided. Every part of such yard shall be directly accessible from every other part thereof. The depth of said yard shall be measured from the extreme rear of the house toward the rear line of the lot. Where the rear of the lot abuts on a public alley or right of way dedicated to public use for the full width of the lot, the depth of the lot may be measured to the middle line of such alley or right of way; where there is no such alley or right of way the measurements shall be taken to the rear lot line. If the tenement house is three stories or less in height the depth of the yard in the case of interior lots shall be not less than fifteen feet, and the depth of the yard in the rear of corner lots shall be not less than ten feet. If the tenement house exceeds three stories in height, the depths above prescribed in the case of interior lots shall be increased five feet and in the case of corner lots shall be increased two feet for each story above three stories. When a lot upon which a tenement house is built is bounded on every side by a street the yard may be omitted.

COURTS.

Sizes of courts.

SECTION 12. The sizes of all courts in tenement houses hereafter erected shall be proportionate to the height of the building. No court shall be less in any part than the minimum sizes prescribed in this section. The minimum width of a court for a two story building shall be ten feet, and the width shall increase two feet for each additional story. The length of an inner court shall never be less than twice the minimum width prescribed by this section. The length of an outer court shall never be greater than twice its minimum width unless provided at the inner end with an air intake at the bottom, as prescribed in section fourteen, which shall communicate directly with the street or yard or front yard.

The minimum width for an outer court on the lot line extending from the street or front yard to the yard shall be ten feet for a three story building, and the width shall increase one foot for each additional story.

COURTS OPEN AT TOP.

Courts to be open at top.

SECTION 13. No court of a tenement house hereafter erected shall be covered by a roof or skylight, but every court shall be at every point open from the ground to the sky unobstructed.

AIR INTAKES.

Air intakes.

SECTION 14. In every tenement house hereafter erected, four stories or under in height, every inner court shall be provided with one or more horizontal air intakes at the bottom. Such intakes shall communicate directly with the street, front yard or yard, and shall consist of a fireproof passageway not less than three feet wide and seven feet high which shall be left open, or be provided with an openwork gate at each end, and such gate shall not be covered over in any way either by glass or any other material. If the tenement house is over four stories in height there shall be two or more such intakes, one communicating with the street or front yard and one with the yard.

EXTENSIONS OR OFFSETS TO COURTS.

Extensions or offsets to courts.

Section 15. Extensions or offsets to courts in tenement houses hereafter erected are permitted for the purpose of lighting bathrooms, water-closets and corridors only, but no such extension or offset shall be less than six feet in width in any part; its depth may be less than but never greater than its width. Such dimensions shall be deemed the minimum dimensions for a two story house, and shall increase one foot for each story above two stories.

ANGLES IN COURTS.

Building of walls across angles in courts.

Proviso.

Section 16. Nothing contained in the foregoing sections concerning courts shall be construed as prohibiting the building of walls across the angles of said courts to contain windows: provided, that the running length of the wall containing such windows does not exceed six feet.

BUILDING ON SAME LOT WITH TENEMENT HOUSES.

Placing of buildings on same lot with tenement houses.

Section 17. If any building is hereafter placed on the same lot with a tenement house there shall always be maintained between the said buildings an open unoccupied space extending upward from the ground and extending across the entire width of the lot. Such space shall never be less than twenty-five feet in depth and where either building exceeds three stories in height the depth of such open space shall be increased five feet for each story above three stories. And no building of any kind shall hereafter be placed upon the same lot with a tenement house so as to diminish the minimum size of courts or yards as hereinbefore prescribed, except that where an alley not less than ten feet wide abuts the rear of the lot, a rear building, if not used for tenement house or stable or manufacturing purposes, may be built up to the rear line of the lot: provided, that it does not exceed one story in height and that the space between it and the front building is maintained as required by this section. And if any tenement house is hereafter erected upon any lot upon which there is already another building, it shall comply with all the provisions of this act, and, in addition, the space between the said building and the said tenement house shall be of such size and arranged in such manner as is prescribed in this section, the height of the highest building on the lot to regulate the dimensions.

Proviso.

REAR TENEMENTS.

Rear tenements.

SECTION 18. No tenement house shall hereafter be erected upon the rear of a lot where there is a building on the front of the said lot, nor upon the front of any such lot upon the rear of which there is a tenement house or stable or building used for manufacturing purposes. This provision shall not apply to tenement houses abutting on two streets and situated on the outside corner of the lot.

ROOMS, LIGHTING AND VENTILATION OF.

Lighting, etc.

SECTION 19. In every tenement house hereafter erected every apartment shall have at least one room with a window opening directly upon the street or the yard, and every room in such tenement house shall have at least one window opening directly upon the street or upon a yard or court of the dimensions specified in this act, except that kitchenettes, pantries, water-closet compartments and bathrooms may have such window opening upon an offset to a court, as provided in section fifteen, and such window shall be so located as properly to light all parts of such rooms.

WINDOWS IN ROOMS.

Area of windows, etc.

SECTION 20. In every tenement house hereafter erected the total area of the windows between stop beads in each room, including kitchenettes, water-closet compartments and bathrooms, shall be at least one seventh of the floor area of the room, and the top of at least one window shall be not less than seven feet six inches above the floor, and the upper half of it shall be made so as to open the full width. No such room shall have less than twelve square feet of window area measured between stop beads, except that in kitchenettes, water-closet compartments and bathrooms such windows shall be not less than six square feet in area between stop beads.

ROOMS, SIZE OF.

Size of rooms.

SECTION 21. In every tenement house hereafter erected there shall be in each apartment at least one room containing not less than one hundred and fifty square feet of floor area and every other room except kitchenettes, water-closet compartments and bathrooms shall contain not less than eighty-four square feet of floor area. All rooms shall be in every part not less than eight feet six inches from the finished floor to the finished ceiling, except that a half-story room need be eight feet six inches in height in but one half of its area.

ALCOVES AND ALCOVE ROOMS.

Alcoves, etc.

Section 22. In every tenement house hereafter erected an alcove in any room shall be separately lighted and ventilated as provided for rooms in the foregoing sections. No part of any room in a tenement house shall be enclosed or subdivided at any time, wholly or in part, by a curtain, portiere, fixed or movable partition or other contrivance or device so as to make an alcove unless the part of the room so enclosed or subdivided shall contain a separate window, as herein required, and shall have a floor area of not less than eighty-four square feet.

Privacy.

Section 23. In every tenement house hereafter erected, in each apartment there shall be access to every living room and bedroom, and to at least one water-closet compartment without passing through a bedroom or bathroom or water-closet compartment.

PUBLIC HALLS, LIGHTING AND VENTILATION OF.

Windows in public halls.

Section 24. In every tenement house hereafter erected, every public hall and stair hall shall have at each story at least one window opening directly upon the street or upon a yard or court of the dimensions specified in this chapter. Such window in a public hall shall be at the end of the hall with the natural direction of the light parallel to the hall's axis. Any part of a public hall which is in any way shut off from any other part of the hall shall be deemed a separate hall within the meaning of this section.

WINDOWS FOR PUBLIC AND STAIR HALLS, SIZES OF.

Sizes of windows in halls.

Section 25. In every tenement house hereafter erected the windows provided to light and ventilate each public hall and stair hall, or part thereof, shall contain not less than twelve square feet clear opening, measured between stop beads. The top of one such window shall be not less than seven feet six inches above the floor, and the upper half thereof shall be made so as to open the full width. A sash door shall be deemed the equivalent of a window in this and the foregoing section: provided, that said door contains a clear opening of the size prescribed for such windows. In every tenement house of three or more stories there shall be in the roof directly over each stair well a ridge ventilator having a minimum opening of forty square inches and with fixed or movable louvres.

Proviso.

TITLE 2. SANITATION.

BASEMENT AND CELLAR ROOMS.

Use of basement and cellar rooms for living purposes.

SECTION 26. In tenement houses hereafter erected no room in the cellar or basement shall be constructed, altered, converted, or occupied for living purposes, unless, in addition to the other requirements of this act, all of the following conditions are complied with: In a cellar no room shall be so occupied unless it is in every part entirely above the finished grade of the adjoining land. Such occupied cellar shall be counted as a story in determining the size of courts and yard. In a basement no room shall be so occupied unless the ceiling in every part is at least four and one half feet above the curb level of the street in front of such room. Every such room shall be an integral part of an apartment containing a room opening directly upon the street or yard. There shall be appurtenant to every such apartment a separate water-closet, constructed and arranged as required by section thirty-one of this act. All walls surrounding such room, and the floor thereof, shall be damp proof.

CELLARS, DAMP PROOFING AND LIGHTING OF.

Damp proofing, etc., of cellars.

SECTION 27. Every tenement house hereafter erected shall have the cellar floor and the walls below the ground level damp proof. All cellars and basements in such tenement houses shall be properly lighted and ventilated in all their parts to the satisfaction of the board of health.

SPACES UNDER FLOORS.

Spaces under floors.

SECTION 28. In any tenement house hereafter erected, under any part of which there is no cellar, the first story shall be at least two feet above the ground beneath and that adjacent thereto, and the space beneath such floor shall be kept free and clear and shall be enclosed to prevent the accumulation of rubbish, but provided with ample ventilation and adequate drainage.

DRAINAGE OF COURTS, AREAS AND YARDS.

Drainage of courts, yards, etc.

Section 29. In every tenement house hereafter erected all courts, areas and yards shall be properly graded and drained and connected with the street sewer subject to the provisions of section six. And when necessary in order to keep such premises in a sanitary condition such courts, areas or yards, or such part thereof as the board of health shall order, shall be properly paved.

SINKS.

Sinks.

Section 30. In every tenement house hereafter erected there shall be provided in each apartment a proper sink.

WATER-CLOSETS.

Construction, etc., of water-closets.

Section 31. In every tenement house hereafter erected there shall be within each apartment a separate water-closet, located in a bathroom or in a separate compartment: provided, that where there are apartments of but one or two rooms there shall be at least one water-closet for every two such apartments, and such water-closet shall not open into any apartment but shall be accessible through a public hall, and the door thereof shall be provided with lock and keys, and such compartment and water-closet shall comply in all other respects with the provisions of this act. Said compartment shall be not less than three feet wide, and shall be enclosed with brick, concrete, stone, tiled or plastered partitions which shall extend to the ceiling. No wooden sheathing or wainscotting shall be permitted. Every such compartment shall have a window opening directly upon the street or upon a yard or court of the minimum size prescribed by this act. Every water-closet compartment hereafter placed in any tenement house shall be provided with proper means of lighting the same at night. The floor of every such water-closet compartment shall be made waterproof with asphalt, tile, stone or some other non-absorbing waterproof material; and such waterproofing shall extend at least six inches above the floor so that the floor can be washed or flushed out without leaking. When the water-closet fixture is located in a bathroom the floor directly beneath the fixture and extending at least one foot beyond it in each direction shall be waterproofed as above provided. No drip trays shall be permitted. No water-closet fixtures shall be enclosed with any woodwork. No water-closet shall be placed out of doors nor in the cellar of any tenement house, except as provided in section twenty-six or as an appurtenance to an engine or boiler room or laundry and then only in case such cellar closet is lighted and ventilated as required herein for a basement room.

PLUMBING.

Plumbing.

SECTION 32. In every tenement house hereafter erected plumbing fixtures shall not be enclosed with woodwork. All plumbing pipes shall be exposed, except as may otherwise be permitted by the board of health. Wherever plumbing or other pipes pass through floors or partitions they shall pass through metal bushings or casings extending entirely through the floor or partition, and the inner diameter of such bushing or casing shall in no case exceed the outer diameter of such pipe by more than one thirty-second of one inch, and such bushings or casings shall be so set in floors or partitions as to be externally air tight. All plumbing work shall be sanitary in every particular and except as otherwise specified in this act shall be in accordance with the local plumbing regulations. Pan and long hopper closets are hereby prohibited.

WATER CONNECTIONS.

Water supply.

SECTION 33. In every tenement house hereafter erected all sinks and water-closets shall be provided with an adequate supply of running water as approved by the board of health.

PRIVIES AND PRIVY VAULTS.

Privies, etc.

SECTION 34. No privy or privy vault shall be permitted on the same lot with any tenement house hereafter erected.

Title 3. Fire Protection.

CONSTRUCTION REQUIRED.

Construction required.

Section 35. No tenement house of third-class construction shall hereafter be erected exceeding two and one half stories in height in any part, nor shall it be occupied, nor intended, arranged or designed to be occupied, by more than two families. No tenement house of second-class construction shall hereafter be erected exceeding four stories in height, nor shall it exceed twenty-five hundred square feet in superficial area between fire walls. Any tenement house hereafter erected which exceeds four stories in height shall be of first-class construction. A basement or cellar the ceiling of which extends more than three feet above the curb level shall be a story within the meaning of this section.

FIRE ESCAPES.

Fire escapes, location, etc.

Section 36. In every tenement house hereafter erected which shall exceed two and one half stories in height in any part, there shall be one or more fire escapes located and constructed as provided in this section.

Such fire escape shall be so located as to permit of unobstructed egress from every apartment on each floor above the ground floor, and in no case shall such egress be through any bathroom, water-closet, storage room, or public hall, nor shall any opening giving egress to any fire escape be smaller in size than the minimum provided for windows by section twenty-five of this act.

No fire escape shall be placed within or open upon any inner court unless such court shall be at least twenty-four feet in size in its least dimension, and unless the consent of the building department shall have been obtained for such location.

Methods of construction.

Fire escapes shall, at the option of the owner, be constructed after one of the methods hereinafter specified and described, viz.:

A — Of a wholly enclosed tower stairway, with an adjacent open-air vestibule at each floor.

Every such vestibule shall be constructed with brick, terra cotta or concrete walls not less than eight inches thick at any point, and shall have at least one of such enclosing walls formed by an outer wall of the building, and in such outer wall there shall be a permanent opening to the outer air, of an area not less than eighty per cent of the total area of such vestibule wall, and of a height not less than the clear story height. Such opening, if reaching to the floor of the vestibule, shall be provided with a railing of suitable height and strength. The floors of vestibules shall be constructed wholly of incombustible material.

If one apartment on each floor is to be served by this fire escape then one side wall (i.e., a wall at right angles to the outer wall) of each vestibule shall have an approved fire door giving egress from the adjacent apartment; or, if two apartments on any floor are to be served by this fire escape, then the vestibule at such floor must be so located as to provide unobstructed egress from each apartment by means of an approved fire door in each side wall of the vestibule. Such fire doors shall be not less than three feet in clear width nor less than six feet and six inches in clear minimum height, and shall not be secured or fastened except upon the apartment side, and then only by means of locking bars or other easily operated device having no removable parts. If there are openings from basement or cellar floors into the vestibule they shall be provided with self-closing fire doors and there shall be a permanent opening in the outer wall, all as hereinbefore described.

On the side of each vestibule opposite the opening to the outer air shall be constructed an approved fire door giving access to the stairway tower. Every such door shall be of the size hereinbefore described, of self-closing pattern but without locks or other fastenings, and shall contain an upper lighting panel or panels of wire glass at least six feet in area. There shall be no openings into such a vestibule other than those hereinbefore described.

The stairway tower shall be not less than six feet six inches in clear width, and shall be constructed with walls of brick, terra cotta, or concrete not less than eight inches thick at any point. Such walls shall extend from the ground to a point not less than two feet above the roof, and shall be so constructed as to be impervious to smoke. There shall be no doorways or other openings of any kind in such walls except the doorways connecting with the above described vestibules, and excepting an egress doorway opening at the ground level, such egress door to open outwardly, and if secured to be fastened upon the inside only. No such ground level door shall be secured by means of sliding bolts, nor by a lock or other apparatus requiring a key or other similar removable device. Fire escapes, construction, etc.

Within the stairway tower shall be provided a stairway with a landing at the level of each doorway, each landing to extend the full width of the shaft and to be at least six inches wider in clear width than the door opening thereon. Stairs and such intermediate landings as may be required shall be not less than three feet in width measured to the centre of balustrades, and shall be provided with balustrades and wall rails. Stairs shall be placed at an angle not exceeding forty-five degrees from the horizontal; treads to be not less than eight inches wide, and risers not to exceed nine inches in height. Winders shall not be permitted, nor shall there be less than three steps between any two landings. All such stairways, landings and balustrades shall be of incombustible material, except that wooden hand-rails and wall rails may be used.

Every such shaft shall be roofed and provided with a skylight not less than sixteen square feet in area, glazed with wire glass one fourth inch or more in thickness set in metal frame and sash, and shall also have placed centrally in such skylight a suitable ventilator of not less than two hundred and twenty-five square inches area.

The above described type of fire escape may at the option of the owner be used as a regular service stairway.

B — Of an enclosed tower stairway, similar to the above, except that access to the same shall be provided by means of an outside balcony in each story above the ground floor, instead of by means of the vestibules hereinbefore described. Such balconies shall be constructed wholly of incombustible material, shall be provided with well-braced balustrades of proper height on outer side and ends, and shall extend beyond at least one door or window opening into each adjacent apartment. All doors opening into the stairway tower shall be as described for type "A" fire escape.

C — Of an outside balcony or balconies at each floor above the first floor.

Such balconies shall be constructed wholly of incombustible material approved by the building department. They shall be not less than two feet in width at any point, and shall be provided with suitable balustrades and hand-rails on outer sides and ends.

Fire escapes, construction, etc.

Each balcony shall communicate with the balcony next below by permanent stairways placed at an angle of not more than forty-five degrees from the horizontal, treads shall not be less than eight inches wide nor shall risers exceed nine inches in height, and each stairway shall be provided with balustrades and hand-rails and shall measure in width not less than twenty-four inches measured from centres of hand-rails.

A counter-balanced stairway shall be provided extending from the lowest balcony to the ground, arranged to be lifted and supported when not in use in a manner satisfactory to and approved by the building inspector.

All such balconies shall extend to and include at least one floor or window in every apartment on every floor above the ground floor, exclusive of windows in bathrooms, water-closets, storage rooms or public halls.

Floors of all balconies required by this act and treads of stairs appurtenant to balconies and fire escapes shall be constructed of grating pattern, and shall have the bars separated by a clear space of not over one inch, and shall be so constructed as safely to sustain a live load of not less than seventy pounds to the square foot of floor area. Balconies, unless it is otherwise provided by existing building laws or regulations, may project into the public highway for a distance not greater than four feet beyond the established building line. In case of tenements with flat roof, the balconies on the upper floors shall, if required by the building department, be provided with stairs or a gooseneck ladder leading from such balcony to the roof and securely fastened thereto.

All balustrades in this section shall have vertical bars placed not more than six inches on centres.

All balconies forming part of or constituting fire escapes, and all appurtenances thereof, shall be subject to such supplementary regulations as are in force or as may hereafter be adopted by any city or by the building department thereof.

All doors opening upon fire escape balconies within six feet of the stairways shall be of self-closing fire-resisting pattern.

All windows opening upon fire escape balconies within six feet of the stairways shall be self-closing of wire glass set in metal frames and sash.

BULKHEADS AND SCUTTLES.

Construction, etc., of bulkheads and scuttles.

Section 37. Every tenement house hereafter erected exceeding two and one half stories in height and having a flat roof shall have in the roof a bulkhead or a scuttle not less than two feet by three feet in size. Such bulkhead or scuttle shall be covered with metal on the outside and shall be provided with stairs leading thereto and easily accessible to all tenants of the building. No bulkhead or scuttle shall be located in a closet or room, but shall be placed in the ceiling of the public hall on the top floor, and access through the same to the roof shall be direct and uninterrupted.

STAIRS AND PUBLIC HALLS.

Stairs and public halls.

Section 38. Every tenement house hereafter erected shall have at least one flight of stairs extending from the entrance floor to the top story. Every such tenement house of third-class construction shall have at least two independent flights of stairs with separate entrances leading from the entrance floor to the top story, said flights of stairs being at two points as far apart as is possible in the opinion of the building department, and one of said flights of stairs may consist of outside, open stairs and balconies. In all cases said stairs shall be directly accessible from each apartment, without passing through any other apartment. All stairs and balconies and all public halls shall be at least three feet six inches wide in the clear. All stairs shall be constructed with a rise of not more than eight inches and with treads not less than nine inches wide. Winders shall not be permitted in any staircase.

FIREPROOF STAIRS AND STAIR HALLS.

Fireproof stairs and stair halls required in tenement houses of second-class construction.

Section 39. In every tenement house of second-class construction hereafter erected exceeding two and one half stories in height the stairs and stair halls shall be constructed of incombustible material throughout, except that treads may be of hard wood not less than one and three quarters inches thick. Wooden hand-rails shall be permitted. The floors of all such stair halls shall be constructed of incombustible material, and no wooden flooring or sleepers shall be permitted. All such stairs and stair halls shall be enclosed on all sides with brick, terra cotta or concrete walls not less than eight inches thick. There shall be no transom or sash opening from any such stair hall to any other part of the house. Each stair hall shall be shut off from all non-fireproof parts of the building, on each story, by self-closing fire doors, and if glass is used in such doors it shall be of wire glass in metal frames and sash.

ENTRANCE HALLS.

Entrance halls.

SECTION 40. Every entrance hall in a tenement house hereafter erected shall be at least four feet wide in the clear.

SHAFTS.

Shafts to be of fireproof construction.

SECTION 41. In tenement houses hereafter erected all shafts shall be constructed of incombustible materials throughout, with self-closing fire doors at all openings at each story; and, if they extend to the cellar, shall also be enclosed in the cellar with incombustible walls and self-closing fire doors at all openings. In no case shall any shaft be constructed of materials in which any inflammable material or substance enters into any of the component parts. But nothing contained in this section shall be so construed as to require such enclosures about elevators or dumb-waiters in the well-hole of stairs where the stairs themselves are enclosed in brick or stone walls, and are entirely constructed of incombustible materials as hereinbefore provided.

FIRST TIER OF BEAMS.

Ceiling of cellar, etc.

SECTION 42. In every tenement house of second-class construction hereafter erected the cellar ceiling and the ceiling and side walls of the cellar stairs shall be plastered on metal lath, and the stairs shall be provided at the top with a self-closing fire door.

CLOSET UNDER FIRST STORY STAIRS.

Closets under first story stairs not allowed.

SECTION 43. In tenement houses hereafter erected no closet of any kind shall be constructed under any staircase leading from the first story to the upper stories.

CELLAR ENTRANCE.

Outside cellar entrance.

SECTION 44. In every tenement house hereafter erected there shall be an entrance to the cellar or other lowest story from the outside of the building.

PLASTER FINISH ABOUT CHIMNEYS.

Finish about chimneys.

Section 45. Whenever the plaster finish about any chimney is carried on furring, the furring strips shall be of metal, and only metal lathing shall be used.

All recesses about funnel holes shall be finished wholly with incombustible material at sides, top and bottom.

FIRE WALLS.

Fire walls.

Section 46. Where non-fireproof tenement houses are built in the form of double houses or terraces or attached or semi-attached rows, there shall be a fire wall of brick, concrete or terra cotta or other hard incombustible material approved by the inspector of buildings, separating every such house from each adjoining house, and such wall shall have no openings therein, and shall extend from the floor of the basement or cellar to not less than one foot above the roof, and out to the boarding of the walls. No wooden beams shall be carried through the fire walls.

ROOFING MATERIALS.

Roofing materials.

Section 47. Every tenement house hereafter erected shall have the roof in all parts and the sides of all dormer windows covered with fire-resisting material satisfactory to the building inspector.

WOODEN TENEMENT HOUSES.

Wooden tenement houses not to be used for certain purposes above second story.

Section 48. In no wooden tenement house hereafter erected shall any story or part thereof above the second story be rented, leased, let or hired out to be occupied for housekeeping, nor shall it be intended, arranged or designed to be occupied for housekeeping, nor shall any provision be made for cooking nor shall any cooking be done above the second story.

PART III.

Improvements.

ROOMS, LIGHTING AND VENTILATING OF.

Lighting and ventilation of rooms.

Section 49. No room or alcove in a tenement house erected prior to the acceptance of this act shall hereafter be occupied for living purposes unless it shall have a window with an area of not less than ten square feet between stop beads opening directly upon the street, or upon a yard not less than ten feet deep, or above the roof of an adjoining building, or upon a court of not less than thirty square feet in area, open to the sky without roof or skylight.

PUBLIC HALLS, LIGHTING AND VENTILATING OF.

Lighting and ventilation of public halls.

SECTION 50. In every tenement house erected prior to the acceptance of this act, the public halls and stairs shall be provided with sufficient light to permit the reading of twelve point type in the daytime in any part thereof. Light and ventilation in such halls shall be from the outer air, except when in the opinion of the building inspector it is impracticable, in which case the lighting and ventilation shall be such as to meet the approval of the board of health.

Skylights.

All new skylights hereafter placed in such a house shall be provided with ridge ventilators having a minimum opening of forty square inches, and also with either fixed or movable louvres, or with movable sashes, and shall be of such size as may be determined to be practicable by the building inspector.

SINKS.

Sinks.

SECTION 51. In every tenement house erected prior to the acceptance of this act, the woodwork enclosing sinks placed in the public halls or stairs shall be removed and the spaces underneath shall be left open. The floors and wall surfaces beneath and around the sink shall be put in good order and repair, and if of wood shall be well painted with light-colored paint.

WATER-CLOSETS.

Water-closets.

SECTION 52. In every tenement house erected prior to the acceptance of this act, the woodwork enclosing every water-closet fixture shall be removed, and the space underneath the seat shall be left open. The floor and other surfaces beneath and around the closet shall be put in good order and repair, and if of wood shall be well painted with light-colored paint.

PRIVY VAULTS, SCHOOL SINKS AND WATER-CLOSETS.

Removal of cesspools, etc.

SECTION 53. In every tenement house erected prior to the acceptance of this act, where a connection with a sewer is possible, all cesspools, school sinks, privy vaults or other similar receptacles used to receive fecal matter, urine or sewage shall within one year after the acceptance of this act be completely removed and the places where they were located properly disinfected under the direction of the board of health. Such appliances shall be replaced by individual water-closets of durable non-absorbent material, properly sewer-connected, with individual traps and properly connected flush tanks providing an ample flush of water thoroughly to cleanse the bowl. Each water-closet shall be located inside the tenement house in a compartment completely separated from every other water-closet, and such compartment shall contain a window of not less than three square feet in area opening directly upon the street, or yard, or on a court of which the least dimension is not less than three feet and the area not less than fifteen square feet. The floors of the water-closet compartment shall be waterproof as provided in section thirty-one of this act. There shall be provided at least one water-closet for each apartment in every tenement house existing on the day when this act takes effect, unless, in the opinion of the building inspector, this shall be impracticable; but in no case shall there be less than one water-closet for every two apartments. Such water-closets and all plumbing in connection therewith shall be sanitary in every respect, and, except as in this section otherwise provided, shall be in accordance with the laws, ordinances and regulations in relation to plumbing and drainage. Pan and long hopper closets shall not be permitted.

Water-closets.

BASEMENTS AND CELLARS.

Section 54. Any part of a floor or wall below the adjoining grade, and in any case the lowest floor, shall be damp proof and, when necessary, shall be concreted with a finished surface. The cellar ceiling of every tenement house shall be plastered when so required by the building inspector, except where such ceiling is already well covered with a metal ceiling or where the first floor above the cellar is constructed of iron beams and fireproof filling.

Basements and cellars to be damp proof, etc.

SHAFTS AND COURTS.

Section 55. In every tenement house there shall be, at the bottom of every shaft and court, a door giving sufficient access to such shaft or court to enable it to be properly cleaned out: provided, that where there is already a window giving proper access to such shaft or court, such window shall be deemed sufficient.

Doors in shafts and courts.

Proviso.

FIRE ESCAPES.

Construction of fire escapes.

SECTION 56. All non-fireproof tenement houses erected prior to the acceptance of this act which are three or more stories in height which do not have fireproof stairs and stair halls or adequate fire escapes as hereinafter required, except those of three stories which have two independent means of egress not directly connected with each other, approved in writing by the building inspector, and directly accessible to each apartment, shall be provided either with incombustible outside stairways or with incombustible fire escapes directly accessible to each apartment without passing through a public hall.

All fire escapes hereafter erected shall be located and constructed as prescribed in section thirty-six of this act.

No existing fire escape shall be deemed adequate unless the following conditions are complied with: —

(1) In every tenement house each apartment above the ground floor shall have a fire escape balcony directly accessible to it. All balconies shall be capable of sustaining a live load of seventy pounds per square foot.

(2) All balconies shall be properly connected with one other by adequate stairs or stationary ladders with openings not less than twenty-four by thirty-six inches, unless such balconies connect adjoining houses or adjoining parts of the same house separated from each other by a fire wall in which there are no openings except such as are protected by self-closing fire doors.

(3) All fire escapes shall have proper ladders from the lowest balcony of sufficient length to reach a safe landing place beneath.

(4) All fire escapes not on the street shall have a safe and adequate means of egress from the yard or court to the street or to adjoining premises.

(5) Prompt and ready access shall be had to all fire escapes, which shall not be obstructed in any way.

No existing fire escape shall be extended or have its location changed except with the written approval of the inspector of buildings.

MEANS OF EGRESS.

Means of egress.

Section 57. Whenever a tenement house is not provided with sufficient fire escapes or with sufficient means of egress in case of fire, the building inspector shall order such additional fire escapes and other means of egress as may be necessary.

PART IV.

Alterations.

GENERAL PROVISIONS.

Alterations.

Section 58. No tenement house erected prior to the acceptance of this act shall at any time be altered so as to be in violation of the requirements of Part II, except as hereinafter provided.

Additional rooms, etc.

(1) Any additional room or hall that is hereafter constructed or created in a tenement house shall comply in all respects with the provisions of Part II of this act, except that such rooms may be of the same height as the other rooms in the same story of the house.

Shafts.

(2) All shafts shall be constructed fireproof throughout; with fireproof self-closing doors at all openings, at each story; and, if they extend to the cellar, shall also be enclosed in the cellar with fireproof walls and fireproof self-closing doors at all openings. In no case shall any shaft be constructed of materials in which any inflammable material or substance enters into any of the component parts. But nothing contained in this section shall be so construed as to require such enclosures about elevators or dumb-waiters in the well-hole of stairs where the stairs themselves are enclosed in brick or stone walls, and are entirely constructed of fireproof materials as hereinbefore provided.

Certain tenement houses not to be enlarged, etc.

(3) No tenement house of third-class construction containing more than two apartments shall hereafter be enlarged or extended; except that a wooden extension not exceeding in total area seventy square feet may be added to an existing wooden tenement house, provided that such extension is used solely for bathrooms or water-closets.

PART V.

MAINTENANCE.

PUBLIC HALLS, LIGHTING OF, IN THE DAYTIME.

Lighting of public halls in the daytime.

SECTION 59. In every tenement house where the public halls and stairs are not, in the opinion of the board of health, sufficiently lighted, the owner of the house shall keep a proper light burning in the hallway, near the stairs, upon each floor, as may be necessary, from sunrise to sunset.

PUBLIC HALLS, LIGHTING AT NIGHT.

Lighting of public halls at night.

SECTION 60. In every tenement house occupied by more than two families a proper light shall be kept burning by the owner in the public hallways, near the stairs, upon the entrance floor, and upon the second floor above the entrance floor of the house, every night from sunset to sunrise throughout the year, and upon all other floors of the said house from sunset until ten o'clock in the evening.

WATER-CLOSETS IN CELLARS.

Water-closets in cellars.

SECTION 61. No water-closet shall be permitted in the cellar of any tenement house, except as provided in sections twenty-six and thirty-one.

WATER-CLOSET ACCOMMODATIONS.

Water-closet accommodations.

SECTION 62. In every tenement house existing prior to the acceptance of this act there shall be provided at least one water-closet for every two apartments.

BASEMENT AND CELLAR ROOMS.

Occupation of basement and cellar rooms for living purposes.

SECTION 63. Hereafter in tenement houses erected prior to the acceptance of this act no room in the cellar shall be occupied for living purposes except as provided in section twenty-six. And no room in the basement of such houses shall be so occupied, unless all the following conditions are complied with: — Every such room shall be at least eight feet high in every part from the floor to the ceiling, and the ceiling in every part shall be at least four and one half feet above the curb level of the street or the level of the yard or court in front of such room. There shall be appurtenant to every such room the use of a water-closet. Every such room shall have a window opening, as provided in section fifty-one, of at least twelve square feet in size clear of the sash frame, and which shall open readily for purposes of ventilation. The lowest floor shall be waterproof and damp proof. Every such room shall have sufficient light and ventilation, shall be well drained and dry, and shall be fit for human habitation.

WATER-CLOSETS AND SINKS.

Floors around water-closets and sinks.

Section 64. In all tenement houses the floor or other surface beneath and around water-closets and sinks shall be maintained in good order and repair, and if of wood shall be kept well painted with light-colored paint.

REPAIRS.

Repairs.

Section 65. Every tenement house and all the parts thereof shall be kept in good repair, and the roof shall be kept so as not to leak, and all rain water shall so be drained and conveyed therefrom, as to prevent dampness in the walls, ceilings, yards or areas.

WATER SUPPLY.

Water supply.

Section 66. Every tenement house shall have water furnished in sufficient quantity at one or more places in each apartment. The owner shall provide proper and suitable tanks, pumps, or other appliances to receive and distribute an adequate and sufficient supply of water at each apartment in the said house, at all times of the year during all hours of the day and night. But a failure in the general supply of water furnished by the city authorities or from the freezing or bursting of pipes shall not be construed to be a failure on the part of such owner, provided that proper and suitable appliances to receive and distribute water have been provided in the said house.

CLEANLINESS OF BUILDINGS.

Buildings to be kept clean and free from refuse matter, etc.

Section 67. The owner of every tenement house shall cause every part of such tenement house to be kept clean and free from any accumulation of dirt, filth and garbage or other refuse matter in or on the same, or in the cellars, halls, passages, rooms, areas, yards, courts, and spaces appurtenant thereto. The owner shall thoroughly cleanse every part of a tenement house, whenever ordered so to do by the board of health.

WALLS OF COURTS.

Walls of courts to be whitened, etc.

SECTION 68. The walls of all courts, except those opening on a street, unless built of a light-colored brick or stone, shall be thoroughly whitened by the owner, or shall be painted a light color by him, and shall so be maintained. Such whitening or paint shall be renewed whenever necessary as may be required by the board of health.

WALLS AND CEILINGS OF ROOMS.

Walls and ceilings of rooms, etc.

SECTION 69. In all tenement houses the board of health may require the walls and ceilings of every room that does not open directly on the street to be whitened or painted with white paint when necessary to improve the lighting of such room, and may require this to be renewed as often as may be necessary.

WALL PAPER.

Wall paper.

SECTION 70. No wall paper shall be placed upon the wall or ceiling of any tenement house unless the wall or ceiling has been thoroughly cleaned.

RECEPTACLES FOR ASHES, GARBAGE AND RUBBISH.

Receptacles for ashes, etc., to be provided.

SECTION 71. The owner of every tenement house shall provide and maintain therefor suitable, covered, water-tight receptacles for ashes, rubbish, garbage, refuse and other like matter.

PROHIBITED USES.

Certain uses prohibited.

SECTION 72. No swine shall be kept in a tenement house, or on the same lot therewith. No horse, cow, calf, sheep, goat or fowl shall be kept in a tenement house, or on the same lot therewith within twenty-five feet of the tenement house. No tenement house, or the lot upon which it is situated, shall be used for the storage or handling of rags, nor as a place of public assemblage.

COMBUSTIBLE MATERIALS.

Section 73. No tenement house, and no part thereof, or of the lot upon which it is situated, shall be used as a place of storage, keeping or handling of any article dangerous or detrimental to life or health, nor for the storage, keeping or handling of feed, hay, straw, excelsior, cotton, paper stock, feathers, rags or other easily combustible articles. Not to be used for storage of combustible materials, etc.

BAKERIES AND FAT BOILING.

Section 74. No bakery and no place of business in which fat is boiled shall be maintained in any tenement house. Bakeries and fat boiling.

OTHER DANGEROUS BUSINESSES.

Section 75. There shall be no transom, window or door opening into a hall from any part of a tenement house where paint, oil, spirituous liquors or drugs are stored for the purpose of sale or otherwise. Other dangerous businesses.

JANITOR OR HOUSEKEEPER.

Section 76. For any tenement house in which the owner thereof does not reside, there shall be a janitor, housekeeper or other responsible person who shall have charge of the same if the board of health shall so require. Janitor or housekeeper.

OVERCROWDING.

Section 77. If a room in a tenement house is overcrowded, the board of health may order the number of persons sleeping or living in said room to be so reduced that there shall not be less than four hundred cubic feet of air to each adult, and three hundred cubic feet of air to each child under twelve years of age occupying the room. Overcrowding.

LODGERS.

Section 78. No tenement house, and no part thereof, shall be used for the letting of lodgings unless the person letting the same shall first file a notice in writing of the proposed letting in the office of the board of health, nor shall any person not a member of the family be taken to live within an apartment occupied by any family without such written notice. Letting of lodgings regulated.

It shall be the duty of the owner of a tenement house to see that the provisions of this section are at all times complied with, and a failure so to comply on the part of any tenant, after due and proper notice from the owner, shall be deemed sufficient cause for the summary eviction of such tenant and the cancellation of his lease.

REPAIRS TO BUILDINGS, ETC.

Board of health may order repairs, etc.

SECTION 79. Whenever any tenement house or building, structure, excavation, business pursuit, matter or thing, in or about a tenement house, or the lot on which it is situated, or the plumbing, sewerage, drainage, light or ventilation thereof, is, in the opinion of the board of health, in a condition or in effect dangerous or detrimental to life or health, the board may declare that the same, to the extent which it may specify, is a public nuisance, and may order the same to be removed, abated, suspended, altered or otherwise improved or purified, as the order shall specify. The board may also order or cause any tenement house or part thereof, or any excavation, building, structure, sewer, plumbing, pipe, passage, premises, ground, matter or thing, in or about a tenement house, or the lot on which it is situated, to be purified, cleansed, disinfected, removed, altered, repaired, or improved. If any order of the board is not complied with, within ten days after the service thereof, or within such longer or shorter time as the board may designate, then such order may be executed by said board through its officers, agents, employees or contractors.

INFECTED AND UNHABITABLE HOUSES TO BE VACATED.

Infected and unhabitable houses to be vacated.

SECTION 80. Whenever it shall be certified by an inspector or officer or agent of the board of health that a tenement house, or any part thereof, is infected with contagious disease, or that it is unfit for human habitation, or dangerous to life or health by reason of want of repair, or of defects in the drainage, plumbing, ventilation or the construction of the same, or by reason of the existence on the premises of a nuisance likely to cause sickness among the occupants of said house, the board may issue an order requiring all persons therein to vacate such house, or part thereof, within not less than twenty-four hours nor more than ten days, for the reasons to be mentioned in said order.

In case such order is not complied with within the time specified, the board may cause said tenement house or part thereof to be vacated. The board whenever it is satisfied that the danger from said house or part thereof has ceased to exist, or that it is fit for human habitation, may revoke said order, or may extend the time within which to comply with the same.

FIRE ESCAPES.

Repair of fire escapes.

Section 81. The owner of every tenement house shall keep all fire escapes thereon in good order and repair, and whenever they become rusty shall have them properly painted with two coats of paint. No person shall at any time place any incumbrance of any kind before or upon any such fire escape.

SCUTTLES, BULKHEADS, LADDERS AND STAIRS.

Scuttles, bulkheads, etc., to be easily accessible at all times, etc.

Section 82. All scuttles and bulkheads, and all stairs or ladders leading thereto, shall be easily accessible to all tenants of the building, and kept free from incumbrance, and ready for use at all times. No scuttle and no bulkhead door shall at any time be locked with a key, but either may be fastened on the inside by movable bolts or hooks.

PART VI.

Requirements and Remedies.

Inspector of buildings, appointment.

Section 83. In a city which accepts the provisions of this act and in which the office of building inspector or a similar office does not exist, the mayor shall annually appoint an inspector of buildings.

PERMIT TO COMMENCE BUILDING.

Permit for construction or alteration of tenement house.

Section 84. Before the construction or alteration of a tenement house, or the alteration or conversion of a building for use as a tenement house, is begun, and before the construction or alteration of any building or structure on the same lot with a tenement house, the owner shall submit to the building inspector a detailed statement in writing, verified by the affidavit of the person making the same, of the specifications for such tenement house or building, upon blanks or forms to be furnished by such inspector, and also full and complete copies of the plans of the work, together with a plan of the lot on which the same is or is to be situated, showing the location, character and size of all buildings thereon, and the exact dimensions of said lot together with its description by metes and bounds. The said statement shall give in full the name and residence, by street and number, of the owner or owners of the tenement house or other building. If such construction, alteration or conversion is proposed to be made by any other person than the owner of the land in fee, the statement shall contain the full name and residence, by street and number, not only of the owner of the land, but of every person interested in the tenement house, either as owner, lessee or in any representative capacity. The affidavit shall allege that said specifications and plans are true and contain a correct description of such tenement house or other building, structure, lot and proposed work. The statements and affidavit herein provided for may be made by the owner, or by the person who proposes to make the construction, alteration or conversion, or by his agent. No person, however, shall be recognized as the agent of the owner, unless he shall file with the building inspector a written instrument, signed by the owner, designating him as such agent. Any false swearing in a material point in any such affidavit shall be deemed perjury. The said specifications, plans and statements shall be filed in the office of the building inspector and shall be public records, and no such specifications, plans or statements shall be removed from the said office. The building inspector shall cause all such plans and specifications to be examined.

Approval of plans and specifications.

If such plans and specifications conform to the provisions of law they shall be approved in writing by the building inspector, and he may from time to time approve changes in any plans and specifications, provided that the plans and specifications so altered are in conformity with law, but the building inspector shall not approve any plans or specifications or any changes in the same until the board of health has certified that the said plans and specifications conform to the law relative to light, ventilation and sanitation. The construction, alteration or conversion of such tenement house, building or structure or any part thereof, shall not be begun until the filing of the said specifications, plans and statements, and the approval thereof, as above provided.

The construction, alteration or conversion of any such house, building or structure, shall be in accordance with the said approved specifications and plans. Any permit or approval which may be issued by the building inspector but under which no work has been done above the foundation walls within one year after the issuance of the permit or approval, shall expire by limitation. Said inspector shall have power to revoke or cancel any permit or approval in case of any failure or neglect to comply with any provision of this act, or in case any false statement or representation was made in any specifications, plans or statements submitted or filed for such permit or approval.

Expiration, cancellation, etc.

APPROVAL OF CONSTRUCTION.

Section 85. No building hereafter constructed as or altered into a tenement house shall be occupied in whole or in part for human habitation until the building conforms in all respects to the requirements of law. Upon notice of the completion of the construction, alteration or conversion of a tenement house, it shall be the duty of the building inspector and of the board of health to inspect the building forthwith and it shall not be occupied as a place of habitation unless it conforms to the requirements of this act.

Building not to be occupied until after approval, etc.

PROCEDURE AND PENALTIES.

Section 86. Any court having jurisdiction in equity, or any justice thereof shall upon the application of the city solicitor, building inspector or the board of health of any city, have jurisdiction in equity to restrain the construction, alteration, repair, maintenance, use, or occupation of a building or other structure in violation of the provisions of this act and to order its removal or abatement as a nuisance, and to compel compliance with any provision of this act.

Enforcement of provisions.

Section 87. A building or other structure which is erected, altered, maintained or used in violation of the provisions of this act shall be deemed a common nuisance without other proof thereof than proof of such unlawful construction, maintenance or use, and the board of health may, if such violation is of any section of this act relative to light, ventilation and sanitation, and the building inspector may, if said violation is of any other provision of this act, order the owner of said premises at his own expense to abate or remove said nuisance within twenty-four hours, or within such further time as said board of health or said building inspector, as the case may be, considers reasonable, after notice to be served in the manner provided in section ninety-four, and if the owner or occupant fails to comply with such order, the board may abate or remove the nuisance, and all expenses incurred thereby shall be paid by the person who caused or permitted the same.

Building erected, etc., in violation of this act to be deemed a common nuisance, etc.

Penalties.

SECTION 88. Whoever violates any provision of this act shall be punished by a fine of not less than ten dollars. Any person who violates any provision of this act, after he has been served with a notice or order as provided by section ninety-four, or who fails to comply with such notice or order within ten days after such service, or continues to violate any provision or requirement of this act in the respect named in such notice or order, shall be subject to an additional fine of not less than five dollars and not more than twenty dollars for each day after the first day during which the violation continues.

Action of board of health, etc., may be reviewed by superior court.

SECTION 89. Any person, the value of whose property may be affected by any action of the board of health or of the building inspector, may have the action of said board or inspector reviewed by the superior court by any appropriate process: provided, that proceedings are instituted within twenty days after such action.

Proviso.

Right of entry.

SECTION 90. Any person having any duty to perform in regard to any building or premises under the provisions of this act may, if it be necessary for the performance of such duty, enter any building or premises.

LIENS.

Liens.

SECTION 91. Every fine imposed by judgment under section eighty-eight of this act upon a tenement house owner shall be a lien upon the house in relation to which the fine is imposed from the time of the filing of a certified copy of the judgment in the office of the register of deeds for the county or district in which the tenement house is situated, subject only to taxes, assessments and water rates and other existing lawful incumbrances, and it shall be the duty of the board of health and the building inspector, upon the entry of said judgment, forthwith to file the copy as aforesaid, and the copy, upon such filing, shall forthwith be properly indexed by the register of deeds.

LIS PENDENS.

Section 92. In any action or proceeding instituted by the officer or department charged with the enforcement of this act, the plaintiff or petitioner may file in the office of the register of deeds for the county or district where the property affected by such action or proceeding is situated, a notice of the pendency of the action or proceeding. The register of deeds with whom the notice is filed shall record it, and shall index it under the name of each person against whom said proceeding is instituted. Any such notice may be vacated by the order of a justice of the court in which the action or proceeding was instituted or is pending. The register of deeds of the county or district where the notice is filed is hereby directed to mark the notice and any record or docket thereof as cancelled of record, upon the presentation and filing of a certified copy of such order. Notice of pendency of action to be filed, etc.

REGISTRY OF OWNER'S NAME.

Section 93. Every owner of a tenement house and every lessee of the whole house, or other person having control of a tenement house, shall file with the board of health a notice containing his name and address, and also a description of the property, by street and number or otherwise, as the case may be, in such manner as will enable the said board easily to find the same; and also the number of rooms in each apartment, and the number of families occupying the apartments. Owner's name, etc., to be registered, etc.

When the owner or agent is not a resident of the city the notice shall contain the name and address of some agent residing within the city for the purpose of receiving service of process, and notice to and service of process upon such agent shall bind the principal. Blanks for the said registration shall be provided by the board of health.

SERVICE OF NOTICES AND ORDERS.

Section 94. Unless otherwise provided in this act, every notice or order in relation to a tenement house shall be served ten days before the time for doing the thing in relation to which it is issued. The service of a notice or order as aforesaid shall be made by the delivery of an attested Service of notices.

copy in hand to the owner or his agent, or by leaving an attested copy at the last or usual place of abode of the owner or agent, or, if the owner is a non-resident and has no agent duly appointed, it shall be placed in a conspicuous place in said tenement house and a copy thereof mailed by a registered letter, on the same day on which it is posted, to the owner or his agent at his residence.

SERVICE OF SUMMONS.

Service of summons.

SECTION 95. In any action brought by any city official in relation to a tenement house for injunction, vacating of the premises or other abatement of nuisance, or to establish a lien thereon, service of process shall be in the manner provided in the preceding section, except that the service of process shall be made only by a sheriff or one of his deputies or by a constable.

INDEXING NAMES.

Certain names and addresses to be indexed, etc.

SECTION 96. The names and addresses filed in accordance with section ninety-three shall be indexed by the board of health in such a manner that all of those filed in relation to each tenement house shall be together, and readily ascertainable. The board of health shall provide the necessary books and clerical assistance for that purpose, and the expense thereof shall be paid by the city. Said indexes shall be public records, open to public inspection during business hours.

LAWS REPEALED.

Repeal.

SECTION 97. All acts and parts of acts inconsistent herewith are hereby repealed, and upon acceptance of this act by any city all ordinances of such city inconsistent herewith are hereby annulled.

WHEN TO TAKE EFFECT.

Time of taking effect.

SECTION 98. This act shall not apply to the city of Boston, but it shall take effect in any other city upon its acceptance by a majority vote of the members of each branch of the city council or corresponding body of that city, present and voting thereon, and upon the approval of the mayor. Approved June 13, 1913.

An Act to provide for the construction of a bridge over a part of Lake Quinsigamond between the city of Worcester and the town of Shrewsbury. Chap. 787

Be it enacted, etc., as follows:

Construction of bridge over Lake Quinsigamond, etc.

Section 1. The county commissioners of the county of Worcester are hereby authorized to construct a bridge over a part of Lake Quinsigamond between the city of Worcester and the town of Shrewsbury, subject, however, to the provisions of chapter ninety-six of the Revised Laws and acts in amendment thereof and in addition thereto and of all other general laws which may be applicable. Said county commissioners are further authorized to construct all necessary approaches to said bridge. All damages which may be sustained by any person in his property by the alterations of the grade of a public way to the same extent as damages are recoverable by abutters for alterations by towns in the grade of ways shall primarily be paid by said county of Worcester. If the parties interested cannot agree upon said damages any party may have the damages determined within the time and in the manner in which damages are determined for the alteration of the grade of public highways.

Damages.

Expense to be paid by county in first instance.

Section 2. The expense incurred under this act shall be paid in the first instance by the county of Worcester, and for the purposes aforesaid the said commissioners are hereby authorized to borrow on the credit of the county a sum not exceeding one hundred and fifty thousand dollars. Upon the completion of the bridge, the said commissioners shall file in the office of the clerk of courts for the said county a detailed statement, certified under their hands, of the actual cost of constructing the said bridge, and within three months after the filing of such statement, they shall, after such notice as they may deem proper and a hearing, apportion and assess upon the city of Worcester forty-five per cent, upon the town of Shrewsbury two per cent, and upon the Worcester Consolidated Street Railway Company twenty-five per cent of the cost of constructing the said bridge. The remainder of the cost shall be borne by the county of Worcester.

Apportionment of cost.

Payment of cost.

Section 3. The said commissioners shall file in the office of the clerk of courts for the said county a report of the apportionment, and the clerk shall forthwith transmit a true and attested copy thereof to the city of Worcester, the town of Shrewsbury and the Worcester Consolidated Street Railway Company. Within thirty days thereafter the said city, the said town and the said street railway company shall each pay its part of said expense, determined as aforesaid, into the treasury of the county of Worcester. If the said city or the said town or said street railway company shall neglect or refuse to pay its proportion as aforesaid, the said commissioners shall, after notice to the city, town, or street railway company, issue a warrant against it for its proportion as aforesaid, with interest and the cost of the warrant, and the same shall be collected and paid into the treasury of the county to be applied in payment of the expense aforesaid.

Apportionment of cost of maintenance, etc.

SECTION 4. The cost of maintaining the said bridge and of keeping the same in repair shall be borne as follows: The Worcester Consolidated Street Railway Company shall at its own expense maintain its tracks and keep in repair the roadway between its rails and one and one half feet of the roadway outside of its rails. The remainder of the bridge shall be maintained and kept in repair by the city of Worcester.

Liability for defects, etc.

SECTION 5. The liability for defects in the bridge and its abutments shall be as follows: The said street railway company shall be liable for defects in that part of the roadway which it is required by the provisions of the preceding section to maintain and keep in repair. The city of Worcester shall be liable for all defects outside of the said area.

SECTION 6. This act shall take effect upon its passage.

SECTION 2. No steam traction engine, with or without trailers, and no motor truck carrying a weight in excess of four tons, including the vehicle, shall be operated upon any highway or bridge in this commonwealth at a speed greater than fifteen miles an hour; and no such vehicle carrying a weight in excess of six tons, including the vehicle, shall be operated upon any such highway or bridge at a speed greater than six miles an hour when such vehicle is equipped with iron or steel tires, nor greater than twelve miles an hour when the vehicle is equipped with tires of hard rubber or other similar substance.

Granting of permits for operation of certain vehicles.

SECTION 3. The Massachusetts highway commission, county commissioners, superintendents of the streets, selectmen, or road authorities having charge of the repair and maintenance of any highway or bridge in any of the towns in the commonwealth are hereby authorized, upon proper application in writing, to grant permits for the moving of heavy vehicles, loads, objects or structures in excess of a total weight of fourteen tons, over said highways or bridges, and for operating or moving over any highway or bridge in any town in the commonwealth outside of the metropolitan parks or sewerage districts, any engine, vehicle, object, or contrivance, the weight of which resting upon the surface of said highway or bridge exceeds eight hundred pounds upon any inch in width of tire, roller, wheel, or other object, which permits when duly granted shall authorize such movement. Said permits may be general or may limit the time and the particular roads and bridges which may be used, and may contain any special conditions or provisions which in the opinion of the authorities granting the same are necessary for the protection of said highways or bridges from injury. The authorities that have charge of any such bridge are hereby authorized to make regulations limiting the speed of any of the vehicles mentioned in this act passing over said bridge to a speed not to exceed six miles an hour, provided that notice is conspicuously posted at each end of the bridge affected by such regulation and the load capacity of the bridge is stated therein.

Penalty.

Section 4. Any person violating the provisions of this act or the regulations made or permits granted under authority thereof shall be liable to a fine of not more than one hundred dollars for each and every offence, and said fines shall be paid into the treasury of the commonwealth for use on state highways or bridges when state highways or bridges are injured, and into the treasury of the city, town or county when any highway or bridge is injured which is under the care of said city, town or county, for use on the highways of said city, town or county in addition to any other moneys that may be available for that purpose.

Certain provisions, liabilities, etc., not affected.

Section 5. Nothing in this act shall affect the provisions of section thirty-one of chapter fifty-two of the Revised Laws or shall authorize the passage of heavier vehicles or loads over bridges and highways than are now authorized by law, or in any way change or increase the liability of the commonwealth or of any county, city or town to pay for any damage or injury to any person or property.

Chap. 804 AN ACT RELATIVE TO THE SCHOOL COMMITTEE OF THE CITY OF CAMBRIDGE.

Be it enacted, etc., as follows:

1891, 364, § 31, etc., amended.

SECTION 1. Section thirty-one of chapter three hundred and sixty-four of the acts of the year eighteen hundred and ninety-one, as amended by section two of chapter five hundred and sixty-six of the acts of the year nineteen hundred and seven, and by section one of chapter three hundred and sixty-two of the acts of the year nineteen hundred and eight, and by section one of chapter three hundred and ninety-five of the acts of the year nineteen hundred and nine, is hereby further amended by striking out the said section and inserting in place thereof the following: — Section 31. The school committee and overseers of the poor shall respectively perform all those duties which the school committee and overseers of the poor in towns are required by law to perform. The school committee shall annually appropriate money for the maintenance of the schools and school buildings and for the salaries of all teachers and other employees including janitors of school buildings, employed by them: provided, however, that the words "maintenance of school buildings" shall not include the restoration of a school building when damaged or destroyed by fire, explosion or other unavoidable casualty. The total amount thus to be appropriated for the aforesaid purposes in addition to the money which may be given therefor, the income collected, the balance of appropriations of preceding years, and the money which may be authorized by acts of the general court passed prior to the year nineteen hundred and thirteen and not repealed, shall not exceed the following sums for the period specified: — For the financial year ending on the thirty-first day of March, nineteen hundred and fourteen, five dollars and twenty-five cents; for the financial year ending on the thirty-first day of March, nineteen hundred and fifteen, five dollars and fifty cents; for the financial year ending on the thirty-first day of March, nineteen hundred and sixteen, five dollars and seventy-five cents, and for each financial year thereafter six dollars on each one thousand dollars of taxable property of the city, to be estimated by taking the average amount of taxable property during the three preceding years. The school committee shall appoint a superintendent of schools and shall elect the teachers of the public schools as provided by section thirty-two of chapter forty-two of the Revised Laws. It shall approve the situation and plans of all school buildings. It shall have entire charge of the buildings used for school purposes and shall have authority to appoint and remove, under the laws regulating the civil service, the janitors and other persons employed therein. It shall have entire control of the expenditure of moneys devoted to the maintenance of schools. The overseers of the poor shall, annually on the first Monday of May, meet and organize, and choose such subordinate officers and agents as they may deem expedient, and define their duties and fix their salaries; but no member of the board shall be eligible to be chosen by the board to any position of emolument.

Purpose for which amounts shall be expended.

Section 2. The additional amounts authorized to be expended by the provisions of this act shall be expended by the school committee for the purpose of increasing the compensation of the teachers in the public schools of the city.

Act to be submitted to voters for acceptance.

Section 3. This act shall not be operative unless accepted by a majority of the voters of the city of Cambridge voting thereon at the next state election. Approved June 14, 1913.

An Act relative to the establishment and maintenance of continuation schools and courses of instruction for working children. Chap. 805

Be it enacted, etc., as follows:

Attendance of certain minors at continuation schools and courses of instruction.

Section 1. When the school committee of any city or town shall have established continuation schools or courses of instruction for the education of minors between fourteen and sixteen years of age who are regularly employed in such city or town not less than six hours per day, such school committee may, with the consent of the board of education, require the attendance in such continuation schools or on such courses of instruction of every such minor thereafter receiving an employment certificate and who is not otherwise receiving instruction approved by the school committee as equivalent to that provided in schools established under the provisions of this act. The required attendance provided for in this act shall be at the rate of not less than four hours per week and shall be between the hours of eight o'clock in the morning and six o'clock in the afternoon of any working day or days. The time spent by a child in a continuation school or class shall be reckoned as a part of the time or number of hours that minors are permitted by law to work.

Approved continuation schools, etc.

Section 2. Continuation schools or courses of instruction as provided in section one of this act, shall, so long as they are approved by the board of education as to organization, control, location, equipment, courses of study, qualifications of teachers, methods of instruction, conditions of admission, employment of pupils and expenditure of the money, constitute approved continuation schools or courses of instruction. Cities and towns maintaining such approved continuation schools or courses of instruction shall receive reimbursement from the commonwealth, as provided in section three of this act.

Maintenance, etc.

Section 3. The commonwealth, in order to aid in the maintenance of approved continuation schools or courses, shall as provided in this act pay annually from the treasury to cities and towns maintaining such schools or courses an amount equal to one half of the sum to be known as the net maintenance sum. Such net maintenance sum shall consist of the total sum raised by local taxation and expended for the maintenance of such a school, less the amount, for the same period, of tuition claims paid or unpaid and receipts from the work of pupils or the sale of products.

Attendance of resident minors employed in another city or town.

Section 4. When the school committee of any city or town shall have established a continuation school or courses of instruction as provided in section one of this act, the said school committee may require the attendance, as provided in section one of this act, in such continuation school or on such courses of instruction of all minors between fourteen and sixteen years of age residing in said city or town who are regularly employed in another city or town: provided, that the city or town in which such minors are employed does not maintain and require attendance at a continuation school or courses of instruction as defined in section one of this act.

Proviso.

Same subject.

Section 5. Any minor between fourteen and sixteen years of age who is regularly employed in a city or town other than that in which the said minor resides may attend a continuation school or courses of instruction, as provided in section one of this act, in the city or town in which such minor resides. Any minor attending a continuation school or courses of instruction, as hereinbefore described, in the city or town of his residence in preference to attending such school or courses of instruction in the city or town of his employment, shall file or cause to be filed regularly, at least once a month, with the superintendent, or his representative duly authorized in writing, of the city or town in which such minor is employed, a report of attendance certified by the superintendent, or his representative duly authorized in writing, of the city or town in which such minor is attending school: provided, however, that the filing of such certified report of attendance with the superintendent of a city or town in which attendance at continuation schools or courses of instruction as defined in section one of this act is not compulsory shall not be required.

Report of attendance to be filed, etc.

Proviso.

Section 6. The employer of any minor between fourteen and sixteen years of age who is compelled by the provisions and regulations either of the school committee in the city or town in which such minor resides or of the school committee in the city or town in which such minor is employed to attend a continuation school or courses of instruction as defined in section one of this act, shall cease forthwith to employ such minor when notified in writing by the superintendent or his representative duly authorized in writing, having jurisdiction over such minor's school attendance, that such minor is not attending school in accordance with the compulsory attendance regulations as defined in section one of this act. Any employer who fails to comply with the provisions of this section shall be punished by a fine of not less than ten nor more than one hundred dollars for each offence.

Employment of minor shall cease in case of non-attendance, etc.

Penalty.

Section 7. The superintendent of schools having jurisdiction, or a person authorized by him in writing, may revoke the age and schooling or employment certificate of any minor who is required by the provisions of this act to attend a continuation school or courses, if such minor fails to attend such school or courses as provided by this act.

Certificates may be revoked for non-attendance.

Section 8. This act shall take effect on the first day of September, nineteen hundred and thirteen.

Time of taking effect.

Approved June 16, 1913.

Chap. 806 AN ACT RELATIVE TO THE INSTALLATION, ALTERATION AND INSPECTION OF ELEVATORS AND TO THE APPOINTMENT OF A BOARD OF ELEVATOR REGULATIONS.

Be it enacted, etc., as follows:

Installation and inspection of elevators.

SECTION 1. In cities and towns not having a building department or an inspector of buildings, the installation and alteration of all elevators shall be under the supervision of the inspectors of the building inspection department of the district police. In cities and towns having an inspector of buildings or a person acting as such, the installation and alteration of all elevators shall be under the supervision of such inspector. No elevator shall hereafter be installed or altered until a copy of the plans and specifications of such elevator or of the proposed alterations shall have been filed by the owner of the premises where the elevator is to be installed or altered, or by the manufacturer of the elevator, with the inspector having jurisdiction, and a certificate of approval or a specification of requirements shall have been issued by him.

Practical test of safety devices to be made.

SECTION 2. On completion of the work of installation or alteration, the manufacturer of the elevator or the person making the alterations shall make a practical test of the safety devices of the elevator in the presence of the inspector, and if the test is satisfactory to the inspector, he shall issue a certificate approving the elevator and safety devices thereof.

Report of inspection.

SECTION 3. All elevators shall be thoroughly inspected and a practical test made of the safety devices required therefor at intervals of not more than one year, and at such other times as may be deemed necessary by the inspector having jurisdiction thereof. Within ten days after the inspection, the inspector shall report the result thereof to the chief of the district police, upon forms to be furnished by him. This requirement for the making of inspection reports shall not apply to the city of Boston.

Certificate of safe condition to be posted in elevator.

SECTION 4. If, in the judgment of any inspector having jurisdiction thereof, an elevator is safe, and if the elevator has been constructed in the manner required by law or by regulations made by the board of elevator regulations as hereinafter provided, the inspector shall issue a certificate to that effect to the owner of the elevator, or to the person in charge thereof, and the owner of the elevator or the person in charge thereof shall post the certificate in a conspicuous place in or near the cab or car of such elevator. If in the judgment of the inspector, the elevator is unsafe or dangerous to use, or has not been constructed in the manner required by law or by the regulations made by the board of elevator regulations as hereinafter provided, the inspector shall immediately post conspicuously upon the entrance or door of the cab or car of such elevator, or upon the elevator, a notice of its dangerous condition, and shall prohibit the use of the elevator until it has been made safe to the inspector's satisfaction. No person shall remove such notice or operate such elevator until the inspector has issued his certificate as aforesaid. Notice of unsafe condition, etc.

Section 5. Any owner, operator or person in charge of an elevator, or any person employed by any firm, corporation, or individual to inspect an elevator shall, if he thinks such elevator is unsafe, report the fact in writing to the inspector having jurisdiction thereof who shall forthwith inspect such elevator. If any accident occurs to an elevator, the operator, person in charge or owner having knowledge thereof shall immediately report such accident to the inspector having jurisdiction who shall forthwith inspect such elevator. Report of accidents, etc.

Section 6. Within one month after the passage of this act the governor, with the advice and consent of the council, shall appoint a board, to be called the Board of Elevator Regulations. The said board shall frame regulations relating to the construction, installation, alteration and operation of all elevators, now installed or to be installed, and relative to the location, design and construction of shafts or enclosures for elevators, safety devices, gates and other safeguards, protection against the elevator or hoisting machinery, and means to prevent the spread of fire, and also such regulations as will make uniform the work of the inspectors of the building inspection department of the district police and of inspectors of buildings throughout the commonwealth. Board of Elevator Regulations, appointment, duties, etc.

Section 7. The board of elevator regulations shall be composed of seven members, one of whom shall be a consulting engineer who shall act as chairman, one an inspector of the building inspection department of the district police, one the building commissioner of the city of Boston, one an inspector of buildings of some other city in the commonwealth, one a representative of a liability insurance company licensed to write such insurance in the commonwealth, one Membership.

Regulations.

a representative of an elevator manufacturer, and one an experienced elevator constructor. The said board shall, within three months after its members are appointed, draft regulations as aforesaid, and submit the same to the governor and council for their approval. Within sixty days after such regulations have been submitted to the governor and council, they shall approve the same with such alterations and amendments and after such public hearings as they may deem proper, and the regulations, so altered and amended, shall then be referred by the governor to the chief of the district police, who shall furnish upon application a printed copy of the regulations to all manufacturers of elevators operating in the commonwealth, and to all inspectors of buildings in the cities and towns of the commonwealth, and to all others who are concerned. It shall be the duty of the inspectors of the building inspection department of the district police and the department of buildings or inspectors of buildings of cities and towns to see that the said regulations are complied with.

Enforcement of regulations.

Board to be dissolved upon approval of regulations.

Section 8. The board of elevator regulations shall serve without compensation and shall be dissolved upon the approval, by the governor and council, of the regulations made as above provided.

Proceedings upon petition for alteration, etc., of rules and regulations.

Section 9. Any person engaged in the inspection, alteration, construction, repair or operation of elevators may, from time to time, hereafter by petition in writing to the governor and council request that rules and regulations established under this act be altered or amended. The governor may grant public hearings before the governor and council upon such petition, and if he deems it advisable may appoint a new board of elevator regulations to consist of seven members as provided in section seven of this act. Such board shall, within three months after its appointment, draft such alterations or amendments as they deem advisable and submit the same to the governor and council for their approval as provided in section seven. Upon the approval by the governor and council of such alterations or amendments, they shall become part of the rules and regulations pertaining to elevators and shall have the same force and effect as the other rules and regulations established under section seven. The board established under this section shall, upon such approval by the governor and council be dissolved.

Section 10. For the purpose of carrying out the provisions of this act, the board of elevator regulations may expend such sum, not exceeding fifteen hundred dollars, as shall be approved by the governor and council. Expenditure.

Section 11. Whoever is aggrieved by the order, requirement, or direction of an inspector of buildings of a city or town except in the city of Boston, may, within ten days after the service thereof, appeal to a judge of the superior court for the county in which the building to which such order, requirement or direction relates is situated, for an order forbidding its enforcement; and after such notice as said court shall order to all parties interested, a hearing may be had before said court at such early and convenient time and place as shall be fixed by said order; or the court may appoint three disinterested persons, skilled in the subject-matter of the controversy, to examine the matter and hear the parties; and the decision of said court, or the decision, in writing and under oath, of the majority of said experts, filed in the office of the clerk of courts in said county within ten days after such hearing, may alter, annul or affirm such order, requirement or direction. Such decision or a certified copy thereof shall have the same authority, force and effect as the original order, requirement or direction of the inspector. If such decision annuls or alters such order, requirement or direction of the inspector, the court shall also order the said inspector not to enforce his order, requirement or direction, and in every such case the certificate required by this act to be issued by the inspector shall thereupon be issued by said court or by said experts. Persons aggrieved may appeal to judge of superior court, etc.

Section 12. Any person, firm or corporation violating or failing to comply with any provision of this act, or of any regulation established hereunder shall be punished by a fine of not more than five hundred dollars for every such offence, subject, however, to the right of appeal as provided in section eleven of this act except that in the city of Boston the right of appeal shall be the same as that provided by section seven of chapter five hundred and fifty of the acts of the year nineteen hundred and seven. Penalty.

Section 13. Sections twenty-seven and twenty-eight of chapter one hundred and four of the Revised Laws, sections seventy-four and ninety-six, in so far as such sections relate to elevators, of chapter five hundred and fourteen of the acts of the year nineteen hundred and nine, chapter Repeal.

four hundred and fifty-five of the acts of the year nineteen hundred and eleven, and chapter three hundred and eighteen of the acts of the year nineteen hundred and twelve, in so far as such chapter relates to elevators, and chapter four hundred and seventy-nine of the acts of the year nineteen hundred and twelve, and all acts and parts of acts inconsistent herewith are hereby repealed.

Time of taking effect.

SECTION 14. Sections six, seven, eight and ten of this act which relate to the appointment, duties and expenses of the board of elevator regulations shall take effect upon its passage, and the remainder of this act shall take effect thirty days after the approval by the governor and council of the regulations framed by the board of elevator regulations.

Approved June 16, 1913.

Chap. 807 AN ACT TO PROVIDE FOR COMPENSATING CERTAIN PUBLIC EMPLOYEES FOR INJURIES SUSTAINED IN THE COURSE OF THEIR EMPLOYMENT.

Be it enacted, etc., as follows:

Compensation of certain public employees for injuries, etc.

SECTION 1. The commonwealth shall and any county, city, or town, or district having the power of taxation, may pay the compensation provided by Part II of chapter seven hundred and fifty-one of the acts of the year nineteen hundred and eleven and acts in amendment thereof and in addition thereto to such laborers, workmen and mechanics employed by it as receive injuries arising out of and in the course of their employment, or, in case of death resulting from any such injury, may pay compensation as provided in sections six, seven and eight of said Part II, and in any amendments thereof, to the persons thereto entitled.

Procedure and jurisdiction, etc.

SECTION 2. Procedure under this act and the jurisdiction of the industrial accident board shall be the same as under the provisions of said chapter seven hundred and fifty-one, and the commonwealth or a county, city, town or district which accepts the provisions of this act shall have the same rights in proceedings under said chapter as the association thereby created. The treasurer and receiver general, or the treasurer or officer having similar duties of a county, city, town or district which accepts the provisions of this act, shall pay any compensation awarded for injury to any person in its employment upon proper vouchers without any further authority.

Section 3. Counties, cities, towns, and districts having the power of taxation, may accept the provisions of this act by vote of a majority of those legal voters who vote on the question of its acceptance at an annual meeting or election as hereinafter provided. In towns and districts which have an annual meeting of the legal voters, this act shall be submitted for acceptance to the voters of the town or district at the next annual meeting after its passage. In cities, and in towns which do not have annual meetings, this act shall be submitted to the voters at the next municipal election, and in counties and in districts which do not have an annual meeting, at the next state election after its passage. Act to be submitted to voters for acceptance, etc.

At every such election, and at every annual meeting where ballots are used, the following question shall be printed on the ballot: "Shall chapter of the acts of nineteen hundred and thirteen, being an act to provide for compensating laborers, workmen and mechanics for injuries sustained in public employment, and to exempt from legal liability counties and municipal corporations which pay such compensation, be accepted by the inhabitants of this (county, city, town, water district, fire district, etc.) of ?"

YES.
NO.

Question to be printed upon ballot.

The vote shall be canvassed by the county commissioners, city council or commission, or selectmen, or, in the case of a district, by the district commissioners or other governing board of the district. A notice stating the result of the vote shall be posted in the county court house, or city or town hall, or, in the case of a district, in the public building where the employees of the district are paid. Except as provided in section four, a county, city, town or district which accepts the provisions of this act shall not be liable in any action for a personal injury sustained by a laborer, workman or mechanic in the course of his employment by such county, city, town or district, or for death resulting from such injury. Liability for injuries.

Section 4. A laborer, workman or mechanic entering or remaining in the service of a county, city, town or district, who would, if injured, have a right of action against the county, city, town or district by existing law, may, if the county, city, town or district has accepted the provisions of this act before he enters its service, or accepts them afterward, claim or waive his right of action as provided in section five of Part I of said chapter seven hundred and fifty-one, and shall be deemed to have waived such right of action Waiver of right of action, etc.

unless he claims it. Section four of said Part I shall apply to actions by laborers, workmen or mechanics employed by a county, city, town or district which accepts the provisions of this act.

Persons not to receive both pension and compensation for same injury, etc.

Section 5. Any person entitled to receive from the commonwealth or from a county, city, town or district the compensation provided by Part II of said chapter seven hundred and fifty-one, who is also entitled to a pension by reason of the same injury, shall elect whether he will receive such compensation or such pension, and shall not receive both. In case a person entitled to such compensation from the commonwealth or from a county, city, town or district receives by special act a pension for the same injury, he shall forfeit all claim for compensation, and any compensation received by him or paid by the commonwealth or by the county, city, town or district which employs him for medical or hospital services rendered to him may be recovered back in an action at law. No further payment shall be awarded by vote or otherwise to any person who has claimed and received compensation under this act.

To whom this act shall apply.

Section 6. This act shall apply to all laborers, workmen and mechanics in the service of the commonwealth or of a county, city or town, or district having the power of taxation, under any employment or contract of hire, expressed or implied, oral or written, including those employed in work done in performance of governmental duties as well as those employed in municipal enterprises conducted for gain or profit. For the purposes of this act all laborers, workmen and mechanics paid by the commonwealth, but serving under boards or commissions exercising powers within defined districts, shall be deemed to be in the service of the commonwealth.

To whom 1911, 751, etc., shall not apply.

Section 7. The provisions of chapter seven hundred and fifty-one of the acts of the year nineteen hundred and eleven, and acts in amendment thereof and in addition thereto shall not apply to any persons other than laborers, workmen and mechanics employed by counties, cities, towns, or districts having the power of taxation.

Section 8. This act shall take effect upon its passage.

Approved June 16, 1913.

An Act to re-incorporate the Berkshire and Canaan Street Railway Company. Chap. 808

Be it enacted, etc., as follows:

Berkshire and Canaan Street Railway Company incorporated.

Section 1. Henry D. Sisson, Hildreth K. Bloodgood, Edwin Wheeler, Ralph I. Rhodes, Michael Cagney, their associates and successors, are hereby made a corporation under the name of the Berkshire and Canaan Street Railway Company, with all the powers and privileges, and subject to all the duties, conditions and restrictions set forth in all general laws now or hereafter in force relating to street railway companies.

Location and construction of railway, etc.

Section 2. Said company may locate, construct, maintain and operate its railway, with a single or double track, in such manner as may be convenient and necessary, and as may be approved by the board of railroad commissioners, in part upon private land acquired by purchase or lease, and upon streets, highways or state roads in the town of New Marlborough, subject to general law. The location of said railway outside the public streets and highways shall not exceed fifty feet in width, unless an additional width is approved by said board, with convenient turn-outs and switches. The most northerly terminus of said railway shall be the north boundary line of New Marlborough on the western shore of Lake Buell, the said railway thence running southerly in the general direction of the Konkapot river, branching to the village of Hartsville, New Marlborough, Southfield, and through the village of Mill River to the village of Clayton, all of which villages are in said town, connecting at the village of Clayton on the Massachusetts and Connecticut state line with a street railway of the same name in the town of Canaan, chartered by the legislature of the state of Connecticut.

May acquire real estate, erect poles, etc.

Section 3. Said company may maintain and operate its railway by any motive power other than steam; may erect and maintain poles and wires on private lands purchased or leased for the purposes of said railway, and, with the consent of the selectmen, may erect such poles and wires and make such excavations in the streets and highways as may be necessary to establish and maintain such motive power, subject to the approval of the board of railroad commissioners. Said company may acquire by purchase or lease all real estate and water power required for its power station, tracks, poles, wires, car houses and other uses incident to the proper maintenance and operation of its railway.

Capital stock.

SECTION 4. The capital stock of said company shall not exceed one hundred thousand dollars; but the company may increase its capital stock, subject to the provisions of the general laws relative thereto.

Issue of bonds, etc.

SECTION 5. Said company, in order to meet the expenses incurred under this act, may issue bonds not exceeding the amount of its capital stock, and payable within a period not exceeding thirty years from the date thereof, secured by mortgage of its franchise and property, subject to the general laws relative thereto, and in such mortgage may reserve to its directors the right to sell or otherwise in due course of business to dispose of property included therein which may become unsuitable for use, provided that an equivalent in value is substituted.

Limit of time for construction.

SECTION 6. The authority herein granted shall cease if the proposed road is not constructed and put in operation within three years after the passage of this act.

SECTION 7. This act shall take effect upon its passage.

Approved June 16, 1913.

Chap. 809 AN ACT TO PROVIDE FOR A COMMISSION TO INVESTIGATE THE REGULATIONS NOW IN FORCE THROUGHOUT THE COMMONWEALTH RELATIVE TO THE CONSTRUCTION, ALTERATION AND MAINTENANCE OF BUILDINGS.

Be it enacted, etc., as follows:

Building commission for the commonwealth, appointment, duties, etc.

SECTION 1. A commission of five persons shall be appointed by the governor, with the advice and consent of the council, to investigate the various statutes, ordinances, by-laws and regulations now in force throughout the commonwealth and the various cities and towns thereof, relative to the construction, alteration and maintenance of buildings, with the view of establishing uniformity in general requirements and of determining what regulations for the purposes aforesaid may be adopted either for the state as a whole, or under a classification of cities and towns, so that general regulations may be made for each class. The commission shall report to the general court on or before the first day of February, nineteen hundred and fourteen, and shall, as a part of its report, draft an act containing such general regulations for the construction, alteration and maintenance of buildings as it may recommend. The act may include, if the commission finds it desirable, a provision for a permanent board or commission to supervise the administration of building laws and regulations throughout the commonwealth, and to advise the local authorities when modifications of building laws and regulations become desirable. The commission shall serve without compensation for the services of its members but may expend for such necessary expenses as may be approved by the governor and council a sum not exceeding twenty-five hundred dollars.

Section 2. This act shall take effect upon its passsage.

Approved June 16, 1913.

An Act relative to the Boylston street subway. Chap. 810

Be it enacted, etc., as follows:

Investigation and report to be made as to alteration of route of Boylston street subway.

Section 1. The Boston transit commission, hereinafter called the commission, is hereby authorized and directed to investigate and report to the next general court whether or not, in view of the traffic to be served and the additional expense involved, it is desirable to alter the route of the Boylston street subway, as defined in chapter seven hundred and forty-one of the acts of the year nineteen hundred and eleven, by abandoning the construction of that part of the Boylston street subway between Boylston street and Park street, in the city of Boston, and in place thereof extending said subway through Boylston street to Washington street, and from Washington street by some route to Post Office square, providing for an exchange of traffic with the Tremont street subway at or near the corner of Tremont and Boylston streets, with the Washington street tunnel at or near the corner of Boylston street and Washington street, and with the Dorchester tunnel at some convenient point. In case the commission is of the opinion that it is desirable to alter the route of the Boylston street subway, it is requested to state in its report the precise route which it would recommend and the additional expense involved, and to submit with its report a draft of a bill embodying such legislation as may be necessary to carry out its recommendations. The cost of the above investigation and report shall be deemed a part of the cost of the Boylston street subway.

Certain construction to be suspended

Section 2. Until the report required by the preceding section shall have been made and acted upon by the general until report shall have been made.

court the Boston transit commission shall suspend the construction of that part of the Boylston street subway between Boylston street and Park street, and also so much of the Boylston street subway westward of Tremont street as might, in the judgment of the commission, be affected if the route of the subway should be altered as provided in section one.

Construction which shall be continued.

The commission shall proceed with the construction of the remainder of the Boylston street subway and shall connect it with the present Tremont street subway at such point in the vicinity of Park square as, in the judgment of the commission, may be convenient for that purpose; and upon its completion and connection, and after a reasonable time for equipment, the said part of the Boylston street subway shall be opened for operation without waiting for the construction of the remainder; and so much of the rental payable by the Boston Elevated Railway Company under its contract, dated December 7, 1911, as represents four and one half per cent of the net cost of that part of the Boylston street subway which has been completed, shall begin to accrue as soon as the use of that part of the Boylston street subway begins.

Rental.

Construction of new incline, etc., in Boylston street.

Section 3. The commission may construct in Boylston street between Arlington street and Charles street a new incline and approach to the Tremont street subway to take the place of the present incline and approach in the Public Garden, and may connect such incline and approach with the present Tremont street subway at such point in the vicinity of Park square as it may deem expedient. Upon the construction of such new incline, the present incline and approach in the Public Garden shall be abandoned, and the excavation therein shall be filled up and the new incline and approach shall be deemed to be to all intents and purposes a part of the Tremont street subway.

Part of Boylston street may be widened.

In order to provide for traffic in Boylston street, the commission is authorized to widen Boylston street between Arlington street and Charles street by taking, as a part of the street, so much of the land occupied by the Public Garden as lies between the present southerly fence of said garden and a line beginning at the intersection of the easterly line of Arlington street with the northerly line of Boylston street, thence running to a point opposite the westerly line of Church street and distant not exceeding forty feet from the line of the present southerly fence of said garden, thence continuing to Charles street at a distance not exceeding forty feet from said fence. The commission, if it decides to widen Boylston street as aforesaid, shall construct the street as widened; and the cost of the new incline and the cost of widening Boylston street, but not including any payment for that part of the Public Garden which is taken for that purpose, and the cost of filling the excavation of the present incline in the Public Garden shall all be deemed a part of the cost of the Boylston street subway. The commission shall have authority to relocate the surface car tracks in Boylston street and Charles street and to grant new locations for the same so far as, in its judgment, may be desirable in view of the changes which may be made in the incline and approach to the Tremont street subway and in Boylston street itself: provided, however, that if the new incline herein provided for shall be discontinued at any future time the land so taken from the Public Garden for the widening of Boylston street shall revert back to its present use as a part of the Public Garden, and the now existing street line of Boylston street shall be re-established.

Relocation of certain tracks, etc.

Proviso.

Section 4. The commission, acting on behalf of the city of Boston, and the Boston Elevated Railway Company are authorized to make such modifications in the contract for the use of the Boylston street subway, dated December 7, 1911, as may be rendered necessary by the provisions of this act; but neither this act nor its acceptance, as hereinafter provided, shall be held to require any permanent change in the route of the Boylston street subway, as defined by chapter seven hundred and forty-one of the acts of the year nineteen hundred and eleven, or to require the city of Boston or the Boston Elevated Railway Company to consent to any such change.

Existing contract for use of Boylston street subway may be modified, etc.

Section 5. This act shall not take effect unless it is accepted by vote of the city council of the city of Boston, approved by the mayor, and accepted by the Boston Elevated Railway Company by vote of its board of directors, and certificates of such acceptances have been filed with the secretary of the commonwealth within sixty days after the approval of this act by the governor; nor unless the West End Street Railway Company by vote of its board of directors shall accept so much of this act as affects the Tremont street subway, and a certificate of such acceptance shall have been filed with the secretary of the commonwealth within the period of sixty days above specified.

Time of taking effect.

Approved June 16, 1913.

Chap. 811 AN ACT RELATIVE TO LYNNFIELD STREET IN THE CITY OF LYNN.

Be it enacted, etc., as follows:

Repair of part of Lynnfield street in city of Lynn.

SECTION 1. The county of Essex, acting by its board of county commissioners, is hereby authorized and directed to repair so much of the public way known as Lynnfield street in the city of Lynn as lies between the town of Lynnfield and the junction of said Lynnfield street with Great Woods road, so-called, in said city. Said repairs shall be made in a manner satisfactory to the Massachusetts highway commission and shall be completed on or before the first day of September, nineteen hundred and thirteen.

To be laid out and maintained as a state highway.

SECTION 2. Upon the completion of the work of repairing a part of said Lynnfield street, as set forth in the preceding section, the Massachusetts highway commission shall lay out and accept and thereafter maintain as a state highway said part of said Lynnfield street.

Damages.

SECTION 3. All damages sustained by any person or corporation by any act done under authority hereof may be assessed by a jury of the superior court in the manner provided by law in respect to damages sustained by the laying out of ways, the same to be paid by the county of Essex.

County commissioners may borrow money, etc.

SECTION 4. In order to carry out the provisions of this act the county commissioners of the county of Essex are hereby authorized to borrow upon the credit of the county such sum or sums as may be necessary, and to issue notes or bonds therefor.

SECTION 5. This act shall take effect upon its passage.

Approved June 16, 1913.

Chap. 812 AN ACT TO AUTHORIZE THE ARMORY COMMISSIONERS TO ACQUIRE OR LEASE LAND FOR PARADE AND DRILL GROUNDS AND FOR RANGES FOR TARGET PRACTICE.

Be it enacted, etc., as follows:

1908, 604, § 133, etc., amended.

SECTION 1. Section one hundred and thirty-three of chapter six hundred and four of the acts of the year nineteen hundred and eight, as amended by chapter three hundred and twenty-three of the acts of the year nineteen hundred and nine and by chapter six hundred and sixty-five of the acts of the year nineteen hundred and twelve, is hereby further amended by adding at the end thereof the words: — The armory commissioners may, with the approval of the governor and council, take by right of eminent domain, purchase or lease land suitable for parade and drill grounds or for ranges for target practice until the volunteer militia is adequately provided with parade and drill grounds and ranges for target practice. The method of taking land for this purpose and the manner of determining the value of the land so taken shall be the same as are set forth in this section for the taking of land for the site of an armory. Upon land so acquired the armory commissioners may, with the approval of the governor and council, erect such building or buildings as may be needed for the use of the militia.

Land may be acquired for parade and drill grounds, target practice, etc.

Section 2. Section one hundred and thirty-four of said chapter six hundred and four is hereby amended by adding at the end thereof the words: — The armory commissioners may, by agreement with the mayor and aldermen of any city or the selectmen of any town which holds title to a drill and parade grounds or a target range, determine the value of such drill and parade grounds or target range, and upon approval of such agreement by the governor and council, may purchase such drill and parade grounds or target range for and in the name of the commonwealth, and thereupon title to the land and buildings so purchased shall vest absolutely in the commonwealth.

Determination of value.

Section 3. The first paragraph of section one hundred and thirty-seven of said chapter six hundred and four is hereby amended by inserting after the word "class", in the third line, the words: — or any parade and drill ground or range for target practice, the title to which is held by any city or town, — by inserting after the word "situated", in the fourth line, the words: — or which holds title to said parade and drill ground or range for target practice, — by inserting after the word "twenty-eight", in the sixth line, the words: — and one hundred and thirty, — and by inserting after the word "therein", in the ninth line, the words: — or using said parade and drill ground or said range for target practice, — so that said paragraph will read as follows: — Upon the taking for and in the name of the commonwealth of any armory of the first or second class or any parade and drill ground or range for target practice, the title to which is held by any city or town, the adjutant general shall notify the city or town in which such armory is situated or which holds title to said parade and drill ground or range for target practice, and thereupon all the obligations of said city or town under sections one hundred and twenty-seven and one hundred and twenty-eight and one hundred and thirty of this act and all allowances and payments by the commonwealth for rent shall cease, as to the organizations quartered therein, or using said parade and drill ground or said range for target practice.

1908, 604, § 137, amended.

City or town to be notified of taking, etc.

SECTION 4. This act shall take effect upon its passage.

Approved June 16, 1913.

Chap. 813 AN ACT RELATIVE TO INDUSTRIAL ACCIDENTS AND OCCUPATIONAL DISEASES.

Be it enacted, etc., as follows:

Investigation relative to prevention of industrial accidents and occupational diseases.

SECTION 1. The state board of labor and industries and the industrial accident board, sitting jointly, shall investigate from time to time employments and places of employment within the commonwealth, and determine what suitable safety devices or other reasonable means or requirements for the prevention of accidents shall be adopted or followed in any or all such employments or places of employment; and also shall determine what suitable devices or other reasonable means or requirements for the prevention of industrial or occupational diseases shall be adopted or followed in any or all such employments or places of employment; and shall make reasonable rules, regulations and orders for the prevention of accidents and the prevention of industrial or occupational diseases in such employment or places of employment. Such rules, regulations and orders may apply to both employer and employee.

Public hearings to be given, etc.

SECTION 2. Before the adoption of any rule or regulation by the said joint board a hearing shall be given, and not less than ten days before the hearing a notice thereof shall be published in at least three newspapers, of which one shall be published in the city of Boston. Such rules or regulations shall upon adoption be published in like manner, and shall take effect thirty days after such publication, or at such later time as the board may fix. Before the adoption of any order a hearing shall be given thereon, of which a notice of not less than ten days shall be given to the individuals, firms, corporations or associations affected thereby.

Section 3. The joint board may appoint committees, on which employers and employees shall be represented, to investigate and recommend rules and regulations. Appointment of committees.

Section 4. The joint board shall make such general arrangements between the two boards as will prevent duplication of effort but the inspection and investigation carried on by the state board of labor and industries shall be a regular and systematic inspection and investigation of all places of employment and the conditions of safety and health pertaining thereto, and the inspection and investigation carried on by the industrial accident board shall be that relating to causes of injuries for which compensation may be claimed. Duties of boards.

Section 5. Any member or employee of either board may enter any place of employment for any purpose under this act at any time when the place of employment is being used for business purposes. Right of entry to premises.

Section 6. The joint board may require every physician treating a patient whom he believes to be suffering from any ailment or disease contracted as a result of the nature, circumstances or conditions of the patient's employment to report such information relating thereto as it may require, within such time as it may fix, to the state board of labor and industries, and may issue a list of such diseases which shall be regularly reported upon by physicians and may add to or change such list at any time. Copies of all such reports and all statistics and data compiled therefrom shall be kept by the state board of labor and industries, and shall be furnished on request to the industrial accident board and the state board of health. Reports to be made by physicians, etc.

Section 7. All hearings by the joint board shall be open to the public. The chairman of the state board of labor and industries and the chairman of the industrial accident board shall act alternately as chairman of the joint board, and the said board may designate one of the employees of either board to act as secretary. Chairman and secretary.

Section 8. Section eight of chapter seven hundred and twenty-six of the acts of the year nineteen hundred and twelve is hereby amended by adding at the end of the first paragraph thereof the words: — or persons especially qualified by technical education in matters relating to health and sanitation. 1912, 726, § 8, amended.

Section 9. The industrial accident board may appoint and remove not more than six inspectors, subject to the Inspectors, appointment, etc.

laws relating to the appointment and removal of employees in the classified civil service. They shall be required to pass examinations of a comprehensive and practical character based upon the particular requirements of the kinds of work to be done, shall be graded in such manner as the board may deem expedient, and shall receive such salaries as the board, with the approval of the governor and council, may fix.

Rules, etc., of joint board to prevail.

SECTION 10. If any rule or regulation made under authority of section eighteen of Part IV of chapter seven hundred and fifty-one of the acts of the year nineteen hundred and eleven conflicts with or differs from a rule or regulation of the joint board, the rule or regulation of the joint board shall prevail.

Expenditures.

SECTION 11. There may be expended annually by the joint board in carrying out the provisions of this act such sums as the general court may appropriate. The joint board shall annually submit to the auditor of the commonwealth such statements of estimates to cover its expenses as are required by section three of chapter seven hundred and nineteen of the acts of the year nineteen hundred and twelve.

Certain terms defined.

SECTION 12. The following terms and phrases, as used in this act, shall have the following meanings: —

(a) The term "employment" shall mean and include any trade, occupation or branch of industry, any particular method or process used therein, and the service of any particular employer; but shall not include private domestic service or service as a farm laborer.

(b) The phrase "place of employment" shall mean and include every place whether indoors or out or underground and the premises appurtenant thereto, into, in or upon which any employee goes or remains either temporarily or regularly in the course of his employment.

(c) The terms "safe" and "safety", as used in this act, shall be held to relate to such freedom from danger to the life, safety and health of employees as the nature of the employment will reasonably permit.

(d) The terms "industrial disease" and "occupational disease" shall mean and include any ailment or disease caused by the nature, circumstances or conditions of the employment.

Penalty.

SECTION 13. Whoever violates any reasonable rule, regulation, order or requirement made by the joint board under authority hereof, shall be punished by a fine of not more than one hundred dollars for each offence.

Repeal.

Section 14. All acts and parts of acts inconsistent herewith are hereby repealed; but this provision shall not be construed to take away any of the existing powers of the industrial accident board, the board of railroad commissioners, the state board of health, the board of boiler rules, the boiler inspection department of the district police, or the building inspection department of the district police, or any power given to the state board of labor and industries by chapter seven hundred and twenty-six of the acts of the year nineteen hundred and twelve.

Section 15. This act shall take effect upon its passage.

Approved June 16, 1913.

An Act to provide for the improvement of Beaver Dam brook in the towns of Ashland, Framingham, Sherborn and Natick. Chap. 814

Be it enacted, etc., as follows:

Improvement of Beaver Dam brook.

Section 1. The metropolitan water and sewerage board is authorized to widen, straighten and deepen the channel of Beaver Dam brook in the towns of Ashland, Framingham, Sherborn and Natick, and otherwise to improve said brook from Waushakum pond in the towns of Ashland and Framingham to the outlet of said brook at Lake Cochituate in the town of Natick.

Description of lands, etc., taken to be recorded.

Section 2. The said board, for the purposes aforesaid, may take, or acquire by purchase or otherwise, lands, easements, rights of way, water rights and other property, and shall sign and cause to be recorded in the registry of deeds for the county and district in which the property to be taken is situated a description thereof as certain as is required in a common conveyance of land, and stating that the same is taken for the metropolitan water works; and upon such recording the property so described shall vest in the commonwealth.

Damages.

Section 3. Any person whose property is injured by the taking or by the widening, straightening or deepening of said brook, or by any other act of the said board under the provisions of this act, and who has not released to the commonwealth all claims for damages on account of the same, may have his damages determined by the award of, or by agreement with, the said board; and if the parties cannot agree upon the damages, the damages may be determined by a jury of the superior court for the county of Middlesex under the provisions of chapter forty-eight of the Revised Laws, so far as they may be applicable, upon a petition therefor filed by the person aggrieved in the office of the clerk within one year after the damage is sustained, and the petitioner shall have judgment for the amount determined, with interest on the excess of the amount over the award of the board, and costs if the amount is greater than the award of the said board; otherwise the petitioner shall recover no interest and shall pay costs.

Issue of bonds, etc.

SECTION 4. The expense incurred in carrying out the provisions of this act shall be paid out of the treasury of the commonwealth, and the treasurer and receiver general shall, from time to time, on the request of the said board, issue negotiable bonds in the name and in behalf of the commonwealth and under its seal, designated on the face thereof, Metropolitan Water Loan, to an amount not exceeding thirty-three thousand dollars; and the provisions of chapter four hundred and eighty-eight of the acts of the year eighteen hundred and ninety-five and acts in amendment thereof and in addition thereto shall, so far as the same are applicable, apply to said loan.

Assessment of betterments, etc.

SECTION 5. The metropolitan water and sewerage board shall, within one year after the completion of the work hereby authorized, if in its opinion any land receives a benefit from the improvements beyond the general benefit to all land in said towns, and if the owner has not released to the commonwealth all claims for damages on account of any act or thing done by said board, its agents, or servants in carrying out the provisions of this act, determine the value of and assess upon the land receiving such benefit a proportional share of the cost of the said improvements, not exceeding the value of the benefit; and any person whose land is so assessed may have the amount of the assessment determined by a jury of the superior court for the county of Middlesex, under the provisions of chapter fifty of the Revised Laws, so far as they may be applicable, but without interest or costs if the assessment by the jury is less than the amount determined by the said board. The assessment so determined by the said board or by a jury, as the case may be, shall constitute a lien upon the land until it is paid. Every such assessment shall be certified by the secretary of said board or by the clerk of said court to the collector of the town in which the land lies, and shall be collected by him in the manner provided for the collection of taxes, and the proceeds thereof shall be paid into the treasury of the commonwealth and be applied by the treasurer toward payment of the expense incurred in making the said improvements.

Buildings near brook may be connected with sewers of town of Framingham.

Section 6. The town of Framingham shall permit dwelling houses and other buildings situated near said brook in the towns of Ashland, Natick or Sherborn, to be connected with the sewers of the town of Framingham, upon payment of such entrance fees as the town of Framingham may determine, and subject to such reasonable regulations and sewer rentals relative thereto as may be adopted and established by the town of Framingham.

Payment of expense.

Section 7. One third of the expense incurred as aforesaid shall be borne and paid by the town of Framingham, and the said town shall from time to time pay into the treasury of the commonwealth, within three months after notice from the treasurer of the commonwealth, such sums as may be necessary to reimburse the commonwealth for its share of the expense incurred as aforesaid, and the sum so paid by the town shall be applied by the treasurer toward the payment of the said expense.

Town of Framingham Beaver Dam Brook Loan, Act of 1913.

Section 8. The town of Framingham may appropriate money for the purpose of paying the amount to be paid by said town into the treasury of the commonwealth under the provisions of this act, and for that purpose the town is hereby authorized, from time to time, to borrow money beyond its statutory limit of indebtedness to an amount not exceeding twelve thousand dollars, and to issue notes or bonds therefor. Such notes or bonds shall bear on the face thereof the words, Town of Framingham Beaver Dam Brook Loan, Act of 1913, and also the words, Exempt from Taxation in Massachusetts, shall be payable by such annual payments beginning not more than one year after the date thereof as will extinguish each loan within twelve years from its date; and the amount of such annual payment of any loan in any year shall not be less than the amount of the principal of such loan payable in any subsequent year. Each authorized issue of notes or bonds shall constitute a separate loan. Said notes or bonds shall bear interest, payable semi-annually, at a rate not exceeding five per cent per annum, and shall be signed by the treasurer and countersigned by the selectmen of the town. The town may sell the said securities at public or private sale, upon such terms and conditions as it may deem expedient, but they shall not be sold for less than their par value.

Payment of loan.

SECTION 9. The town shall, at the time of authorizing the said loan, provide for the payment thereof in accordance with the provisions of the preceding section; and when a vote to that effect has been passed the amount required thereby shall, without further vote, be assessed by the assessors of the town annually thereafter, in the same manner in which other taxes are assessed, until the debt incurred by the loan is extinguished. The said town shall also raise annually by taxation a sum which will be sufficient to pay the interest as it accrues on the notes or bonds issued under authority of this act.

SECTION 10. This act shall take effect upon its passage.

Approved June 16, 1913.

Chap. 815 AN ACT RELATIVE TO THE FILING OF INTERROGATORIES IN CIVIL ACTIONS.

Be it enacted, etc., as follows:

Interrogatories.

SECTION 1. Any party, after the entry of an action at law or the filing of a bill in equity, may interrogate an adverse party for the discovery of facts and documents admissible in evidence at the trial of the case. The word "party" shall be deemed to include parties intervening or otherwise admitted after the beginning of the suit.

Word "party" defined.

Answers to be in writing, etc.

SECTION 2. The answers shall be in writing, under oath, and shall be signed by the party interrogated. The party interrogated shall, before making answer, make such inquiry of his agents, servants and attorneys as will enable him to make full and true answers to the interrogatories.

Filing, etc.

SECTION 3. Interrogatories shall be filed in the clerk's office or in the office of a justice who has no clerk or with a trial justice, and notice of such filing, with a copy of the interrogatories, shall be sent by the party interrogating to the party interrogated, or to his attorney of record. If, within ten days after such notice, or in a police, district, or municipal court within such lesser time as the court may by general or special order direct, the party interrogated does not answer the interrogatories, the court shall, upon motion, order the party interrogated to answer such of the interrogatories as it finds proper, within such time as it may fix; but no party interrogated shall be obliged to answer a question or produce a document which would tend to criminate him or to disclose his title to any property the title whereof is not material to an issue in the proceeding in the course of which he is interrogated, nor to disclose the names of witnesses, except that the court may compel the party interrogated to disclose the names of witnesses and their addresses if justice seems to require it, upon such terms and conditions as the court may deem expedient. A party shall not interrogate an adverse party more than once unless the court otherwise orders, except as to any new matters which have been disclosed by the answers to interrogatories previously filed.

Refusal to answer.

Section 4. If a party interrogated neglects or refuses to answer interrogatories, or fails to amend or expunge an answer or part of an answer as ordered, the court may make and enter such order, judgment or decree as justice requires.

Examination of corporate and municipal offices.

Section 5. If a corporation is a party, the adverse party may examine the president, treasurer, clerk or a director, manager or superintendent, or other officer thereof, as if he were a party. If a municipal corporation is a party, the mayor of a city or the chairman of the board of selectmen of a town may be examined as if he were a party, except that no city or town official shall be interrogated concerning matters of public record. If a minor or person under guardianship is a party, the adverse party may examine as if said party were not a minor or under guardianship: provided, that if the minor be not of such age as to appreciate an oath, or the person under guardianship be mentally incompetent to answer, the person appearing in the suit as the guardian, guardian ad litem or next friend of such party shall make answer.

— of minors, etc.

Proviso.

Costs.

Section 6. Such order may be made respecting costs, either in the action or cause or otherwise, as the court may direct by general rule or by a special order in each case.

Protection of immaterial matter.

Section 7. Nothing in this act shall be construed to affect the right of a party interrogated under the direction of the court to seal up or otherwise protect from examination such parts of any document, book, voucher, or other writing as contain matters not pertinent to the subject of the action, or to affect the power of the court to protect said right or any right of the party interrogated, by suitable order.

To apply to land and probate courts.

SECTION 8. The provisions of this act shall apply to proceedings in the land court, and to interrogatories filed in the probate court under the provisions of sections forty-one and forty-two of chapter one hundred and sixty-two of the Revised Laws.

Repeal.

SECTION 9. Sections fifty-seven to sixty-seven, both inclusive, of chapter one hundred and seventy-three of the Revised Laws, sections fifteen and sixteen of chapter one hundred and fifty-nine of the Revised Laws, chapters two hundred and six and two hundred and twenty-five of the acts of the year nineteen hundred and nine, chapter five hundred and ninety-three of the acts of the year nineteen hundred and eleven, chapter two hundred and seventy-six of the acts of the year nineteen hundred and twelve, and all acts and parts of acts inconsistent herewith, are hereby repealed. Approved June 16, 1913.

Chap. 816 AN ACT TO PROVIDE FOR THE APPOINTMENT OF TWO ADDITIONAL FIRE INSPECTORS FOR THE DETECTIVE DEPARTMENT OF THE DISTRICT POLICE.

Be it enacted, etc., as follows:

Appointment of additional fire inspectors in detective department of district police.

SECTION 1. The governor is hereby authorized to appoint two additional members of the district police, who shall be employed as fire inspectors in the detective department. Their terms of office, salaries, powers and duties shall be the same as those provided by law for the district police. The said appointments may be made without giving to veterans the preference required by sections twenty-one and twenty-two of chapter nineteen of the Revised Laws.

SECTION 2. This act shall take effect upon its passage. Approved June 16, 1913.

Chap. 817 AN ACT RELATIVE TO THE RETIREMENT SYSTEM FOR THE EMPLOYEES OF THE COUNTIES OF THE COMMONWEALTH.

Be it enacted, etc., as follows:

1911, 634, § 1, amended.

SECTION 1. Section one of chapter six hundred and thirty-four of the acts of the year nineteen hundred and eleven is hereby amended by striking out paragraph (c), and inserting in place thereof the following: — (c) The word "employees" means permanent and regular employees in the direct service of the county, whose only or principal employment is in such service, — and by striking out paragraph (f) and inserting in place thereof the following: — (f) The words "continuous service" mean uninterrupted employment, with these exceptions: a lay-off on account of illness or reduction of force; and a leave of absence, suspension or dismissal followed by reinstatement within one year. In the case of employees of the county who are now paid wholly by it, but who at any prior period were employees of the county within the meaning of paragraph (c) of this section and did not receive the whole or any part of their compensation from said county, service rendered by them during such prior period shall be considered as a part of the period of continuous service within the meaning of this act, — so as to read as follows: — Section 1. In this act, unless the context otherwise requires: —

Certain words and terms defined.

(a) The words "retirement system" mean the arrangements provided in this act for the payment of annuities and pensions.

(b) The word "annuities" means the payments for life derived from money contributed by the employees.

(c) The word "employees" means permanent and regular employees in the direct service of the county, whose only or principal employment is in such service.

(d) The word "pensions" means the payments for life derived from money contributed by the county.

(e) The words "regular interest" mean interest at three per cent per annum compounded semi-annually on the last days of December and June, and reckoned for full three and six months periods only.

(f) The words "continuous service" mean uninterrupted employment, with these exceptions: a lay-off on account of illness or reduction of force; and a leave of absence, suspension or dismissal followed by reinstatement within one year.

In the case of employees of the county who are now paid wholly by it, but who at any prior period were employees of the county within the meaning of paragraph (c) of this section and did not receive the whole or any part of their compensation from said county, service rendered by them during such prior period shall be considered as a part of the period of continuous service within the meaning of this act.

1911, 634 § 3, amended.

SECTION 2. Paragraph (2) of section three of said chapter six hundred and thirty-four is hereby amended by striking out the word "thirty", in the fifth line, and inserting in place thereof the word: — ninety, — so as to read as follows: —

Membership.

(2) All employees who enter the service of the county after the date when the retirement system is declared established by the issue of the certificate, as provided in section two, except persons who have already passed the age of fifty-five years, shall upon completing ninety days of service become thereby members of the association. Persons over fifty-five years of age who enter the service of the county after the establishment of the retirement system shall not be allowed to become members of the association, and no such employee shall remain in the service of the county after reaching the age of seventy years.

1911, 634, § 6, amended.

SECTION 3. Paragraph (2) C (b) of section six of said chapter six hundred and thirty-four is hereby amended by inserting after the word "retired", in the fifth line, the words: — and any member who completes thirty-five years of continuous service and then or thereafter retires or is retired, — and by inserting after the word "interest", in the fifteenth line, the words: — If any two members of the association are husband and wife, and one of the two retires or is retired the other shall have the right also to retire, and shall be paid a retiring allowance proportionate to the amount of his or her accumulated contributions to the date of such retirement, or, if such allowance should be less than the minimum allowance of two hundred dollars hereinafter provided for, shall be paid that sum annually. If the accumulated contributions of any employee retired under the provisions of this act exceed the amount required to provide an annuity equal to one fourth of the average wages or salary of such employee during the last ten years prior to his retirement, the excess above that amount shall be paid to such employee in a gross sum with the first monthly payment on the account of his retiring allowance, — so that said paragraph (2) C (b) as hereby amended will read as follows: — (b) Pensions based upon prior service. Any member of the association who reaches the age of sixty years, having been in the continuous service of the county for fifteen years or more immediately preceding, and then or thereafter retires or is retired, and any member who completes thirty-five years of continuous service and then or thereafter retires or is retired, shall receive in addition to the annuity and pension provided for by paragraphs (2) B and C (a) of this section an extra pension for life as large as the amount of the annuity to which he might have acquired a claim if the retirement system had been in operation at the time when he entered the service of the county, and if accordingly he had paid regular contributions from that date to the date of the establishment of the retirement association at the same rate as that first adopted by the board of retirement, and if such deductions had been accumulated with regular interest.

If any two members of the association are husband and wife, and one of the two retires or is retired the other shall have the right also to retire, and shall be paid a retiring allowance proportionate to the amount of his or her accumulated contributions to the date of such retirement, or, if such allowance should be less than the minimum allowance of two hundred dollars hereinafter provided for, shall be paid that sum annually.

If the accumulated contributions of any employee retired under the provisions of this act exceed the amount required to provide an annuity equal to one fourth of the average wages or salary of such employee during the last ten years prior to his retirement, the excess above that amount shall be paid to such employee in a gross sum with the first monthly payment on the account of his retiring allowance.

Any employee who had already reached the age of fifty-five years on the date when the retirement system was established, and also became a member of the association, may be retired under the provisions of the preceding paragraph without having completed the otherwise required service period of fifteen years. For the purpose of computing any pension payable for prior service, the board of retirement may estimate on the basis determined by them the wages received at any period for which they may deem it impracticable to consult the original records.

Any employee not a member of the association who had already reached the age of fifty-five years on the date when the retirement system was established may be retired at any time, and shall be paid a pension equivalent to the minimum payment hereinafter provided for.

Section 4. This act shall take effect upon its passage.

Approved June 16, 1913.

Chap. 818 AN ACT RELATIVE TO THE DISPLAYING OF CERTAIN FLAGS.

Be it enacted, etc., as follows:

Chap. 819 AN ACT TO PROVIDE FOR SUBMITTING TO THE VOTERS ON OFFICIAL BALLOTS QUESTIONS OF PUBLIC POLICY.

Be it enacted, etc., as follows:

Questions of public policy may be placed upon official ballots upon application, etc.

SECTION 1. On an application signed by twelve hundred voters in any senatorial district, or by two hundred voters in any representative district, asking for the submission to the voters of that senatorial or representative district of any question of instructions to the senator or representatives from that district, and stating the substance thereof, the secretary of the commonwealth shall determine if such question is one of public policy, and if he shall so determine shall draft it in such simple, unequivocal and adequate form as he shall deem best suited for presentation upon the ballot. Upon the fulfilment of the requirements of this act the secretary shall place such question on the official ballot to be used in that senatorial or representative district at the next state election.

Signing and certification of applications, etc.

SECTION 2. Signers of applications shall append to their signatures their residence, with street and number, if any, and shall be certified as registered voters by the proper registrars of voters, and in Boston by the election commissioners. All provisions of law relating to nomination papers shall, as far as they may be applicable, apply to such applications.

Time of filing, etc.

SECTION 3. Applications shall be filed with the secretary of the commonwealth not less than sixty days before the election at which the questions are to be submitted. Not more than two questions under this act shall be placed upon the ballot at one election, and they shall be submitted in the order in which the applications are filed. No question negatived and no question substantially the same shall be submitted again in less than three years.

Section 4. No vote under the provisions of this act shall be regarded as an instruction under article nineteen of the bill of rights of the constitution of the commonwealth unless the question submitted receives a majority of all the votes cast at that election. Not be considered as an instruction unless majority of all votes cast so determine.

Section 5. This act shall take effect upon its passage.

Approved June 16, 1913.

An Act to authorize the county of Essex to repair or reconstruct the Groveland bridge over the Merrimac river. Chap. 826

Be it enacted, etc., as follows:

Reconstruction, etc., of Groveland bridge.

Section 1. The county commissioners of the county of Essex, subject to the provisions of chapter ninety-six of the Revised Laws and acts in amendment thereof and in addition thereto, and of all other laws which may be applicable, are hereby authorized to repair or reconstruct that part of the bridge over the Merrimac river between the city of Haverhill and the town of Groveland, known as the Groveland bridge, which lies east of the draw of the bridge.

County of Essex, Groveland Bridge Loan, Act of 1913.

Section 2. For the purposes of this act, the county commissioners of the county of Essex are hereby authorized to issue from time to time bonds or notes of said county to an amount not exceeding fifty-five thousand dollars. Such bonds or notes shall bear on their face the words, County of Essex, Groveland Bridge Loan, Act of 1913, and shall be payable by such annual payments, beginning not more than one year after the date thereof, as will extinguish each loan within twenty years from its date. The amount of such annual payment of any loan in any year shall not be less than the amount of the principal of the loan payable in any subsequent year. Each authorized issue of bonds or notes shall constitute a separate loan. Said bonds or notes shall bear interest at a rate not exceeding four and one half per cent per annum, payable semi-annually; and shall be signed by the treasurer of the county and countersigned by a majority of the county commissioners. The county may sell the said securities at public or private sale, upon such terms and conditions as it may deem proper, but they shall not be sold for less than their par value, and the proceeds shall be used only for the purpose herein provided.

Payment of loan.

Section 3. The county commissioners, at the time of authorizing said loan or loans, shall provide for the payment thereof in accordance with section two of this act; and a sum sufficient to pay the interest as it accrues on the bonds or notes issued as aforesaid by the county, and to make such payments on the principal as may be required under the provisions of this act shall be levied as a part of the county tax of the county of Essex annually thereafter, in the same manner in which other taxes are levied, until the debt incurred by said loan or loans is extinguished.

Section 4. This act shall take effect upon its passage.

Approved June 16, 1913.

Chap. 827 An Act to authorize an exchange of land at the Massachusetts Agricultural College.

Be it enacted, etc., as follows:

Exchange of certain land at the Massachusetts Agricultural College.

Section 1. The trustees of the Massachusetts Agricultural College are hereby authorized to sell and convey a certain parcel of land containing about twelve acres and being a part of what is known as the Louisa Baker land, in exchange for a parcel of land containing about twenty-seven acres and being a part of what is known as the Owen farm, both tracts being situated in the town of Amherst and adjoining the land of the Massachusetts Agricultural College; but the said conveyance shall not be made unless approved by the majority of said trustees at a regular meeting, and by the governor and council.

Section 2. This act shall take effect upon its passage.

Approved June 16, 1913.

Chap. 828 An Act to authorize the city of Lowell to make certain payments to John W. Fox.

Be it enacted, etc., as follows:

City of Lowell may pay annuity to John W. Fox.

Section 1. The city of Lowell may annually, by vote of the municipal council, provide for the payment of a sum of money, not exceeding five hundred dollars in any year, to John W. Fox, formerly a member of the police department of said city, who was incapacitated for further service by injuries sustained in the active performance of his duty. Said sum shall be payable in equal monthly instalments, and shall be in addition to the pension already awarded to him by said city.

Section 2. This act shall take effect upon its passage.

Approved June 16, 1913.

Chap. 829 An Act to create boards of parole and an advisory board of pardons.

Be it enacted, etc., as follows:

Board of parole for the state prison and Section 1. The chairman of the board of prison commissioners, the deputy commissioner whose appointment is authorized by this act and three persons appointed by the governor, with the advice and consent of the council, shall constitute the board of parole for the state prison and the Massachusetts reformatory. The terms of office of the appointed members shall be so arranged and designated at the time of appointment that the term of one shall expire on the first Wednesday of July in each of the three years following the present year, and in each year thereafter the governor shall appoint one member for a term of three years from the first Wednesday of July in the year of his appointment. A vacancy in the appointive members of the board shall be filled in the same manner, for the unexpired term. Any member of the board appointed by the governor may be removed by the governor, with the advice and consent of the council. The deputy commissioner shall be the clerk of the board and shall keep the records of its proceedings.

Massachusetts reformatory, appointment, terms, etc.

Vacancy.

Clerk.

Section 2. The chairman of the board of prison commissioners and the two women members thereof shall constitute a board of parole for the reformatory for women. The clerk of the reformatory shall be the clerk of the board and keep the records of its proceedings.

Board of parole for reformatory for women.

Section 3. All the powers of the board of prison commissioners relating to the granting of permits to be at liberty from the state prison, the Massachusetts reformatory and the reformatory for women are hereby transferred to and vested in the respective boards of parole for said institutions. All provisions of law relative to the granting of permits to be at liberty by the prison commissioners so far as they are applicable, shall govern the granting of such permits under this act. The board of prison commissioners shall furnish to the boards of parole all information in its possession relating to any prisoner whose case is under consideration. No permit to be at liberty from the state prison, authorized by chapter four hundred and fifty-one of the acts of the year nineteen hundred and eleven, or by chapter one hundred and three of the acts of the year nineteen hundred and twelve, and no permit to be at liberty from the Massachusetts reformatory or the reformatory for women, shall be granted until the prisoner has been seen by the parole board of the institution in which he is held. When a board of parole has granted a permit to be at liberty to any prisoner, it shall notify the board of prison commissioners, which shall issue the permit as directed by the board of parole.

Powers and duties of boards.

Deputy prison commissioner, appointment, etc.

SECTION 4. The board of prison commissioners shall appoint a deputy commissioner, who shall receive a salary of twenty-five hundred dollars a year; shall hold office during the pleasure of the board and shall perform his duties under the direction of the chairman. The board shall require him to direct and supervise the work of the agents for the care, assistance and oversight of paroled or discharged prisoners, and he shall perform such other duties as it shall direct. It may delegate to him powers and duties relating to the visitation of county prisons and the inspection of their books and affairs.

Agents for aiding discharged prisoners, appointment, etc.

SECTION 5. The board of prison commissioners may appoint at an annual salary to be fixed by the board, not to exceed sixteen hundred dollars, such number of agents, in addition to those now authorized, as may be needed to secure employment for prisoners who are to be, or have been, released from the state prison, the Massachusetts reformatory and the reformatory for women, and to enable the board to carry out the laws relative to the identification of criminals and the parole of prisoners from the state prison. It shall be the duty of the board, through its agents, to exercise a careful supervision over all prisoners absent from said institutions upon parole, and it shall require from said agents reports regarding such prisoners as are not complying with the conditions upon which they were released. Every agent appointed by the board shall give his entire time, during business hours, to his duties. No additional agents shall be appointed under this section until the governor and council shall authorize the making of such appointments.

Advisory board of pardons, duties, etc.

SECTION 6. The board of parole for the state prison and the Massachusetts reformatory shall be an advisory board of pardons. It shall be the duty of said board to consider carefully and thoroughly the merits of all applications for pardon or commutation of sentence referred to it by the governor, and it shall make to him, in writing, without publicity, a report containing its conclusions and recommendations. No such report shall be made without the concurrence of a majority of its members. Before considering any application for pardon or commutation of sentence, if the conviction of the prisoner was had in the superior court said advisory board of pardons shall notify the district attorney, who shall report the facts of the case as they appeared at the trial, or if the conviction was upon a plea of guilty, the facts as he understands them; the names of all witnesses in the case, and his recommendation. If the petitioner is serving a sentence in the state prison for murder or for a felony, the attorney-general shall also be notified. If the conviction was in a municipal, police or district court the justice thereof shall make to said board a similar report and recommendation. The attorney-general, district attorney or justice, as the case may be, shall be notified of the hearing upon the application for pardon and they or their representatives may be present at such hearing, may examine the petitioner's witnesses, and may be heard. Said board shall not review the proceedings of the trial court, and shall not consider any questions regarding the correctness, regularity or legality of such proceedings, but shall confine itself solely to matters which properly bear upon the propriety of the extension of clemency to the applicant. Said board, from time to time, may make rules relative to the calling of meetings and to the proceedings thereat. Any member thereof may administer an oath or affirmation to any person offering to testify before it.

Compensation of members, etc.

Section 7. The ex officiis members of each board of parole shall receive such compensation as the governor and council, from time to time, shall fix for service rendered under this act. Appointed members shall receive the sum of fifteen dollars for each day of actual service so rendered. Members shall be reimbursed for actual expenses incurred in the performance of official duties.

Repeal.

Section 8. So much of section one of chapter two hundred and twenty-two of the Revised Laws, as authorizes the board of prison commissioners to delegate any of its powers and duties to the chairman of the board, is hereby repealed, and all powers and duties so delegated are hereby revested in the board.

Time of taking effect.

Section 9. This act shall take effect on the first day of July of the current year. Approved June 18, 1913.

An Act to provide for the construction of additions to the state house. Chap. 830

Be it enacted, etc., as follows:

State house building commission to construct additions to the state house.

Section 1. For the purpose of providing suitable and adequate accommodations for the legislative and executive departments of the state government and for the several boards, commissions and bureaus of the commonwealth whose offices are, or may be, situated in the city of Boston, and for any other necessary or convenient uses of the commonwealth in the transaction of its business, the state house building commission, hereby established, shall construct additions to the state house in accordance with the provisions of this act. The said commission shall consist of three members, one of whom shall be an experienced builder, and shall be appointed by the governor, with the advice and consent of the council. The general plan of the said additions shall be substantially in accordance with the report of the state house commission to the general court, made in accordance with the provisions of chapter one hundred and fifty of the resolves of the year nineteen hundred and twelve, said report being house document number 133 of the year nineteen hundred and thirteen.

Manner of construction.

Section 2. The exterior or surface material of the additions constructed in accordance herewith shall be of such material as the commission may determine: provided, however, that brick shall not be used unless the commission decides that it is desirable to restore the Bulfinch front to its original condition, in which case unpainted red brick may be used, and the Bulfinch front shall not be altered, except that it may be cleaned of paint or painted so as to harmonize with the extensions. There shall be a lateral wing on the west side of the present building and a lateral wing on the east side with forward projections, in accordance with the recommendations of the said report. The said commission shall cause to be removed all the buildings now standing on lots numbered 8, 10, 12 and 14 Mount Vernon street, in the city of Boston, now the property of the commonwealth.

Proviso.

Construction of approaches, passageways, etc.

Section 3. The commission may lay out by change of grade or otherwise, any part of such land, and also such parts of land in the state house park on the east as may be required for the purposes of this act. It may construct new approaches from any adjacent public streets and may build retaining walls and fences, and may do whatever else may be necessary to carry out the purposes of this act. There shall be constructed and shall always be maintained adequate passageways for foot passengers, from north to south, through the said east and west extensions.

Plans and specifications.

Section 4. The said commission may invite architects or architectural firms to submit competitive plans and specifications for constructing the said additions to the state house and for making the alterations provided for by this act and by the said report, and the commission may accept one of the said plans, or any part thereof, or may take such means as it may deem proper to secure other plans in case no one of the plans so submitted is satisfactory to the commission. No plan shall finally be selected until it is approved by the governor and council. The commission may employ a superintendent whose compensation shall be determined by the governor and council.

Contracts.

Section 5. The said commission is hereby authorized to make on behalf of the commonwealth all contracts for the construction of said building: provided, that all work on said building shall be done by express contract and that proposals for work or material exceeding two thousand dollars in value shall be advertised for in at least two daily papers published in the city of Boston, and one each in the cities of Worcester, Springfield, Fall River, Lowell and Lawrence. All contracts shall be approved by the governor and council. The work of removal of the old buildings and construction of the additions herein provided for shall begin as soon as is possible after the appointment of the commission hereby established.

Proviso.

Compensation.

Section 6. For the services which the state house building commission may render in carrying out the purposes of this act, each member of the commission shall receive such compensation as the governor and council may determine, to be paid out of the fund hereinafter provided for. No commissioner appointed under this act shall be, directly or indirectly, in any way interested in any contract made under this act, under penalty of removal from office by the governor and council, and of punishment as provided by section nine of chapter two hundred and ten of the Revised Laws.

Issue of bonds, etc.

Section 7. In order to defray the expenses which may be incurred in carrying out the provisions of this act, the treasurer and receiver general is hereby authorized to issue, in the name and behalf of the commonwealth, bonds or scrip to an amount not exceeding nine hundred thousand dollars. The said bonds or scrip shall be issued upon the serial payment plan from time to time as may be necessary, in such amounts and upon such terms, and shall be payable serially in such amounts and at such times, within a period not exceeding thirty years, as shall be determined by the treasurer and receiver general, with the approval of the governor and council, to be for the best interests of the commonwealth.

SECTION 8. This act shall take effect upon its passage.

Approved June 18, 1913.

Chap. 831

AN ACT TO REGULATE THE LABOR OF MINORS.

Be it enacted, etc., as follows:

1909, 514, § 56, amended.

SECTION 1. Section fifty-six of chapter five hundred and fourteen of the acts of the year nineteen hundred and nine, as amended by section fourteen of chapter seven hundred and seventy-nine of the acts of the year nineteen hundred and thirteen, is hereby further amended by striking out the said section and inserting in place thereof the following:

Employment of minors under fourteen.

— Section 56. No minor under fourteen years of age shall be employed or permitted to work in or about or in connection with any factory, workshop, manufacturing, mechanical or mercantile establishment, barber shop, bootblack stand or establishment, public stable, garage, brick or lumber yard, telephone exchange, telegraph or messenger office or in the construction or repair of buildings, or in any contract or wage-earning industry carried on in tenement or other houses. No minor under fourteen years of age shall be employed at work performed for wage or other compensation, to whomsoever payable, during the hours when the public schools are in session or shall be employed at work before half-past six o'clock in the morning or after six o'clock in the evening.

MINORS UNDER SIXTEEN.

Occupations in which employment of minors under sixteen is forbidden.

SECTION 2. No minor under sixteen years of age shall be employed or permitted to work in operating or assisting in operating any of the following machines: (1) circular or band saws, (2) wood shapers, (3) wood jointers, (4) planers, (5) picker machines or machines used in picking wool, cotton, hair or any other material, (6) paperlace machines, (7) leather burnishing machines, (8) job or cylinder printing presses operated by power other than foot power, (9) stamping machines used in sheet metal and tinware or in paper or leather manufacturing or in washer and nut factories, (10) metal or paper cutting machines, (11) corner staying machines in paper box factories, (12) corrugating rolls such as are used in corrugated paper or in roofing, or washboard factories, (13) steam boilers, (14) dough brakes or cracker machinery of any description, (15) wire or iron straightening or drawing machinery, (16) rolling mill machinery, (17) power punches or shears, (18) washing or grinding or mixing machinery, (19) calender rolls in paper and rubber manufacturing or other heavy rolls driven by power, (20) laundering machinery, (21) upon or in connection with any dangerous electrical machinery or appliances.

Same subject.

Section 3. No minor under sixteen years of age shall be employed or permitted to work in any capacity in adjusting, or assisting in adjusting any hazardous belt to any machinery, or in oiling or cleaning hazardous machinery, or in proximity to any hazardous or unguarded belts, machinery or gearing while such machinery or gearing is in motion; nor on scaffolding; nor in heavy work in the building trades; nor in stripping, assorting, manufacturing or packing tobacco; nor in any tunnel; nor in a public bowling alley; nor in a pool or billiard room.

Duties of state board of labor and industries.

Section 4. The state board of labor and industries may from time to time, after a hearing or hearings duly held, determine whether or not any particular trade, process of manufacture or occupation in which the employment of minors under the age of sixteen years is not already forbidden by law, or any particular method of carrying on such trade, process of manufacture or occupation, is sufficiently dangerous or is sufficiently injurious to the health or morals of minors under sixteen years of age to justify their exclusion therefrom. No minor under sixteen years of age shall be employed or permitted to work in any trade, process or occupation thus determined to be dangerous or injurious to such minors.

MINORS UNDER EIGHTEEN.

Occupations in which the employment of minors under eighteen is forbidden.

Section 5. No minor under eighteen years of age shall be employed or permitted to work: (1) in or about blast furnaces; (2) in the operation or management of hoisting machines; (3) in oiling or cleaning hazardous machinery in motion; (4) in the operation or use of any polishing or buffing wheel; (5) at switch tending; (6) at gate tending; (7) at track repairing; (8) as a brakeman, fireman, engineer, motorman or conductor upon a railroad or railway; (9) as a fireman or engineer upon any boat or vessel; (10) in operating motor vehicles of any description; (11) in or about establishments wherein gunpowder, nitro-glycerine, dynamite or other high or dangerous explosive is manufactured or compounded; (12) in the manufacture of white or yellow phosphorus or phosphorus matches; (13) in any distillery, brewery, or any other establishment where malt or alcoholic liquors are manufactured, packed, wrapped or bottled; (14) in that part of any hotel, theatre, concert hall, place of amusement or other establishment where intoxicating liquors are sold. The provisions of this section shall not prohibit the employment of minors in drug stores.

Not to prohibit employment in drug stores.

Duties of state board of labor and industries.

SECTION 6. The state board of labor and industries may from time to time, after a hearing or hearings duly held, determine whether or not any particular trade, process of manufacture or occupation, in which the employment of minors under the age of eighteen years is not already forbidden by law, or any particular method of carrying on such trade, process of manufacture or occupation, is sufficiently dangerous or is sufficiently injurious to the health or morals of minors under eighteen years of age to justify their exclusion therefrom. No minor under eighteen years of age shall be employed or permitted to work in any trade, process or occupation thus determined to be dangerous or injurious to such minors.

PERSONS UNDER TWENTY-ONE.

Employment of persons under twenty-one.

SECTION 7. No person under twenty-one years of age shall be employed or permitted to work in, about or in connection with any saloon or bar room where alcoholic liquors are sold. No such person in any employment shall knowingly be taken, sent or caused or permitted to be sent, to any disorderly house or house of prostitution or assignation or other immoral place of resort or amusement.

Hours of labor of minors under sixteen.

SECTION 8. No minor under sixteen years of age shall be employed or permitted to work in, about or in connection with any establishment or occupation named in section one for more than six days in any one week, nor more than forty-eight hours in any one week, nor more than eight hours in any one day, nor before the hour of half-past six o'clock in the morning, nor after the hour of six o'clock in the evening of any day.

Hours of labor of certain minors, etc.

SECTION 9. No boy under the age of eighteen years and no girl under the age of twenty-one years shall be employed or permitted to work in, about or in connection with any establishment or occupation named in section one for more than six days in any one week, nor more than fifty-four hours in any one week, nor more than ten hours in any one day, nor before the hour of five o'clock in the morning, nor after the hour of ten o'clock in the evening, nor in the manufacture of textile goods after the hour of six o'clock in the evening.

Employment of persons under twenty-one as messengers, etc.

Section 10. Except for the delivery of messages directly connected with the business of conducting or publishing a newspaper, to a newspaper office or directly between newspaper offices, no person under the age of twenty-one years shall be employed or permitted to work as messenger for a telegraph, telephone or messenger company in the distribution, transmission or delivery of goods or messages before five o'clock in the morning or after ten o'clock in the evening of any day.

STREET TRADES.

Employment of minors in certain street trades.

Section 11. No boy under twelve years of age and no girl under eighteen years of age shall, in any city having a population of over fifty thousand inhabitants, sell, expose or offer for sale any newspapers, magazines, periodicals, or any other articles of merchandise of any description, or exercise the trade of bootblack or scavenger, or any other trade, in any street or public place.

Requirements for employment.

Section 12. No boy under sixteen years of age shall, in any city having a population of over fifty thousand inhabitants, engage in any of the trades or occupations mentioned in the preceding section, unless he complies with all of the provisions of this act and with all of the legal requirements concerning school attendance, and unless a badge as hereinafter provided shall have been issued to him by the officer authorized to issue employment certificates in the city or town where such boy resides.

Issue of badges, etc.

Section 13. Such badge shall not be issued until the officer issuing the same shall have received, examined, approved and filed evidence that such boy is twelve years of age or upwards, which shall consist of the proof of age required for the issuing of an employment certificate. Such officer may refuse to issue such badge to any boy who, in his opinion after due investigation, is found to be physically or mentally incompetent or unable to do such work in addition to the regular school attendance required by law.

Badges not transferable, etc.

Section 14. The badge herein required shall be worn, conspicuously exposed at all times, by such boy while so working. No boy to whom the said badge has been issued shall transfer the same to any other boy. He shall exhibit the same upon demand at any time to any officer charged with the duty of enforcing the provisions of this act which relate to street trades. The school committee of any city may make further regulations and requirements for the issuance of the badge required by this act.

Hours of employment.

SECTION 15. No boy under sixteen years of age shall engage in any of the trades or occupations mentioned in section eleven in any street or public place after nine o'clock in the evening or before five o'clock in the morning of any day, nor, unless provided with an employment certificate, during the hours when the public schools in the city where such boy resides, or the schools which such boy attends, are in session.

ENFORCEMENT.

Hours of employment to be posted, etc.

SECTION 16. Except as provided in section seventeen, every person employing any minor in any establishment mentioned in this act shall post and keep posted in a conspicuous place in the room where such minor is employed or permitted to work a printed notice stating the number of hours such minor is required or permitted to work on each day of the week, with the total for the week, the hours of commencing and stopping work and the hours when the time allowed for meals begins and ends for each day of the week.

The employment of any minor at any time other than as stated in said printed notice shall be deemed a violation of the provisions of this section. The terms of such notice for any week or part thereof shall not be changed after the beginning of labor on the first day of the week, without the written consent of the commissioner of labor.

List of minor employees, etc., to be kept on file, etc.

SECTION 17. Every employer who employs any minor subject to the provisions of this act and who is engaged in furnishing public service shall post in a conspicuous place in every room in which such persons are employed a printed notice stating separately the hours of employment for each shift or tour of duty and the time allowed for meals.

A list by name of minor employees, stating in which shift each is employed, shall be kept on file at each place of employment for inspection by employees and officers charged with the enforcement of the law.

Certain provisions not to apply in cases of extraordinary emergency, etc.

The provisions of this act, so far as they relate to hours of employment of minors of eighteen years or over, shall not apply to such employers in cases of extraordinary emergency or extraordinary public requirement, but in such cases no employment contrary to the provisions of this act shall be considered as legalized until a written report of the day and hour of its occurrence and its duration is sent to the commissioner of labor.

Printed forms of laws to be furnished, etc.

Section 18. The state board of labor and industries, after approval by the attorney-general, shall furnish the printed forms of the laws and notices required by this act, upon application, to all persons required to post the same.

Duties of inspectors, etc.

The inspectors of the state board of labor and industries shall visit and inspect the places of employment mentioned in this act and shall ascertain whether any minors are employed therein contrary to the provisions of this act, and shall prosecute violations thereof. They shall report to the school authorities any cases of children under sixteen years of age discharged for illegal employment. Any person shall have the right to prosecute violations of this act.

Enforcement of provisions of act.

Section 19. The provisions of this act relating to minors engaged in the occupations mentioned in section eleven shall be enforced by the truant officers and school attendance officers, who are hereby vested with full police power for the purpose, and by police officers. The school committee of each city may appoint or designate one or more special truant or attendance officers to have supervision over minors engaged in such occupations and over the enforcement of the said provisions.

PENALTIES.

Penalties for unlawful employment of minor.

Section 20. Any person who, whether by himself or for others, or through agents, servants or foremen employs, induces or permits any minor to work contrary to any of the provisions of this act, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall, for a first offence, be punished by a fine of not less than ten dollars nor more than fifty dollars, or by imprisonment for not more than thirty days, or by both such fine and imprisonment; and for a second or subsequent offence, by a fine of not less than fifty dollars nor more than two hundred dollars or by imprisonment for not more than sixty days, or by both such fine and imprisonment.

The employment of any minor in violation of any provision of this act after the person employing such minor has been notified thereof in writing by any authorized inspector, school attendance officer or truant officer, shall constitute a separate offence for every day during which the employment continues.

Penalty for hindering inspectors, etc.

Section 21. Any person who hinders or delays any authorized inspector, school attendance officer, or truant officer in the performance of his duties, or who refuses to admit to or locks out any such inspector or officer from any place which such inspector or officer is authorized to inspect, or who refuses to give to such inspector or officer such information as may be required for the proper enforcement of this act, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall be punished by a fine of not less than twenty-five dollars nor more than two hundred dollars, or by imprisonment for not more than sixty days, or by both such fine and imprisonment.

Penalty for furnishing articles for unlawful sale by minors, etc.

Section 22. Any person who furnishes or sells to any minor any article of any description with the knowledge that the minor intends to sell such articles in violation of any provision of this act, or after having received written notice to this effect from any officer charged with the enforcement of any provision of this act, or any person who knowingly procures or encourages any minor to violate any of the provisions of this act, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall be punished by a fine of not less than ten dollars nor more than two hundred dollars, or by imprisonment for not more than sixty days, or by both such fine and imprisonment.

Penalties upon parents, guardians, etc.

Section 23. Any parent, guardian or custodian having a minor under his control, who compels or permits such minor to work in violation of any provision of this act, or who knowingly certifies to any materially false statement for the purpose of obtaining the illegal employment of such minor, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and, upon conviction, shall for the first offence be punished by a fine of not less than two dollars nor more than ten dollars, or by imprisonment for not more than five days, or by both such fine and imprisonment; and for a second or subsequent offence he shall be punished by a fine of not less than five dollars nor more than twenty-five dollars, or by imprisonment for not more than ten days, or by both such fine and imprisonment.

Penalty upon certain officers.

Section 24. Any inspector, school attendance officer, truant officer, superintendent of schools or other person authorized to issue the badges required by this act, or any other person charged with the enforcement of any of the provisions of this act, who knowingly violates or fails to comply with any of the provisions of this act shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and, upon conviction, shall be punished by a fine of not less than ten dollars nor more than two hundred dollars or by imprisonment for not more than sixty days, or by both such fine and imprisonment.

Penalty for unlawfully engaging in certain street trades, etc.

Section 25. Any minor who shall engage in any of the trades or occupations mentioned in section eleven in violation of any provision of this act shall, for the first offence, be warned by the officers whose duty it is to enforce the provisions of this act relating to street trades, and the parent, guardian or custodian shall be notified. In case of a second violation, such minor may be arrested and dealt with as a delinquent child, or, if over seventeen years of age, shall be punished by a fine not exceeding fifteen dollars upon the recommendation of the principal or chief executive officer of the school which such minor is attending, or upon the complaint of any school attendance officer, truant officer, police officer or probation officer, the badge of any minor who violates any provision of this act, or who becomes delinquent or fails to comply with all legal requirements concerning school attendance, may be revoked by the officer issuing the same for a period of three months and the badge taken from such minor. The refusal of any minor to surrender such badge, or the working at any of the occupations mentioned in section eleven by any minor after notice of the revocation of such badge, shall be deemed a violation of this act.

Courts having jurisdiction.

Section 26. Police, district and municipal courts and trial justices and the Boston juvenile court as to minors under seventeen years of age shall have jurisdiction of offences arising under this act. A summons or warrant issued by any such court or justice may be served at the direction of the court or magistrate by an inspector of the state board of labor and industries or by a truant officer or school attendance officer, or by any officer qualified to serve criminal process.

MISCELLANEOUS.

Act construed.

Section 27. Nothing in this act shall be construed to apply to the juvenile reformatories, other than the Massachusetts reformatory, or to prevent minors of any age from receiving manual training or industrial education in or in connection with any school in this commonwealth which has duly been approved by the school committee or by the board of education.

Repeal.

SECTION 28. All acts and parts of acts inconsistent with the provisions of this act are hereby repealed.

Time of taking effect.

SECTION 29. This act shall take effect on the first day of September, nineteen hundred and thirteen.

Approved June 19, 1913.

Chap. 832 AN ACT TO ESTABLISH A RETIREMENT SYSTEM FOR PUBLIC SCHOOL TEACHERS.

Be it enacted, etc., as follows:

CONSTRUCTION.

Certain words and terms defined.

SECTION 1. The following words and phrases as used in this act, unless a different meaning is plainly required by the context, shall have the following meanings: —

(1) "Retirement system" shall mean the arrangement provided in this act for payment of annuities and pensions to teachers.

(2) "Annuities" shall mean payments for life derived from contributions from teachers.

(3) "Pensions" shall mean payments for life derived from contributions from the commonwealth.

(4) "Teacher" shall mean any teacher, principal, supervisor or superintendent employed by a school committee, or board of trustees, in a public day school within the commonwealth.

(5) "Public school" shall mean any day school conducted within this commonwealth under the order and superintendence of a duly elected school committee and also any day school conducted under the provisions of chapter four hundred and seventy-one of the acts of the year nineteen hundred and eleven.

(6) "Regular interest" shall mean interest at three per cent per annum, compounded annually on the last day of December of each year.

(7) "Retirement board" shall mean the teachers' retirement board, as provided in section four of this act.

(8) "Retirement association" shall mean the teachers' retirement association, as provided in section three of this act.

(9) "Expense fund" shall mean the fund provided for in paragraph numbered one in section five of this act.

(10) "Annuity fund" shall mean the fund provided for in paragraph numbered two in section five of this act.

(11) "Pension fund" shall mean the fund provided for in paragraph numbered three in section five of this act.

(12) "School year" shall mean the twelve months from the first day of July of any year to the thirtieth day of June next succeeding.

(13) "Assessments" shall mean the annual payments to the annuity fund by members of the association.

ESTABLISHMENT OF A TEACHERS' RETIREMENT SYSTEM.

Section 2. A teachers' retirement system shall be established on the first day of July, nineteen hundred and fourteen. Teachers' retirement system established.

TEACHERS' RETIREMENT ASSOCIATION.

Section 3. A teachers' retirement association shall be organized among the teachers in the public schools as follows: — Organization.

(1) All teachers, except those specified in paragraph (3) of this section, who enter the service of the public schools for the first time on or after July first, nineteen hundred and fourteen, shall become thereby members of the association.

(2) All teachers, except those specified in paragraph (3) of this section, who shall have entered the service of the public schools before June thirtieth, nineteen hundred and fourteen, may at any time between July first, nineteen hundred and fourteen, and September thirtieth, nineteen hundred and fourteen, upon application in writing to the commissioner of education, become members of the retirement association. Any teacher failing to do so may thereafter become a member of the retirement board by paying an amount equal to the total assessments, together with regular interest thereon, that he would have paid if he had joined the retirement association on September thirtieth, nineteen hundred and fourteen.

(3) Teachers in the service of the public schools of the city of Boston shall not be included as members of the retirement association.

STATE TEACHERS' RETIREMENT BOARD.

Retirement board.

SECTION 4. (1) The management of the retirement system is hereby vested in the teachers' retirement board, consisting of seven members: the insurance commissioner for the commonwealth, the bank commissioner for the commonwealth, the commissioner of education for the commonwealth, three members of the retirement association and one other person. Upon organization of the retirement association the members thereof shall elect from among their number in a manner to be approved by the insurance commissioner, the bank commissioner and the commissioner of education, three persons to serve upon the retirement board, one member to serve for one year, one for two years and one for three years, and thereafter the members of the retirement association shall elect annually from among their number in a manner to be approved by the retirement board one person to serve upon the retirement board for the term of three years. The seventh member of the retirement board shall be elected annually by the other six to serve for the term of one year. On a vacancy occurring on the board, a successor of such person whose place has become vacant shall be chosen in the same manner as his predecessor to serve until the next annual election. Until the organization of the retirement association and the election of three representatives therefrom, the insurance commissioner, the bank commissioner and the commissioner of education shall be empowered to perform the duties of the retirement board.

(2) The members of the retirement board shall serve without compensation, but they shall be reimbursed from the expense fund of the retirement association for any expenditures or loss of salary or wages which they may incur through serving on the board. All claims for reimbursement on this account shall be subject to the approval of the governor and council.

(3) The retirement board shall have power to make by-laws and regulations not inconsistent with the provisions of this act; and to employ a secretary who shall give a bond in such amount as the board shall approve, and clerical and other assistance as may be necessary. The salaries shall be fixed by the board, with the approval of the governor and council.

(4) The retirement board shall provide for the payment of retirement allowances and such other expenditures as are required by the provisions of this act.

(5) The retirement board shall adopt for the retirement system one or more mortality tables, and shall determine what rates of interest shall be established in connection with such tables, and may later modify such tables or prescribe other tables to represent more accurately the expense of the retirement system or may change such rates of interest, and may determine the application of the changes made.

(6) The retirement board shall perform such other functions as are required for the execution of the provisions of this act.

CREATION OF FUNDS.

Creation of funds.

Section 5. The funds of the retirement system shall consist of an expense fund, an annuity fund and a pension fund.

Expense fund.

(1) The expense fund shall consist of such amounts as shall be appropriated by the general court from year to year on estimates submitted by the retirement board to defray the expense of the administration of this act, exclusive of the payment of retirement allowances.

Annuity fund.

(2) The annuity fund shall consist of assessments paid by members of the retirement association, and interest derived from investments of the annuity fund. Each member of the retirement association shall pay into the annuity fund, by deduction from his salary in the manner provided in section nine, paragraph five, of this act, such assessments upon his salary as may be determined by the retirement board. The rate of assessment shall be established by the retirement board on the first day of July of each year after a prior notice of at least three months, and shall at any given time be uniform for all members of the retirement association, and shall not be less than three per cent nor more than seven per cent of the member's salary: provided, however, that when the total sum of assessments on the salary of any member at the rate established by the retirement board would amount to more than one hundred dollars or less than thirty-five dollars for any school year, such member shall in lieu of assessments at the regular rate be assessed one hundred dollars a year or thirty-five dollars a year as the case may be, payable in equal instalments to be assessed for the number of months during which the schools of the community in which such member is employed are commonly in session. Any member of the retirement association who shall for thirty years have paid regular assessments to the annuity fund as provided herein, shall be exempt from further assessments; but such member may thereafter, if he so elects, continue to pay his assessments to the fund. No member so electing shall pay further assessments after the total sum of assessments paid by him shall at any time have amounted, with regular interest, to a sum sufficient to purchase an annuity of five hundred dollars at age sixty; and interest thereafter accruing shall be paid to the member at the time of his retirement.

Rate of assessment.

Proviso.

Pension fund.

(3) The pension fund shall consist of such amounts as shall be appropriated by the general court from time to time on estimates submitted by the retirement board for the purpose of paying the pensions provided for in this act.

PAYMENT OF RETIREMENT ALLOWANCES.

Age at which members may be retired.

SECTION 6. (1) Any member of the retirement association may retire from service in the public schools on attaining the age of sixty years, or at any time thereafter, if incapable of rendering satisfactory service as a teacher, may, with the approval of the retirement board, be retired by the employing school committee.

(2) Any member of the retirement association, on attaining the age of seventy years, shall be retired from service in the public schools.

Payment of retirement allowances.

(3) A member of the retirement association after his retirement under the provisions of paragraphs numbered (1) or (2) of this section, shall be entitled to receive from the annuity fund, as he shall elect at the time of his retirement, on the basis of tables adopted by the retirement board: — (a) an annuity, payable in quarterly payments, to which the sum of his assessments under section five, paragraph (2), with regular interest thereon, shall entitle him; or, (b) an annuity of less amount, as determined by the retirement board for the annuitants electing such option, payable in quarterly payments, with the provision that if the annuitant dies before receiving payments equal to the sum of his assessments under section five, paragraph (2), with regular interest, at the time of his retirement, the difference between the total amount of said payments and the amount of his contributions with regular interest shall be paid to his legal representatives.

(4) Any member of the retirement association receiving payments of an annuity as provided in paragraph numbered (3) of this section shall, if not rendered ineligible therefor by the provisions of section twelve of this act, receive with each quarterly payment of his annuity an equal amount to be paid from the pension fund as directed by the retirement board.

(5) Any teacher who shall have become a member of the retirement association under the provisions of paragraph numbered (2) of section three, and who shall have served fifteen years or more in the public schools of the commonwealth, not less than five of which shall immediately precede retirement, shall, on retiring as provided in paragraphs (1) and (2) of this section, be entitled to receive a retirement allowance as follows: — (a) such annuity and pension as may be due under the provisions of paragraphs numbered (3) and (4) of this section; (b) an additional pension to such an amount that the sum of this additional pension and the pension provided in paragraph (4) of this section shall equal the pension to which he would have been entitled under the provisions of this act if he had paid thirty assessments on his average yearly wage for the fifteen years preceding his retirement and at the rate in effect at the time of his retirement: provided, (1) that if his term of service in the commonwealth shall have been over thirty years the thirty assessments shall be reckoned as having begun at the time of his entering service and as drawing regular interest until the time of retirement; and further provided, (2) that if the sum of such additional pension together with the annuity and pension provided for by paragraphs numbered (3) and (4) of this section is less than three hundred dollars in any one year, an additional sum sufficient to make an annual retirement allowance of three hundred dollars shall be paid from the pension fund. Provisos.

(6) If at any time it is impossible or impracticable to consult the original records as to wages received by a member during any period, the retirement board shall determine the pension to be paid under paragraph numbered (5) (b) of this section in accordance with the evidence they may be able to obtain.

WITHDRAWAL AND REINSTATEMENT.

Withdrawal and reinstatement.

SECTION 7. (1) Any member of the retirement association withdrawing from service in the public schools before becoming eligible to retirement shall be entitled to receive from the annuity fund all amounts contributed as assessments, together with regular interest thereon, in the manner hereinafter provided.

(2) If such withdrawal shall take place before ten annual assessments have been paid, the total amount to which such member is entitled as determined by the retirement board under the provisions of this act shall be paid to him in four annual instalments.

(3) If such withdrawal shall take place after ten annual assessments have been paid the amount so refunded shall be in the form of such annuity for life based on the contributions of such member, together with regular interest thereon, as may be determined by the retirement board according to its annuity tables, or in four annual instalments, as such member may elect.

(4) If a member of the association withdrawing and receiving payments in accordance with paragraphs numbered (2) and (3) of this section, shall die before the amount of such payments equals the amount of his contributions to the annuity fund with regular interest, the difference between the amount of such payments and the amount of his contributions with regular interest shall be paid to his legal representatives.

(5) Any member of the retirement association who shall have withdrawn from service in the public schools shall, on being re-employed in the public schools, be reinstated in the retirement association in accordance with such plans for reinstatement as the retirement board shall adopt.

(6) If a member of the retirement association shall die before retirement, the full amount of his contributions to the annuity fund with regular interest to the day of his death shall be paid to his legal representatives.

TAXATION, ATTACHMENTS AND ASSIGNMENTS.

Exemption from taxation, attachments, etc.

SECTION 8. That portion of the salary or wages of a member deducted or to be deducted under this act, the right of a member to an annuity or pension, and all his rights in the funds of the retirement system shall be exempt from taxation, and from the operation of any laws relating to bankruptcy or insolvency, and shall not be attached or taken upon execution or other process of any court. No assignment of any right in, or to, said funds shall be valid. The funds of the retirement system, so far as invested in personal property, shall be exempt from taxation.

DUTIES OF THE SCHOOL COMMITTEE.

Duties of school committees.

Section 9. (1) The school committee of each town and city in the commonwealth shall, before employing in any teaching position any person to whom this act may apply, notify such person of his duties and obligations under this act as a condition of his employment.

(2) On or before October first of each year the school committee of each town and city in the commonwealth shall certify to the retirement board the names of all teachers to whom this act shall apply.

(3) The school committee of each town and city in the commonwealth shall, on the first day of each calendar month, notify the retirement board of the employment of new teachers, removals, withdrawals, changes in salary of teachers, that shall have occurred during the month preceding.

(4) Under the direction of the retirement board the school committee of each town or city in the commonwealth shall furnish such other information as the board may require relevant to the discharge of the duties of the board.

(5) The school committee of each town and city in the commonwealth shall, as directed by the retirement board, deduct from the amount of the salary due each teacher employed in the public schools of such city or town such amounts as are due as contributions to the annuity fund as prescribed in this act, shall send to the treasurer of said town or city a statement as voucher for such deductions, and shall send a duplicate statement to the secretary of the retirement board.

(6) The school committee of each town and city in the commonwealth shall keep such records as the retirement board may require.

DUTIES OF BOARDS OF TRUSTEES.

Duties of boards of trustees.

Section 10. In administering this act for the benefit of teachers in schools conducted in accordance with chapter four hundred and seventy-one of the acts of the year nineteen hundred and eleven, the boards of trustees of said schools are hereby authorized and required to perform all the duties prescribed for school committees under this act.

CUSTODY AND INVESTMENT OF FUNDS.

Custody and investment of funds.

Section 11. (1) The treasurer of each town or city in the commonwealth on receipt from the school committee or board of trustees of the voucher for deductions from the teachers' salaries provided for in section nine shall transmit, monthly, the amounts specified in such voucher to the secretary of the retirement board.

(2) The secretary of the retirement board shall monthly pay to the treasurer of the commonwealth all sums collected by him under the provisions of paragraph (1).

(3) All funds of the retirement system shall be in custody and charge of the treasurer of the commonwealth and the treasurer shall invest such funds as are not required for current disbursements in accordance with the laws of the commonwealth governing the investment of sinking funds. He may, whenever he sells securities, deliver the securities so sold upon receiving the proceeds thereof, and may execute any or all documents necessary to transfer the title thereto.

(4) The treasurer of the commonwealth shall make such payments to members of the retirement association from the annuity fund and pension fund as the retirement board shall order to be paid in accordance with sections six and seven of this act.

(5) On, or before, the third Wednesday in January, the treasurer of the commonwealth shall file with the insurance commissioner for the commonwealth, and with the secretary of the retirement board, a sworn statement exhibiting the financial condition of the retirement system on the thirty-first day of the preceding December and its financial transactions for the year ending at such date. Such statement shall be in the form prescribed by the retirement board and approved by the insurance commissioner.

MEMBERSHIP IN OTHER RETIREMENT ASSOCIATIONS.

Membership in other retirement associations.

Section 12. (1) No person required to become a member of the association under the provisions of paragraph (1) of section three of this act shall be entitled to participate in the benefits of any other teachers' retirement system, supported in whole or in part by funds raised by taxation, or to a pension under the provisions of chapter four hundred and ninety-eight of the acts of the year nineteen hundred and eight, or chapter five hundred and eighty-nine of the acts of the year nineteen hundred and eight, as amended by chapter six hundred and seventeen of the acts of the year nineteen hundred and ten.

(2) No member of the retirement association shall be eligible to receive any pension as described in section six of this act, who is at the time in receipt of a pension paid from funds raised in whole or in part from taxation under the provisions of chapter four hundred and ninety-eight of the acts of the year nineteen hundred and eight, or chapter five hundred and eighty-nine of the acts of the year nineteen hundred and eight, as amended by chapter six hundred and seventeen of the acts of the year nineteen hundred and ten, or of any other act providing pensions for teachers, providing that this paragraph shall not be construed as applying to the Boston Teachers' Retirement Fund Association.

REIMBURSEMENT OF CITIES AND TOWNS.

Reimbursement of cities and towns.

Section 13. (1) Whenever, after the first day of July, nineteen hundred and fourteen, a town or city retires a teacher who is not eligible to a pension under the provisions of section six, paragraph (4) of this act, and pays to such teacher a pension in accordance with chapter four hundred and ninety-eight of the acts of the year nineteen hundred and eight, or chapter five hundred and eighty-nine of the acts of the year nineteen hundred and eight, as amended by chapter six hundred and seventeen of the acts of the year nineteen hundred and ten, and the school committee of said town or city certifies under oath to the retirement board to the amount of said pension, said town or city shall be reimbursed therefor annually by the commonwealth: provided, that no such reimbursement shall be in excess of the amount, as determined by the retirement board, to which said teacher would have been entitled as a pension, had he become a member of the retirement association under the provisions of section three, paragraph (2) of this act.

Proviso.

(2) On or before the first Wednesday of January of each year, the retirement board shall present to the general court, a statement of the amount expended previous to the preceding first day of July by cities and towns in the payment of pensions under the provisions of the preceding paragraph, for which such cities and towns should receive reimbursement. On the basis of such a statement, the general court may make an appropriation for the reimbursement of such cities and towns up to such first day of July.

JURISDICTION OF COURT.

Enforcement of act.

SECTION 14. The superior court shall have jurisdiction in equity upon petition of the insurance commissioner or of any interested party to compel the observance and restrain the violation of this act, and of the rules and regulations established by the retirement board hereunder.

REFERENDUM AND REPEAL.

Question of repeal to be submitted to voters upon petition.

SECTION 15. Upon the petition of not less than five per cent of the legal voters of any city or town that has adopted chapter four hundred and ninety-eight of the acts of the year nineteen hundred and eight, this question shall be submitted, in case of a city, to the voters of such city at the next city election, and, in case of a town, to the voters of such town at the next annual town meeting, and the vote shall be in answer to the question to be placed upon the ballot: "Shall an act passed by the general court in the year nineteen hundred and eight, entitled, 'An Act to authorize cities and towns to establish pension funds for teachers in the public schools', be repealed?" and if a majority of the voters voting thereon at such election or meeting shall vote in the affirmative said act shall be repealed in such city or town.

Repeal.

SECTION 16. So much of chapter four hundred and ninety-eight of the acts of the year nineteen hundred and eight as authorizes its submission to the voters of a city or town for acceptance after the passage of this act is hereby repealed.

SECTION 17. This act shall take effect upon its passage.

Approved June 19, 1913.

Chap. 833 AN ACT RELATIVE TO THE HOURS OF LABOR OF EMPLOYEES OF STREET RAILWAY COMPANIES.

Be it enacted, etc., as follows:

1912, 533, amended.

SECTION 1. Chapter five hundred and thirty-three of the acts of the year nineteen hundred and twelve is hereby amended by striking out sections two and three and inserting in place thereof the following: — Section 2. A day's work for all conductors, guards, drivers, motormen, brakemen and gatemen who are employed by or on behalf of a street railway or elevated railway company shall not exceed nine hours, and shall be so arranged by the employer that it shall be performed within eleven consecutive hours. No officer or agent of any such company shall require from said employees more than nine hours' work for a day's labor. Threat of loss of employment or threat to obstruct or prevent the obtaining of employment by the employees, or threat to refrain from employing any employee in the future shall be considered coercion and "requiring", within the meaning of this section. But nothing herein shall prevent an employee of the character mentioned in this act, if he so desires, from working more hours than those prescribed in the act for extra compensation.

Hours of labor of employees of street railway companies.

Section 2. A company which violates any provision of this act shall forfeit for each offence not less than one hundred dollars nor more than five hundred dollars.

Penalty.

Section 3. This act shall not affect any written contract existing at the date of its passage.

Existing contracts not affected.

(This bill, returned by the governor to the house of representatives, the branch in which it originated, with his objections thereto, was passed by the house of representatives June 18, and, in concurrence, by the senate June 20, the objections of the governor notwithstanding, in the manner prescribed by the constitution; and thereby has the "force of a law".)

An Act to establish the salaries of certain members of the district police. Chap. 834

Be it enacted, etc., as follows:

Section 1. The annual salary of the captain of the district police shall be two thousand dollars. The annual salary of the chief fire inspector shall be two thousand dollars. The annual salary of all other members, except such as are designated as chief, deputy chief, or otherwise as being in charge of departments, shall be graded by length of service as follows: First year, fifteen hundred dollars; second year, fifteen hundred and fifty dollars; third year, sixteen hundred dollars; fourth year, sixteen hundred and fifty dollars; fifth year, seventeen hundred dollars; and thereafter, seventeen hundred and fifty dollars.

Salaries of certain members of the district police established.

Repeal.

SECTION 2. All acts and parts of acts inconsistent herewith are hereby repealed.

SECTION 3. This act shall take effect upon its passage.

Chap. 835 AN ACT TO CODIFY THE LAWS RELATIVE TO PRIMARIES, CAUCUSES AND ELECTIONS.

Be it enacted, etc., as follows:

PART I.

GENERAL PROVISIONS.

Certain terms defined.

SECTION 1. Terms used in this act and in statutes relative to primaries, caucuses or elections shall be construed as follows, unless other meaning is clearly apparent from language or context, or unless such construction is inconsistent with the manifest intent of the legislature:

"Aldermen" shall include the boards or officials having the powers of aldermen in a city which does not have a board of aldermen.

"Assessors" shall mean the assessors of taxes of a city or town.

"Caucus" shall apply to any public meeting of the voters of a precinct, ward, or town, held under the provisions of this act relating to caucuses.

"Caucus officers" shall apply to chairmen, wardens, secretaries, clerks and inspectors, and, when on duty, to additional officers appointed or elected, or elected to fill a vacancy, and taking part in the conduct of caucuses.

"City election" shall apply to any election held in a city for the choice of a city officer by the voters whether for a full term or for the filling of a vacancy.

"City officer" shall apply to any person to be chosen by the voters at a city election.

"Convention" shall apply only to a meeting of delegates duly chosen in primaries or caucuses, representing two or more subdivisions of the district for which the convention is held.

"Election" shall apply to the taking of a vote upon a proposed amendment to the constitution; upon the question of granting licenses for the sale of intoxicating liquors; and upon any other question by law submitted to the voters. Certain terms defined.

"Election officer" shall apply to wardens, clerks, inspectors and ballot clerks, and to their deputies when on duty, and also to selectmen, town clerks, moderators and tellers when taking part in the conduct of elections.

"Elective office" shall apply to any office to be filled by the voters at any state, city or town election.

"Municipal party" shall apply to a party other than a political party which at the preceding city or town election polled for mayor or a selectman at least three per cent of the entire vote cast in the city or town for that office or, in a city, which files with the city clerk, at least sixty days before the annual municipal election, a petition to be allowed to place nominations of such party on the official ballot, which petition is signed in person by a number of registered voters of the city equal to at least three per cent of the entire vote polled in the city for mayor at the preceding election, and so far as municipal elections are concerned, such a party shall also be deemed a political party within the meaning of this act; but the term "municipal party" shall be used only with reference to primaries or caucuses for the nomination of city or town officers.

"Official ballot" shall mean a ballot prepared for any primary, caucus or election by public authority and at public expense.

"Political committee", under the provisions of this act relative to corrupt practices, shall apply to every committee or combination of three or more persons who shall aid or promote the success or defeat of a political party or principle in a public election or shall aid or take part in the nomination, election or defeat of a candidate for public office. The term "political committee" otherwise shall apply only to a committee elected in pursuance of this act.

"Political convention" shall apply only to a convention called and held in pursuance of this act.

"Political party" shall apply to a party which at the preceding annual state election polled for governor at least three per cent of the entire vote cast in the commonwealth for that office, but when a candidate for governor receives two or more nominations for that office, "political party" shall for the purpose of determining the status of the parties making such nominations be defined as a political party which at the preceding primary held for the nomination of candidates for state offices nominated such candidate and polled for nomination for governor at least three per cent of the entire vote cast in said primary in the commonwealth for nomination for that office.

Certain terms defined.

"Polling place" shall apply to a room or place provided by a city or town for a primary, caucus or election.

"Presiding officer" shall apply to the warden or chairman at a caucus, to the warden, chairman of the selectmen, moderator, moderator pro tempore or town clerk in charge of a polling place at a primary or election, or to a justice of the peace acting as moderator at a town meeting; or, in the absence of any such officer, to the deputy warden or the clerk or senior inspector or senior selectman present who shall have charge of a polling place.

"Primary" shall apply to a joint meeting of political or municipal parties held under the provisions of this act relating to primaries.

"Primary officers" shall apply to all election officers when taking part in the conduct of primaries.

"Registrars" shall mean the board of registrars of voters of a city or town or the board of election commissioners of the city of Boston, when applicable.

"State election" shall apply to any election held for the choice of a national, state, district or county officer by the voters, whether for a full term, or for the filling of a vacancy.

"State officer" shall apply to any person to be chosen at a state election.

"Town election" shall apply to any meeting held for the election of town officers by the voters, whether for a full term or for the filling of a vacancy.

"Town elections or meetings at which official ballots are used" shall be construed to mean town elections or meetings in towns to which section four hundred and thirty-two applies.

"Town officer" shall apply to any person to be chosen at a town meeting.

"Two leading political parties" shall apply to the political parties which elect the highest and next highest number of members of the general court at the preceding annual state election.

"Voter" shall mean a registered male voter.

Section 2. In all elections of civil officers by the people, the person receiving the highest number of votes for an office shall be deemed and declared to be elected to such office; and if two or more persons are to be elected to the same office, the several persons, to the number to be chosen to such office, receiving the highest number of votes, shall be deemed and declared to be elected; but persons receiving the same number of votes shall not be deemed to be elected if thereby a greater number would be elected than are by law to be chosen. Results of elections, how determined.

Section 3. All elections in cities which by charter or statute are to be held on a Monday, shall be held on the Tuesday next succeeding such Monday. Elections in cities to be on Tuesdays.

Section 4. In computing the period of time prescribed in any statute relating to primaries, caucuses or elections, Sundays and holidays shall generally be included; but when the last day of such period falls on a Sunday or on a holiday, the succeeding day shall be considered the final day of such period; and when the first day of such period falls on a Sunday or on a holiday, the day preceding shall be considered the first day of the period. Whenever the day of the week designated for a primary, caucus or election falls upon a holiday, said primary, caucus or election shall be held on the day succeeding said holiday. Time, how computed in election laws.

Section 5. No person entitled to vote at an election shall, upon the day of any such election, be employed in any manufacturing, mechanical or mercantile establishment during the period of two hours after the opening of the polls in the voting precinct, ward or town in which he is entitled to vote, if he shall make application for leave of absence during such period. Time to be allowed for voting of employees.

Section 6. No common victualler having a license of the first, second or third class for the sale of intoxicating liquors and no person, other than a wholesale druggist, having a license therefor of the fourth or fifth class shall sell, give away or deliver on the licensed premises any such liquors on the day on which a state, city or annual town election is held in the city or town in which such premises are situated; and no innkeeper having a license for the sale of intoxicating liquors shall, on the day of any such election, sell, give away or deliver in his inn any such liquors to other than persons who have resorted to his inn for food or lodging; but the provisions of this section shall not Sale, etc., of intoxicating liquors on election days.

apply, in case of an election held in a city on a day other than that of the annual city election therein, to wards in which no election is held.

Posting of lists, notices, etc.

Section 7. All lists, notices and copies of laws relating to primaries or elections, required by law to be posted, shall be posted at the places in which the voting lists are required by law to be posted, or as near as may be thereto.

Election commissioners in Boston, powers and duties of.

Section 8. All the powers and duties relating to primaries or elections by law vested in and imposed upon the mayor and aldermen or either of them, the city clerk or the board of registrars of voters in cities, excepting the power and duty of giving notice of elections, and fixing the days and hours of holding the same, shall, in the city of Boston, be vested in and performed by the board of election commissioners of said city, who shall be subject to all penalties prescribed for failure to perform the said duties.

Ballot boxes, etc., regulations as to use.

Section 9. The board of aldermen of a city, in Boston the election commissioners, or the selectmen of a town may make regulations not inconsistent with the provisions of this act relative to the use of ballot boxes and seals, counting and other apparatus, the receiving of ballots and the counting and returning of votes.

Registration, etc., to be deemed regular in criminal prosecution.

Section 10. If, in a criminal prosecution for the violation of any law relating to the assessment, qualification or registration of voters, or to voting lists or ballots or matters pertaining thereto, the defendant relies upon the invalidity, informality or irregularity of such assessment, qualification or registration, or of such voting lists or ballots, or matters pertaining thereto, he shall prove such invalidity, irregularity or informality; and until such proof, the presumption shall be that such assessment, qualification or registration, or such voting lists or ballots or matters pertaining thereto, are valid, formal and regular, and in accordance with law; but the validity, regularity or formality of such assessment, qualification or registration of voters, or of such voting lists or ballots, or matters pertaining thereto, may also be proved in any other legal manner.

Primary, caucus or election to be deemed regular in criminal prosecution.

Section 11. If, in a criminal prosecution for the violation of any law relating to primaries, caucuses or elections or matters pertaining thereto, the defendant relies upon the invalidity, irregularity or informality of any primary, caucus or election, or upon the failure or neglect of any officer or person to do any act in relation to any primary, caucus or election or matters pertaining thereto, he shall prove such invalidity, irregularity, informality, failure or neglect; and until such proof, the presumption shall be that such primary, caucus or election or matters pertaining thereto were valid, regular and formal and that such officer or person acted as prescribed by law. The testimony of the clerk of the city or town, or in Boston the election commissioners, wherein it is alleged that such election was held, or of the presiding officer, secretary or clerk of such primary or caucus, that such primary, caucus or election was actually held, shall be prima facie evidence that the same was regularly and duly held; but the validity, regularity or formality of such primary, caucus or election or matters pertaining thereto may also be proved in any other legal manner.

QUALIFICATIONS OF VOTERS.

Qualifications of male voters.

Section 12. Every male citizen of twenty-one years of age or upwards, not being a pauper or person under guardianship, who is able to read the constitution of the commonwealth in the English language and to write his name, and who has resided within the commonwealth one year and within the city or town in which he claims a right to vote, six calendar months last preceding a state, city or town election, may have his name entered upon the list of voters in such city or town, and shall have the right to vote therein in any such election or in any meeting held for the transaction of town affairs upon complying with the requirements hereinafter set forth; and, except as above provided, no male person shall have his name entered upon the list of voters or have the right to vote, except that no person who is prevented from reading or writing as aforesaid by a physical disability, or who had the right to vote on the first day of May in the year eighteen hundred and fifty-seven, shall, if otherwise qualified, be deprived of the right to vote by reason of not being able so to read or write; and no person who, having served in the army or navy of the United States in the time of war, has been honorably discharged from such service, if otherwise qualified to vote, shall be disqualified therefor on account of receiving or having received aid from any city or town; and further, no person, otherwise qualified to vote for national or state officers shall, by reason of a change of residence within the commonwealth, be disqualified from voting for such officers in the city or town from which he has removed his residence until the expiration of six calendar months from the time of such removal.

Certain persons not to be disqualified.

Qualifications of female voters.

Section 13. Every female citizen having the qualifications of a male voter required by the preceding section may have her name entered upon the list of voters for school committee, and shall have the right to vote for members of the school committee upon complying with the requirements hereinafter set forth.

Place of registration and voting.

Section 14. A person qualified to vote in a city or town divided into wards or voting precincts shall be registered and be entitled to vote in the ward or voting precinct in which he resided on the first day of April preceding the election, or, if he became an inhabitant of such city or town after such first day of April, in the ward or voting precinct in which he first became a resident.

ASSESSMENT OF POLL TAXES AND LISTS OF PERSONS ASSESSED.

Assessors to make lists of male persons liable to a poll tax.

Section 15. The assessors, assistant assessors, or one or more of them, shall annually, in April or May, visit every building in their respective cities and towns and, after diligent inquiry, shall make true lists containing, as nearly as they can ascertain, the name, age, occupation and residence, on the first day of April in the current year, and the residence on the first day of April in the preceding year, of every male person twenty years of age or upwards, residing in their respective cities and towns, liable to be assessed for a poll tax; and, except in Boston, shall inquire at the residences of the women voters whose names are contained in the list transmitted to them by the registrars under the provisions of section forty-four whether such women voters are resident thereat, and shall thereupon make true lists of the women voters found by them.

To make lists of women voters.

Inmates of Soldiers' Home may be assessed and vote in Chelsea.

Any inmate of the Soldiers' Home in the city of Chelsea shall have the same right as any other resident of that city to be assessed and to vote therein.

Assessors to correct errors and supply omissions.

The assessors shall, upon the personal application of an assessed person for the correction of any error in their original lists, and whenever informed of any such error, make due investigation, and, upon proof thereof, correct the same on their books. When informed of the omission of the name of a person who is averred to have lived in the city or town on the first day of April in the current year, and to have been assessed there in the preceding year, they shall make due investigation, and, upon proof thereof, supply the omission on their books, and, except in Boston, give immediate notice thereof to the registrars of voters. They shall cause all applications, certificates and affidavits received by them under this section to be preserved for two years.

Applications, etc., to be preserved for two years, etc.

Section 16. The assessors, except in Boston, shall from time to time, and before the fifteenth day of June in each year, transmit to the registrars of voters the lists made as provided in the preceding section, or certified copies thereof, and shall promptly transmit to the registrars and to the collector of taxes notice of every addition to and correction in the lists made by them. Every assessor, assistant assessor and collector of taxes shall furnish all information in his possession necessary to aid the registrars in the performance of their duties.

Assessors, except in Boston, to transmit to registrars and collectors, lists, etc.

Section 17. The assessors of cities, except in Boston, shall, on or before the fifteenth day of June in each year, and the assessors of towns having over five thousand inhabitants according to the latest census, state or national, shall, on or before the first day of July in each year, prepare street lists containing the names of all persons assessed by them for poll taxes for the current year. Such lists for cities and for towns divided into voting precincts shall be arranged by voting precincts. They shall print such lists in pamphlet form, shall deliver to the registrars as many copies thereof as they may require, and shall hold the remaining copies for public distribution. In all other towns they shall, on or before the first day of July in each year, cause lists of all persons assessed therein for poll taxes to be prepared and conspicuously posted in two or more public places in every such town. In towns not divided into voting precincts such lists may be arranged alphabetically, according to the names of the persons on the list, or by streets.

Assessors of cities, except Boston, and certain towns to prepare street lists, etc.

Lists of assessed polls to be posted in certain towns.

Section 18. Except in Boston, the assessors shall name or designate in such street lists all buildings used as residences, in their order on the street where they are located, by giving the number or other definite description of each building so that it can be readily identified, and shall place opposite to or under each number or other description of a building the name, age and occupation of every person residing therein on the first day of April of the current year and assessed for a poll tax, and his residence on the first day of April of the preceding year.

Form and contents of street lists.

Assessment of persons not previously assessed.

Section 19. If a male person resident in a city or town, except Boston, on the first day of April was not assessed for a poll tax, he shall, in order to establish his right to assessment, present to the assessors before the close of registration a statement under oath that he was on said day a resident of such city or town and liable to pay a poll tax therein, and a list under oath of his polls and estate and shall also produce before the assessors two witnesses, who shall testify, under oath, that they are voters of the ward or town in which such person desires to be registered and that the statement of the applicant is true.

Certain persons desiring to be registered to present a statement to assessors, etc.

A male person who becomes a resident of a city or town, except Boston, after the first day of April and desires to be registered as a voter shall present to the assessors a statement under oath that he has been a resident of such city or town for six months immediately preceding the election at which he claims the right to vote, and shall produce before the assessors two witnesses, who shall testify under oath that they are voters of the ward or town in which such person desires to be registered and that the statement of the applicant is true. If the assessors are satisfied that such statement is true, they shall, in the first case, assess such applicant for his polls and estate and give him a certificate of assessment, and in the second, give him a certificate that he has been a resident in such city or town the six months preceding such election, and forthwith notify the registrars of voters of the city or town, if in this commonwealth, where such person resided on the first of April, that they have given such certificate.

Records to be kept.

Section 20. The assessors, except in Boston, shall enter the name and residence of each person thus assessed or certified in a book provided for that purpose, and opposite to each name, the names, occupations and residences of the persons who have testified as above provided.

Copies of sections prescribing penalties to be posted.

In every place where voters are registered, the registrars, in Boston the election commissioners, and in every place where oaths are administered as required by this act the assessors, shall post in a conspicuous place a copy of sections four hundred and sixty and four hundred and sixty-two printed on white paper with black ink, in type not less than one quarter of an inch wide.

Sessions of assessors.

Section 21. The assessors shall hold such day and such evening sessions as shall be necessary to carry out the provisions of the two preceding sections.

Section 22. All assessments made in accordance with section nineteen shall be subject to the provisions of section seventy-four of chapter twelve of the Revised Laws and shall be entered in the tax list of the collector of taxes and be collected by him according to law.

Assessments to be subject to R. L. 12, § 74.

Section 23. The city or town clerk or registrar of deaths in each city or town shall, on the first day of every month, and also two days before every election, transmit to the registrars of voters a list of the names of all residents of such city or town of twenty-one years of age or upwards who died in the preceding month or since the date of the list previously transmitted, with a statement of the ward, street and number therein, if any, where such person resided at his death. The prison commissioners of Massachusetts, the penal institutions commissioner of Boston, the pauper institutions trustees of Boston, and the insane hospital trustees of Boston shall, ten days before every state election in Boston, transmit to the election commissioners of Boston the names of all male persons of twenty-one years of age or upwards who had a last known residence in Boston, and also ten days before every city election in that city, the names of all male and female persons of said age or upwards who had such residence and who, at said respective dates, are inmates of the institutions under their charge, respectively, except those whose terms of confinement expire before the date of such election. Such commissioners and trustees shall make diligent inquiry as to the age and residence of inmates of such institutions, and shall, in the case of those coming within the provisions of this section, transmit to the election commissioners the names and ages of such persons and their residences by street and number, wherever it is possible to do so. The election commissioners shall thereupon make a memorandum in red ink opposite the names of such of said persons as appear upon the voting lists, stating the institutions in which such persons are then confined, and copies of the voting lists containing such memoranda shall forthwith be sent by them to the election officers.

Names, etc., of certain persons to be sent to registrars or election commissioners.

REGISTRARS OF VOTERS.

Section 24. In every city, except Boston, which, by vote of the city council, approved by the mayor, accepts the provisions of this section, or which has accepted the corresponding provisions of earlier laws, or which is now subject to similar provisions of law, there shall be a board of registrars of voters consisting of four persons who shall be appointed by the mayor with the approval of the board of aldermen. When a board of registrars is first appointed after the acceptance of the provisions aforesaid, two registrars shall be appointed in February or March next succeeding such acceptance for terms respectively of three and four years, beginning with the first day of April next ensuing.

Registrars in certain cities, appointment, term of office, etc.

City clerk to cease to be a member, etc.

The city clerk of such city shall cease to be a member of the board of registrars on such first day of April, but the remaining two members of the existing board of registrars of such city whose terms do not then expire shall continue to hold office for their respective terms of one and two years. In every year succeeding such first appointments, the mayor shall, in February or March, subject to the approval of the board of aldermen, appoint one person to be a registrar of voters for the term of four years, beginning with the first day of April next ensuing. The board of registrars so constituted shall annually in April before transacting any other business, elect one of its members as clerk, who shall perform all the duties required by law of a city clerk when acting as clerk of the board of registrars.

Clerk to be elected.

Registrars in certain cities and towns, appointment, term of office, etc.

Section 25. In every city except Boston which has not accepted the provisions of the preceding section or of corresponding provisions of earlier laws, and is not now subject to similar provisions of law, and in every town having three hundred voters, as provided in the following section, there shall be a board of registrars of voters consisting of the city or town clerk and three other persons who shall, in a city, be appointed by the mayor, with the approval of the aldermen, and in a town, by a writing signed by the selectmen and filed with the town clerk. When a board of registrars is first appointed, the registrars shall be appointed in February or March for terms respectively of one, two and three years, beginning with the first day of April next ensuing. In February or March in every year succeeding the original appointment, one registrar shall be appointed for the term of three years, beginning with the first day of April next ensuing.

Registrars in small towns.

Section 26. In every town having less than three hundred voters registered therein for the annual state election, the selectmen and the town clerk shall constitute a board of registrars of voters; but when three hundred voters shall be so registered, a board of registrars shall, in the succeeding year be appointed, as provided in the preceding section, and shall continue to perform the duties of registration therein until, for three successive years, the number of voters shall be less than three hundred, whereupon, on the first day of April following the annual state election in such third year, such board shall cease to exist and thereafter the selectmen and town clerk shall constitute a board of registrars of voters.

Registrars, political representation.

Section 27. In the original and in each succeeding appointment and in the filling of vacancies, registrars of voters shall be so appointed that the members of the board shall, as equally as may be, represent the two leading political parties at the preceding annual state election, and in no case shall an appointment be so made as to cause a board to consist of more than two members who, including the city or town clerk, are of the same political party.

Equal representation to be preserved.

Section 28. If, upon written complaint to the mayor or to the selectmen, it shall appear, after notice and hearing, that the city or town clerk, when a member of the board of registrars, and two registrars are of the same political party, the mayor or selectmen, as the case may be, shall remove from office the one of such two registrars having the shorter term. If, upon like proceedings, it shall appear, after notice and hearing, that a registrar of voters, other than the city or town clerk, has ceased to act with the political party which he was appointed to represent, the mayor or selectmen, as the case may be, shall remove him from office.

Temporary vacancies.

Section 29. If a member of the board of registrars shall be disabled by illness or other cause from performing the duties of his office, or shall, at the time of any meeting of said board, be absent from the city or town, the mayor or selectmen may, upon the request in writing of a majority of the remaining members of the board, appoint in writing some person to fill such temporary vacancy, who shall be of the same political party as the member whose position he is appointed to fill. Such temporary registrar shall perform the duties and be subject to the requirements and penalties provided by law for a registrar of voters.

Registrars, oath of office, compensation, etc.

Section 30. The registrars and assistant registrars herein provided for shall, before entering upon their official duties, each take and subscribe an oath faithfully to perform the same. They shall receive such compensation for their services as the city council or selectmen may determine; but such compensation shall not be regulated by the number of names registered by them, and a reduction of compensation shall apply only to registrars appointed thereafter. The city council or selectmen shall provide office room for the registrars, and such aid as they may need. The city or town clerk, when a member of the board of registrars, shall act as clerk thereof, shall keep a full and accurate record of its proceedings and shall cause such notices as the registrars may require to be properly served or posted.

Office room, etc., to be provided.

Registrars, term of office.

Section 31. Each registrar shall, unless sooner removed, hold his office for the term for which he is appointed and until his successor is appointed and qualified.

Assistant registrars in cities, except Boston, appointment, etc.

Section 32. A city council, except in the city of Boston, may authorize the registrars to appoint assistant registrars for the term of one year, beginning with the first day of October, unless sooner removed by the registrars, and they shall, as nearly as may be, equally represent the different political parties.

Powers and duties, etc.

Section 33. The registrars in a city authorizing the appointment of assistant registrars may cause the duties devolving upon a single registrar to be performed by one or two assistant registrars, and they may designate two assistant registrars, so far as practicable of different political parties, for the sessions required by law to be held outside of their principal office. The registrars shall make suitable regulations for the government of the assistant registrars, whose doings shall be subject to their revision and acceptance. Assistant registrars shall be subject to the same obligations and penalties as registrars. Registrars may remove an assistant registrar, and may fill any vacancy in the number of assistant registrars for the remainder of the term.

Registrars to make regulations, etc.

Registrars, etc., not to hold other office.

Section 34. No person shall be appointed a registrar or assistant registrar who is not a voter of the city or town for which he is appointed, who holds an office by election or appointment under the government of the United States or of the commonwealth, except as a justice of the peace, notary public, or an officer of the state militia, or who holds an office in the city or town for which he is appointed either by election or by direct appointment of the mayor or of the selectmen. The acceptance by a registrar or assistant registrar of an office which he is prohibited from holding shall vacate his office as registrar or assistant registrar.

REGISTRATION OF VOTERS.

Rooms for registration.

Section 35. Every city and town shall provide the registrars with suitable rooms in which to hold their official sessions.

Sessions of registrars.

Section 36. The registrars shall hold such day and such evening sessions as the town by a by-law or the city by an ordinance shall prescribe, and such other sessions as they deem necessary.

Sessions before primaries.

They shall hold at least one session at some suitable and convenient place in every city or town on or before the Saturday last preceding a primary, except a primary preceding a special election, to give an opportunity to qualified voters to register.

Sessions in cities.

In cities, they shall hold a continuous session from twelve o'clock noon until ten o'clock in the evening on the twentieth day preceding the annual state election, and a like continuous session on the twentieth day preceding the annual city election.

Sessions in towns.

In towns, they shall hold a continuous session from twelve o'clock noon until ten o'clock in the evening on the Saturday last but one preceding the annual state election, and a like continuous session on the Saturday last but one preceding the annual town meeting. In towns divided into voting precincts they shall, not more than twenty days before the annual state election and also not more than twenty days before the annual town meeting, but in each case on or before the last day fixed for registration, hold at least one session at some suitable place within the limits of each voting precinct. In towns not divided into voting precincts, they shall, not more than twenty days before the annual state election and also not more than twenty days before the annual town meeting, but in each case on or before the last day fixed for registration, hold sessions in one or more suitable places. If, in any such town ten or more voters residing in or near a village or locality distant two or more miles from the usual place of registration shall, not less than eighteen days before the annual state election or the annual town meeting, file a petition with the town clerk stating that in such village or locality there are at least ten citizens who are entitled and desire to be registered, the registrars shall hold a session at some suitable place in such village or locality before the last day fixed for registration. The time and place of registration shall be the same for male and female applicants.

Sessions to be held in certain villages or localities upon petition.

When registration shall cease.

Section 37. In every city, registration shall cease at ten o'clock in the evening on the twentieth day preceding the annual state election, and at ten o'clock in the evening on the twentieth day preceding the annual city election. In every town, registration shall cease at ten o'clock in the evening on the Saturday last but one preceding the annual state election, and at ten o'clock in the evening on the Saturday last but one preceding the annual town meeting.

Registration for special elections.

Section 38. The registrars shall, in some suitable place, hold a continuous session from twelve o'clock noon until ten o'clock in the evening, on the fourth day, or in Boston on the seventh day, preceding a special election. Registration shall cease at ten o'clock in the evening of the day on which such session is held.

Registration when final day falls on Sunday or a holiday.

Section 39. If the final day for registration of voters falls on Sunday or on a holiday, the day preceding such Sunday or holiday shall be the final day for such registration.

Any registrar may examine applicants, etc.

Section 40. Any registrar may, at a place appointed for registration, on the days and during the hours designated for the purpose, receive applications for registration and examine applicants and witnesses under oath; but all doings of one registrar shall be subject to the revision and acceptance of the board.

Not to enter names on registers after close of registration, except, etc.

Section 41. The registrars shall not, after ten o'clock in the evening of a day on which registration is to cease, register any person as a voter until after the next election, but they may enter or correct upon the registers the names of persons whose qualifications as voters have been examined between the preceding thirtieth day of April and the close of registration, and except in Boston they shall compare all notices of omitted assessments transmitted to them by the assessors under the provisions of section fifteen, with the annual register of voters for the previous year, and if it appears to their satisfaction that any of said omitted assessments is that of a person entitled to vote in such previous year they may before the close of registration enter such name on the current annual register. They shall, in every case, require the vote by virtue of which such entry or correction is made to be attested by their clerk.

Notices of omitted assessments to be compared, etc.

Notices of sessions for registration, etc.

Section 42. They shall post or publish notices stating the places and hours for holding all sessions, the final sessions preceding any election, and that after ten o'clock in the evening of the last day fixed for registration they will not, until after the next election, add any name to the registers except the names of voters examined as to their qualifications between the preceding thirtieth day of April and the close of registration.

Records to be kept in general register.

Section 43. They shall keep in general registers, records of all persons, male and female, registered as qualified to vote in the city or town. They shall enter therein the name of every such voter written in full, or instead thereof the surname and first Christian name or that name by which he is generally known, written in full, and the initial of every other name which he may have, and also his age, place of birth and residence on the preceding first day of April or at the time of becoming an inhabitant of the city or town after said day, the date of his registration and his residence at such date, his occupation and the place thereof, the name and location of the court which has issued to him letters of naturalization and the date thereof, if he is a naturalized citizen, and any other particulars necessary fully to identify him.

Blank books to be furnished.

The general registers shall have uniform headings in substantially the following form, and blank books suitable for the purpose shall be provided by the secretary of the commonwealth, at cost, to registrars applying for them.

Form.

When Registered.	Name.	Signature of Applicant.	Residence April 1, or Subsequent Date.	Age.	Place of Birth.	Occupation.	Place of Occupation.	Minutes of Naturalization, Court Issuing Letters and Date of Naturalization.	Residence at Date of Registration.	Remarks.

Annual register, entries, arrangement, etc.

Section 44. The registrars shall, after the first day of April, prepare an annual register containing the names of all qualified voters in such city or town for the current year, beginning with such first day of April. Such names shall be arranged in alphabetical order, and, opposite to the name of each voter, his residence on the preceding first day of April or on any subsequent day when he became an inhabitant of the city or town. The registrars shall enter in the annual register every name contained in the lists of persons assessed for a poll tax for the current year, as transmitted to them by the assessors, giving, as the residence of each person on the first day of April, the place at which he was assessed a poll tax; and likewise the name and residence, as aforesaid, of every woman voter whose name is contained in the list of women voters transmitted to them, as provided in section sixteen: provided, that in every case they are able to identify the name so transmitted to them as that of a man or woman whose name was borne on the voting list of such city or town at the last preceding election or town meeting. They shall make all inquiries and investigations necessary to identify such person, and they shall not enter in the annual register the name of a person objected to by any registrar until such person has been duly notified and given an opportunity to be heard by them. They shall forthwith enter in the annual register the name of every person whose qualifications as a voter have been determined by them in the current year and whose name has accordingly been entered in the general register. They shall, on or before the first Monday of August in each year, send notice in writing by mail to each male voter of the preceding year whose name has not been entered in the annual register of the current year that his name has not been so entered. They shall annually, before the first day of April, transmit to the assessors a list of the women whose names are contained upon the register of voters, with their residences, as they appear on the register of the preceding year.

Proviso.

Registrars to make inquiries, investigations, etc.

To send notice to male voters whose names have not been entered in annual register.

To transmit to assessors lists of women voters, etc.

Section 45. Every person, male or female, whose name has not been entered in the annual register in accordance with the preceding section, or section forty-one must, in order to be registered as a voter, apply in person for registration and prove that he is qualified to register.

Registration, personal application necessary, in certain cases.

Section 46. Every male applicant for registration, except in Boston, whose name has not been transmitted to the registrars as provided in section sixteen shall present a tax bill or notice from the collector of taxes, or a certificate from the assessors showing that he was assessed as a resident of the city or town on the preceding first day of April, or a certificate that he became a resident therein at least six months preceding the election at which he claims the right to vote, and the same shall be prima facie evidence of his residence. In Boston every such applicant whose name has not been transmitted to the election commissioners as provided by law shall present a certificate from the listing board as provided by law, and the same shall be prima facie evidence of his residence.

Male applicant to present tax bill or certificate, etc.

Applicants for registration to be examined under oath, etc.

Section 47. The registrars shall examine under oath an applicant for registration relative to his qualifications as a voter, and shall, unless he is prevented by physical disability, or unless he had the right to vote on the first day of May in the year eighteen hundred and fifty-seven, require him to write his name in the general register and to read in such manner as to show that he is neither prompted nor reciting from memory. Registrars shall be provided by the secretary of the commonwealth with a copy of the constitution of the commonwealth printed on uniform pasteboard slips, each containing five lines of said constitution printed in double small pica type. The registrars shall place said slips in the box provided by the secretary of the commonwealth, which shall be so constructed as to conceal them from view. Each applicant shall be required to draw one of said slips from the box and read aloud the five lines printed thereon, in full view and hearing of the registrars. Each slip shall be returned to the box immediately after the test is finished, and the contents of the box shall be shaken up by a registrar before another drawing is made. No person failing to read the constitution as printed on the slip thus drawn shall be registered as a voter. The registrars shall keep said slips in said box at all times. The secretary of the commonwealth shall upon request provide new slips to replace those worn out or lost.

Registrars to be provided with constitution slips.

Applicant to read from slip drawn from box.

No person to be registered who fails to read slip, etc.

Registration of naturalized citizens.

Section 48. If an applicant for registration is a naturalized citizen, the registrars shall require him to produce for inspection his papers of naturalization, and to make oath that he is the identical person named therein, and shall, if satisfied that the applicant has been legally naturalized, make upon his papers a memorandum of the date of such inspection. If papers of naturalization have once been examined and record thereof made in the general register, the registrars need not again require their production.

Registration of minors.

Section 49. If, upon examination, the registrars are satisfied that an applicant for registration has all the qualifications of a voter, except that of age, and that he will on or before the day of the next election or town meeting, attain full age, they shall place his name upon the registers.

Applicants to be notified of rejection, etc.

Section 50. If the registrars decline to register the name of a person examined for registration and reported to them therefor by a registrar, they shall notify him of their refusal, and give him a reasonable opportunity to be heard by them upon his application. They shall upon the rejection of an applicant forthwith inform him of such rejection.

Revision and correction of registers.

Section 51. The registrars shall, from time to time, revise and correct the general register and the current annual register in accordance with any facts which may be presented to them. They shall strike therefrom the name of every deceased person which has been transmitted to them by the city or town clerk or the registrar of deaths in accordance with section twenty-three; but after the name of a voter has been placed upon the current annual register, they shall not change the place of residence as given thereon, nor, unless the voter has deceased, strike such name therefrom, until they have sent him a notice of their intention so to do and that he may be heard on a certain day named therein.

Illegal or incorrect registration.

Section 52. If a registered voter complains to the registrars or election commissioners, in writing under oath in a city fourteen days at least, or in a town four days at least, before an election or town meeting, that the complainant has reason to believe and does believe that a certain person by him therein named has been illegally or incorrectly registered, and setting forth the reasons for such belief, the registrars or election commissioners shall examine into such complaint, and if satisfied that there is sufficient ground therefor, they shall summon the person complained of to appear before them at a certain place and time before the next election or town meeting to answer to the matters set forth in the complaint, and the substance of the complaint and a copy of this and the following section shall be set forth in the summons.

Service of summons.

Service of the summons shall be made by an officer qualified to serve civil or criminal process, not more than fourteen nor less than two days before the day named for appearance, by delivering in hand a copy of the summons to the person therein summoned, or by leaving it at the place of alleged illegal or incorrect registration, if no later residence of such person appears on the register, and in that event at such later residence if the officer finds that such person resides at such place or later residence, as the case may be, or if he was formerly there and has changed his residence, then by leaving it at the place to which he has moved, if it is within the officer's jurisdiction and can be ascertained by inquiry at such place or later residence; but if the officer cannot make personal service, and cannot ascertain the residence of the person complained of, the copy of the summons shall be left at such person's last residence, if any, known to the officer within his jurisdiction; and the officer shall return the summons to the registrars or election commissioners before the day named for appearance, with the certificate of his doings indorsed thereon.

Examination of persons, etc.

Section 53. If a person summoned before the registrars or election commissioners to answer to such complaint appears before them, they shall examine him under oath, and shall receive other evidence which may be offered in regard to the matters set forth in the complaint, and if satisfied that he is properly registered as a qualified voter they shall enter in the register a statement of their determination upon the facts required for registration. If the registrars or election commissioners are satisfied that he is not a qualified voter in the city or town, they shall strike his name from the register. If they are satisfied that, although he is a qualified voter in the city or town, he is illegally or incorrectly registered in a ward or voting precinct other than the ward or voting precinct in which he is required to be registered as provided in section fourteen, and are satisfied as to which ward or voting precinct he is so required to be registered in, and as to his place of residence in such ward or voting precinct, they shall change his place of residence as given on the register accordingly. If a person duly summoned as aforesaid does not appear as directed in the summons, the complainant shall produce sufficient testimony to make out a prima facie case, and if this is done the name of the person complained of shall be stricken from the register; but if such person appears before the registrars or election commissioners before the election or town meeting next ensuing and shows sufficient cause for his failure earlier to appear, the hearing shall be reopened and the matter decided on its merits, as determined from the evidence presented on both sides. The complainant and the person complained of may be represented by counsel, and all witnesses may be cross-examined.

Notice of error to be transmitted to assessors.

Section 54. The registrars shall promptly transmit to the assessors of the city or town notice of every error which they shall discover in the name or residence of a person assessed therein. The provisions of this section shall not apply to Boston.

Sessions for registration and records

Section 55. The registrars or election commissioners shall perform their duties in open session, and not secretly.

to be open to public.

They shall distinctly announce the name of every applicant for registration before entering his name on the general register. Their records shall at suitable times be open to public inspection.

Documents to be preserved for two years.

Section 56. All written complaints and certificates received by the registrars, or election commissioners, and all other documents in their custody relative to registration, shall be preserved by them for two years after the respective dates thereof.

Maintenance of order, etc.

Section 57. A registrar or election commissioner shall have authority to enforce regularity in all proceedings before him, and to maintain order in and about the place where a session is held, or applications for registration are received, and to keep the access thereto open and unobstructed.

Police officers at meetings.

Section 58. The board of police or officer in charge of the police force of a city or town shall, when requested by the registrars or election commissioners, detail a sufficient number of police officers to attend any meeting held by a registrar in the performance of his duties, and to preserve order and enforce his directions.

Supervisors of registration, appointment, etc.

Section 59. The governor, with the advice and consent of the council, shall, on the petition of not less than ten qualified voters of a city or town, appoint for a term of one year, two supervisors of registration for each place of registration therein, one from each of the two leading political parties. They shall attend all sessions or meetings for registration held at the places for which they are appointed, and either of them may attach to any book or papers there used for purposes of registration any statement touching the truth or fairness of the proceedings which he may deem proper, and may add thereto his signature or other marks for the purpose of identification.

VOTING LISTS.

Voting lists, contents, arrangement, etc.

Section 60. Registrars or election commissioners shall, from the names entered in the annual register of voters, prepare voting lists for use at the several elections to be held therein. In such voting lists, they shall place the names of all voters entered on the annual register, and no others, and opposite to the name of each, his residence on the preceding first day of April or at the time of his becoming an inhabitant of such place after said day. They shall enter the names of women voters in separate columns or lists. In cities, they shall prepare such voting lists by wards, and if a ward or a town is divided into voting precincts, they shall prepare the same by precincts, in alphabetical order, or by streets, except that in Boston, the voting lists shall be prepared by streets. Names shall be added thereto or taken therefrom as persons are found to be qualified or not qualified to vote.

Names of certain voters to be placed at end of list.

Section 61. They shall place at the end of the voting lists of each ward, voting precinct or town to be used at a state election, under a proper heading, the names of all persons who, by changes in city or town boundaries, are not entitled to vote for the whole number of officers to be chosen.

Posting of voting lists.

Section 62. They shall, at least twenty days before the annual city or town election, and in every place except Boston, at least sixty days before the annual state election, and in Boston, twenty-four days at least before the annual state election, cause copies of the voting lists prepared in accordance with the two preceding sections to be posted in their principal office and in one or more other public places in the city or town, and in each precinct therein.

Additional names to be posted or published.

Section 63. After the voting lists have been posted, registrars shall, within forty-eight hours after a new name has been added to the annual register, cause it to be added to the lists posted in their principal office. If a city or town shall authorize the registrars to publish the names added to the register, they may, instead of posting them, cause all additional names to be printed in a newspaper published in the city or town, if any, otherwise in a newspaper published in the county in which such city or town is situated.

Certificate to be given in case of omission or error.

Section 64. Registrars shall, on the day of an election, give to a voter whose name has been omitted from the voting list, or in whose name or residence, as placed on the voting list, a clerical error has been made, a certificate of his name and residence, as stated on the annual register, signed by the registrars or a majority of them. On presentation thereof to the presiding election officer of the ward, voting precinct or town in which the voter was registered, he shall be allowed to vote, and his name shall be checked on the certificate, which shall be attached to and considered a part of the voting list and returned and preserved therewith.

Proceedings at polls.

Voting lists for use at polls.

Section 65. They shall, before every election and meeting in a city or town at which voting lists may be required to be used, prepare voting lists for each ward, voting precinct or town in which such election or meeting is to be held, containing the names and residences of all persons qualified to vote therein, as the same appear upon the annual register, and they shall seasonably transmit the same to the election officers in every such precinct, ward or town. Such voting lists shall be in duplicate for all elections and meetings at which duplicate lists are required to be used. In Boston a copy of the voting list for each precinct required to be made by section eighty-five shall also be furnished by the board of election commissioners at each primary and at each election to the warden in charge of each polling place for the use of the police officer in such polling place. Said list shall not be removed from the polling place and shall be returned to the warden immediately after the close of the polls, and he shall immediately transmit the same to the board of election commissioners according to the provisions of section three hundred and four.

To be in duplicate.

In Boston copy to be furnished for use of police officer.

Returns of assessed polls, registered voters, etc.

Section 66. They shall forthwith, after the final day for registration before an annual state, city or town election, certify to the secretary of the commonwealth the number of assessed polls, the number of registered male and female voters in the city or town, and in each ward and precinct therein, and the number of persons who by law are entitled to vote for a part only of the whole number of officers to be chosen at a state election in such city or town and in each ward and precinct therein, with the titles of the officers for whom such persons are entitled to vote.

In cities where city clerk is not a member of board of registrars.

In cities in which the city clerk is not a member of the board of registrars, the registrars shall likewise, after the last day for registration for a city election, certify to the city clerk the number of registered male and female voters in the city, and in each ward and voting precinct therein.

Voting list for use at caucus.

Section 67. When a caucus is called the registrars shall, on the request of the chairman of the ward or town committee of the party whose caucus is to be held or of the person designated to call the caucus to order, furnish him for use in the caucus a certified copy of the voting list of the town, or of the ward of the city for which the caucus is to be held, as last published, adding thereto the names of voters registered since such publication.

List of voters before a new division of a city into wards, etc.

Section 68. The registrars in every city, after the annual city election in the year nineteen hundred and fourteen, and in every tenth year thereafter, shall, for the purpose of furnishing to the city council and the board of aldermen the information necessary for a new division of the city into wards and voting precincts, deliver to the city clerk before the tenth day of February then next ensuing a list of all male voters therein who were registered for such city election, which shall be so arranged as to show the number of such voters residing in each lot or block surrounded by streets within the limits of such city or within any other subdivision thereof, which the city council or board of aldermen may, before the first day of February, designate. The registrars shall likewise in any other year, upon request of the board of aldermen, furnish, for the purpose of dividing the ward into voting precincts, a list of the male voters of any ward in the city, arranged as aforesaid.

LISTING AND REGISTRATION OF VOTERS IN BOSTON.

Listing board in Boston, how constituted.

Section 69. In Boston there shall be a listing board composed of the police commissioner of said city and one member of the board of election commissioners, who shall annually be appointed by the mayor, without confirmation by the board of aldermen, for the term of one year and who shall belong to that one of the two leading political parties of which said police commissioner is not a member. In case of disagreement between the two members of said board, the chief justice of the municipal court of the city of Boston, or, in case of his disability, the senior justice of said court who is not disabled, shall for the purpose of settling such disagreement be a member of said board and shall preside and cast the deciding vote, in case of a tie.

To make lists of male persons, etc.

Section 70. The listing board shall, within the first seven week days of April in each year, by itself or by police officers subject to the jurisdiction of the police commissioner, visit every building in said city, and after diligent inquiry make true lists, arranged by streets, wards and voting precincts, and containing as nearly as the board can ascertain, the name, age, occupation and residence on the first day of April in the current year, and the residence on the first day of April in the preceding year, of every male person, twenty years of age or upwards, who is not a pauper in a public institution, residing in said city. Said board shall designate in such lists all buildings used as residences by such male persons, in their order on the street where they are located, by giving the number or other definite description of every such building so that it can be readily identified, and shall place opposite the number or other description of every such building the name, age and occupation of every such male person residing therein on the first day of April in the current year, and his residence on the first day of April in the preceding year. The board shall also inquire at the residences of the women voters whose names are contained in the list transmitted to them by the election commissioners under section seventy-six whether such women voters are resident thereat, and shall thereupon make true lists of the women voters found by them. If in any year the police commissioner shall believe it to be impracticable, because of any public exigency requiring unusual service from the police force of the city, to complete within the first seven week days of April such visitation, and to transmit to the election commissioners on or before the eighteenth day of April the lists described in this section, he shall have authority, after having given notice in writing to the listing board and to the board of election commissioners of the city, to take such further time for such visitation and transmission, not exceeding ten week days, as he shall deem necessary.

To make lists of women voters.

Commissioner may take further time when necessary, etc.

The board shall place in the lists made by it, opposite the name of every such male person or woman voter, the name of the inmate, owner or occupant of the building, or the name and residence of any other person, who gives the information relating to such male person or woman voter. Where such information is given by one person relating to more than one such male person or woman voter residing in one building, ditto marks may be used in such lists under the name of the person giving the information, after his name has been once placed opposite the name of such male person or woman voter first written down as residing in such building.

Names of informants to be given, etc.

The board shall, upon the personal application of a person listed either upon the original or supplementary lists for the correction of any error in their lists, or whenever informed of any such error, make due investigation, and upon proof thereof correct the same on their original or supplementary lists, and shall immediately notify the election commissioners of such correction, who shall correct their copies of said lists accordingly and proceed to revise and correct the registers under the provisions of section fifty-one. The board shall cause all applications and affidavits received by them under this section to be preserved for two years.

To correct errors in lists, etc.

Applications, etc., to be preserved for two years.

To transmit copies of lists to election commissioners, etc.

Section 71. The board shall, on or before the eighteenth day of April in each year, transmit to the election commissioners certified copies of those parts of the lists prepared as provided in the preceding section, containing the name, age, occupation and residence on the first day of April in the current year, and the residence on the first day of April in the preceding year, of every male person, twenty years of age or upwards, residing in said city, and shall promptly transmit to the election commissioners notice of every addition to and correction in the lists made by them. The board shall furnish all information in its possession necessary to aid the election commissioners in the performance of their duties.

To prepare printed copies of lists, etc.

Section 72. The board shall, on or before the first day of July in each year, prepare printed copies of the lists prepared for the use of the election commissioners. The board shall print such lists in pamphlet form by precincts, deliver to the election commissioners as many copies thereof as they may require and hold the remaining copies for public distribution.

Listing of persons not previously listed.

Section 73. If a male person, twenty years of age or upwards, resident in Boston on the first day of April, was not listed by the board, he shall, in order to establish his right to be listed, appear before a member of the board, the superintendent, a deputy superintendent or an inspector of police, who are hereby authorized to administer oaths for this purpose, and present under oath a statement in writing that he was on said day a resident of said city, giving his name, age, occupation and residence on the first day of April in the current year, and his residence on the first day of April in the preceding year.

Certain persons desiring to be listed to present a statement in writing, etc.

A male person, twenty years of age or upwards, who becomes a resident of said city after the first day of April, and desires to be listed, shall appear before a member of the board, the superintendent, a deputy superintendent or an inspector of police, who are hereby authorized to administer oaths for this purpose, and present under oath a statement in writing that he became a resident of said city at least six months immediately preceding the election at which he claims the right to vote, giving his name, age, occupation and residence on the above date, and his residence on the first day of April in the preceding year.

Certificate to be given in certain cases, etc.

If the board, after investigation, is satisfied that such statements are true, it shall give such applicant a certificate that he was a resident of said city on said first day of April, or a certificate that he became a resident at least six months immediately preceding such election, as the case may be, which certificate shall state his name, age, occupation and residence on the first day of April in the current year or on the above date, as the case may be, and his residence on the first day of April in the preceding year; but no such application shall be received later than the thirtieth day preceding a state or a municipal election, and no such person shall be listed or be given such certificate later than the twenty-first day preceding such state or municipal election. The board shall not after the last day for making such application before a state election receive an application until after such election.

Application not to be received later than the thirtieth day preceding election, etc.

In every place where oaths are administered for the purpose of listing the board shall post in a conspicuous place a copy of section four hundred and sixty, printed on white paper with black ink, in type not less than one quarter of an inch wide.

To post in place where oaths are administered copy of section 460.

Section 74. The board shall enter the date of application, the name, age, occupation and residence on the first day of April in the current year and the residence on the first day of April in the preceding year, of every such applicant, as above provided, together with the result of its investigation of his application, in a book provided for that purpose, which shall be open for public inspection. Said board shall cause to be printed in some newspaper published in Boston, the name and residence of every such applicant. The names and residences of such applicants shall be printed by wards and precincts within two days after the number of names of such applicants, not printed, reaches fifty; and on the day when such number is reached, the names to be printed within such two days shall include the names of all such applicants up to the close of business for this purpose in the office of the board on such day.

Record of applications, etc., to be kept.

Names and residences of applicants to be printed.

Section 75. The police commissioner shall have his office open during such hours as shall be necessary to carry out the provisions of the two preceding sections.

Office of police commissioner to be kept open during certain hours.

Section 76. The election commissioners shall, after the first day of April in each year, prepare an annual register containing the names of all qualified voters in Boston for the current year, beginning with such first day of April. Such names shall be arranged by wards and precincts and, opposite the name of each voter, shall be entered his residence on the preceding first day of April or any subsequent day when he became a resident of said city. The election commissioners shall enter in the annual register every name contained in the lists, for the current year, of persons transmitted to them by the listing board, giving, as the residence of each person on the first day of April, the place at which he was listed by said board; and likewise the name and residence, as aforesaid, of every woman voter whose name is contained in the list of women voters transmitted to them under this act: provided, that in every case they are able to identify the name so transmitted as that of a man or woman whose name was borne on the voting list of said city at the last preceding election. They shall make all inquiries and investigations necessary to identify such person, and they shall not enter in the annual register the name of a person objected to by any commissioner, until such person has been duly notified and given an opportunity to be heard by them, and shall have appeared and satisfied them of his right to have his name so entered. They shall forthwith enter in the annual register the name of every person whose qualifications as a voter have been determined by them in the current year and whose name has accordingly been entered in the general register. They shall, on or before the first Monday of August in each year, send notice in writing by mail to each male voter of the preceding year whose name has not been entered in the annual register of the current year that his name has not been so entered. They shall, before the first day of April in each year, transmit to the listing board a list of the women voters whose names are contained upon the register of the preceding year, with their residences, as they appear on said register.

Election commissioners to prepare annual register of voters.

Proviso.

To make necessary inquiries and investigations, etc.

To send notice to voters of preceding year whose names have not been entered in annual register.

To transmit list of women voters to listing board.

Section 77. Every person, male or female, whose name has not been entered in the annual register in accordance with the preceding section, must, in order to be registered as a voter, apply in person for registration and prove that he is qualified to register.

Applicants for registration to apply in person, etc.

Section 78. The election department of Boston shall be under the charge of a board of election commissioners consisting of four citizens and voters of Boston who shall be appointed by the mayor; and chapter four hundred and eighty-six of the acts of the year nineteen hundred and nine, and all other acts relating to departments of Boston, or the officers and employees thereof, not inconsistent herewith, shall be applicable to said department and the officers and employees thereof.

Election commissioners of Boston, appointment, etc.

Political representation, compensation, etc.

Section 79. Said board shall be so selected that two members shall always belong to each of the two leading political parties; and one member shall annually be appointed for the term of four years, beginning with the first day of April in the year of his appointment. The mayor shall annually, on or before the first day of April, designate one member as chairman for the year beginning with said day, and may, after notice and hearing, remove any member for cause. The chairman of said board shall receive an annual salary of four thousand dollars, and each of the other commissioners three thousand five hundred dollars, or such other salary as the city council may by ordinance prescribe.

To appoint assistant registrars of voters.

Section 80. Said board shall annually, between the first day of April and the first day of October, appoint assistant registrars of voters, not exceeding four for each ward, who shall hold office for the term of one year, beginning with the first day of October, unless sooner removed by the election commissioners, and who shall equally represent the two leading political parties.

To constitute the Boston ballot law commission, etc.

Section 81. Said board shall constitute the Boston ballot law commission, and shall in all matters relating to objections and questions arising in the case of nominations of candidates for city offices have the powers and perform the duties prescribed for the state ballot law commission; and when sitting as such, the chief justice of the municipal court of the city of Boston, or in case of his disability the senior justice of said court who is not disabled, shall be a member of said board and shall preside, but shall not vote unless the other commissioners are equally divided; and in every other matter in which the commissioners are equally divided said chief justice shall act with them and shall cast the deciding vote.

Books for the registration of voters to be prepared, etc.

Section 82. Said board shall prepare books for the registration of the male voters and the general register of voters, and the books so prepared shall constitute the general register of voters in said city. Said books shall be in substantially the following form: —

Street.

1.	2.	3.	4.	5.	6.	7.	8.	9.	10.	11.			12.
Date of Application for Registration.	No. of Residence or Other Designation April 1, of the Year of Application.	Name.	Signature.	Length of Residence in City.	Occupation.	Place of Occupation.	Place of Birth.	Court of Naturalization.	Date of Naturalization Papers.	Personal Description.			Present Residence.
										Age.	Height.	Weight.

Form.

Under the several headings, there shall be entered as follows: —

One, The day, month and year when the applicant is adjudged a qualified voter.

Two, The name of the applicant and the number on the street, place or other location of his dwelling on that day, or if there is no number, such clear and definite description of the place of said dwelling that it can be readily ascertained; if more than one family resides in said dwelling, the floor on which the applicant resides; and if there is more than one house at the number given by the applicant, in which one of them he resides.

Three, The full surname and the Christian name of the applicant, or the name by which he is generally known, and the initial of every other name which he may have.

Four, The applicant shall write his name on a line with the statements herein set forth.

Five, The number of months or years which the applicant states that he has lived in said city.

Six, A full statement of his occupation.

Seven, The place of his occupation.

Eight, The name of the city or town, county and state, country, kingdom, empire or dominion where he was born.

Nine, The designation of the court where the applicant, if he was an alien, was naturalized.

Ten, The date of such naturalization.

Eleven, The age, approximate height and weight of the applicant.

Twelve, The residence of the applicant at the date of registration.

The names of all voters residing in the same dwelling shall be placed together.

Sessions of board of election commissioners for registration.

Section 83. Said board shall hold such day sessions as the city may by ordinance prescribe, and such additional sessions as they shall deem necessary. They shall, in any event, hold in or near each ward in said city not less than ten evening sessions, each of at least three hours' duration, between the first day of September and the close of registration before the annual state election, and the same number of like sessions between the annual state election and the close of registration before the annual city election. They shall also hold at their principal office a continuous session from nine o'clock in the morning until ten o'clock in the evening on the twentieth day preceding the annual state election, and a like continuous session on the twentieth day preceding the annual city election, and a continuous session from twelve o'clock noon until ten o'clock in the evening on the seventh day preceding a special election.

Applicants for registration to be examined under oath, etc.

Section 84. An election commissioner or assistant registrar of voters shall, at the times and places fixed for registering voters, examine under oath each applicant for registration as to his qualifications as a voter, and, if satisfied that the applicant is a qualified voter, shall immediately, in the presence of the applicant, enter in the proper columns of said register the information required by section eighty-two, according to the statements of the applicant; and if at any time prior to an election the board shall be of opinion that there is an error in such information, after giving notice to the person by mail, by special delivery, that he may be heard on a certain day named therein, it may on said day re-examine said information and correct such error, if any. No person shall, except as provided in section seventy-six have his name entered upon such register unless he personally appears before said board or one member thereof or an assistant registrar and is found qualified to be registered as a voter; and if the person is a naturalized citizen, he shall produce his naturalization papers or a certified copy of the record thereof for inspection, and make oath that he is the person named therein. But if there is a record in the office of said board made in the year eighteen hundred and ninety-six, or subsequent thereto, that the naturalization papers of the applicant have once been produced and examined, they need not be again produced.

Street lists of voters to be made.

Section 85. Said board shall annually after the close of registration and before the annual state election make, by precincts, from the annual register, street lists of the voters to be used as the voting lists at elections. Each list shall contain not less than two hundred names, and names shall be added to or taken therefrom, as persons are found qualified or not qualified to vote. Said lists shall be in the following form: —

_____ Street.

Form.

	Name of Voter.	Residence, Number, or Other Designation, April 1, of the Year of Election.	Length of Residence in City.	Personal Description.
				Age.	Height.	Weight.

Section 86. Said board shall, prior to the annual state election and prior to the annual city election, prepare in pamphlet form, not less than fifty copies of each voting list, omitting therefrom everything except the name and residence of the voters, and shall distribute said copies as they may deem best. Pamphlet copies of voting lists.

Section 87. Every person upon applying to vote shall, when requested by any election officer, write his name in a book prepared for the purpose unless the voter declares under oath to the presiding officer that he had the right to vote on the first day of May in the year eighteen hundred and fifty-seven and cannot write, or that by reason of blindness or other physical disability he is unable to write. Voter to write his name upon request.

PART II.

POLITICAL COMMITTEES.

Section 88. Each political party shall annually elect a state committee, the members of which shall hold office for one year from the first day of January next following their election and until their successors shall have organized. Said committee shall consist of at least one member from each senatorial district to be elected at the state primaries, and such number of members at large as may be fixed by the committee to be elected at the state convention; and the person who in the aggregate of all the ballots cast in each district for such district members shall receive the highest number of such votes shall be the member elected. State committees, election, term, etc.

Organization.

The members of the state committee shall, in January, meet and organize by the choice of a chairman, a secretary, a treasurer and such other officers as they may decide to elect.

Lists of members and officers to be filed.

The secretary of the state committee shall, within ten days after such organization, file with the secretary of the commonwealth, and send to each city and town committee, a list of the members of the committee and of its officers.

Vacancies.

A vacancy in the office of chairman, secretary or treasurer of the committee or in the membership thereof shall be filled by the committee, and a statement of any such change shall be filed as in the case of the officers first chosen.

Ward and town committees, election, term, etc.

Section 89. Each political party shall, in every ward and town, annually elect at the state primaries, a committee to be called a ward or a town committee, to consist of not less than three persons, who shall hold office for one year from the first day of January next following their election and until their successors shall have organized.

City committee.

The members of the several ward committees of a political party in a city shall constitute a committee to be called a city committee.

City and town committees, organization.

Each town committee shall annually, between the first day of January and the first day of March, and each ward and city committee shall, within thirty days after the beginning of its term of office, meet and organize by the choice of a chairman, a secretary, a treasurer and such other officers as it may decide to elect.

Lists of officers and members to be filed.

The secretary of each city and town committee shall, within ten days after its organization, file with the secretary of the commonwealth, with the city or town clerk and with the secretary of the state committee of the political party which it represents, a list of the officers and members of the committee.

Vacancies.

A vacancy in the office of chairman, secretary or treasurer of a city, ward or town committee shall be filled by the committee, and a vacancy in the membership of a ward or town committee shall be filled by such committee, and a statement of any such change shall be filed as in the case of the officers first chosen.

Ward committees in case of a re-division of a city into wards.

Section 90. Upon a re-division of a city into wards, any political party may in the next succeeding calendar year elect its ward committees for such terms, not exceeding the length of the terms for which the former committees were chosen, as the city committee existing at the time of calling the caucuses may determine, and thereafter shall elect such committees at the times and for the terms prescribed by law. The caucuses for the choice of such ward committees shall be called by the city committee in existence at the time, and shall be subject to such reasonable notice as said city committee shall determine.

Organization of existing committees.

Section 91. Committees of any party existing at the time when such party at an annual state election first polls for governor three per cent of the entire vote cast in the commonwealth for that office shall be deemed to be organized under these provisions.

Committees may make rules and regulations, etc.

Section 92. A state, city or town committee may make rules and regulations, not inconsistent with law, for its proceedings and relative to caucuses called by it, and may fix the number of persons of whom it shall consist, which number shall be announced in the call for the meeting at which they are to be chosen. Each city or town committee may make reasonable regulations, not inconsistent with law, to determine membership in the party, and to restrain persons not entitled to vote at caucuses from attendance thereat or taking part therein. But no political committee shall prevent any voter from participating in a caucus of its party for the reason that the voter has supported an independent candidate for political office. A state committee may make rules and regulations, not inconsistent with law, for calling conventions.

PROVISIONS APPLYING TO ALL PRIMARIES.

Conduct of primaries.

Section 93. Primaries shall be conducted in general accordance with the provisions of law concerning the conduct of elections and the manner of voting thereat, except as otherwise provided in the sections concerning primaries.

Withdrawal of names of candidates.

Section 94. A person who is nominated to be voted for at a primary may withdraw his name from nomination by a request in writing signed by him and acknowledged before a justice of the peace and filed with the officer with whom the nomination was filed, in the case of a person to be voted for at a state or presidential primary within the seventy-two week-day hours, and in the case of a person to be voted for at a city or town primary within the forty-eight week-day hours, succeeding five o'clock in the afternoon of the last day fixed for the filing of nomination papers for such primary.

Nominations valid unless objected to, etc.

Section 95. When nomination papers have been filed, and are in apparent conformity with law, they shall be valid unless objections thereto are made in writing and filed with the officer with whom the nomination paper was filed. Such objections shall be filed in the case of candidates to be voted for at a state or presidential primary within the seventy-two week-day hours, in the case of candidates to be voted for at city primaries within the forty-eight week-day hours, and in the case of candidates to be voted for at town primaries within the twenty-four week-day hours, succeeding five o'clock in the afternoon of the last day fixed for the filing of nomination papers for such primaries.

Objections, etc., by whom considered.

Section 96. Objections to nomination papers for candidates to be voted for at state or presidential primaries, and all other questions relating thereto, shall be considered and determined by the state ballot law commission; to nominations for candidates to be voted for at city primaries by the board of registrars, the city clerk and the city solicitor; and to nominations for candidates to be voted for at town primaries by the board of registrars.

Days of holding primaries.

Section 97. State primaries shall be held on the sixth Tuesday preceding state elections, city primaries on the third Tuesday preceding city elections, town primaries on the second Tuesday preceding town elections, and presidential primaries on the last Tuesday in April; except that primaries before a special election shall be held on the second Tuesday preceding the special election.

To be held by precincts in certain places.

In Boston they shall be held by precincts as established for elections; elsewhere, wholly or partly by wards, precincts or towns, as the board of aldermen or selectmen may from time to time determine.

Certain provisions of law to apply.

Section 98. The provisions of law relating to election officers, voting places for elections, election apparatus and blanks, calling and conduct of elections, manner of voting at elections, counting and recounting of votes at elections, the provisions of section three hundred and eight, corrupt practices, and penalties, shall apply to primaries, except as otherwise provided in the sections concerning primaries.

Petitions for recounts in Boston.

Section 99. In Boston petitions for recounts after primaries shall be filed before five o'clock in the afternoon of the second day thereafter.

Officers may be designated to serve at primaries.

Section 100. The election commissioners in Boston, the city clerks in other cities, and the town clerks in towns may designate two inspectors and two deputy inspectors, representing the two leading political parties, instead of a larger number, to serve at the primaries, and from the whole body of election officers they may designate officers equally representing the two leading political parties to serve as tellers in any precinct or ward during part of the day for the purpose of receiving ballots, checking names, or canvassing and counting votes, such tellers to receive such part of a full day's compensation of election officers as the election commissioners in Boston, the board of aldermen in other cities, or the selectmen in towns, may determine.

Same subject.

Section 101. In wards or towns where at elections voting is by precincts, but at primaries by wards or towns, the city or town clerk shall designate which of the election officers shall serve as primary officers.

Certain persons not ineligible as primary officers.

Section 102. Except in Boston no person shall be ineligible to serve as a primary officer because he is a candidate for or member of a ward or town committee.

Ballots for state and presidential primaries, preparation, etc.

Section 103. Ballots for use at state and presidential primaries shall be prepared and provided, and the number thereof determined, by the secretary of the commonwealth, and no other ballots shall be received or counted: provided, however, that if the ballots provided for any polling place are not delivered, or if after delivery they are lost, destroyed or stolen, the city or town clerk or election commissioners shall provide ballots similar as far as possible, which ballots may be used.

Proviso.

Ballots for city and town primaries, preparation, etc.

Section 104. The city or town shall provide and the city or town clerk shall prepare ballots to be used in city or town primaries, and no other ballots shall be received or counted. No ballots as herein provided shall be printed in any printing establishment owned or managed by the city of Boston.

Number of ballots, how determined.

Section 105. The number of ballots for use at city or town primaries shall be determined by the city clerk in cities, and by the town clerk in towns, and shall not for any ward or town exceed one ballot of each party for each voter therein.

Ballots for each party to be printed on paper of a different color, etc.

Section 106. Ballots for each party shall be printed on paper of a different color from that on which the ballots for any other party are printed. At least six facsimile copies of the ballot for each party, printed on colored paper, shall be provided for each polling place as specimen ballots.

Form of official ballot.

Section 107. At the top of each ballot shall be printed the words "The official ballot of (here shall follow the party name)." On the back and outside of each ballot when folded shall be printed the words "Official ballot of the (here shall be inserted the party name)", followed by the number of the precinct and ward or the name of the town for which the ballot is prepared, the date of the primary and for state or presidential primaries a facsimile of the signature of the secretary of the commonwealth and for city or town primaries a facsimile of the signature of the city or town clerk.

Arrangement of names.

Names of candidates for each elective office shall be arranged alphabetically according to their surnames.

To be arranged in groups in order of drawing.

Names of candidates for ward or town committees, and for delegates to conventions shall be arranged in groups in such order as may be determined by lot, under the direction of the secretary of the commonwealth, who shall notify each state committee and give a representative of each such committee an opportunity to be present: provided, however, that, when necessary, groups may be printed on the ballot in two or more columns.

Proviso.

Street and number of residence to be printed.

Against the name of a candidate for an elective office, for a ward or town committee or for a member of a state committee shall be printed the street and number, if any, of his residence.

Certain statement to be printed.

Against the name of a candidate for an elective office shall be printed the statement contained in the nomination paper placing him in nomination.

Names to be printed on ballot, blank spaces to be provided, etc.

No names shall be printed on a ballot other than those presented on nomination papers. Immediately following the names of candidates, blank spaces equal to the number of persons to be chosen shall be provided for the insertion of other names.

Number to be voted for to be stated on ballot.

The number of persons to be voted for for the different offices shall be stated on the ballot.

Form of ballots, etc.

The form of ballots and the arrangement of printed matter thereon shall be in general the same as that of the official state ballots, except as otherwise provided in the sections concerning primaries.

A cross to constitute a vote, etc.

Section 108. A cross [X] marked against a name shall constitute a vote for the person so designated. A cross in the circle at the head of a group of candidates for ward committees or for delegates to a state convention shall count as a vote for each candidate therein. A voter may vote for one or more candidates in any such group by marking a cross against the name of each such candidate, or he may insert another name and mark a cross against it. If he votes for more candidates than the number to be elected, his vote shall not be counted.

Delivery of ballots, etc., at polling places.

Section 109. The city or town clerk, or in Boston the election commissioners, before the opening of the polls on the day of the primary, shall deliver at the polling place to the warden or, if he is not present, to the clerk or, if both are absent, then to any inspector, ballot boxes, the ballots, specimen ballots, voting lists, suitable blank forms and apparatus for canvassing and counting the ballots and making the returns, a seal of suitable device and a record book for each polling place. The presiding officer at each polling place shall, before the opening of the primary, conspicuously post in such polling place at least six specimen ballots for each party, which shall be kept so posted until the polls are closed, except that where voting booths are provided two of such specimen ballots for each party may be posted on such booth.

Specimen ballots to be posted, etc.

Political party, enrolment of voters.

Section 110. When, in a primary, a voter seeks to pass the guard rail, he shall be asked by one of the ballot clerks, with which political party he desires to be enrolled, and the ballot clerk upon reply shall distinctly announce the name of such political party and give him such political party ballot. The voter's selection shall be checked on the voting list used by the ballot clerk and such list shall be returned to the election commissioners in Boston, or to the city clerk in any other city, or to the town clerk in towns, for preservation during the next succeeding five calendar years. The party enrolment of voters on such voting lists, and all subsequent party enrolment of voters, shall be transferred each year to the voting lists used at subsequent primaries, providing the names of such voters have been entered, in Boston, in the annual register prepared by the election commissioners from the police lists, and in other cities and in towns, in the annual register prepared from the assessors' lists.

Voters enrolled in one political party not to receive the ballot of another political party, except, etc.

Section 111. No voter enrolled at a primary shall be allowed to receive the ballot of any political party except that with which he is so enrolled, but he may establish, change or cancel his enrolment by appearing in person before the election commissioners in Boston, the city clerk in any other city, or the town clerk in towns, and requesting in writing to have his enrolment changed to another party, or cancelled: provided, that such change or cancellation shall not take effect until the expiration of ninety days after the voter so appears. No voter enrolled as a member of one political party shall be allowed to receive the ballot of any other political party, upon a claim by him of erroneous enrolment, except upon a certificate of such error from the election commissioners or board of registrars, as the case may be, which certificate shall be presented to the presiding officer of the primary and preserved as part of the records of such primary; but the political party enrolment of a voter shall not preclude him from receiving at a city or town primary the ballot of any municipal party, though in no one primary shall he receive more than one party ballot. All party enrolments at city or town primaries prior to the passage of this act are hereby cancelled.

Proviso.

Certain party enrolments cancelled.

Counting of votes.

SECTION 112. In the counting of votes when the ballots are removed from the ballot box, they shall first be sorted into piles, one for each party, and each pile shall be counted and sealed separately. Votes shall be counted only for nominations of the party on whose ballot they appear.

PROVISIONS APPLYING TO STATE PRIMARIES.

Nominations and elections at state primaries.

SECTION 113. The nomination of candidates of political parties for all offices to be filled at a state election, excepting the office of presidential elector, and the election of district members of state committees, members of ward and town committees, and of delegates to state conventions of political parties shall be by direct plurality vote in primaries.

District members of state committees and delegates to state conventions, elections, etc.

The number of district members of the state committee, not less than one from each senatorial district, and the number of delegates to the state convention, not less than one for each ward or town, to be elected, shall be fixed by the state committee, and the number of members of ward and town committees, not less than three for each ward and town, to be elected, shall be fixed by the city and town committees. Notice of the number of delegates and of members of committees shall be given by the state, city or town committees, as the case may be, to the secretary of the commonwealth, on or before the first day of August.

Notice of number to be given to secretary of the commonwealth on or before August first.

Notice of determination to hold primaries by wards, precincts, or groups of SECTION 114. In cities or towns where the question of holding primaries by wards, precincts, or groups of precincts is determined by the aldermen or selectmen, notice of such determination shall be given to the secretary of the commonwealth, by the aldermen or selectmen on or before the first day of August; except that in case of primaries before special elections, such notice shall be given at least fourteen days before the primaries. precincts to be given to the secretary of the commonwealth.

Section 115. The polls at every state primary shall be open during such hours, not less than nine in cities or two in towns, as may be designated by the board of election commissioners in Boston, the aldermen in other cities, and the selectmen in towns. When polls shall be open.

Section 116. The nomination of candidates for nomination at state primaries shall be by nomination papers. In the case of offices to be filled by all the voters of the commonwealth such papers shall be signed in the aggregate by at least one thousand voters, not less than two hundred and fifty to be from each of four different counties. In the case of all other offices to be filled at a state election, by a number of voters equal in the aggregate to five voters for each ward or town in the district or county, but in no case shall more than two hundred and fifty be required. Nominations to be by nomination papers, etc.

The nomination of candidates for election at state primaries shall be made as in the case of candidates for nomination for state offices other than those to be filled by all the voters of the commonwealth. Nomination of candidates for election.

Section 117. Every nomination paper shall state, in addition to the name of the candidate, (1) his residence, with street and number thereof, if any, (2) the office for which he is nominated, (3) the political party which he represents, and except for candidates for ward and town committees and delegates to conventions the paper may state, in not more than eight words, the occupation of the candidate, the public offices which he has held, or that he is a candidate for renomination, provided he is at the time an incumbent of the office for which he seeks renomination for another term, but not otherwise. Every voter who signs such paper shall sign it in person, with his full surname, his Christian name, and the initial of every other name which he may have, and shall state his residence of the previous first day of April, as well as the place where he is then living, with the street and number thereof; but any voter who is prevented by physical disability from writing, or who had the right to vote on the first day of May in the year eighteen hundred and fifty-seven, may authorize some person to write his name and residence in his presence; and every voter may sign as many nomination papers for each office Nomination papers, contents, etc. Signature, etc.

to be filled as there are persons to be nominated for or elected thereto, and no more.

To contain statement, etc.

Such papers shall also contain the statement that the signers thereof are members of the party represented by the candidate and are entitled to vote in the primaries of that party; and whoever knowingly subscribes falsely to a statement on a nomination paper shall be punished by imprisonment for not more than five days or by a fine not exceeding fifty dollars. No nomination paper, except for a delegate or delegates to a convention, shall be valid in respect to any candidate whose written acceptance is not thereon.

Penalty.

Acceptance.

Who may sign papers.

None but enrolled voters of the party represented by a candidate, and voters who are not enrolled in any party, shall be entitled to sign the nomination paper of such candidate. No nomination paper shall contain the name of more than one candidate except in the case of delegates to the state convention and members of ward and town committees.

Not to contain name of more than one candidate, except, etc.

Nomination papers to be submitted to registrars, in Boston to the election commissioners.

Section 118. Every nomination paper shall be submitted on or before five o'clock in the afternoon of the Saturday preceding the day on which it must be filed to the registrars of the city or town in which the signers appear to be voters, and in Boston to the election commissioners, who shall forthwith certify thereon the number of signatures which are names of voters not enrolled in any other party than that represented by the candidate whose name appears in the nomination paper both in the city or town and in the district for which the nomination is made. They need not certify a greater number of names than are required to make a nomination, with one fifth of such number added thereto. Names not certified in the first instance shall not thereafter be certified on the same nomination papers. The secretary of the commonwealth shall not be required in any case to receive nomination papers for a candidate after receiving papers containing a sufficient number of certified names to make a nomination, with one fifth of such number added thereto. For the purpose of certifying to the names on primary nomination papers it shall be the duty of the board of registrars of voters, in Boston the election commissioners, to hold meetings on the four Saturdays next preceding the date on which such papers are required to be filed with the secretary of the commonwealth, except that such meetings shall be held on the two Saturdays next preceding the date on which the papers are required to be so filed for primaries before special elections.

Registrars and election commissioners to hold meetings to certify to names on nomination papers.

No person shall be a candidate for nomination for more than one office for which such nominations are made; but this shall not apply to candidates for membership in political committees or delegations to the state convention. No person to be a candidate for more than one office, except, etc.

Section 119. Nomination papers for use in the nomination of candidates to be voted for at state primaries shall be prepared and furnished by the secretary of the commonwealth, upon request. Nomination papers, preparation, etc.

Section 120. All nomination papers of candidates to be voted for at state primaries shall be filed with the secretary of the commonwealth on or before the fifth Tuesday preceding the day of the primaries; except in the case of primaries before special elections, when nomination papers shall be filed on or before the second Tuesday preceding the day of the primaries. Nomination papers, last day for filing.

Section 121. If a person nominated to be voted for at a state primary dies before the day of the primary, or withdraws his name from nomination, or is found to be ineligible, the vacancy may be filled, in the case of a candidate for nomination, by the state committee, if the candidate is one to be voted for by all the voters of the commonwealth; and in the case of all other candidates, by the members of the ward and town committees in the wards and towns comprising the respective districts, and in the case of a candidate for election, by the said ward and town committees: provided, however, that the death, withdrawal or ineligibility of a candidate for nomination shall not be treated as creating a vacancy to be filled unless by reason of such vacancy there would be no candidate for the party nomination for the office. Nomination in case of death, withdrawal or ineligibility. Proviso.

Section 122. In cases of withdrawal nominations to fill vacancies shall be filed with the secretary of the commonwealth within seventy-two week-day hours succeeding five o'clock in the afternoon of the last day for filing withdrawals. Time of filling vacancies caused by withdrawal.

They shall be open to objections in the same manner, so far as practicable, as other nominations. To be open to objections.

No vacancy caused by withdrawal shall be filled before the withdrawal has been filed. No vacancy to be filled before withdrawal is filed.

Section 123. No ballots cast at a state primary shall be counted until the close of the polls. No ballots to be counted before close of polls.

Section 124. Upon the receipt of the records of votes cast at state primaries the city or town clerk or election commissioners shall forthwith canvass the same and make return of the votes for candidates for nomination for state Canvass and returns of votes, etc.

offices, and for election as members of the state committee, to the secretary of the commonwealth, who shall forthwith canvass such returns, determine the results thereof, notify the successful candidates, and certify to the state committees the names of the persons nominated for state offices and elected as members of the state committees.

Determination of results of vote for delegates and members of ward and town committees.

Said clerks or commissioners shall determine the results of the vote for delegates to the state conventions and members of ward and town committees, issue proper certificates thereof to the successful candidates, and notify the chairmen of the city and town committees of the respective parties.

Tie vote for candidates for nomination for offices to be filled by all the voters, vacancy, etc.

Section 125. In case of a tie vote for any candidate for nomination for an office to be filled by all the voters of the commonwealth the vacancy shall be filled by the state committee.

Tie vote for other candidates for nomination, vacancy, etc.

Delegates to conventions, tie vote, vacancies, etc.

In case of a tie vote for any other candidate for nomination the vacancy shall be filled by the members of the ward and town committees in the wards and towns comprising the districts for which the nominations are to be made. If there is a tie vote for delegates to a convention, or a place unfilled in a delegation, or a vacancy occasioned by inability or neglect of a delegate elected to attend a convention, such vacancies shall be filled only by vote of the remaining members of the delegation at a meeting called for the purpose. Such meeting shall choose a chairman and secretary, and the secretary shall notify the secretary of the convention of the action taken relative to such vacancy, except that, if only one delegate or two delegates were to be elected, the delegate or the remaining delegate, as the case may be, shall fill such vacancy and notify the secretary of the convention of such action.

Tie vote for members of committee, etc.

If there is a tie vote for members of a ward or town committee, the members elected shall fill the vacancy.

Vacancy when a majority of a delegation or committee are not elected, etc.

If a majority of a delegation, or of a ward or town committee, is not elected the vacancy shall be filled by the ward or town committees.

Vacancies caused by ties, how filled.

All vacancies caused by ties shall be filled only by the choice of one of the candidates receiving the tie vote.

State conventions of political parties, calling, etc.

Section 126. A political party may, upon the call of its state committee, but not earlier than one week nor later than two weeks, after the holding of the primaries, hold a state convention for the purpose of adopting a platform, electing such number of members at large of the state committee as may be fixed by the state committee, nominating presidential electors, and for such other purposes not inconsistent with this act as the state committee or the convention may determine. Such convention shall consist of the delegates elected at the state primary (in number not less than one for each ward and town), the members of the state committee, the United States senators from Massachusetts who are members of the party, the nominees of the party for all offices to be filled at the state election, and in years in which no elections are held for such offices, the incumbents of those offices who are members of the party.

Secretary of the commonwealth may employ temporary clerical assistance.

Section 127. The secretary of the commonwealth may employ such temporary clerical assistance as he may deem necessary to carry out the provisions of this act relative to primaries: provided, however, that the provisions of chapter nineteen of the Revised Laws and the civil service rules made thereunder shall not apply to such employment.

Proviso.

PROVISIONS APPLYING TO CITY AND TOWN PRIMARIES.

Primaries for the nomination of candidates to be voted for at city and town elections.

Section 128. All primaries of political and municipal parties for the nomination of candidates to be voted for at city and town elections in cities, and in towns using official ballots, which vote that primaries shall be held therein, shall be conducted in general accordance with the provisions of law concerning primaries.

Question of adoption or revocation to be submitted to voters upon petition.

Section 129. In any city or town which has adopted the provisions of law for nominating by primaries, the following question shall be put on the official ballot at any city election or annual town meeting on petition of five per cent of the voters registered at the time of the preceding city election or annual town meeting, filed with the city or town clerk on or before the last day of filing nomination papers: — "Shall primaries for the nomination of candidates to be voted for at city (or town) elections continue to be held in this city (or town)?" In any city or town not nominating by primaries the following question may, by similar petition, be put on the ballot at the next city election or annual town meeting: — "Shall primaries for the nomination of candidates to be voted for at city (or town) elections be held in this city (or town)?" In the event of an affirmative or negative vote on these questions, such primaries shall or shall not thereafter be held accordingly.

Secretary of the commonwealth to be notified.

Clerks of cities or towns which vote to hold primaries or to rescind such action shall forthwith notify the secretary of the commonwealth of such vote.

Notices of intention to participate in primaries to be furnished.

SECTION 130. Notices of intention to participate in primaries shall be furnished by the city and town committees of such political and municipal parties as are entitled to and desire to participate therein not less than twenty-two days prior to the day on which the primaries are to be held, to the city clerk in cities or the town clerk in towns.

Blank nomination papers to be provided, etc.

SECTION 131. The city or town shall provide, and the city or town clerk shall seasonably prepare, blank nomination papers for use in the nomination of candidates to be voted for at city or town primaries. Such papers shall state the place where, and the day and hour prior to which, signed nomination papers shall be filed.

Nominations to be made by nomination papers, etc.

SECTION 132. Nominations of candidates for elective offices, to be voted for at a primary, shall be made by nomination papers, as hereinafter provided. Such nominations shall be made on the blank nomination papers prepared in accordance with the preceding section; and no nomination paper offered for filing shall be received or shall be valid to which is attached any card, paper or other device containing the name of a candidate, his written acceptance, or the signature of any voter required by this section. Such papers shall be signed in person by at least five voters of the ward or town in which the primary is to be held, who shall add to their signatures the street and number, if any, of their residences. Such papers for a district composed of more than one ward shall be signed by a number of voters equal in the aggregate to not less than five voters for each ward in said district. Nomination papers shall not contain a larger number of names of candidates than there are persons to be elected. No nomination paper shall be valid in respect to any candidate whose written acceptance is not thereon. No vacancy caused by the death, withdrawal or ineligibility of any candidate shall be filled, unless the person entitled to fill such vacancy files the written acceptance of the candidate who is nominated to fill the vacancy.

Signatures, etc.

Acceptances.

Nomination papers, contents, etc.

SECTION 133. Every nomination paper shall state, in addition to the name of the candidate, (1) his residence, with the street and number thereof, if any, (2) the office for which he is nominated, (3) the political or municipal party which he represents, and the paper may state, in not more than eight words, the occupation of the candidate, the public offices which he has held, or that he is a candidate for renomination, provided he is at the time an incumbent of the office for which he seeks renomination for another term, but not otherwise. Every voter who signs such paper shall sign it in person, with his full surname, his Christian name, and the initial of every other name which he may have, and shall state his residence of the previous first day of April, as well as the place where he is then living, with the street and number thereof; but any voter who is prevented by physical disability from writing, or who had the right to vote on the first day of May in the year eighteen hundred and fifty-seven, may authorize some person to write his name and residence in his presence; and every voter may sign as many nomination papers for each office to be filled as there are persons to be nominated for or elected thereto, and no more. Signatures.

Such paper shall also contain the statement that the signers thereof are members of the party represented by the candidate and are entitled to vote in the caucuses or primaries of that party; and whoever knowingly subscribes falsely to a statement on a nomination paper shall be punished by imprisonment for not more than five days or by a fine not exceeding fifty dollars. To contain statement, etc. Penalty.

Section 134. All nomination papers of candidates to be voted for at city or town primaries shall be filed with the city or town clerk not less than ten week days previous to the day on which the primary is to be held for which the nominations are made. Every such nomination paper shall be submitted at or before five o'clock in the afternoon of the Saturday preceding the day on which it must be filed to the registrars of the city or town in which the signers appear to be voters, and the registrars shall forthwith certify thereon a number of signatures which are names of voters not enrolled in any other party than that represented by the candidate whose name appears in the nomination papers both in the city or town and in the district for which the nomination is made. They need not certify a greater number of names than are required to make a nomination with one fifth of such number added thereto. Names not certified in the first instance shall not thereafter be certified on the same nomination papers. The city or town clerk shall not be required, in any case, to receive nomination papers for a candidate after receiving papers containing a sufficient number of certified names to make a nomination, with one fifth of such number added thereto. Nomination papers to be filed with city or town clerk. To be submitted to registrars, etc.

Section 135. In case of a vacancy caused by the death, withdrawal or ineligibility of a candidate, the person who Vacancies, how filled.

filed the nomination paper placing such candidate in nomination may fill the vacancy by presenting a new name on a nomination paper signed by himself with his own hand. If such vacancy was caused by withdrawal the nomination paper shall be filed within twenty-four week-day hours succeeding five o'clock of the last day for making withdrawals.

Polls to be open during certain hours.

Section 136. The polls at every such primary shall be open during such hours, not less than nine in cities or four in towns, as may be designated by the aldermen of cities, and the selectmen of towns.

Canvass of returns of votes, etc.

Section 137. City clerks in cities, and town clerks in towns, shall canvass the returns of votes, determine the results, and issue proper certificates thereof to the successful candidates.

PROVISIONS APPLYING TO PRESIDENTIAL PRIMARIES.

Delegates to national conventions to be elected by direct plurality vote.

Section 138. In any year in which candidates for presidential electors are to be elected, the election of delegates and of alternate delegates to national conventions of political parties shall be by direct plurality vote in primaries.

Number to be fixed by state committee.

The number of district delegates and the number of district alternate delegates, not less than one from each congressional district, and the number of delegates and alternate delegates at large, shall be fixed by the state committee.

Notice to be given to secretary of the commonwealth.

Notice of the number of delegates to be elected shall be given to the secretary of the commonwealth on or before the third Wednesday in March by the state committee of each political party which intends to participate in such primaries.

Notice of determination to hold primaries by wards, precincts or groups of precincts to be given to secretary of the commonwealth.

Section 139. In cities and towns where the question of holding primaries by wards, precincts or groups of precincts is determined by the aldermen or selectmen, notice of such determination shall be given to the secretary of the commonwealth by the aldermen or selectmen on or before the third Wednesday in March.

Candidates for president and vice president of the United States to be placed upon ballots.

Section 140. In primaries at which delegates to national conventions of political parties are elected, the secretary of the commonwealth shall cause to be placed first upon the ballots of such political party the names of candidates for the nomination by such political party for the office of president of the United States and of vice president of the United States, arranged, under separate headings for each office, alphabetically according to their surnames, and each voter may express his preference for such candidates in the same manner as in voting for candidates for state offices to be voted for by all the voters of the commonwealth.

Nominations to be by nomination papers, etc.

The nomination of candidates for nomination for the office of president of the United States and of vice president of the United States shall be made by nomination papers as in the case of offices to be filled by all the voters of the commonwealth.

Canvass and return of votes for delegates, etc.

Upon the receipt of the records of votes cast at presidential primaries the city or town clerk or election commissioners shall forthwith canvass the same and make return thereof to the secretary of the commonwealth, who shall forthwith canvass such returns for delegates, determine the results thereof, and notify the successful candidates.

Canvass and return of votes for preference, etc.

The votes cast for preference shall be returned and canvassed in the same manner as in the case of votes for state offices to be filled by all the voters of the commonwealth, and the secretary of the commonwealth shall forthwith certify the result to the state committees of the respective political parties.

Vacancy in delegation to a national convention, how filled.

Section 141. In case of a vacancy caused by the death, withdrawal or ineligibility of a candidate for delegate to a national convention the vacancy may be filled in such manner as may be provided on the nomination paper placing such candidate in nomination: provided, however, that such provision is clearly stated on such paper before the signature of any voter is entered thereon. When no such provision is made the remaining candidate or candidates nominated by the same nomination paper may fill the vacancy. In the case of a withdrawal, such vacancy must be filled by filing in the office of the secretary of the commonwealth, within seventy-two week-day hours succeeding five o'clock in the afternoon of the last day for filing withdrawals, a statement in writing signed by the person or persons authorized to fill the vacancy giving the name and residence of the candidate nominated accompanied by the written acceptance of such candidate.

Proviso.

Certain provisions of law to apply.

Section 142. The provisions of law relating to primaries not inconsistent with the three preceding sections shall apply to presidential primaries so far as is practicable.

PROVISIONS APPLYING TO ALL CAUCUSES OF POLITICAL PARTIES.

Caucuses may be held by precincts, or groups of precincts in certain cases.

Section 143. If in a city, except Boston, or town wherein elections are held by precincts, the city or town committee of either of the two leading political parties shall file with the aldermen or selectmen, at least two weeks prior to the time of holding its caucuses, a notice that such party desires to hold its caucuses by precincts, or by groups of precincts in any ward, the aldermen or selectmen shall furnish a polling place in each precinct for the use of such party, as provided in section one hundred and sixty-one and the caucuses of such party shall be held accordingly.

Caucuses relative to special elections.

Section 144. Caucuses relative to a special election shall be held at such time and place and subject to such reasonable notice as the political committee whose duty it is to provide for holding the same may determine. Calls therefor shall be issued by the chairman and secretary of said political committee.

Calling of caucuses, etc.

Section 145. Every caucus of a political party shall be called by a written or printed notice. No caucus or meeting of a political party not so called shall be recognized as valid under this title. It shall be the duty of the presiding officer at a caucus to open such caucus at the hour appointed therefor in the notice thereof.

Notices of caucuses to apply only to members of political party calling them, etc.

Section 146. Notices of caucuses shall apply to all members of the political party calling them, and to them only. No person having voted in the caucus of one political party shall be entitled to vote or take part in the caucus of another political party within the ensuing twelve months. Except that voting or taking part in the caucuses of any municipal party by any voter shall not affect his legal right to vote or to take part in the caucuses of any other political party, for any other election; and having voted or taken part in the caucuses of another political party for any previous election, shall not affect his right to vote or take part in the caucuses of any municipal party. No voter shall be prevented from voting or participating in any caucus if he takes the following oath which shall be administered to him by the presiding officer of the caucus:

Voter may take oath.

Form of oath.

You do solemnly swear (or affirm) that you are a registered voter in this ward (or town) and have the legal right to vote in this caucus; that you are a member of the political party holding the same, and intend to vote for its candidates at the polls at the election next ensuing; and that you have not taken part or voted in the caucus of any other political party for twelve months last past.

Person whose right to vote is challenged to take oath, etc.

Such voter may be challenged like any other voter. Any person whose right to vote is challenged for any cause recognized by law shall not be permitted to vote until he has taken the foregoing oath; and the clerk or secretary of the caucus shall make a record of the administration of said oath to every person who takes the same, which record shall state whether or not said person voted. Said record shall be returned with the proceedings of said caucus and shall be prima facie evidence in any court that such person took said oath and voted in said caucus.

Record to be made, etc.

Section 147. In balloting, the voting lists furnished under the provisions of section sixty-seven shall be used as check lists and no person shall be entitled to vote or to take part in a caucus whose name does not appear upon said lists.

Voting lists to be used.

Section 148. The persons receiving the highest number of votes in a caucus shall be declared elected or nominated.

Persons to be declared elected or nominated.

If there is a tie vote for caucus officers, the caucus officers elected shall fill the vacancy.

Tie vote for caucus officers.

If a majority of caucus officers is not elected, or there is a tie vote for candidates for an elective office, the caucus shall at once proceed to another ballot unless some one present entitled to vote objects; in which case the caucus shall adjourn to any subsequent day. The hour and place shall, if practicable, be the same as that named in the call.

Proceedings in case of a tie vote for an elective office, etc.

Section 149. The presiding officer and secretary or clerk of each caucus shall within three week days after its final adjournment deliver or send to each caucus officer a certificate of his election, and to each candidate for an elective office a notice of his nomination.

Certificates of election, etc.

Section 150. Returns of all caucuses of political parties at which are made any direct nominations for a district comprising more than one ward, or where caucuses are held in one precinct or by groups of precincts in any ward, shall be made according to the provisions of section one hundred and seventy-nine. The registrars of voters shall canvass said returns and determine the results thereof. Recounts of ballots shall be made as provided in section one hundred and eighty-one.

Returns of caucuses at which direct nominations are made, determination of results.

Section 151. If there is a tie vote for any candidate of a political party nominated directly for any office, for a district comprising more than one ward, the vacancy shall be filled by a regularly elected general or executive committee representing the election district in which such vote has been cast, but the vacancy shall be filled only by the choice of one of the candidates receiving such tie vote.

Tie vote in cases of direct nomination, how filled.

PROVISIONS APPLYING TO CAUCUSES OF POLITICAL PARTIES AT WHICH OFFICIAL BALLOTS ARE NOT USED.

Polling places to be provided, etc.

Section 152. At least two weeks prior to the date on which caucuses are to be held, the chairman or secretary of the city or town committee shall notify the aldermen or the selectmen respectively of such date, and said aldermen or selectmen shall, at the expense of the city or town, provide polling places for said caucuses, in case of a city, not less than one for each ward; and shall, at least ten days prior to the date of said caucus, give said chairman or secretary notice of the places so provided.

Notices of caucuses.

Section 153. Notice of caucuses, signed by the chairman and secretary, shall be issued by each city and town committee not less than seven days prior to the day on which they are to be held. The notices shall state the place where, and the day and hour when, the several caucuses are to be held. They shall be conspicuously posted in at least five places on the highways or streets, and if practicable, in every post office in the city or town, or shall be published at least twice in one or more local newspapers, if there are any. The hour fixed for calling the caucus to order shall not be later than eight o'clock in the evening. The notice shall designate by name or office the person who shall call such caucus to order, and he shall preside until a chairman is chosen. If he is absent at the time appointed, any member of the ward or town committee present shall call the caucus to order and preside until a chairman is chosen. The first business in order shall be the choice of a chairman, a secretary and such other officers as the meeting may determine. No person shall serve as a caucus officer at any caucus in which he is a candidate for a nomination to an elective office.

First business.

Certain persons not to serve as caucus officers.

Ballot to be taken, etc.

Section 154. A ballot shall be taken for the choice of any candidate, to be selected by such caucus, and the polls shall be kept open at least thirty minutes.

Ballots and check lists to be transmitted to city or town clerk.

Section 155. The secretary of each caucus shall forthwith, after the ballots cast therein have been counted, transmit the said ballots and the check list used at the caucus to the city or town clerk, as the case may be, who shall preserve them for ten days. If during said time ten voters entitled to vote in said caucus shall file with said clerk a written request so to do, he shall preserve the ballots and voting lists for three months, and shall produce the same if required by any court of justice having jurisdiction or authority over the same.

Ballots, etc., to be preserved, etc.

If within three week days after any caucus a person who has received votes thereat for nomination or election to any office, shall file a statement in writing with the said clerk, claiming an election or nomination or declaring an intention to contest the election or nomination of any other person, the clerk shall preserve the ballots for such nomination or office until the claim or contest has been finally determined. In case of contest, etc., ballots to be preserved until finally determined.

The clerk shall immediately give notice in writing to the persons affected and to the chairman and secretary of the caucus, fixing a time within twenty-four hours thereafter and a place at which said ballots will be recounted. The chairman and secretary of the caucus shall, at said time and place, recount said ballots and determine the questions raised. Each candidate affected may be present during such recount, or may be represented by an agent appointed by him in writing. If it shall appear upon a recount that persons were nominated or elected other than those declared to have been nominated or elected, certificates of such change shall be made as in the case of the original certificate. Recount of ballots.

PROVISIONS APPLYING TO CAUCUSES OF POLITICAL PARTIES AT WHICH OFFICIAL BALLOTS ARE USED.

Section 156. All caucuses for the election of caucus officers, or for the nomination of candidates for any city or town office in any city or town held by a political party which has adopted the provisions of law for the use of official ballots shall be called and held as hereinafter provided. Calling, etc., of caucuses at which official ballots are used.

Section 157. Any city or town committee shall, at the written request of fifty voters, members of its party, call caucuses of said party to determine by ballot whether the provisions of law for the use of official ballots shall be adopted. The notice of said caucus shall state the purpose for which it is called, the place, the day and the hour, not earlier than six o'clock and not later than half-past seven o'clock in the evening, of holding said caucus. It shall be issued at least seven days prior to the day named therefor, and shall be published at least twice in one or more local newspapers, if there are any, and shall be posted in at least five public places in each ward or town. The polls shall be kept open at least one hour. If said caucuses shall vote to adopt said provisions, all caucuses of said political Calling of caucuses for purpose of voting on question of adoption.

party in said city or town shall thereafter be called and conducted accordingly.

Acceptance may be revoked, etc.

Section 158. A political party in a city or town which has accepted said special provisions may, not less than one year after the date of the caucus wherein such provisions were adopted, revoke such action at a caucus called and held in the manner provided in the preceding section. Upon the adoption of said provisions or upon the revocation of such adoption, the secretary of the city or town committee of such political party shall, within ten days thereafter, file with the secretary of the commonwealth and with the clerk of the city or town and the secretary of the state committee of the political party so voting, a notice thereof.

Notice of action to be filed.

Certain caucuses to be held on same day.

Section 159. All such caucuses of a political party for the choice of candidates for a city or town election, except caucuses relating to a special election, shall be held on the same day in each city and town. The city or town committee shall fix the days for holding all caucuses mentioned in this section, and all calls for the same shall be issued by its chairman and secretary.

City or town committee to fix days, etc.

Party first filing copy of call entitled to precedence.

No two political parties shall hold their caucuses on the same day. The party first filing a copy of the call for a caucus with the city or town clerk, shall be entitled to precedence as to the day so fixed.

Notices of caucuses to contain certain information, etc.

Section 160. Notice of caucuses in said cities or towns shall state the place where and the day and hour when nomination papers shall be issued; the place where and the earliest day and hour when such nomination papers may be filed, which time shall be not less than twenty-four week-day hours succeeding three o'clock of the day fixed for issuing such papers; the place where and the day and hour prior to which such nomination papers shall be filed; and the day on which the several caucuses will be held, and shall be issued not less than eighteen days prior thereto.

Polling places, etc., to be provided.

Section 161. At least two weeks prior to the day named for a caucus, the chairman or secretary of the city or town committee shall give notice of such date to the aldermen or to the selectmen, who shall, at least ten days prior to such date, notify the city or town committee of the places selected for holding the caucuses, and shall, at the expense of the city or town, provide polling places, in a city not less than one for each ward, and in cities and towns where elections or caucuses are held in voting precincts, one in each of such precincts, as the city or town committee shall designate, but not less than one for each ward, and furnish them with booths, registering ballot boxes, guard rails and the like, as they are arranged for state elections, also postage for mailing credentials and notices or certificates of nomination and election.

Voting may proceed in two or more lines in certain cases.

If twenty-five voters of a ward or of a town shall request in writing at least twelve days before any caucus of the political party to which they belong, the aldermen or selectmen shall so arrange the polling place of such ward or town as to allow voting to proceed in two or more lines at the caucus.

Seven days' notice to be given by city and town committee, etc.

Section 162. At least seven days prior to the day named for a caucus, the city or town committee shall issue a notice that such caucus will be held, stating the place, the day and the hour of holding the same. The hour shall not be earlier than two o'clock in the afternoon nor later than half-past seven o'clock in the evening. Notices relative to the filing of nomination papers or for caucuses shall be published at least twice in one or more local newspapers if there are any.

Blank nomination papers to be provided, etc.

Section 163. The city or town shall provide, and the city or town clerk shall seasonably prepare, for each political party, blank nomination papers for use in the different wards of the city or in the town. Such papers shall state the place where, and the day and hour prior to which, signed nomination papers shall be filed. On the back of each, sections one hundred and sixty-four to one hundred and seventy, inclusive, shall be printed. They shall be delivered to the chairman or secretary of the political committee for whose use they have been prepared, and to no other person.

Nominations to be made by nomination papers, etc.

Section 164. Nominations of candidates for elective city or town offices and for caucus officers to be voted for at a caucus, shall be made by nomination papers, as hereinafter provided. Such nominations shall be made on the blank nomination papers prepared and delivered in accordance with the preceding section; and no nomination paper offered for filing shall be received or shall be valid to which is attached any card, paper or other device containing the name of a candidate, his written acceptance, or the signature of any voter required by this section. Such papers shall be signed in person by at least five voters of the ward or town in which the caucus is to be held, who shall be members of the political party holding the caucus, and who shall add to their signatures the street and number, if any, of their residences. Such papers for a district composed of more than one ward shall be signed by a number of voters equal in the aggregate to not less than five voters for each ward in said district. Nomination papers shall not contain a larger number of names of candidates than there are persons to be elected. No nomination paper shall be valid in respect to any candidate whose written acceptance is not thereon. No vacancy caused by the death, withdrawal or ineligibility of any of the above candidates shall be filled in the manner provided by law, unless the person entitled to fill such vacancy files the written acceptance of the candidate who is nominated to fill the vacancy.

Acceptance to be on nomination papers, etc.

Certain information may be given concerning candidates for elective office.

Section 165. The nomination paper for an elective office shall give the name of the candidate, the street and number, if any, of his residence, and may, in not more than eight words, state his occupation, the public offices he has held or that he is a candidate for renomination, provided that he is at the time an incumbent of the office for which he seeks renomination for another term, but not otherwise.

Candidates for caucus offices, etc.

The nomination paper of a candidate for a caucus office shall state the street and number, if any, of his residence.

Nomination papers to be sealed up and filed ten week days before caucus, etc.

Section 166. All nomination papers shall be sealed up and filed in the office of the secretary of the city or town committee not less than ten week days previous to the day on which the caucus is to be held for which the nominations are made, and the secretary shall indorse upon them the time at which they are received by him. They shall not be opened until the time for their filing has expired, when the secretary, at his office, shall publicly open them and publicly announce the nominations therein made.

To be publicly opened, etc.

Correction of errors, etc.

Section 167. The secretary of the city or town committee shall immediately give notice to the person filing the nomination paper of any error, irregularity or informality appearing therein, and such person may, within two week days after the time when the nomination papers were opened, correct the same, or said secretary may make such correction.

Proceedings in cities when papers are not filed.

Section 168. If, in a city, nomination papers placing persons in nomination for all the offices to be filled at a caucus in any ward are not filed, the secretary of the city committee shall forthwith notify the chairman or secretary of the committee of such ward, who shall forthwith call a meeting of said committee, which may nominate candidates for all offices for which nomination papers have not been filed, and shall immediately file with the secretary of the city committee nomination papers signed by all the members of the committee who agree to the nominations therein made. In case of disagreement two sets of such nomination papers may be filed. If, at the expiration of two week days after the time at which nomination papers were opened, proper nomination papers have not been filed for all the offices to be filled, or upon any vacancy caused by death or otherwise, except a withdrawal, the chairman and secretary of the city committee may file nomination papers for such offices or vacancies.

Ward committee may nominate.

Two sets of papers may be filed in case of disagreement, etc.

Section 169. If, in a town, nomination papers placing persons in nomination for all the offices to be filled at a caucus are not filed, or upon a vacancy by death or otherwise, except a withdrawal, the chairman or secretary of the town committee shall forthwith call a meeting of said committee, which shall have all the powers relative to the nomination of candidates conferred in the preceding section upon a ward committee and the chairman and secretary of a city committee.

Proceedings in towns when papers are not filed, etc.

Section 170. A person who is nominated by a nomination paper may, within forty-eight week-day hours succeeding five o'clock of the day fixed for opening nomination papers, withdraw his name from nomination by a request in writing signed by him with his own hand and filed with the secretary of the city or town committee. Thereupon, the secretary shall immediately give notice of such withdrawal and of the provisions of this section to the person who filed such nomination paper, and such person may, within twenty-four week-day hours succeeding five o'clock of the last day fixed for making withdrawals, present a new name on a nomination paper signed by himself with his own hand; otherwise the chairman and secretary of the city or town committee may file nomination papers for the vacancy. If at any time subsequent to the expiration of the time for filling vacancies it shall appear that a vacancy has been created by death, the chairman of the city or town committee may file with the city or town clerk a new name to fill such vacancy; and if the time is sufficient therefor, the new name shall be printed upon the official ballot.

Withdrawals.

Filling of vacancies.

Certain vacancies caused by death, how filled, etc.

Section 171. Not less than seven week days before the day upon which the caucuses are to be held and before five o'clock in the afternoon of the last day, the secretary of each city or town committee shall deliver to the city or town clerk the nomination papers filed with him.

Nomination papers to be delivered to city or town clerk.

Correction of errors, etc.

SECTION 172. If an error or informality is found in any nomination paper, it shall be forthwith returned to the secretary of the committee by whom it was filed, for correction; and if it is not corrected and again filed before five o'clock in the afternoon of the day following its return to said secretary, it shall be void.

Objections to nomination papers, etc., by whom considered.

SECTION 173. Objections to nomination papers, and all other questions relating thereto, shall be considered in cities by the board of registrars, the city clerk and the city solicitor; and in towns by the board of registrars.

Cities and towns to provide ballots, etc.

SECTION 174. Ballots for each political and municipal party, ballot boxes, voting lists, specimen ballots, blank forms and apparatus, seals and record books, shall be provided and treated in accordance with the provisions of sections one hundred and four to one hundred and nine, inclusive, so far as is applicable, except as follows: The chairman and secretary of the city or town committee may determine the number of ballots to be provided for each ward or town, not exceeding one for each voter therein. If they fail so to do, the city or town clerk shall determine the number.

Number of ballots, how determined.

Form of official ballot, etc.

SECTION 175. On the back and outside of each ballot when folded shall be printed the words "Official ballot of the (here shall be inserted the party name)", followed by the number of the precinct and ward or the name of the town for which the ballot is prepared, the date of the caucus and a facsimile of the signature of the secretary of the political committee.

Ballots shall be printed on white paper.

Names of candidates for caucus officers shall be arranged in groups in the order in which they are filed.

Against the name of a candidate for an elective or caucus office shall be printed the street and number, if any, of his residence.

A star (*) against a name shall indicate that a person is a candidate for re-election.

Certain provisions of law to apply.

SECTION 176. Caucuses, except as herein otherwise provided, shall be held in general accordance with the provisions of law for the conduct of elections and the manner of voting thereat.

Order of business.

SECTION 177. The order of business shall be as follows: —

First, Any necessary preliminary business.

Second, Balloting until half-past eight o'clock in the evening, when the polls shall be closed unless the caucus shall vote to keep them open until a later hour; but every voter waiting in line at the hour for closing the polls shall be allowed to vote.

Third, After the polls have been closed, any other business which is properly before the caucus.

Challenging of voters, etc.

Section 178. If the right of a person offering to vote is challenged for any legal cause, the presiding officer shall require him, or some one in his behalf, to write his name and residence on the outside of the ballot offered, and before it is received the presiding officer shall add thereto the name of the person challenging and the cause alleged for the challenge; but no caucus officer shall receive any ballot which by law he is required to refuse. No officer or other person shall give any information in regard to a ballot cast by a challenged voter unless required by law so to do.

Counting of ballots, etc.

Section 179. Immediately after the polls have been declared closed, but not before, the ballots shall be counted in full view of the voters. When they have been counted and the result has been ascertained, the presiding officer shall make public announcement thereof in open meeting, and the clerk shall, in open meeting, enter in words at length in the record book, the total number of names checked on the voting list, the total number of ballots cast, the names of all persons voted for, the number of votes for each person, and the title of the office for which he was a candidate. The clerk shall forthwith make a copy of said record, certify and seal the same, and transmit it to the city or town clerk. He shall then, before the adjournment of the caucus, and in the presence of those who counted the same, seal up all ballots cast, with the voting lists used, and a statement of any challenge which may have been made.

Clerk to make copy of record, seal up ballots, etc.

Package to be indorsed and transmitted to city or town clerk, etc.

The warden and clerk shall indorse upon such package the name of the political party holding the caucus, its date, its purpose, and, if in a city, for what ward the ballots were cast. The warden shall forthwith transmit, by the officer detailed to attend the caucus, to the city or town clerk, the ballots cast, the voting lists, the ballot boxes, the ballot box seals, the counting apparatus, the copy of the records, and the record book.

Sealed packages to be kept, etc.

The city or town clerk shall safely keep such sealed packages for ten days. If within said time ten voters entitled to vote in said caucus file with them a written request so to do, they shall preserve said ballots and voting lists for three months and shall produce them if required by any court having jurisdiction or authority over the same.

Certified copy of voting list as checked may be furnished.

Section 180. The city or town clerk, upon written application signed by at least ten voters of a ward or town, for a copy of a list as checked, may open the envelope containing the voting list used at any caucus in such ward or town and shall furnish to them a certified copy thereof as checked.

Recount of ballots, etc.

Section 181. If before five o'clock in the afternoon of the second day next succeeding the day of any caucus, ten or more voters of any town or ward shall sign, adding thereto their respective residences on the first day of April of that year, and file with the city or town clerk, a statement under oath that the records and returns made by the caucus officers of such town or ward are erroneous, specifying the error, or that challenged votes were cast by persons not entitled to vote therein, said city or town clerk shall forthwith transmit such statement to the registrars of voters with the sealed package containing the ballots and voting lists, and said registrars shall give notice in writing to the person affected, fixing a place and time, as early as may be, at which said ballots will be recounted and at such place and time shall open the packages containing the ballots and voting lists and recount said ballots and determine the questions raised, and shall reject any challenged vote cast by a person found not to have been entitled to vote; and such recount shall stand as the true result of the vote cast in such caucus. Each candidate affected may be present during such recount, or may be represented by an agent appointed by him in writing. If it shall appear upon a recount that persons were nominated or elected other than those declared to have been nominated or elected, certificates of such change shall be made as in the case of the original certificate.

Caucus officers, election, etc.

Section 182. At the caucus held for the choice of candidates for a city or town election there shall be chosen annually a warden, a clerk, and at least five inspectors, and, in wards having more than five precincts, such additional inspectors as the city committee of the political party whose caucuses are to be held may determine. They shall be voters of the ward or town in which they are elected and members of the political party whose caucus is to be held. No person shall be eligible to the position of warden or clerk or inspector who is a state, county or city employee, or who is a member of a ward or town committee, and no person shall serve as a caucus officer at any caucus wherein he is a candidate for a nomination to an elective office. Every caucus officer shall hold office for one year, beginning with the first day of the month succeeding his election, and until his successor is elected. He shall, before entering upon the performance of his duties, be sworn to the faithful performance thereof by the warden, clerk, or a justice of the peace, and a record of such oath shall be made upon the record book of such caucus. The respective duties of caucus officers shall be in general the same as are required of election officers at elections.

Term of office, oath, etc.

Duties.

Section 183. A majority of the caucus officers present at a caucus, may fill temporary vacancies and elect additional officers to serve in that caucus only. Such temporary officers shall be duly sworn. Permanent vacancies shall be filled by a majority vote of all the caucus officers.

Vacancies, additional officers, etc.

Section 184. A city or town committee of a political party which has adopted the provisions of law for the use of official ballots shall, at least ten days before holding any caucus thereunder, appoint caucus officers in each ward, town, or voting precinct in cities and towns where elections or caucuses are held in such precincts, to serve at the first caucus to be held thereafter.

Appointment of officers to serve at first caucus.

Section 185. In a newly incorporated city, or upon a re-division into wards of a city to which the said provisions apply, the caucus officers to serve in the first caucuses held in the next succeeding year shall be appointed by the city committee; and at such caucuses the regular caucus officers shall be chosen. Where additional polling places are provided, after the election of caucus officers, officers to act in such polling places shall be appointed by the city committee.

In a newly incorporated city or a re-division into wards, etc.

PROVISIONS APPLYING TO CAUCUSES OTHER THAN THOSE OF POLITICAL PARTIES.

Section 186. A caucus of the voters, or of a specified portion thereof in a ward of a city, or in a town, may be called and held for the nomination of candidates to be voted for at any city election, or at any election of town officers for which official ballots are used, or for the selection of delegates to a convention, or for the appointment of a committee. A like caucus in any representative district may be held for the nomination of a candidate for representative in the general court. The proceedings of such caucuses shall be invalid unless at least twenty-five voters participate and vote therein. Except as provided in this section, no caucus or meeting other than those of political parties shall be entitled to nominate a candidate whose name shall be placed on the official ballot, or to select delegates to a political convention for the nomination of a candidate whose name shall be placed on such ballot.

At least twenty-five voters to participate in certain caucuses.

Entitled to nominate, etc.

Notice of caucus, etc.

SECTION 187. The notice for a caucus under the preceding section shall be written or printed, shall state the place where, and the day and hour when, said caucus is to be held, shall be issued at least seven days prior thereto, and shall be conspicuously posted in at least five places on lines of public travel, and, if practicable, in every post office within the city or town, or shall be published at least twice in one or more local newspapers. Said notice shall be signed by one or more voters of the ward, town or district for which the caucus is called, and shall designate by name or office the person who shall call such caucus to order, and he shall preside until a chairman is chosen. In his absence, the caucus may choose a temporary chairman. The first business in order shall be the organization of the caucus by the choice of a chairman, a secretary, and such other officers as the meeting may require. The persons receiving the highest number of votes shall be declared elected or nominated. The caucus may adopt regulations not inconsistent with this act.

First business, etc.

To vote by ballot upon written request, etc.

SECTION 188. Upon the written request of ten or more voters present at a caucus and entitled to vote therein, presented by motion or otherwise to the presiding officer for the time being, at any time before the choice of the officer to which it relates, any candidate, delegate or member of a political committee, and unless the caucus votes otherwise, the chairman of the caucus, shall be elected by ballot. In balloting, the voting lists furnished under section sixty-seven shall be used as check lists.

Preservation of ballots and voting lists, etc.

SECTION 189. The secretary of a caucus held under the provisions of the three preceding sections shall, at the request in writing of ten voters entitled to vote in the caucus, preserve all ballots cast and voting lists used therein for three months, and shall produce the same if required by any court, board, convention or other tribunal having jurisdiction thereof.

NOMINATION OF CANDIDATES.

Nomination of candidates.

Section 190. Except as provided in this act, no nominations of candidates for public office shall be made and no political committee or delegates to conventions shall be elected.

Certain nominations not to be made by primaries or caucuses.

Section 191. No nomination of a candidate to be voted for in an electoral district or division containing more than one town or more than one ward of a city, shall be made by primaries or caucuses, except where such candidate is to be nominated by direct plurality vote.

Nominations by primaries, caucuses and conventions.

Section 192. Each party may, at primaries, caucuses or conventions held in accordance with the provisions of this act, make as many nominations of candidates for each office as there are persons to be elected thereto, and no more, and shall be entitled to have the names of such candidates placed upon the official ballot. A party may make a nomination for an office to be filled by election in the commonwealth, or in any district, county, city, town or ward, when at the five preceding annual elections it polled in the commonwealth, or in such district, county, city, town or ward, respectively, a number of votes for governor equal to the number of voters required to nominate by nomination papers a candidate for the office so to be filled.

Nominations by certain parties.

Such party shall be entitled to have the names of all candidates so nominated placed upon the official ballot upon filing a certificate of nomination as hereinafter provided.

May have names of candidates placed upon official ballot.

Certain candidates to be nominated by direct plurality vote.

Section 193. The nomination of candidates of political parties for all offices to be filled at a state election, excepting the office of presidential elector, shall be by direct plurality vote in primaries, and the candidates of political parties for elective city offices to be voted for in two or more wards, except in Boston, and in other cities when city charters provide otherwise, shall be nominated by direct plurality vote in primaries or caucuses.

Persons receiving the highest number of votes to be the candidates nominated.

The persons who in the aggregate of all the ballots cast at such primaries or caucuses in each district for the several candidates shall receive the highest number of votes shall be the candidates nominated.

Candidates whose names are not printed on a state primary ballot to file acceptances.

No person whose name is not printed on a state primary ballot as a candidate for nomination for any office shall be entitled to have his name printed on the ballot to be used at a state election as a candidate for that office unless he files in the office of the secretary of the commonwealth, before the last hour for filing nominations for the office for which the candidate is nominated, a written acceptance of the nomination.

Certain provisions of law to apply.

Section 194. All provisions of law relative to the preparation of nomination papers and ballots, to primaries, caucuses and elections, to ballots cast at primaries, caucuses and elections, to recounts of such ballots, shall, so far as they are applicable, apply to caucuses held for direct nominations.

Calling and holding of conventions.

Section 195. No convention to nominate candidates shall be called for or held on a date earlier than four days after the holding of the caucuses for the choice of delegates thereto, and all such conventions shall be called for and held on a date not later than forty-eight hours prior to the hour for filing certificates of nomination as provided in section two hundred and three.

Returns of precinct caucuses, tabulation, etc.

Section 196. The clerk of a city or town wherein caucuses are held by precincts or by groups of precincts in any one ward, immediately upon receipt of the returns from the caucus officers, which shall be made as provided in section one hundred and seventy-nine, shall tabulate and determine the results thereof, and issue proper certificates to the successful candidates.

Certificate of nomination: contents, signatures and oath of officers, etc.

Section 197. Every certificate of nomination shall state such facts as are required by section two hundred and one and except in cases of direct nomination for a district comprising more than one ward, and except where caucuses are held in one precinct or by groups of precincts in any ward, shall be signed by the presiding officer and by the secretary of the caucus, who shall add to their signatures their residences, and shall make oath to the truth thereof. The secretary of the caucus shall within the seventy-two hours succeeding five o'clock in the afternoon of the day upon which the caucus was held and within the time specified in section two hundred and three file such certificate as hereinafter provided.

Secretary to file certificate.

Nomination papers, number of signatures.

Section 198. Nominations of candidates for any offices to be filled by all the voters of the commonwealth may be made by nomination papers, stating the facts required by section two hundred and one and signed in the aggregate by not less than one thousand voters for each candidate. Nominations of all other candidates for offices to be filled at a state election, and of all candidates for offices to be filled at a city election, except in Boston, and in other cities where city charters provide otherwise, may be made by like nomination papers, signed in the aggregate, for each candidate, by two voters for every one hundred votes cast for governor at the preceding annual state election in the electoral district or division for which the officers are to be elected, but in no case by less than fifty nor more than one thousand qualified voters. In Boston the nomination of candidates for any municipal elective office to be voted for at the municipal election in said city shall be made by nomination papers, prepared and issued by the election commissioners, signed in person by at least five thousand registered voters in said city qualified to vote for such candidates at said election. Nominations of candidates for offices to be filled at a town election may be made by nomination papers signed by at least one voter for every fifty votes polled for governor at the preceding annual state election in such town, but in no case by less than twenty voters. At a first election to be held in a newly established ward of a city, the number of voters upon a nomination paper of a candidate who is to be voted for only in such ward need not exceed fifty; and at a first election in a town the number for the nomination of a candidate who is to be voted for only in such town need not exceed twenty.

Nomination papers, number of signatures.

Section 199. Every voter who signs a nomination paper shall sign it in person, with his full surname, his Christian name and the initial of every other name which he may have, and shall add his residence on the previous first day of April and the place where he is then living, with the street and number thereof, if any, to his signature; but any voter who is prevented by a physical disability from writing or who had the right to vote on the first day of May in the year eighteen hundred and fifty-seven, may authorize some person to write his name and residence in his presence; and every voter may sign as many nomination papers for each office to be filled as there are persons to be elected thereto, and no more. Women who are qualified to vote may sign nomination papers for candidates for the school committee. Every nomination paper shall, before being filed, be seasonably submitted to the registrars of the city or town in which the signers appear to be voters, and in Boston to the election commissioners, who shall forthwith certify thereon the number of signatures which are names of voters both in the city or town and in the district or division for which the nomination is made. They need not certify a greater number of names than are required to make a nomination, with one fifth of such number added thereto. Names not certified in the first instance shall not thereafter be certified on the same nomination papers. The secretary of the commonwealth shall not be required in any case to file nomination papers for a candidate after filing such papers containing a sufficient number of certified names to make a nomination, with one fifth of such number added thereto.

One of the signers to make oath, etc.

One of the signers to each nomination paper shall make oath to the truth of the statements therein, and the certification of such oath and the post office address of the signer shall be annexed to such paper.

Magistrates to satisfy themselves as to identity of person making oath, etc.

Section 200. A notary public, justice of the peace or other magistrate, when taking the oath of a signer of a nomination paper, shall satisfy himself that the person to whom the oath is administered is the person signing such nomination paper, and shall so state in his attestation of said oath.

Certificates of nomination and nomination papers, contents, etc.

Section 201. All certificates of nomination and nomination papers shall, in addition to the names of candidates, specify as to each: (1) his residence with street and number thereof, if any; (2) the office for which he is nominated; and (3), except in the city of Boston, in other cities where city charters provide otherwise and as hereinafter provided, the party or political principle which he represents, expressed in not more than three words. Certificates of nomination shall also state what provision, if any, was made by the caucus for filling vacancies caused by the death, withdrawal or ineligibility of candidates. The names of the candidates for president and vice president of the United States may be added to the party or political designation of the candidates for presidential electors. To the name of each candidate for the office of alderman at large shall be added the number of the ward in which he resides.

Designation in certain cases.

If a candidate is nominated otherwise than by a political party, the name of a political party shall not be used in his political designation, except as describing and preceding some other name or term which shall not be the name of any party which cast at the last preceding election more than three thousand votes for governor; and if so used in case of a candidate nominated by a nomination paper, the political designation shall consist of not more than two words and shall not be changed after having been placed upon the paper. Certificates of nomination and nomination papers for town offices may or may not include a designation of the party or principle which the candidate represents. If a candidate receives the nomination of a political party, and fails to withdraw therefrom, the name of any other political party shall not be used in his political designation unless he shall have received the regular nomination of such other political party.

Certificates of nomination and nomination papers to be filed, etc.

Section 202. Certificates of nomination and nomination papers for state offices shall be filed with the secretary of the commonwealth. Certificates of nomination or nomination papers for city and town offices shall be filed with the city or town clerk, in Boston with the election commissioners. Every nomination paper shall be filed by a responsible person, who shall with his own hand sign such paper and add to his signature his place of residence, giving street and number, if any; and the secretary of the commonwealth or the city or town clerk shall require a satisfactory identification of such person. No nomination paper shall be received or be valid unless the written acceptance of the candidate thereby nominated shall be filed therewith.

Acceptance to be filed with nomination paper.

Last days for filing with secretary of the commonwealth.

Section 203. Certificates of nomination of candidates for offices to be filled by all the voters of the commonwealth, except for presidential electors, shall be filed on or before the fifth Monday, and of all other candidates for offices to be filled at a state election, including presidential electors, on or before the third Thursday, and nomination papers of all candidates for offices to be filled at a state election, on or before the fourth Monday, preceding the day of the election; but if there is a special election to fill any state office, certificates of nomination shall be filed on or before the twelfth day, and nomination papers on or before the eleventh day, preceding the day of such election.

In certain cities.

In cities, except where city charters provide otherwise, certificates of nomination for city offices shall be filed on or before the third Monday, and nomination papers on or before the second Wednesday preceding the day of the election.

In Boston.

In Boston, nomination papers for all municipal offices shall be filed on or before the twenty-fifth day prior to the municipal election.

Last days for filing in towns.

In towns, certificates of nomination for town offices shall be filed on or before the second Wednesday, and nomination papers, on or before the second Thursday, preceding the day of the election; but if such Wednesday or Thursday falls on a legal holiday, said certificates of nomination or nomination papers shall be filed on or before the succeeding day; but if a town election is held on a day of the week other than Monday, such certificates of nomination and nomination papers shall be filed respectively on or before the twelfth and eleventh days preceding the day of the election.

Last hour for filing.

Certificates of nomination and nomination papers shall be filed before five o'clock in the afternoon of the last day fixed for the filing thereof.

Nominations valid unless objected to, time of filing, etc.

Section 204. When certificates of nomination and nomination papers have been filed, and are in apparent conformity with law, they shall be valid unless objections thereto are made in writing. Such objections to nominations of candidates for state offices shall be filed with the secretary of the commonwealth, for city offices with the city clerk, or in Boston with the election commissioners, and for town offices with the town clerk; and in the case of state offices within the seventy-two week-day hours, in the case of city offices, except in Boston, and in other cities where city charters provide otherwise, within the forty-eight week-day hours, and in the case of town offices within the twenty-four week-day hours, succeeding five o'clock in the afternoon of the last day fixed for the filing of nomination papers for such offices. In Boston such objections shall be filed on or before five o'clock P.M. on the fourteenth day preceding the city election.

In Boston.

Objections, etc., by whom considered.

Section 205. Objections to nominations for state offices, and all other questions relating thereto, shall be considered by the state ballot law commission; to nominations for city offices, except in Boston, by the board of registrars, the city clerk and the city solicitor; in Boston, by the ballot law commission of said city; and to nominations for town offices, by the board of registrars.

May summon witnesses, etc.

The boards constituted in cities and towns may, at hearings on such objections and questions, summon witnesses, administer oaths and require the production of books and papers. Such witnesses shall be summoned in the same manner, be paid the same fees, and be subject to the same penalties for default, as witnesses before the superior court. A summons may be signed, and an oath may be administered by any member of such board, and the decision of a majority of the members thereof shall be final.

Notice to candidates and committees.

When such objection has been filed, notice thereof shall be forthwith mailed by the secretary of the commonwealth, or by the city or town clerk, or election commissioners, respectively, to the candidates affected thereby, addressed to their residences as given in the certificates of nomination or nomination papers, and to any party committee interested in the nomination to which objection is made.

Determination when several candidates have same designation.

If more candidates bearing the same designation are nominated for an office, otherwise than by nomination papers, than are to be elected thereto, such boards shall determine the candidates, if any, entitled to such designation.

Withdrawal of names of candidates.

Section 206. A person nominated as a candidate for any state, city or town office may withdraw his name from nomination by a request in writing signed by him and acknowledged before a justice of the peace and filed with the officer with whom the nomination was filed, in the case of a state office within the seventy-two week-day hours, in the case of a city office, except in Boston, and in other cities where city charters provide otherwise, within the forty-eight week-day hours, and in the case of a town office within the twenty-four week-day hours, succeeding five o'clock in the afternoon of the last day fixed for the filing of nomination papers for such office. In Boston, such withdrawals shall be filed on or before five o'clock P.M. on the fourteenth day preceding the city election.

Nomination in case of death, withdrawal, etc.

Section 207. If a candidate nominated for a state, city or town office dies before the day of election, or withdraws his name from nomination, or is found to be ineligible, the vacancy for a city office in Boston may be filled by a committee of not less than five persons, or a majority thereof, if such committee be named, and so authorized in the nomination papers, and the vacancy for a state, city or town office elsewhere, except for city office where city charters provide otherwise, may be filled by the same political party or persons who made the original nomination, and in the same manner; or, if the time is insufficient therefor, the vacancy may be filled, if the nomination was made by a convention or caucus, in such manner as the convention or caucus may have prescribed, or, if no such provision has been made, by a regularly elected general or executive committee representing the political party or persons who held such convention or caucus. In the event of the withdrawal or death of any candidate of a political party nominated by direct nomination for any office, the vacancy may be filled by a regularly elected general or executive committee representing the election district in which such vacancy occurs, or, if no such committee exists, by the members of the ward and town committees in the wards and towns comprising such district. If a vacancy is caused by withdrawal, certificates of nomination made otherwise than in the original manner shall be filed within seventy-two week-day hours in the case of state offices, or within forty-eight week-day hours in the case of city or town offices, succeeding five o'clock in the afternoon of the last day for filing withdrawals, except that in Boston all substitutions to fill vacancies caused by withdrawal or ineligibility shall be filed with the election commissioners on or before five o'clock P.M. on the twelfth day preceding the city election. They shall be open to objections in the same manner, so far as practicable, as other certificates of nomination. No vacancy caused by withdrawal shall be filed before the withdrawal has been filed.

Time of filing.

Objections.

No vacancy to be filled before withdrawal has been filed.

Certificate in case of nomination to fill vacancy.

Section 208. When a nomination is made to fill a vacancy caused by the death, withdrawal or ineligibility of a candidate, the certificate of nomination shall, in addition to the other facts required, state the name of the original nominee, the fact of his death, withdrawal or ineligibility, and the proceedings had for filling the vacancy; and the presiding officer and secretary of the convention or caucus, or the chairman and secretary of an authorized committee, shall sign and make oath to the truth of the certificate, and it shall be accompanied by the written acceptance of the candidate nominated.

To be accompanied by written acceptance.

Certificates, etc., public inspection, preservation, etc.

Section 209. Certificates of nomination, nomination papers, objections thereto and withdrawals, when filed, shall, under proper regulations, be open to public inspection, and the secretary of the commonwealth and the several city and town clerks, and in Boston the election commissioners, shall preserve the same in their respective offices for one year.

Blanks for nomination.

Section 210. The secretary of the commonwealth shall, upon application, provide blank forms for the nomination of candidates for all state offices; and he shall send blank forms for certificates of nomination for the office of representative in the general court to the clerk of each city and town for the use of any caucus or convention other than of political parties held therein for the nomination of candidates for that office. He shall likewise provide the clerks of towns wherein official ballots are used with blank forms for the nomination of candidates for town offices.

STATE BALLOT LAW COMMISSION.

State ballot law commission, appointment, term, etc.

Section 211. There shall be a state ballot law commission consisting of three persons, one of whom shall annually in June or July be appointed by the governor with the advice and consent of the council, for a term of three years from the succeeding first day of August. The governor with the advice and consent of the council may remove any member of the commission or fill any vacancy therein for the remainder of the unexpired term. There shall always be on said commission a member of each of the two leading political parties.

Not to hold certain other public office, etc.

Section 212. No member of said commission shall hold any public office except that of justice of the peace or notary public, or be a candidate for public office, or member or employee of any political committee. If any member of the commission shall be nominated as a candidate for public office and shall not in writing decline said nomination within three days, he shall be deemed to have vacated his office as a member of said commission.

May summon witnesses, administer oaths, etc.

Section 213. The state ballot law commission may summon witnesses, and administer to them oaths, and may require the production of books and papers at a hearing before it upon any matter within its jurisdiction. Witnesses shall be summoned in the same manner, be paid the same fees, and be subject to the same penalties as witnesses summoned before the general court. A summons may be signed and an oath may be administered by any member of said commission.

Decision to be final.

Section 214. The decision of a majority of the members of the commission upon any matter within its jurisdiction shall be final.

Compensation.

Section 215. The members of the state ballot law commission shall each be paid such compensation for their services, not exceeding five hundred dollars annually, as the governor and council may determine; and the total expenditures by and on account of said commission shall not exceed the sum of two thousand dollars in any one year.

PART III.

WARDS AND VOTING PRECINCTS.

Wards, new division of cities into.

SECTION 216. A city may, in the year nineteen hundred and fifteen, and in every tenth year thereafter, before the first day of July, by vote of its city council, make a new division of its territory into such number of wards as may be fixed by law. The boundaries of such wards shall be so arranged that the wards shall contain, as nearly as can be ascertained and as may be consistent with well-defined limits to each ward, an equal number of voters. The city clerk shall forthwith give notice in writing to the secretary of the commonwealth of the number and designations of the wards so established.

Secretary of the commonwealth to be notified.

Voting precincts, designation, etc.

SECTION 217. Each city shall be divided into convenient voting precincts, designated by numbers or letters and containing not more than one thousand voters.

Division of wards into voting precincts, time, boundaries, etc.

Every ward shall constitute a voting precinct by itself, or shall be divided into such precincts. If a ward constituting one precinct contains less than one thousand voters, according to the registration of voters at the preceding annual city election, the aldermen may, and if it contains more than one thousand voters, shall, on or before the first Monday of July, divide it into two or more voting precincts. If a voting precinct shall, in any year, according to such registration, contain more than one thousand voters, the aldermen shall in like manner either divide such precinct into two or more voting precincts or shall make a new division of the ward into voting precincts; so that no precinct shall contain more than one thousand voters. Such precincts shall be so established as to contain, as nearly as may be, an equal number of voters, shall consist of compact and contiguous territory entirely within one ward, and be bounded, so far as possible, by the centre line of known streets or ways or by other well-defined limits.

Voting precincts under new division of wards.

SECTION 218. On or before the first Monday of September in the year of a re-division of a city into wards, the aldermen shall divide such city into voting precincts, conformably to the provisions of the preceding section.

New division, when to take effect.

SECTION 219. For all elections in the year of a re-division of a city into wards, and in cities where annual municipal elections are held prior to such re-division for the annual municipal election in the succeeding year, for a special election held prior to the annual state election in the next succeeding year, and for the assessment of taxes, the wards as existing previous to such re-division shall continue, and for such purposes the election officers shall be appointed and hold office, and voting lists shall be prepared, and all other things required by law shall be done as if no such re-division had been made. For all other purposes the new division shall take effect on the first day of July of the year when it is made.

Map or description of new precincts to be published and posted, etc.

Section 220. When a ward has been divided into new voting precincts, or the voting precincts thereof have been changed, the aldermen shall forthwith cause a map or description of the division to be published, in which the new precincts shall be designated by numbers or letters and shall be defined clearly and, so far as possible, by known boundaries; and they shall cause such map or description to be posted in at least ten public places in each precinct of a ward so divided, and copies thereof furnished to the registrars of voters, in Boston to the election commissioners, and the assessors, and to the election officers of each precinct so established.

Voting precincts in towns, duty of selectmen.

Section 221. A town may direct its selectmen to prepare a division of the town into convenient voting precincts. The selectmen shall, so far as possible, make the centre line of streets or ways, or other well-defined limits, the boundaries of the proposed precincts, and shall designate them by numbers or letters. They shall, within sixty days, file a report of their doings with the town clerk, with a map or description of the proposed precincts, and with a statement of the number of male voters registered in each for the preceding annual election. The report shall be presented by the town clerk at the next succeeding town meeting, but it shall not be acted upon except at a meeting called for the purpose, and held at least seven days after the report has been filed. The division so reported may be amended at such meeting, and shall take effect when adopted. Elections of state officers held in such town more than sixty days after such action shall be held in the precincts so established. If such report shall be rejected the town may at any time direct the selectmen to prepare a new division.

Report to be presented by town clerk at town meeting, etc.

Changes may be made in voting precincts.

Section 222. A town may make any change in its voting precincts which the selectmen shall have recommended in a statement giving the boundaries, the designations of the proposed precincts and the number of voters registered in each for the preceding annual state or town election, filed with the town clerk at least seven days before a town meeting called for the purpose; but no changes other than those so proposed by the selectmen shall be made at such meeting.

Map or description to be posted, etc.

Section 223. When a town has been divided into voting precincts or the voting precincts thereof have been changed, the selectmen shall post in the office of the town clerk and in at least three public places in each new precinct a map or description in which the new precincts shall be designated by numbers or letters, and defined clearly and, so far as possible, by known boundaries; and they shall also furnish copies thereof to the registrars of voters and the assessors of such town, and to the election officers of each precinct so established.

Voting precincts may be discontinued, etc.

Section 224. Any town may, at a meeting called for the purpose, discontinue its voting precincts; and subsequent elections therein shall be held as if no such division had been made. But it may, in any subsequent year, establish voting precincts as hereinbefore provided.

Secretary of the commonwealth to be notified.

Section 225. When wards of a city have been changed or when voting precincts in a city or town have been established, changed or discontinued, the city or town clerk shall forthwith give a notice thereof in writing to the secretary of the commonwealth, stating the number and designation of such wards or such voting precincts and in a city the wards in which they are situated.

ELECTION OFFICERS.

Election officers in certain cities, appointment, etc.

Section 226. The mayor of every city, except Boston, and other cities where city charters provide otherwise, shall annually, with the approval of the board of aldermen, appoint as election officers for each voting precinct, one warden, one deputy warden, one clerk, one deputy clerk, four inspectors and four deputy inspectors, who shall, at the time of their appointment, be qualified voters in the ward of which such precinct forms a part. He may, in like manner, appoint two inspectors and two deputy inspectors in addition. Every such nomination shall be filed in the office of the city clerk of such city in the month of August, and on or before the thirty-first day of said month, and shall be acted upon by the board of aldermen not less than three days after the filing of such nomination and on or before the second Monday in September following. Such nomination shall be open to public inspection. In cities in which the board of aldermen or the board having the powers of a board of aldermen has accepted or hereafter accepts the provisions of this section the following election officers shall not be appointed: — deputy warden, deputy clerk and deputy inspectors. Deputy warden, clerk and inspectors not to be appointed in certain cities.

In Boston the election officers as aforesaid shall be appointed by the election commissioners except that no deputy election officers shall be appointed. In Boston.

Section 227. The selectmen of every town divided into voting precincts shall annually, between the first and fifteenth day of August, appoint as election officers for each voting precinct, one warden, one deputy warden, one clerk, one deputy clerk, two inspectors and two deputy inspectors, who shall be voters of the precinct. They may, in like manner, appoint two inspectors and two deputy inspectors in addition. In towns divided into voting precincts.

Section 228. Such election officers shall be so appointed as equally to represent the two leading political parties, except that, without disturbing the equal representation of such parties, not more than two of such election officers not representing either of them may be appointed. The warden shall be of a different political party from the clerk, and not more than one half of the inspectors shall be of the same political party. In each case the principal officer and his deputy shall be of the same political party. Every election officer shall hold office for one year, beginning with the fifteenth day of September succeeding his appointment, and until his successor is appointed and qualified, or until his removal. An election officer may be removed by the mayor, with the approval of the aldermen, or by the selectmen, in Boston by the election commissioners, after a hearing, upon written charge of incompetence or official misconduct preferred by the city or town clerk, in Boston by the election commissioners, or by not less than six voters of the ward, or, in a town, of the voting precinct in which the officer is appointed to act. Election officers to equally represent the two leading political parties, except, etc. Term of office. May be removed.

Section 229. In Boston, the election commissioners may upon the day of any election therein, forthwith remove any election officer found to be incompetent or so conducting himself as to prejudice the public interest, and appoint some other person of the same political party in his place; and the officer so removed shall receive no compensation for services rendered on such day, and shall be disqualified for appointment as an election officer for one year thereafter. Removal of election officers in Boston on the day of an election.

Filling of vacancies in the number of election officers.

SECTION 230. If a vacancy in the number of the election officers occurs before the twentieth day of September in any year, or, in a city, after the annual state election and one week at least before the annual city election, or if an election officer declines his appointment and gives notice thereof to the city or town clerk, or in Boston to the election commissioners, before the twentieth day of September, or, if at a special election the office of an election officer is vacant, the mayor, with the approval of the aldermen, or the selectmen, shall fill the vacancy; and the appointment shall be so made as to preserve the equal representation of the two leading political parties. Appointments to fill vacancies may be acted upon immediately by the board of aldermen. In Boston such vacancies shall be filled by the election commissioners.

Candidates not eligible to act as election officers in certain cases.

SECTION 231. No person shall, at a state, city or town election, be eligible or act as an election officer in a voting precinct in which he is a candidate for election; and if a person who has been appointed an election officer becomes such a candidate, and does not forthwith resign his office, the mayor or selectmen, in Boston the election commissioners, shall, if he is a candidate at a state election, remove him from office before the first day of November, or, if he is a candidate at a city election, the mayor, in Boston the election commissioners, shall so remove him at least eight days before the day of the election, or if he is a candidate at a town election the selectmen shall remove him before the election.

Deputy to act in certain cases, etc.

SECTION 232. If a warden, clerk or inspector is absent at the opening of the polls or subsequently on the day of election, or if the office is vacant, the deputy of such officer shall act for that election in his place. If the warden and deputy warden, clerk and deputy clerk, or an inspector and his deputy, shall be absent, the voters of the precinct on nomination and by hand vote shall fill the vacancy, and the officer so elected shall act during the remainder of the election; but otherwise no deputy officer shall act in an official capacity or be admitted to the space reserved for election officers while the polls are open or during the counting of the votes.

In cities where no deputy warden or deputy clerk is appointed, who shall act.

In cities where no deputy warden or deputy clerk is appointed, if a warden or clerk is absent at the opening of the polls or subsequently on the day of election, or if the office is vacant, the senior inspector of the same political party as such warden or clerk shall act as warden or clerk for that election, and the voters of the precinct, on nomination and by hand vote, shall fill the vacancy in the office of inspector.

Ballot clerks of precincts, detail, duties, etc.

Section 233. At state elections in cities and in towns divided into voting precincts, and in city elections, the presiding election officer of each voting place or precinct shall detail two inspectors of different political parties to act as ballot clerks, who shall have charge of the ballots and shall furnish them to voters.

Presiding officer in towns not divided into precincts, etc.

Section 234. The selectmen in towns not divided into voting precincts shall, at meetings for the election of state officers, have the powers of wardens in cities or moderators in towns, and shall act by their chairman or senior member present, who shall be regarded as the presiding election officer.

Ballot clerks in certain towns, appointment, duties.

Section 235. At state elections in towns not divided into voting precincts, and at town elections in towns in which official ballots are used, the selectmen shall, before the opening of the polls, appoint two voters as ballot clerks, who shall have charge of the ballots and shall furnish them to voters. The selectmen or the moderator presiding at such election may subsequently appoint additional ballot clerks, not exceeding one for every four hundred voters and majority fraction thereof, and may likewise fill any vacancy after the opening of the polls. Such ballot clerks shall be so appointed as to represent the two leading political parties as equally as may be, except that such additional ballot clerks may be appointed from voters not representing either of them.

Political representation.

Oath of office of election officers.

Section 236. Every election officer before entering upon the performance of his official duties shall be sworn before the city or town clerk, a justice of the peace, or the presiding officer or clerk at the polls, and a record thereof shall be made. In Boston, the oath, except in case of vacancies filled at the polls, shall be taken before an election commissioner and record thereof made.

Tellers, appointment, duties, etc.

Section 237. Selectmen of towns shall, at least five days before a state or town election, appoint voters as tellers to assist at the ballot box and in checking the names of voters upon the voting lists, and in canvassing and counting the votes. Presiding officers in such towns, at state and town elections, may appoint voters as additional tellers, and they shall do so when requested in writing by ten voters of the town. Tellers appointed at elections at which official ballots are used shall be so appointed that the election officers making and assisting in the canvass and count of votes shall equally represent the two leading political parties.

Political representation.

Election officers, compensation.

Section 238. Election officers shall receive such compensation for each day's actual service as the city council or the selectmen respectively may determine; but no deputy officer shall receive compensation except for attendance at the opening of the polls or for services in place of an absent officer.

City or town clerk pro tempore.

Section 239. If the office of city clerk shall be vacant, or if a city clerk shall be unable to perform the duties required by this act, the mayor shall appoint a clerk pro tempore to perform the duties required hereunder. If the office of town clerk shall be vacant, or a town clerk shall be unable to perform the duties required hereunder, the selectmen shall in writing under their hands, appoint a clerk pro tempore. Such clerk pro tempore shall be sworn to the faithful performance of his duties.

Supervisors of elections, appointment, political representation.

Section 240. The governor, with the advice and consent of the council, shall, upon the petition in writing of ten qualified voters of a ward or of a town, presented to him at least twenty-one days before a state or city election therein, appoint for such ward or town or for each of such voting precincts as may be named in the petition, two voters of the city or town, who shall not be signers of the petition or members of any political committee or candidates for any office, to act as supervisors at such election. One supervisor shall be appointed from each of the two leading political parties.

To be sworn, powers and duties.

They shall be sworn to the faithful performance of their duties by the city or town clerk or by a justice of the peace. The supervisors shall attend the polling places for which they are appointed, may challenge persons offering to vote, and shall witness the conduct of the election and the counting of votes; but they shall not make any statement tending to reveal the state of the polls before the public declaration of the vote. They shall remain where the ballot boxes are kept after the polls are open and until the ballots are sealed for transmission to the officers entitled to receive them. Each supervisor may affix his signature, for the purpose of identification, to the copy of the record of votes cast, or attach thereto any statement touching the truth or fairness or conduct of the election.

Compensation.

Supervisors shall receive such compensation for each day's actual service as the city council or the selectmen may determine.

VOTING PLACES.

Section 241. The aldermen in cities, except where city charters provide otherwise, and the selectmen of every town divided into voting precincts, and in Boston the election commissioners, shall, twenty days at least before the annual state or city election and ten days at least before any special election of a state or city officer therein, designate the polling place for each voting precinct and shall cause it to be suitably fitted up and prepared therefor. In a city or town which has provided voting booths such booths may be placed in the highways of such city or town, provided said highways are left reasonably safe and convenient for public travel. It shall be in a public, orderly and convenient portion of the precinct; but if no such polling place can be had within the precinct, they may designate a polling place in an adjoining precinct. No building or portion of a building shall be designated or used as a polling place in which intoxicating liquor has been sold within the thirty days preceding the day of the election. When the polling places have been designated, the aldermen, and in Boston the election commissioners, shall, in at least five public places in each precinct of the city, and selectmen, in at least three public places in each precinct of the town, forthwith post a printed description of the polling places designated, and may give further notice thereof.

Polling places, designation, preparation, etc.

Voting booths may be placed in highways, etc.

To be conveniently located, etc.

Certain buildings not to be used, etc.

Notice to be given, etc.

Section 242. The board of aldermen or the selectmen, in Boston the election commissioners, shall cause each polling place in their respective cities and towns to be provided with a sufficient number of suitable marking shelves or compartments where voters may conveniently and secretly mark their ballots; and they shall cause a guard rail to be so placed that only persons who are inside thereof can approach within six feet of the ballot boxes or of the marking shelves or compartments. The ballot boxes and the marking shelves or compartments shall be in open view of persons in the polling place outside the guard rail. The number of marking shelves or compartments shall be not less than one for every seventy-five voters at such polling place, and not less than five in any voting precinct of a city, and not less than three in any town or voting precinct thereof. Each marking shelf or compartment shall at all times be provided with proper supplies and conveniences for marking the ballots.

Marking shelves and guard rails to be provided, etc.

Supplies, etc., for marking ballots.

BALLOT BOXES, VOTING MACHINES, COUNTING APPARATUS AND BLANKS.

State ballot boxes and counting apparatus to be provided.

SECTION 243. The secretary of the commonwealth shall, at the expense of the commonwealth, provide every city and town for use at every polling place therein with a state ballot box and counting apparatus approved by the board of voting machine examiners as provided in section two hundred and forty-nine. Ballot boxes shall be purchased by the secretary at a price not exceeding fifty dollars each. The secretary shall likewise provide every city and town for use at each polling place by the election officers in the canvass and count of votes, with suitable blank forms.

Blank forms to be provided.

Blanks and envelopes for returns of votes, etc.

SECTION 244. The secretary of the commonwealth shall provide every city and town with suitable blank forms and envelopes for all certificates, copies of records and returns required to be made at his office, with such printed directions thereon as he may deem necessary; and such other blank forms and suggestions and instructions, as will assist the election officers in the performance of their duties. The clerks of the courts of the several counties shall in like manner provide cities and towns with suitable blank forms and envelopes for all certificates, copies of records and returns required to be made to the county commissioners and boards of examiners.

Ballot boxes, voting machines and counting apparatus, care, repair, etc.

SECTION 245. The clerk of each city or town, in Boston the election commissioners, shall provide therein a place for the safe keeping of the ballot boxes and counting apparatus furnished by the commonwealth, and of voting machines used in such city or town. They shall have the care and custody thereof, and shall see that they are kept in good order and repair. The custody, care and repair of all such voting machines, ballot boxes and apparatus shall be at the expense of the city or town, but shall be subject to the supervision and control of the secretary of the commonwealth, who may, at the expense of the commonwealth, subject to approval as aforesaid, cause necessary improvements to be made in any of such voting machines, ballot boxes or apparatus.

Defective ballot boxes, etc., may be replaced.

SECTION 246. If a state ballot box becomes defective or is lost or destroyed, the secretary of the commonwealth shall, upon application by the clerk of the city or town in which such box is used or by the election commissioners of the city of Boston, provide another ballot box at the expense of such city or town.

Precinct seals, use, custody, etc.

Section 247. The clerk of every city, in Boston the election commissioners, and the clerk of every town divided into voting precincts shall furnish to the clerk of each voting precinct a seal of suitable device, with a designation thereon of such precinct; and such seal shall be used in sealing all envelopes required by law to be used at the elections. The clerk of the precinct shall retain the custody of the seal, and shall, at the end of his term of office, deliver the same, with the records of the precinct and other official documents in his custody, to the city or town clerk, or election commissioners.

Ballot box, apparatus, etc., to be sent to polling place.

Section 248. Every city and town clerk, or in Boston the election commissioners, shall send to the election officers at each polling place, before the opening of the polls on the day of an election or meeting at which the same are required to be used, the ballot box, blank forms and counting and other apparatus.

State ballot law commission to constitute state board of voting machine examiners.

Section 249. The state ballot law commission shall constitute the state board of voting machine examiners and no member of said commission shall have any pecuniary interest, directly or indirectly, in any voting machine, ballot box or counting apparatus. They shall, at such times, under such conditions, and after such public notice as they shall determine, examine voting machines, ballot boxes and counting apparatus, and they shall file with the secretary of the commonwealth their approval in writing of all machines, ballot boxes and counting apparatus which in their judgment conform to the requirements of law, together with such written or printed descriptions, and such drawings, specifications and photographs as will clearly identify such machines, and the secretary of the commonwealth shall send a copy of each report on voting machines to every city and town clerk. For the purpose of such examination the said board may employ not more than three expert machinists at a cost not exceeding ten dollars each for each day employed, to be paid from the appropriation for the expenses of the commission.

Examination and approval of voting machines, ballot boxes and counting apparatus.

Expert machinists may be employed.

Secretary of the commonwealth to be notified if any machine, ballot box or counting apparatus ceases to conform to

If any machine, ballot box or counting apparatus approved and prescribed by said board in accordance with the provisions of this and of the following section shall, in the judgment of the board at any time thereafter, by reason of the enactment of further requirements, cease to conform requirements of law, etc.

to the requirements of law, the board shall notify the secretary of the commonwealth thereof, who shall forthwith send a copy of such notice to every city and town clerk; and no such machine, ballot box or counting apparatus shall be used at any primary or election until, upon examination by said board, it shall in their judgment conform to all the requirements of law, and shall be approved in the manner hereinbefore provided.

Requirements of voting machines.

Section 250. Voting machines shall furnish convenient, simple and satisfactory means of voting at primaries and elections and of ascertaining and recording the true result thereof with facility and accuracy, special regard being given to the prevention and detection of double voting at primaries and elections and to voting for candidates of more than one political party at a primary; but no machine shall be approved which does not secure to the voter as much secrecy in voting as is afforded by the use of the official ballot.

Requirements of ballot boxes.

Ballot boxes shall have sufficient locks and keys or seal fastenings, and shall contain mechanical devices for receiving, registering and cancelling every ballot deposited therein; but no such box shall record any distinguishing number or mark upon the ballot.

Only approved machines, ballot boxes and counting apparatus to be used.

No machine, ballot box or counting apparatus, except such as is approved in accordance with the provisions of this and of the preceding section, shall be used at any election, primary or caucus in this commonwealth; nor shall any such machines, ballot boxes or counting apparatus be used except in accordance with the provisions of this act.

Arrangement of names, etc., on voting machines.

The arrangement of names and questions on voting machines shall be in general the same as on the official ballot, except that when in the judgment of the ballot law commissioners it is not practicable, said commissioners shall determine the arrangement.

Purchase and use of voting machines.

Section 251. The mayor and aldermen of a city, or the body corresponding thereto, or a town, may, at a meeting held at least thirty days before the primary or election at which the voting machines are to be used, determine upon and purchase one or more voting machines approved as provided in section two hundred and forty-nine, and order the use thereof at primaries and elections of state, city or town officers in such city or town; and thereafter at all primaries and elections of state, city or town officers in that city or town, until otherwise ordered by the aldermen in a city, or the board corresponding thereto, and the selectmen in a town, said machines shall be used at primaries and for the purpose of voting for the officers to be elected at such elections and for taking the vote upon the question of granting licenses for the sale of intoxicating liquors and upon other questions submitted to the voters. In Boston, the power to determine upon, purchase and order the use of voting machines shall be vested in a board consisting of the election commissioners and the mayor; and the expense so incurred shall be deemed an expense of the election department of the city; and the machines so purchased shall be used at primaries and elections in that city until otherwise ordered by said commissioners. Machines purchased may be paid for either by appropriation, by the issue and sale of bonds, or by the issue and delivery of certificates of indebtedness or other negotiable obligations, of such amounts and payable at such times as shall be determined by the board or officers purchasing the machines.

How machines purchased may be paid for.

For polling places in which voting machines are to be used no ballot boxes or ballots shall be furnished.

No ballots, etc., to be furnished where machines are used.

Section 252. The body, board or official charged with the conduct of elections in any city or town in which voting machines are used shall, before the opening of the polls at a primary or election, cause each machine to be prepared for use and delivered at the polling place, and shall cause to be done all things necessary to hold the primary or election with machines.

Preparation for use and delivery at polling place.

Section 253. In any election when voting machines are used in any polling place in any city or town, the number of election officers in such polling place may be less than six in the discretion of the board, body or official in which or in whom the authority to determine the number of election officers in such polling place is vested by law, subject, however, to the provisions of section two hundred and twenty-eight.

Election officers when voting machines are used.

Section 254. The ballot law commission shall make regulations for the use of the voting machines, ballot boxes and counting apparatus approved by the board, and suitable instructions for the voters in cities and towns in which such machines, ballot boxes and counting apparatus are used shall be prepared and furnished by the secretary of the commonwealth.

Regulations for use of voting machines, ballot boxes and counting apparatus.

Section 255. No voting machine shall be used at a primary or election until it has been inspected under the direction of the secretary of the commonwealth and found upon such inspection to conform to drawings and specifications to be filed in the office of the secretary by the ballot law commission, with their report on the machine, nor shall any ballot box or counting apparatus be so used until it has been inspected and approved under the direction of the secretary.

Voting machines, ballot boxes and counting apparatus to be inspected, etc.

Persons of whom machines or ballot boxes are purchased to give bond, etc.

Section 256. When voting machines or ballot boxes are purchased by the commonwealth or by a city or town, the person or persons of whom the purchase is made shall give to the secretary of the commonwealth, or city or town clerk, as the case may be, or in Boston to the election commissioners, a bond with sufficient sureties to keep such machines or ballot boxes in working order for two years. Such persons shall also give a bond with sufficient sureties, conditioned to defend and indemnify the commonwealth or cities and towns purchasing and using the machines or ballot boxes against any suit at law or in equity and for any expense, damage or inconvenience which they may incur or suffer by reason of any suit brought against them for infringement of patents or other rights, arising from the purchase or use of such machines or ballot boxes.

PREPARATION AND FORM OF BALLOTS.

Ballots, preparation and furnishing.

Section 257. All ballots for use in elections of state officers shall be prepared and furnished by the secretary of the commonwealth; all ballots for use in elections of city officers, by the city clerk, in Boston by the election commissioners; and all ballots for use in elections of town officers, in a town which has voted to use official ballots, by the town clerk. No ballots as herein provided shall be printed in any printing establishment owned or managed by the city of Boston.

Ballots not to be printed in certain establishments.

General ballots.

Section 258. General ballots for the use of male voters in a voting precinct or town shall contain the names of all candidates duly nominated for election therein, and such ballots shall, except as provided in section two hundred and sixty, contain the name of no other person.

Residence to be added to name of candidate.

To the name of each candidate for a state office shall be added the name of the city or town in which the candidate resides. To the name of each candidate for a city office shall be added the name of the street on which he resides, with his street number, if any; and to the name of each candidate for the office of alderman at large shall also be added the number of the ward in which he resides.

Political designation.

To the name of each candidate for a state or city office, except city offices in Boston, shall be added in the same space his party or political designation or designations, expressed in accordance with section two hundred and one. To the name of each candidate for a town office upon an official ballot shall be added the designation of the party or principle which he represents, contained in the certificate of nomination or nomination papers. No greater number of candidates for any office, bearing the same political designation, nominated otherwise than by nomination papers, shall be placed upon the official ballot than are to be elected.

Candidates with same designation.

If the name of a political party is used in connection with some other name or term as the designation of a candidate nominated for a state or city office by a nomination paper, the words "nomination paper", or "nom. paper", shall be added to such political designation.

Designation of certain candidates nominated by nomination papers.

If a candidate shall receive the nomination of more than one party or more than one political designation for the same office, he may, within the seventy-two hours next succeeding five o'clock of the last day fixed for the filing of nomination papers, by a writing delivered to the officer or board required by law to prepare the official ballot, direct in what order the several nominations or political designations shall be added to his name upon the official ballot; and such directions shall be followed by the said officer or board. If, during said time, said candidate shall neglect to direct in writing as aforesaid, then said officer or board shall add said nominations or political designations to the name of said candidate upon the official ballot in such order as said officer or board shall determine.

Candidates receiving nomination of more than one party, etc., may direct as to order on ballot.

Section 259. The names of candidates for every state, city and town office, except the names of candidates for presidential electors, shall be arranged under the designation of the office in alphabetical order according to the surnames, except that for municipal offices in Boston the names of candidates for the same office shall be printed upon the official ballot in the order in which they may be drawn by the board of election commissioners, as provided in section fifty-seven, chapter four hundred and eighty-six of the acts of the year nineteen hundred and nine; but the names of candidates for the same office but for different terms of service therein shall be arranged in groups according to the length of their respective terms, and the names of candidates nominated by single wards but to be voted for at large shall be arranged in groups by wards. In the case of the office of representative in congress, the designation may be "congressman." Blank spaces shall be left at the end of the list of candidates for each different office, equal to the number to be elected thereto, in which the voter may insert the name of any person not printed on the ballot for whom he desires to vote for such office. If the approval of a constitutional amendment or any other question is submitted to the voters, it shall be printed on the ballot after the names of the candidates.

Question to be submitted to voters.

Special ballots.

Special ballots containing only the names of candidates for school committee shall also be prepared in like manner and printed for the use of women qualified by law to vote for school committee.

Marking of ballots, directions for, etc.

Ballots shall be so printed as to give to each voter an opportunity to designate by a cross [X], in a square at the right of the name and designation of each candidate, and at the right of each question, his choice of candidates and his answer to such question; and upon the ballots may be printed such directions as will aid the voter: for example, "vote for one", "vote for two", "yes", "no", and the like.

Official indorsement.

On the back and outside of each ballot when folded shall be printed the words, "Official Ballot for", followed by the designation of the voting precinct or town for which the ballot is prepared, the date of election, and a facsimile of the signature of the secretary of the commonwealth, or city or town clerk, in Boston a facsimile of the signatures of the election commissioners, who has caused the ballot to be prepared. Special ballots shall have the additional indorsement, "For School Committee only."

Presidential electors, arrangement of names of candidates, etc.

Section 260. The names of candidates for presidential electors shall be arranged in groups as presented in the several certificates of nomination or nomination papers. The groups shall be arranged in the alphabetical order of the surnames of the candidates for president, and the names of the candidates in each group shall be printed upon the ballots in two columns of equal width. If candidates are nominated at large and for the several congressional districts, the name and place of residence of one of the candidates at large shall be put at the head of each column, and the names of the other candidates with their places of residence and the numbers of their congressional districts shall follow in the numerical order of the districts. The surnames of the candidates of each political party for the offices of president and vice president, with the political designation thereof at the right of the surnames, shall be placed in one line above the group of candidates of such party for electors. A sufficient square in which each voter may designate by a cross [X] his choice for electors shall be left at the right of each political designation; and no other space or margin shall be left in any such group of candidates.

Official ballots, paper, size, form, type, etc.

Section 261. The official ballots shall, except as otherwise provided herein, be of ordinary white printing paper, of two or more pages, and shall, before distribution, be so folded as to measure not less than four and one half inches nor more than five inches in width and not less than six inches nor more than thirteen and one half inches in length. The names of all candidates shall be printed in black ink in lines at a right angle with the length of the ballot. The names of all candidates, other than candidates for presidential electors and for president and vice president, and the initial letters of all names of candidates for presidential electors, shall be in capital letters not less than one eighth of an inch nor more than one quarter of an inch in height. The surnames and political designations of the candidates for president and vice president shall be in capital letters not less than three sixteenths of an inch in height.

Special ballots to be printed on colored paper.

The special ballots for women registered to vote for school committee shall be printed on colored paper of a different color from that of specimen ballots.

Ballots, number to be provided.

Section 262. One set of ballots of not less than sixty ballots for every fifty and fraction of fifty registered voters shall be provided for each polling place at which an election for state, city or town officers is to be held, and one set of special ballots of not less than sixty ballots for every fifty and fraction of fifty women registered to vote for school committee shall be provided for each polling place at which an election for city or town officers is to be held: provided, however, that the secretary of the commonwealth or the city or town clerk, as the case may be, may provide a duplicate set of ballots for any polling place when he deems it necessary.

Proviso.

Partial ballots for use in certain cases.

A sufficient number of partial ballots in state elections shall be prepared for voters who may be entitled to vote for a part only of the officers to be voted for in a city or town. A statement shall be printed on the back of such ballots, in addition to the official indorsement, indicating the class of voters for whose use the ballots are furnished, and such ballots only shall be furnished to such voters.

Ballots to be arranged in packages, etc.

Section 263. Ballots, in convenient numbers, shall be arranged in packages. A record of the number of ballots printed and delivered to each polling place shall be kept by the secretary of the commonwealth, or the city or town clerk, for one year.

Printing of ballots when vacancy occurs.

Section 264. If a vacancy occurs or is declared in the list of nominations, by reason of death or ineligibility, the name of the candidate nominated to fill such vacancy shall, if the ballots have not been printed, be placed on them or, if the ballots have been printed, ballots containing the new nomination shall, when practicable, be substituted.

INFORMATION TO VOTERS.

Cards of instruction, etc.

Section 265. The secretary of the commonwealth in state elections, city clerks in city elections, in Boston the election commissioners, and town clerks in town elections at which official ballots are used, shall, for every such election, prepare and cause to be printed in large clear type cards containing full instructions to voters for obtaining ballots, marking them, obtaining assistance and new ballots in place of those accidentally spoiled; and on separate cards such abstracts of the laws imposing penalties upon voters as they shall deem proper. They shall also provide for each polling place ten or more specimen ballots which shall be facsimiles of the ballots provided for voting, but printed without the indorsements and on colored paper. The secretary of the commonwealth shall provide copies of any proposed amendment to the constitution submitted to the people, with a heading in large type, "Proposed Amendment to the Constitution."

Specimen ballots, etc., to be provided.

Copies of proposed amendments to the constitution.

Lists of candidates, etc., state elections, to be transmitted to registrars, etc.

Section 266. The secretary of the commonwealth shall, at least five days before state elections, transmit to the registrars, in Boston to the election commissioners, printed lists of the names, residences and designations of candidates to be voted for at each polling place, substantially in the form of the official ballot, and also printed copies of any proposed amendment to the constitution. The registrars or election commissioners shall, upon the receipt thereof, conspicuously post in not less than three public places in each voting precinct or town the lists and copies aforesaid for such precinct or town.

To be posted.

City election, posting, publication.

Section 267. City clerks, in Boston the election commissioners, shall, at least four days before a city election, cause to be posted in every voting precinct the names, residences and designations of all candidates duly nominated to be voted for in such city, substantially in the form of the official ballot, and cause the same to be published in at least two newspapers, if there are so many published in said city, representing so far as practicable the two leading political parties.

Town election, posting.

Section 268. Town clerks in towns using official ballots shall, at least four days before an election therein, cause to be posted in one or more public places the names, residences and designations of all candidates duly nominated to be voted for in such town, substantially in the form of the official ballot.

Lists of candidates, etc., state and city elections, to be published.

Section 269. The secretary of the commonwealth before every state election shall cause to be published a list of all candidates to be voted for in each senatorial district, except in the county of Suffolk, and the question of the approval and ratification of any proposed amendment to the constitution, and the city clerks, in Boston the election commissioners, before every city election shall cause to be published a list of all candidates to be voted for in their respective cities. Such lists and questions shall be in the form, as near as may be, in which they are to appear upon the official ballot, and said publication shall be made for state elections in each senatorial district in at least four newspapers in the English language, if there are so many in that district, except in the county of Suffolk, and in the county of Suffolk such publication shall be made in at least four newspapers in the English language published therein. Such publication, so far as is practicable, shall be in newspapers representing the two leading political parties, and at such reasonable cost as may be determined by the secretary of the commonwealth. For city elections such publication shall be made in at least two newspapers representing the two leading political parties, if there are so many in the city, devoted wholly or chiefly to the publication of general or local news.

Notice to be given to voters in cities of referendum measures.

Section 270. Whenever any proposed law, or amendment to the constitution, is to be placed upon the ballot at any election to be voted upon by the voters taking part in such election, it shall be the duty of the city clerk in every city where the proposed law or amendment is to be voted upon, except as hereinafter provided, to cause to be sent to each of the registered voters in his city entitled to vote thereon a copy of the proposed law or amendment of the constitution, with the statement that the proposed law or amendment is to be voted on at said election.

Statement of general purport of proposed law or amendment may be substituted in certain cases.

Section 271. Upon a vote of the city council of any city, with the approval of the mayor, there may be substituted for a copy of such proposed law or amendment a statement of the general purport of the proposed law or amendment, which statement shall be prepared by the city solicitor of the city and shall be approved by the mayor and city council.

When to be sent.

Section 272. All such copies or statements shall be sent not less than seven days and not more than twenty-one days before the election at which said matter is to be voted upon.

Certain provisions may be suspended, etc.

Section 273. By vote of the city council of any city, with the approval of the mayor, the provisions of the three preceding sections may be suspended and made inapplicable as to a particular proposed law or constitutional amendment.

DELIVERY OF BALLOTS, ETC.

Ballots, etc., state election, packing.

Section 274. Ballots for state elections shall be enclosed in a package by the secretary of the commonwealth, sealed and marked with the number of ballots of each kind therein, and specimen ballots, cards of instruction, cards containing abstracts of the laws imposing penalties upon voters, and copies of any proposed amendment to the constitution shall be enclosed in another package, and the whole shall be further enclosed in a single package with marks on the outside indicating its contents and the polling place for which it is intended.

Delivery, record, etc.

He shall transmit to the city or town clerks, in Boston to the election commissioners, the ballots, cards of instruction, cards containing abstracts of the laws imposing penalties upon voters, and copies of proposed amendments to the constitution, so that they shall be received at least twelve hours before the date of election, and the clerks or election commissioners shall return receipts therefor to the secretary. He shall keep a record of the time when and the manner in which the several packages are transmitted, and shall preserve the receipts therefor for one year.

City and town elections.

The clerk of each city, in Boston the election commissioners, and the clerk of each town using official ballots shall enclose the ballots, specimen ballots, cards of instruction and cards containing abstracts of the laws imposing penalties upon voters for city or town elections in the same manner.

Delivery at polls, state

Section 275. The city or town clerk, in Boston the election commissioners, shall, on the day of every state or city election, before the opening of the polls, transmit to the election officers of each polling place therein, the ballots with accompanying specimen ballots, cards of instruction, cards containing abstracts of the laws imposing penalties upon voters, and copies of proposed amendments to the constitution, which have been provided for such polling place; and the presiding election officer at the polling place shall receipt therefor to the clerk, or election commissioners, and such receipt, with a record of the number of ballots transmitted, shall be kept in the clerk's or election commissioners' office for one year. At town elections, the town clerk shall, on the day of the election, before the opening of the polls, deliver the ballots at the polling place to the ballot clerks, who shall receipt therefor, and their receipt shall be preserved in the office of the clerk for the period of one year. If a moderator presides at such election, no such ballots shall be delivered to voters until he has been chosen. The town clerk shall also deliver the specimen ballots, cards of instruction and cards containing abstracts of the laws imposing penalties upon voters at the same time and place. No ballots or specimen ballots shall be delivered by city or town clerks except as provided in this section.

Receipt, record.

At town elections.

Section 276. If the ballots provided for any polling place are not delivered, or if after delivery they are destroyed or stolen, the city or town clerk, in Boston the election commissioners, shall cause similar ballots to be prepared; and upon receipt of such new ballots, accompanied by a statement by the clerk or election commissioners under oath that they have been so prepared and transmitted by him or them, and that the original ballots have not been delivered or have been so destroyed or stolen, the ballots so substituted shall be used.

Substitute ballots.

CALLING OF ELECTIONS.

Section 277. The annual state election for the choice of governor, lieutenant governor, councillors, secretary, treasurer and receiver general, attorney-general, auditor of the commonwealth, and senators and representatives in the general court, shall be held on the Tuesday next after the first Monday in November. There shall also be chosen at the annual state election, when required by law, presidential electors, and, in their respective districts or counties, representatives in congress, district attorneys, clerks of the courts, registers of probate and insolvency, registers of deeds, county commissioners, associate commissioners, sheriffs and county treasurers.

Calls for elections in cities.

Section 278. Meetings of the voters of each city for the election of state officers and city officers shall be called by the aldermen, and the city clerk shall, under their direction, cause notice of such meetings to be printed in one or more newspapers published in such city and to be conspicuously posted in the office of the city clerk; and in Boston, in at least four daily newspapers published therein. Such notices shall be in lieu of the notices or warrants for election required in any city by special statutes. Meetings of the voters of each town for the election of state officers and town officers shall be called as provided in section three hundred and ninety-four. Meetings for the annual state, city and town elections shall be called at least seven days before the day prescribed for the holding thereof.

In towns.

Seven days' notice to be given.

Notices or warrants to specify offices, etc.

Section 279. Notices or warrants for meetings for state and city elections and for the election of town officers in towns where official ballots are used shall specify by name all the offices to be voted for, and state in full any proposed amendment to the constitution or other question submitted to the people: provided, however, that any act submitted for acceptance may be stated by its chapter number and title only. They shall specify the time when the polls will be opened, and in cities, when the polls will be closed, and in towns, when they may be closed.

Proviso.

To specify time for opening and closing polls, etc.

In cities, time of opening and closing polls.

In cities, the polls may be opened as early as six o'clock in the forenoon and shall be opened as early as ten o'clock in the forenoon and shall be kept open at least six hours, but in no case after the hour of eight o'clock in the evening.

In towns, time of opening and closing polls.

In towns, at the election of state and town officers, the polls may be opened as early as fifteen minutes before six o'clock in the forenoon and shall be opened as early as twelve o'clock, noon, and shall be kept open at least four hours, and until the time specified in the warrant when they may be closed; and they may be kept open for such longer time as the meeting shall direct, but they shall not be kept open after the hour of eight o'clock in the evening. At annual town meetings they shall be kept open at least one hour for the reception of votes upon the question of licensing the sale of intoxicating liquors. After an announcement has been made by the presiding officer of a time so fixed for closing the polls they shall not be closed at an earlier hour.

A town may by by-law designate the hour at which the annual town meeting shall be called, and, subject to the provisions of this section, may designate the hours during which the polls shall remain open; and, further, may provide that all business, except the election of such officers and the determination of such matters as by law are required to be elected or determined by ballot, shall be considered after a certain hour, or by adjournment to another day.

A town may by by-law designate hour at which annual town meeting shall be called, etc.

CONDUCT OF ELECTIONS.

Section 280. At an election of state or city officers, and of town officers in towns where official ballots are used, the presiding election officer at each polling place in a city or town shall, before the opening of the polls, post at least three cards of instruction, three cards containing abstracts of the laws imposing penalties upon voters, three copies of proposed constitutional amendments, if any, and at least five specimen ballots within the polling place outside the guard rail, and the cards of instruction and a copy of any proposed amendment in each marking compartment; and no other poster, card, handbill, placard, picture or circular intended to influence the action of the voter, except a paster to be placed upon the official ballot, shall be posted, exhibited, circulated or distributed in the polling place, in the building in which the polling place is located, on the walls thereof, on the premises on which the building stands, on the sidewalk adjoining the premises where such election is being held, or within one hundred and fifty feet of the entrance to such polling place. Pasters to be placed on the official ballot shall be subject to all the restrictions imposed by sections two hundred and fifty-eight and two hundred and sixty-one as to names, residences and political designations of candidates and the size of the type in which the names shall be printed. The presiding election officer shall, at the opening of the polls, publicly open the packages containing the ballots and deliver them to the ballot clerks. All specimen ballots not posted shall be kept in the custody of the presiding officer until after the closing of the polls.

State, city and town elections, posting instructions, etc.

Pasters to be subject to certain restrictions.

Delivery of ballots to ballot clerks.

Disposition of specimen ballots not posted.

Section 281. The state ballot boxes shall be used for receiving the ballots in state and city elections, and in town elections where official ballots are used. The election officers at each polling place shall, at the opening of the polls and before any ballots are received, publicly open the ballot box, and ascertain by personal examination, and publicly show that the same is empty, and shall immediately thereafter lock or fasten the box. The clerk of the precinct or town shall make a record of the condition of the box register, and, if a key is used, it shall be retained by the police officer or constable at the polling place. The ballot box shall not, after it is shown to be empty, be removed from public view until all ballots have been removed therefrom and the box has been relocked or sealed. The ballot box shall not be opened nor any ballot removed therefrom until the polls are closed, except as provided in section three hundred and two; but in order to make room for ballots, the presiding officer may, in the presence of all the election officers, open the box and pack and press down the ballots therein.

State ballot boxes to be used, etc.

Record, custody of key.

Not to be removed from public view.

Opening of box, removal of ballots, etc.

Presiding officer to have charge of ballot box, etc.

The presiding officer of each polling place shall have charge of the ballot box and ballot box seal, and shall, at the close of each election, return the same, either personally or by a police officer or constable in attendance at the polling place, to the city or town clerk, in Boston to the election commissioners.

State ballot box, proceedings when impossible to use.

If it becomes impossible to use the state ballot box, the voting shall proceed in such manner as the presiding officer shall direct, and in such case the clerk shall record the reason why such ballot box is not used, and shall enclose an attested copy of such record in the envelope with the ballots cast. The provisions as to the use and custody of the state ballot box shall, so far as applicable, apply to the ballot box substituted therefor.

Provisions to apply to substitute.

Voting lists, delivery and use.

Section 282. One voting list shall be delivered to the ballot clerks and another to the officers in charge of the ballot box. When a ballot is delivered to a voter, his name shall be checked on the first and when he deposits his ballot it shall be checked on the second. The officer in charge of the ballot box and the officer in charge of the voting list shall be of different political parties.

Political representation at box and list.

No statement to be made before public declaration of vote, except, etc.

Section 283. No election officer shall, before the public declaration of the vote, make any statement of the number of ballots cast, the number of votes given for any person, the name of any person who has voted or whose name has not been checked, or of any other fact tending to show the state of the polls, except that he shall when requested make a statement of the figures on the ballot box register, which statement shall not be considered an official declaration as to the state of the polls or of the number of ballots cast.

Section 284. No persons except the election officers, supervisors, the city clerk of the city, in Boston the election commissioners, and voters admitted for the purpose of voting, shall, during the progress of an election and until the public declaration of the vote, be permitted within the guard rail, unless authorized by the election officers for the purpose of keeping order and enforcing the law. Persons permitted within guard rail.

Section 285. No more than four voters, besides election officers and supervisors, the city clerk of the city, in Boston the election commissioners, in excess of the number of marking compartments provided, shall be allowed at one time within the guard rail, and except the election officers and supervisors, no voters shall be admitted therein after the time fixed for closing the polls; but voters previously admitted shall be allowed five minutes after the time so fixed to deposit their ballots. Number of voters allowed within guard rail.

Section 286. The presiding officer at each polling place shall enforce the performance of their duties by election officers. He shall have authority to maintain order and to enforce obedience to his lawful commands, during an election and the counting of the ballots after the close of the polls, in and about the polling place and to keep the access thereto open and unobstructed, and he may require any police officer, constable or other person to communicate his orders and directions and assist in their enforcement. Presiding officer, general powers and duties.

Section 287. The board or officer in charge of the police force of each city and town shall detail a sufficient number of police officers or constables for each polling place at every election therein to preserve order and to protect the election officers and supervisors from any interference with their duties and to aid in enforcing the provisions of this chapter. Police officer, etc., to preserve order.

Section 288. Any person who, during an election or town meeting, shall, in a polling place or place of such meeting, smoke or have in his possession a lighted pipe, cigar or cigarette, or carry into any such place or keep therein any intoxicating liquor, shall be deemed guilty of disorderly conduct; and the presiding officer shall order him to remove such pipe, cigar, cigarette or liquor, or to withdraw from such place, and for disobedience of such order shall cause him to be removed from such polling place or meeting. Persons smoking, etc., or having liquor, etc., to be removed.

Section 289. If a person at an election refuses to obey the lawful commands of the presiding officer or, by disorderly conduct interrupts or disturbs the proceedings of an election officer, the presiding officer may require any police Offender to be detained, etc., but not prevented from voting.

officer, constable or other person to take him into custody and detain him until after the election; but the presiding officer may at any time order his release. Such order of detention shall not be so enforced as to prevent such person, if a voter at that polling place, from voting.

Duties of officers when law is violated.

Section 290. Every election officer shall forthwith report any violation of the provisions of sections two hundred and seventy-seven to three hundred and thirty-four, inclusive, to the police officer or constable in attendance at the polling place, and such police officer or constable shall cause the offender to be prosecuted.

MANNER OF VOTING.

Voting, giving of name, delivery of ballot, etc.

Section 291. Each voter desiring to vote at a polling place where official ballots are used shall give his name and, if requested, his residence to one of the ballot clerks, who shall thereupon distinctly announce the same; and if such name is found upon the voting list by the ballot clerk, he shall check and repeat the name and give one ballot to such voter, who shall then be admitted within the guard rail. If not entitled to vote for all the offices upon the ballot, he shall receive a partial ballot. If the voter is a woman, she shall receive a special ballot containing the names of candidates for school committee only.

Marking of ballots.

Section 292. The voter on receiving his ballot shall, without leaving the enclosed space, retire alone to one of the marking compartments, and shall, except in the case of voting for presidential electors, prepare his ballot by making a cross [X] in the square at the right of the name of each candidate for whom he intends to vote or by inserting the name of such candidate in the space provided therefor and making a cross in the square at the right; and, upon a question submitted to the vote of the people, by making a cross in the square at the right of the answer which he intends to give.

Voting for presidential electors.

Section 293. A voter may vote for an entire group of candidates for presidential electors by making a cross [X] in the square at the right of the party or political designation immediately above such group. If a voter does not intend to vote for any one candidate in the group, he may erase his name, and the cross shall count as a vote for each of the other candidates in such group. If a voter desires to vote for another person in place of a candidate whose name he has erased, he may insert his name in one of the blank spaces and make a cross in the square at the right thereof. A voter who does not mark for any group of candidates may vote for candidates for electors, up to the number to be elected, by inserting names in the blank spaces at the end of the groups of electors and making a cross in the square at the right of each name so inserted.

Assistance in marking ballot.

Section 294. A voter who declares on oath to the presiding officer that he had the right to vote on the first day of May in the year eighteen hundred and fifty-seven and cannot read, or that from blindness or other physical disability he is unable to prepare his ballot or register his vote upon a voting machine, shall be assisted in such marking or registering by one or two of the election officers, who shall be of such political party, represented among the election officers, as the voter may request; and they shall certify, on the outside of the ballot, when ballots are used, that it was marked with their assistance, and shall thereafter give no information regarding such marking or registering.

Certain marks upon ballot prohibited.

Section 295. Except as authorized by this act, no voter, election officer or other person shall place any mark upon a ballot by which it may be identified; nor shall any person place a mark against any name upon a ballot not cast by himself.

Voter spoiling ballot may obtain others.

Section 296. If a voter spoils a ballot, he may obtain two others, one at a time, upon returning each spoiled one, and all ballots so returned shall immediately be marked by an election officer "Spoiled."

Voter to fold ballot, etc.

Section 297. Before leaving the marking compartment the voter shall fold his ballot, without displaying the marks thereon, as it was folded when received by him, and he shall keep it so folded until he has voted. A voter shall mark and deposit his ballot without undue delay, and shall leave the space enclosed by the guard rail as soon as he has voted. No voter shall occupy a marking compartment occupied by another, nor remain within the guard rail more than ten minutes, nor occupy a voting compartment more than five minutes, if all the marking compartments are in use and other voters are waiting to occupy the same.

Time allowed in enclosed space, etc.

Depositing ballot, giving name, etc.

Section 298. A voter after marking his ballot shall give his name and, if requested, his residence, to one of the officers in charge of the ballot box, who shall distinctly announce the same. If the name is found upon the voting list by the election officer, he shall distinctly repeat the name, and in Boston the height, and check the name upon the voting list; and the voter may then deposit his ballot in the ballot box with the official indorsement uppermost and in sight. No ballot without the official indorsement, except as provided in section two hundred and seventy-six, shall be deposited in the ballot box. No person shall vote if his name is not on the voting list, nor until the election officer shall check his name thereon, unless he presents a certificate from the registrars of voters as provided by section sixty-four.

No ballot without official indorsement to be deposited, etc.

Voter's name to be checked, etc.

Ballots not to be removed, from enclosed space, etc.

Section 299. No person shall remove any ballot from the space enclosed by the guard rail before the polls are closed. No voter whose name has been checked on the voting list in charge of the ballot clerk, other than an election officer or supervisor, shall again enter such enclosed space during the election.

Proceedings when vote is challenged.

Section 300. If in any state, city or town election at which official ballots are used the right of a person offering to vote is challenged for any legal cause, the presiding officer shall administer to him the following oath:

You do solemnly swear [or affirm] that you are the identical person whom you represent yourself to be, that you are registered in this precinct [or town] and that you have not voted at this election.

He shall also be required to write his name and residence on the outside of the ballot offered, and the presiding officer shall add thereto the name of the person challenging, and the cause assigned therefor, whereupon such ballot shall be received; and no person shall make any statement or give any information in regard thereto, except as required by law. The clerk shall record the name and residence of every person who has been challenged and has voted.

COUNTING OF VOTES.

State blanks and apparatus to be used, etc.

Section 301. The blank forms and apparatus provided by the secretary of the commonwealth shall be used in ascertaining the result of the election or vote in state elections in cities and towns, in city elections, in elections of town officers in towns in which official ballots are used, and also in taking the vote upon any proposed amendment to the constitution, upon the question of granting licenses for the sale of intoxicating liquors, and upon any other question submitted by statute to the voters of the commonwealth, or of any city or town in which official ballots are used. If it is impossible to use such blank forms or apparatus, the canvass of the votes shall be made as the presiding officer shall direct; and the clerk shall record the facts relating to the failure to use such blank forms or apparatus, and shall enclose an attested copy of such record in the envelope with the ballots cast.

Proceedings when impossible to use.

Section 302. If the state ballot box is used, the clerk shall, as soon as the polls are closed, record the ballot box register. The election officers shall then, publicly and in the presence of the other election officers, count audibly and distinctly the number of names checked on each list and announce the same. The ballot box shall then be opened by the presiding officer and the ballots taken therefrom and audibly counted, one by one, and the whole number of ballots cast shall be publicly announced by him. The ballots may be divided into convenient packages, and, except as hereinafter provided, each block or package shall be canvassed and counted by two election officers representing the two leading political parties, detailed by the presiding officer. Each election officer, in so canvassing and counting votes, shall be under the inspection of an election officer of a different political party. The result of the canvass and count shall be reported to the presiding officer, who shall cause it to be correctly recorded on the blank forms provided for the purpose. At state elections in towns not divided into voting precincts, the canvass and count of votes shall be made by the selectmen and town clerk, who may be assisted by the tellers.

Proceedings at close of polls.

Canvass of ballots, etc.

At state elections in towns not divided into voting precincts.

The clerk in open meeting shall publicly announce the result of the vote and enter in his records, in words at length, the total number of names of male and female voters checked on the voting lists, the total number of ballots cast, the names of all persons voted for, the number of votes for each person and the title of the office for which he was a candidate, the number of blank ballots for each office, and the number of affirmative and negative votes in answer to any question submitted to the voters, and shall forthwith make a copy of such record, certify and seal up the same, and deliver it to the city or town clerk, in Boston to the election commissioners, who shall forthwith enter it in his or their records.

Announcement of result, etc.

The voting lists and all ballots removed from the ballot box shall be kept in open view of the voters present until Ballots, proceedings, etc., to be kept in open view, etc.

enclosed and sealed up, and all proceedings in the canvass and counting of votes shall be public and in open view of the voters, and there shall be no adjournment or postponement until the canvass and counting have been completed, and the voting lists and ballots have been enclosed and sealed up.

Removal of ballots from ballot box before voting has ceased, counting, etc.

In towns, the ballot box at any polling place may be opened and ballots taken therefrom for counting when all the selectmen and the town clerk, or both the moderator and the town clerk, as the case may be, or all the election officers at the voting precinct shall so order. When the ballots have been thus removed the presiding officer shall select from the election officers an equal number from each of the two leading political parties, who shall canvass such ballots, in accordance with the provisions of this section; but no announcement of the result of such canvass shall be made by any election officer until the total result of the canvass of ballots has been ascertained.

No announcement to be made, etc.

Certain ballots not to be counted.

Section 303. If the use of a state ballot box is required, no ballot shall be counted unless it has been deposited in and cancelled by such ballot box, or has been otherwise deposited according to the provisions of section two hundred and eighty-one; and no ballot shall be counted in any election for which official ballots are provided except such ballots. If a voter marks more names than there are persons to be elected to an office, or if his choice cannot be determined, his ballot shall not be counted for such office. Ballots cast but not counted shall be marked "defective" on the outside thereof, and shall be preserved like other ballots.

Defective ballots.

Ballots cast to be sealed up, indorsed, etc.

Section 304. The presiding officer at every polling place at elections of state and city officers and of town officers in towns in which official ballots are used shall, after the record of the counting has been made, cause all ballots cast to be publicly enclosed in an envelope and sealed up with the seal provided for the purpose, and also with the private seal of any election officer who may desire to affix the same; and a majority of the election officers of the voting precinct or town shall indorse upon such envelope the polling place, the election and the date, and also a certificate that all the ballots cast by the voters of such precinct or town, and none other, are contained therein. He shall cause all ballots not cast to be enclosed in an envelope and sealed up as aforesaid, and shall certify on the envelope the contents thereof.

Ballots not cast to be sealed up and certified.

Such presiding officer shall cause the voting lists to be enclosed in an envelope and sealed up as aforesaid, and a majority of the election officers shall certify thereon to the identity of the voting lists enclosed. He shall forthwith personally deliver to the city or town clerk, or in Boston to the election commissioners, or transmit to him or them, by the police officer or constable in attendance at the election, all the ballots cast, and not cast, the voting lists, the ballot box, ballot box seals and counting apparatus.

Voting lists to be sealed up and certified.

Ballots, voting lists, etc., to be delivered to city or town clerk or election commissioners.

Section 305. Upon written application, signed by at least ten voters in the town or ward of which the precinct forms a part, the city or town clerk, and in Boston the election commissioners, may open the envelope containing such voting list and may make a copy of the list as checked. In Boston, such copies shall contain only the name and residence of the voter. After any such voting list has been so copied, said clerk or election commissioners shall at once enclose the list in an envelope and seal up the same and certify thereon to the identity of such lists.

Copies of voting lists as checked may be furnished.

Voting lists to be again sealed and certified.

Section 306. City and town clerks, in Boston the election commissioners, shall retain in their custody the envelope containing the ballots cast, without examining them or permitting them to be examined by any person except as required by law, and upon the expiration of the period fixed for their preservation shall cause such ballots to be destroyed.

Ballots cast, custody, destruction, etc.

City and town clerks, in Boston the election commissioners, shall retain in their custody the voting lists and ballots not cast as long as they retain the ballots cast. They shall then transmit such voting lists to the registrars of voters for future reference, and shall destroy the ballots marked "Spoiled", without examining them or permitting them to be examined, and may make such disposition of the undistributed ballots as they may deem proper.

Voting lists and ballots not cast, custody, disposition, etc.

Records and Certificates of Election.

Section 307. No record of votes cast or copy thereof shall be rejected if the number of votes given for each candidate for an office can be ascertained therefrom.

Record not to be rejected when number of votes can be ascertained.

Section 308. The aldermen and city clerk, in Boston the election commissioners, and the selectmen and town clerk in towns divided into voting precincts, shall forthwith after a state or city election examine the copies of the records of the election officers, and if any error appears therein, they shall forthwith give notice thereof to the officers by whom the error was made, who shall forthwith make an additional record under oath in conformity with the facts and deliver a copy thereof to the city or town clerk or election commissioners. Such copy of the records made, with or without notice as aforesaid, shall be received by the city or town clerks or election commissioners at any time before the last day fixed for the transmission of copies of records of the votes cast in the city or town, or on which the results of the election are required to be declared.

Examination of records, certification of copies, etc.

The aldermen and city clerk, the election commissioners, and the selectmen and town clerk, shall examine all original and all additional copies of the records and make them part of the records of such election, and shall certify and attest copies of the records of votes for the several candidates.

Returns of votes to secretary of the commonwealth.

Section 309. The clerk of each city and town, within ten days, and in Boston the election commissioners, within fifteen days, after the day of any election therein for a senator in congress, representative in congress, governor, lieutenant governor, councillor, secretary, treasurer and receiver general, auditor of the commonwealth, attorney-general, clerk of courts, register of probate and insolvency, sheriff, district attorney, or senator, or for presidential electors, shall transmit to the secretary of the commonwealth copies of the records of votes for such officers, certified by the aldermen or the selectmen, or by the election commissioners, and attested and sealed by the clerk or by said commissioners. The city or town clerk shall, within ten days after an election for county treasurer or register of deeds, transmit to the county commissioners, and within ten days after an election therein for county commissioners or associate commissioners, transmit to the clerk of the courts the records of votes for such officers, certified, attested and sealed as aforesaid; except that in Chelsea, Revere and Winthrop the records of votes for register of deeds shall be transmitted to the election commissioners of Boston, and that in Revere and Winthrop the records of votes for county commissioner and associate commissioners shall be transmitted to the clerk of the courts for the county of Middlesex. Such copies shall be transmitted in envelopes, upon which shall be stated the offices for which and the districts in which the votes were cast.

Returns of votes to county commissioners and clerks of courts, etc.

For register of deeds, Suffolk county.

For county commissioners, etc., Revere and Winthrop, etc.

To be transmitted in envelopes properly indorsed.

Proceedings when copy is received unsealed.

Section 310. If any such copy transmitted to the secretary of the commonwealth is not sealed as required by law, he shall forthwith give notice thereof to the officers who transmitted the same; and thereupon another copy shall be made, attested, certified, sealed and transmitted to the secretary. If the second copy is received by him before determination of the persons appearing to be elected and the original appears to be in substantial conformity therewith, the original copy shall not be rejected.

Memorandum of receipt to be made.

Section 311. The secretary of the commonwealth shall cause the date of the receipt of each copy of the records of votes to be indorsed on the envelope containing it; and if received unsealed, a memorandum thereof shall be made on the copy.

Examination of returns of votes.

Section 312. The secretary of the commonwealth shall lay before the governor and council the copies of the records of votes cast with their seals unbroken. The governor with at least five councillors shall, as soon as may be, open and examine all such copies and determine who are elected to the several offices. Upon such determination, the secretary, upon application, shall furnish to newspapers an abstract of the records of the votes examined.

Abstract for newspapers.

Certification of examination.

Section 313. The governor shall, in the presence of at least five councillors, certify to the results of the examination of the copies of the records of the votes for governor and lieutenant governor, for councillors, for secretary, treasurer and receiver general, auditor of the commonwealth, and attorney-general, and for senators and shall issue his summons to such persons as appear to be chosen to said offices. The governor shall issue certificates of election to such persons as appear to be chosen to the offices of senator in congress, representative in congress, clerk of the courts, register of probate and insolvency, sheriff and district attorney, which shall be countersigned and transmitted by the secretary.

Summons to be issued.

Certificates of election to be issued.

Returns, etc., to be delivered to secretary of the commonwealth.

To be laid before legislature.

Section 314. After such certification, such copies shall be replaced in their respective envelopes and delivered with the certificate of examination to the secretary, who shall on the first Wednesday in January lay the same, with schedules showing the number of ballots cast for each person voted for, before the senate and house of representatives.

To be filed in office of secretary.

Except for the above purposes, all such copies, both original and corrected, transmitted to the secretary, shall remain on file in his office and be there open to the inspection of any interested person.

who shall thereafter declare, by proclamation printed in at least one newspaper in each county, the names of the persons who have received at least one fifth of the entire number of votes cast for electors, and the number of votes received by each such person. The several persons, to the number of electors required to be chosen, who have received the highest number of votes so ascertained, unless notice of a contest has been received by the governor, shall, at the expiration of fourteen days from the date of such proclamation, be deemed to be elected; and the governor shall thereupon issue a certificate of election to every such person.

Certificates of election to be issued unless contested.

Certain persons may petition for a declaration of election, etc.

Section 316. Any person who appears, by the proclamation of the governor, to have received not less than one fifth of the entire number of votes cast for electors, may, if the election is contested, apply by petition to the supreme judicial court for the county of Suffolk, for a declaration of his election as an elector. Such petition shall set forth the name of every person whose election is contested and the ground for the contest shall be filed within seven days after the date of such proclamation and shall not thereafter be amended. Before any proceedings thereon, the petitioner shall recognize to the commonwealth, in such sum and with such sureties as the court shall order, to pay all costs incurred in the prosecution of his petition if he shall not prevail. If the petitioner prevails, the cost shall be paid by the commonwealth. The court shall fix a day for a hearing by the full court, which shall be not less than three nor more than seven days after the date of the filing of the petition, and shall order notice of the hearing to be given, with a statement of the substance of the petition in such manner as it may direct, to the governor and to every person whose election is contested. The court shall also order such notice to be published in at least one newspaper designated by it in each county.

Day to be fixed for hearing, notice, etc.

Petitioner and contestant may appear and produce evidence, etc.

Section 317. The petitioner and the contestant may appear and produce evidence at the hearing, and no person other than the petitioner or a contestant shall be made a party to the proceedings on such petition, or be heard thereon. If more than one petition is pending, or the election of more than one person is contested, the court may, in its discretion, order the cases to be heard together and shall apportion the costs between them, and shall finally determine all questions of law and fact. No person shall be excused from testifying or producing papers or documents therein on the ground that his testimony or the production of the papers or documents will tend to criminate him; but no person so testifying shall be liable to any suit or prosecution, civil or criminal, for any matter or cause in respect to which he shall be so examined or to which his testimony shall relate, except to a prosecution for perjury committed in such testimony. The court shall forthwith certify its decision to the governor, who shall thereupon issue certificates of election in accordance therewith. If the petitioner does not prosecute his petition it shall be dismissed and notice thereof given to the governor, who shall issue certificates of election to the persons entitled thereto.

Witnesses not to be excused.

Not liable to prosecution, etc.

Court to certify its decision to governor, etc.

SECTION 318. The county commissioners to whom the copies of the records of votes for county treasurer and register of deeds have been transmitted shall, on the first Wednesday of the month following the election, examine such copies, determine what persons appear to be elected, issue certificates of election to them and give notice to the secretary of the commonwealth of the name, residence and term of office of every person elected.

County commissioners to examine certain returns of votes, etc.

Notice to secretary of the commonwealth.

In the county of Suffolk, the election commissioners of Boston shall, within ten days after the election of register of deeds, in like manner examine the copies of the records of votes, determine who appears to be elected, issue a certificate and give notice as above provided.

Returns of votes for register of deeds, Suffolk county.

SECTION 319. In each county except Suffolk and Nantucket, the judge and register of the probate court and the clerk of the courts shall be a board of examiners; and if two of said offices are held by the same person in any county, the sheriff shall be a member of the board. The members of said board shall each be paid at the rate of three dollars a day for every day employed in the performance of their duties and ten cents a mile for travel to and from the place of their meeting; and their accounts shall be audited and settled by the county treasurer. Said board shall meet on the first Wednesday of the month following an election for county commissioner or associate commissioners and shall examine such copies, determine what persons appear to be elected, issue certificates of election to them and give notice to the secretary of the commonwealth of the name, residence and term of office of every person so elected, and shall, within three days thereafter deposit said copies in the office of the clerk of the courts.

Board of examiners to examine in certain counties, etc.

Notice to secretary of the commonwealth, etc.

When incomplete, etc., new returns to be made, etc.

Section 320. If it shall appear to the governor and council, to the board of examiners, to the election commissioners or to the county commissioners, that any such copy is incomplete or erroneous, they may order a new copy of the records to be made and transmitted to them. Such new copy shall be transmitted by the city or town clerk, in Boston by the election commissioners, within seven days thereafter, and if found to be correct and in conformity to the requirements of law, shall have the same force as a first copy.

Representative district, one city or town, etc., examination, record.

Section 321. If a district for the election of representatives in the general court is composed of one city or town, or one or more wards of a city, the board of aldermen or the selectmen, in Boston the election commissioners, shall forthwith examine the records of the votes and determine who appear to be elected. The city or town clerk or election commissioners shall record the names of all persons for whom votes for representative were cast, and the number of votes for each.

In other districts copy of record to be delivered to city or town clerk.

Section 322. In other representative districts, the election officers in every voting precinct, and the selectmen and town clerk of each town therein not divided into voting precincts, shall, as soon as the vote for representatives has been recorded, cause a complete copy of such record to be made, and shall certify, seal and deliver it to the city or town clerk.

Clerks to meet and determine election, etc.

The city and town clerks in such districts shall meet at the place designated at noon on the tenth day following the day of the election; but on the fourth day following the day of an election to fill a vacancy. They shall examine the copies of the records of votes of every such voting precinct and town, and determine who appear to be elected to the office of representative. They shall, in words at length, make and certify a schedule of the names of all persons for whom votes for representative were cast in the district and the number of votes for each, and the clerk of each city and town shall record such schedule within four days after the day of the meeting.

Designation of places of meeting of clerks.

Section 323. If a representative district is included within the provisions of the preceding section, the officers authorized to divide the county into representative districts shall, in making such division, designate a place in each such district or adjacent thereto at which the clerks shall meet to determine the result of the election. Such place of meeting may be changed on petition of two of such clerks after a hearing; but not oftener than once in two years. Notice of such designation and of every change thereof shall be given by the said officers having such authority to the secretary of the commonwealth, and to every city and town clerk in the district. Notice to be given.

Section 324. If an error appears in the copies of the records of votes for a representative, the city and town clerks shall forthwith give notice thereof to the election officers, who shall thereupon make an additional record under oath and transmit a copy thereof to said clerks. Such additional copy shall be examined by them if received within two days from the time appointed for their meeting; and for such purpose their meeting may be adjourned for not more than two days. Correction of errors in records of votes for representatives.

Section 325. The board of aldermen, the election commissioners, the selectmen, or the city or town clerks acting in a representative district shall make duplicate certificates of election of the persons appearing to be elected and shall, within fifteen days after the day of the election, or within ten days after the day of an election to fill a vacancy, transmit one certificate to the secretary of the commonwealth, and shall transmit the other certificate, by a constable or other officer, to the person elected. Such certificates of election shall be in the following form: — Certificates of election to be made in duplicate. Transmission.

Sections one to four, inclusive, of chapter three, Revised Laws, this section and section three hundred and thirty-eight of this act shall be printed on every such form. The officer transmitting the certificate shall make a return of his doings. Officer transmitting to make return, etc.

Section 326. City and town clerks, in Boston the election commissioners, shall, within fifteen days after an election for representative in the general court, transmit to the secretary of the commonwealth an attested copy of the record of votes cast for all candidates for said office in each voting precinct and in each town not divided into voting precincts. Returns of votes to secretary of the commonwealth.

Whole number of ballots to be stated in words at length, etc.

SECTION 327. The whole number of ballots cast at elections shall be stated in words at length in the records of votes and in all copies thereof, but if not so stated, the record or copy shall not be invalid if the true result can be ascertained therefrom.

Violation of certain provisions not to affect, etc.

SECTION 328. A violation by a public officer or election officer of laws relative to providing ballot boxes, blank forms and other apparatus or to the care and preservation thereof, or to the manner of canvassing and counting votes, shall not invalidate any record or copy of a record or certificate made by a city, precinct or town clerk, or in Boston the election commissioners, or affect the title of a person declared to be elected to office.

Number of names checked to be certified to secretary of the commonwealth.

SECTION 329. The city or town clerk, in Boston the election commissioners, shall, within fifteen days after an election of state, city or town officers, certify to the secretary of the commonwealth the total number of names of male and of female voters checked on the voting list at such election in each voting precinct or town.

Report of number of assessed polls, registered voters, etc.

SECTION 330. The secretary of the commonwealth shall, before the first day of February, report to the general court the number of assessed polls, the number of registered male and female voters at the date of the preceding annual state election and city or town election, and the total number of persons, male and female, who voted at each such election in every city and town, and in every voting precinct therein, and the number of votes received by each candidate for nomination and for election for a state office, and for election for a state committee, arranged by cities, towns and districts, and a concise statement of other matters relating to elections, with such suggestions as he may deem advisable.

RECOUNTS OF VOTES.

Contested election, ballots to be retained.

SECTION 331. If a person who has received votes for any office at an election shall, within thirty days thereafter, himself or by his agent serve upon a city or town clerk, in Boston the election commissioners, a written claim to such office or a declaration of an intention to contest the election of any other person, the clerk or commissioners shall retain the envelopes containing the ballots for such office until such claim is withdrawn or the contest is determined. The envelopes and ballots shall be subject to the order of the body to which such person claims to be elected, or of the officers required by law finally to examine the records and to issue certificates of election to such office, or of any court having jurisdiction thereof. Such body or officers may require the clerk or commissioners to produce such envelopes and ballots, and may recount the ballots and amend any record or copy thereof in relation to such office.

Recount of ballots.

Section 332. If, on or before five o'clock on the third day next succeeding the day of an election in a ward of a city or in a town, ten or more voters of such ward or town, except Boston, and in Boston fifty or more voters of a ward, shall sign in person, adding thereto their respective residences on the first day of April of that year, and cause to be filed with the city or town clerk, or in Boston with the election commissioners, a statement sworn to by one of the subscribers that they have reason to believe and do believe that the records, or copies of records, made by the election officers of certain precincts in such ward or town, or in case of a town not voting by precincts, by the election officers of such town, are erroneous, specifying wherein they deem them to be in error and that they believe a recount of the ballots cast in such precincts or town will affect the election of one or more candidates voted for at such election, specifying the candidates, or will affect the decision of a question voted upon at such election, specifying the question, the city or town clerk shall forthwith transmit such statement and the envelopes containing the ballots, sealed, to the registrars of voters, who shall, without unnecessary delay, but not before the last hour for filing requests for recounts, open the envelopes, recount the ballots and determine the questions raised; but upon a recount of votes for town officers in a town in which the selectmen are members of the board of registrars of voters, the recount shall be made by the moderator, who shall have all the powers and perform all the duties conferred or imposed by this section upon registrars of voters.

Errors in records of election officers, statement, etc.

Statement, etc., to be transmitted to registrars of voters.

Determination of questions raised.

Recount of votes in certain towns to be made by moderator.

The registrars of voters, or in Boston the election commissioners, shall, before proceeding to recount the ballots, give notice in writing to the several candidates interested in such recount and liable to be affected thereby, or to such person as shall be designated by the petitioners for a recount of ballots cast upon questions submitted to the voters, of the time and place of making the recount, and each such candidate or person representing petitioners shall be allowed to be present and witness such recount, either in person, accompanied with counsel if he so desires, or by an agent appointed by him in writing. In the case of a recount of the ballots cast upon a question submitted to the voters, one representative from any committee organized to favor or to oppose the question so submitted shall be permitted to be present and witness the recount. In the city of Boston, the chairman of the city committee representing the largest political party and the chairman of the city committee representing the second largest political party may in writing designate two persons, or such further number as the election commissioners may allow, to be present and witness the count, and said election commissioners shall allow each candidate whose election is in question, or his representative, to be present and may allow representatives of other political parties and other persons to be present and witness the recount.

In Boston.

Recounts to be upon questions designated in statements, etc.

All recounts shall be upon the questions designated in the statements filed, and no other count shall be made, or allowed to be made, or other information taken, or allowed to be taken, from the ballots on such recount.

Envelopes to be sealed and indorsed, etc.

The registrars of voters or election commissioners, shall, when the recount is complete, enclose all the ballots in their proper envelopes, seal each envelope with a seal provided for the purpose, and certify upon each envelope that the same has been opened and again sealed in conformity to law; and shall likewise make and sign a statement of their determination of the questions raised. The envelopes, with such statement, shall, except in Boston, be returned to the city or town clerk, and the clerk or commissioners shall alter and amend such records as have been found to be erroneous in accordance with such determination; and the records so amended shall stand as the true records of the election. Such amended records of votes cast at a state election shall be made and transmitted as required by law in the case of copies of original records. If, in case of a recount of votes for town officers, it shall appear that a person was elected other than the person declared to have been elected, the registrars of voters shall forthwith make and sign a certificate of such fact, stating therein the number of votes cast, as determined by the recount, for each candidate for the office the election to which is disputed, and shall file the same with the town clerk. The town clerk shall record the certificate and shall, within twenty-four hours after such filing, cause a copy of such certificate, attested by him, to be delivered to or left at the residence of the person so declared to have been elected, and to the person who by such certificate appears to be elected.

Registrars of voters may employ such clerical assistance as they may deem necesssary to enable them to carry out the provisions of this section. Clerical assistance.

Section 333. No officer recounting ballots shall, except as required by law, make any statement or give any information relative to a ballot cast by a challenged voter. No information to be given regarding challenged voter.

Section 334. The board of aldermen, or in Boston the election commissioners, shall not declare the result of an election for state or city officers or of a vote upon any question submitted to the voters until the time for filing a petition for a recount of ballots has expired, or, if such petition has been filed, until the ballots have been recounted and the returns amended, notwithstanding any special act relating to such city. After the ballots have been recounted and the records amended, said board or commissioners shall forthwith declare the result of the election, and the city clerk or election commissioners shall thereupon issue certificates of their election to the persons elected. No person elected to a city office shall act in an official capacity by virtue of such election before such certificate has been issued. Result of elections in cities not to be declared until certain time, etc. Not to act before certificate of election has been issued.

PART IV.

PROCEEDINGS IN CASES OF FAILURE TO ELECT, AND VACANCIES IN STATE OFFICES.

Section 335. If, upon examination of the copies of the records of votes for presidential electors, it appears that a majority of the whole number of electors has not been chosen, the governor shall forthwith, by proclamation, call together the general court; and the senators and representatives assembled in joint convention shall by ballot choose electors to complete the full number. Presidential electors, failure to elect a majority.

If the whole number of electors has not been chosen when the electors meet on the second Monday in January, or if an elector has died or is then absent, the electors present shall forthwith choose electors from the citizens of the commonwealth to complete the full number. Vacancy or absence at time of meeting.

Section 336. Upon a failure to choose a senator in congress or upon a vacancy in said office the governor shall cause precepts to be issued to the aldermen in every city and the selectmen in every town directing them to call meetings of Senator in congress, failure to elect or vacancy.

the voters on the day appointed therein for the election of such senator.

Representative in congress, failure to elect or vacancy.

Section 337. Upon a failure to choose a representative in congress or upon a vacancy in said office, the governor shall cause precepts to be issued to the aldermen in every city and the selectmen in every town in the district, directing them to call meetings of the voters on the day appointed therein for the election of such representative.

Representative in general court, failure to elect.

Section 338. Upon a failure to choose a representative in the general court at the annual state election, a certificate thereof shall be transmitted forthwith to the secretary of the commonwealth by the officers required to transmit certificates of election, and another election to fill the vacancy for such representative shall be held on the fourth Monday of the same month of November.

Vacancy.

Upon a vacancy in the office of representative in the general court or upon the failure to elect on the fourth Monday of November, the speaker of the house of representatives shall issue precepts to the board of aldermen of each city and the selectmen of each town comprising the district or any part thereof, appointing such time as the house of representatives may order for an election to fill such vacancy. Upon the receipt of such precepts, the aldermen or the selectmen shall call meetings of the qualified voters in the district, which shall be held in accordance with the precepts.

District attorney and county officers, failure to elect.

Section 339. Upon a failure to choose a district attorney, clerk of the courts, register of probate and insolvency or sheriff, the governor shall cause precepts to be issued to the proper officers, directing them to call meetings of the voters on the day appointed therein, for the election of such officer.

Vacancy.

Upon a vacancy by removal or otherwise in any of the above named offices, he shall in like manner cause precepts to be issued for an election to fill such vacancy at the next annual state election for which precepts can be seasonably issued.

Vacancy, appointment.

Upon a vacancy in the office of district attorney, register of probate and insolvency or sheriff, the governor with the advice and consent of the council may appoint some person thereto until a district attorney, register of probate and insolvency or sheriff is elected and qualified. Upon a vacancy in the office of clerk of the courts in any county, or of the clerk of the supreme judicial court in the county of Suffolk, the justices of said court may appoint a clerk who shall hold the office until a clerk is elected and qualified.

Upon a vacancy in the office of a clerk of the superior court in the county of Suffolk, the justices of said court may appoint a clerk, who shall hold the office until a clerk is elected and qualified.

Clerk of superior court, Suffolk county, vacancy.

Section 340. Upon a failure to choose a county treasurer or a register of deeds for a county or district, except the counties of Suffolk and Nantucket, the county commissioners shall forthwith issue precepts to the board of aldermen of each city and the selectmen of each town in such county or district, directing them to call meetings of the voters for the election of such officer on a day appointed therein.

County treasurer, register of deeds, failure to elect.

Upon a vacancy by removal or otherwise in the office of county treasurer or of register of deeds in a county or district, except the counties of Suffolk and Nantucket, the county commissioners shall in like manner issue precepts for an election to fill such vacancy at the next annual state election for which precepts can be seasonably issued, and may appoint some person to fill such office until a person is elected thereto and qualified.

Vacancy.

In case of inability of the treasurer of any county to act as such treasurer by reason of illness or absence from the county, or by reason of any other cause, the county commissioners for said county may appoint some person to fill such office until said treasurer is able to resume his duties. The person appointed to act as temporary treasurer shall give a bond to secure the faithful performance of his duties, in such sum and with such sureties as said county commissioners shall approve.

In case of inability of county treasurer to act, etc., county commissioners may appoint, etc.

Person appointed to give bond.

Upon a failure to choose a register of deeds in the county of Suffolk, or upon a vacancy in that office, the board of aldermen of the city of Boston shall call meetings to elect a register of deeds or to fill such vacancy, as is above provided for an election in other counties; and, upon a vacancy in that office in said county of Suffolk, the superior court shall appoint some person to the office until a person is elected thereto and qualified.

Register of deeds, Suffolk county, failure to elect, vacancy.

Upon a failure to choose a register of deeds in the county of Nantucket, or upon a vacancy in that office, the selectmen of the town of Nantucket shall call a meeting to elect a register of deeds as is above provided for an election in other counties, and may appoint some person to the office until a person is elected thereto and qualified.

Register of deeds, Nantucket county, failure to elect, vacancy.

Whenever in any county a register of deeds who has no assistant is unable, or if he has an assistant or assistants he and such assistant or assistants are unable, by reason of sickcounty commissioners may appoint a register pro tempore.

ness or otherwise to perform the duties of their respective offices, the county commissioners for the county electing such register or, in the county of Suffolk, the superior court, may appoint a register of deeds pro tempore who shall perform the duties of register until the said elected register or his assistants or any of them is able to resume the duties of his office, or until the election and qualification of a new register.

To be sworn and give bond.

A register of deeds pro tempore shall be sworn and shall give a bond according to the requirements of law for registers of deeds, and notice of his appointment shall be recorded in the Powers and duties.

registry of deeds in which he is to act. A register of deeds pro tempore shall have the same duties and powers as are provided for by law in the case of registers of deeds, and shall receive such compensation for his services as said county commissioners and the superior court, respectively, may deem reasonable.

County or associate commissioner, failure to elect.

Section 341. Upon a failure to choose a county commissioner or associate commissioner, the board of examiners shall forthwith issue precepts to the board of aldermen of each city and to the selectmen of each town in such county, directing them to call meetings of the voters to elect such officer on a day appointed therein. In the county of Middlesex, such precept shall also be issued to the selectmen of the towns of Revere and Winthrop.

Vacancy, election.

Upon a vacancy by removal or otherwise in the office of county commissioner or associate commissioner, the board of examiners shall in like manner issue precepts for an election to fill such vacancy at the next annual state election for which precepts can be seasonably issued, except that no such election shall be held unless the term of office of the commissioner whose office is so vacant extends beyond the first Wednesday of January next succeeding the day of such election.

Vacancy, appointment.

Upon a vacancy in said offices, the county commissioners or the two remaining county commissioners, as the case may be, and the clerk of the courts for the county, or a majority of them, may appoint some person to fill such office until a person is elected thereto and qualified.

District attorney or county officers, vacancy.

Section 342. If there is a vacancy in the office of district attorney, clerk of the courts, register of probate and insolvency, sheriff, county treasurer, register of deeds, county commissioner or associate commissioner, the term of which expires on the first Wednesday of January following the next annual state election for which precepts can be seasonably issued, no precepts shall be issued or election held to fill such vacancy.

Secretary of the commonwealth to be notified.

Section 343. The county commissioners in each county shall forthwith notify the secretary of the commonwealth of any vacancy in the office of county treasurer or of register of deeds; and the board of examiners shall give like notice to the secretary of any vacancy in the office of county commissioner or associate commissioner, and in each case they shall send to him a copy of the precepts issued by them for an election.

Copy of precept to secretary.

Elections to fill vacancies, proceedings.

Section 344. At elections held because of a failure to elect or to fill vacancies, the proceedings shall be the same, so far as applicable, as in elections to the same office at the annual state election.

PROCEEDINGS OF PRESIDENTIAL ELECTORS.

Presidential electors, meeting, organization.

Section 345. The persons chosen as presidential electors shall meet at the state house on the Saturday preceding the second Monday in January succeeding their election at three o'clock in the afternoon and organize by the choice of a presiding officer and secretary. The secretary of the commonwealth shall call the meeting to order, call the roll of electors, and preside until a presiding officer shall be chosen.

Proceedings.

If, on the second Monday in January, the whole number of electors has not been chosen, or if any electors have died or are then absent, the electors present shall forthwith choose electors from the citizens of this commonwealth to complete the full number. They shall thereupon vote by ballot for president and vice president of the United States, one of whom at least shall not be an inhabitant of this commonwealth. They shall name in their ballots the person voted for as president, and in distinct ballots, the person voted for as vice president. They shall make distinct lists of all persons voted for as president and of all persons voted for as vice president and of the number of votes for each, and shall sign, certify and transmit such lists, sealed, to the seat of government of the United States, directed to the president of the senate; and they shall in all respects proceed conformably to the constitution and laws of the United States. The secretary of the electoral college shall keep a journal of its proceedings and deposit the same in the office of the secretary of the commonwealth, where it shall be recorded and filed.

Journal to be kept.

Compensation.

Section 346. Each elector shall receive from the commonwealth three dollars for each day of attendance, and one dollar for every five miles of travel from his residence to the place of meeting.

CORRUPT PRACTICES.

Candidate not to promise appointment, etc., to aid his nomination or election.

Section 347. No person shall, in order to aid or promote his own nomination or election to a public office, directly or indirectly, himself or through another person, promise to appoint, or promise to secure or assist in securing the appointment, nomination or election of another person to a public position or employment or to a position of honor, trust or emolument, except that he may announce or define what is his choice or purpose in relation to an election in which he may be called to take part, if elected.

Payments, etc., by candidates regulated.

Section 348. No person shall, in order to aid or promote his own nomination or election to a public office, directly or indirectly, himself or through another person, give, pay, expend or contribute, or promise to give, pay, expend or contribute, any money or other valuable thing, except for personal expenses or to a political committee as hereinafter provided. The words "personal expenses", as used in this act, shall include only expenses directly incurred and paid by a person for travelling and for purposes properly incidental to travelling; for writing, printing and preparing for transmission and distributing any letter, circular, or other publication, wherein is stated his position or views upon public or other questions; for stationery and postage; for telegraph, telephone and messenger service, expressage, and for preparing, circulating and filing nomination papers, and for the hire of not more than one conveyance to be used at each polling place at primaries only.

Term "personal expenses" defined.

Purposes for which certain persons and political committees may make expenditures, etc.

No person not a candidate for nomination or election, and no political committee, as defined in section one shall, in order to aid, promote or defeat the nomination or election of any person to public office, pay, expend or contribute, or promise to pay, expend or contribute, any money or valuable thing except in good faith for the following purposes: advertising, rent and maintenance of political headquarters, meetings, refreshments other than intoxicating liquors, decorations and music, postage, stationery, printing, expressage, travelling expenses of candidates, committees, speakers and clerks, telephone, telegraph, messenger service and clerk hire, and for preparing, circulating and filing nomination papers; but a political committee may expend money for the hire of not more than one conveyance to be used at each polling place at elections only.

Voluntary payment to political committee.

SECTION 349. A person who is a candidate for nomination or who is nominated as a candidate or voted for with his assent for public office, may make a voluntary payment of money or a voluntary and unconditional promise of payment of money to a political committee for the promotion of the principles of the party which it represents, or for its general purposes. No candidate for nomination or election or both, shall in any one election, including the primary therefor, make or incur, directly or indirectly, any payments, expenditures, promises or liabilities under this section which exceed in the whole twenty-five dollars for each one thousand or major portion thereof of the registered voters qualified to vote for the office in question at the next preceding election, but no candidate shall expend more than five thousand dollars, and any candidate may expend at least one hundred and fifty dollars for the said purposes.

Payments, etc., by candidates limited.

Payments, etc., to be in name of person paying, etc.

SECTION 350. No person shall, directly or indirectly, himself or through another person, make a payment or promise of payment to a political committee or to any person acting under its authority or in its behalf, in any name except his own; nor shall such committee or person knowingly receive a payment or promise of payment, or enter or cause the same to be entered in the accounts or records of such committee, in any other name than that of the person by whom it is made.

Soliciting, etc., from candidate prohibited, etc.

SECTION 351. No person or persons, no political committee and no person acting under the authority of a political committee or in its behalf, shall demand, solicit, ask or invite from a person who is a candidate for nomination or election to public office, or who is occupying an elective public office, any payment or gift of money or other valuable thing, or promise of payment or gift of money or other valuable thing for advertising, gratuities, donations, tickets, programmes, or any other purpose whatsoever; and no such candidate for nomination or election, and no one who is occupying an elective public office, shall make any such payment or gift, or promise to make any such payment or gift, to any person or persons, political committee, or any person acting under the authority of a political committee, if such person or political committee has demanded, solicited, asked, or invited from him any such payment, gift, or promise of payment or gift; but this provision shall not apply to the soliciting or making in good faith of gifts for charitable or religious purposes.

Candidates, etc., not to make payment, etc., when solicited.

Demanding, etc., payment of money, etc., as a prerequisite to obtaining nomination papers prohibited.

Section 352. No political committee, and no person acting under its authority or in its behalf, shall demand or solicit from any person who is a candidate for nomination to elective office, or from anyone acting in his behalf, a payment of money or a promise of payment of money, as a prerequisite to his obtaining from such committee or its agent the nomination papers required by the provisions of sections one hundred and sixty-three to one hundred and seventy, inclusive.

Payments, etc., by certain corporations to promote or prevent the nomination or election of a person, etc., prohibited.

Section 353. No business corporation incorporated under the laws of, or doing business in this commonwealth, and no officer or agent acting in behalf of such corporation, shall directly or indirectly give, pay, expend or contribute, or promise to give, pay, expend or contribute any money or other valuable thing in order to aid, promote or prevent the nomination or election of any person to public office, or in order to aid, promote or antagonize the interests of any political party. No person or persons, no political committee and no person acting under the authority of a political committee, or in its behalf, shall solicit or receive from such corporation any such gift, payment, expenditure or contribution, or any promise to give, pay, expend or contribute.

No person or political committee, etc., to solicit or receive such payment, etc.

Publication of unsigned political advertisements, prohibited.

Section 354. No person shall publish or cause to be published in a newspaper or other periodical, either in its advertising or reading columns, any paid matter which is designed or tends to aid, injure, or defeat any candidate for public office or a constitutional amendment or any other question submitted to the voters, unless the name of the chairman or secretary or the names of two officers of the political or other organization inserting the same, or the name of some voter who is responsible therefor, with his residence and the street and number thereof, if any, appear therein in the nature of a signature. Such matter inserted in reading columns shall be preceded or followed by the word "Advertisement" in a separate line, in type not smaller than that of the body type of the newspaper or other periodical.

Reading matter to be preceded or followed by the word "Advertisement."

Payment to publisher, etc., of newspaper, etc., for advocating or opposing election of candidates prohibited.

Section 355. No person shall pay the owner, editor, publisher, or agent of a newspaper or other periodical to induce him editorially to advocate or oppose any candidate for public office or political principle, or a constitutional amendment or any other question submitted to the voters; and no such owner, editor, publisher, or agent shall accept such payment. This provision shall not apply to the outright purchase of such newspaper or periodical.

Certain corporations, etc., not to make political contributions.

Section 356. No corporation carrying on the business of a bank, trust, surety, indemnity, safe deposit, insurance, railroad, street railway, telegraph, telephone, gas, electric light, heat, power, canal, aqueduct, or water company, or any company having the right to take or condemn land or to exercise franchises in public ways, granted by the commonwealth or by any county, city or town, and no trustee or trustees owning or holding the majority of the stock of such a corporation, shall pay or contribute in order to aid, promote, or prevent the nomination or election of any person to public office, or in order to aid, promote or antagonize the interests of any political party, or to influence or affect the vote on any question submitted to the voters. No person shall solicit or receive such payment or contribution from such corporation or such holders of stock: provided, however, that this section shall not be construed to prevent the bona fide publication or circulation by such a corporation, or such trustee or trustees, of paid matter when under a referendum or question submitted to the voters, the taking, purchasing or acquiring of any of the property, business or assets of the corporation is involved, provided that the name of the corporation appears therein in the nature of a signature, and that, if inserted as reading matter, such matter is preceded or followed by the word "Advertisement", in the manner required by section three hundred and fifty-four.

Proviso.

Reading matter to be preceded or followed by the word "Advertisement."

No payments to be made for naturalization fees, etc.

Section 357. No political committee and no person who is required to file a statement shall make any payment or promise of payment of money to or in behalf of any person for naturalization fees or for services as counsel or otherwise in assisting any one to obtain naturalization.

Every political committee to have a treasurer, etc.

Section 358. Every political committee shall have a treasurer, who is a voter of the commonwealth, and shall cause him to keep detailed accounts of all money or its equivalent, received by or promised to the committee, or by or to any person acting under its authority or in its behalf, and of all expenditures, disbursements and promises of payment or disbursement made by the committee or by any person acting under its authority or in its behalf. No person acting under its authority or behalf shall receive any money or its equivalent, or expend or disburse the same, until the committee has chosen a treasurer.

Receipts or disbursements prohibited until treasurer is chosen.

Number of persons that may be employed by political committees in cities.

The number of persons that may be employed by political committees in cities for any purpose, except as caucus officers, shall not exceed six persons in each voting precinct of the city. In cities, or parts thereof, not divided into precincts, the number shall not exceed six for each ward.

Persons acting for committees to give detailed account to treasurer, etc.

SECTION 359. Whoever, acting under the authority or in behalf of a political committee, receives any money or its equivalent, or promise of the same, or expends or incurs any liability to pay the same, shall, on demand, and in any event within fourteen days after such receipt, expenditure, promise or liability, give to the treasurer a detailed account of the same, with all vouchers required by this act, which shall be a part of the accounts and files of such treasurer.

Treasurer to file statement, contents.

SECTION 360. The treasurer of every political committee which receives, expends or disburses any money or its equivalent, or incurs any liability to pay money in connection with any nomination or election to an amount exceeding twenty dollars, shall, within thirty days after such election, file a statement setting forth all the receipts, expenditures, disbursements and liabilities of the committee and of every officer and other person acting under its authority or in its behalf. It shall include the amount in each case received, the name of the person or committee from whom received, the date of its receipt, the amount of every expenditure or disbursement, the name of the person or committee to whom it was made, and the date thereof; and, unless such expenditure or disbursement was made to another political committee, shall clearly state the purpose of such expenditure or disbursement; also the date and amount of every existing promise or liability, both to and from such committee, remaining unfulfilled and in force when the statement is made, the name of the person or committee to or from whom the unfulfilled promise or liability exists, and a clear statement of the purpose for which the promise or liability was made or incurred. If the aggregate receipts or disbursements of a political committee in connection with any election shall not exceed twenty dollars, the treasurer of the committee shall, within thirty days after the election, certify the fact under oath to the secretary of the commonwealth.

Other persons subject to requirements.

SECTION 361. Whoever, acting otherwise than under the authority or in behalf of a political committee having a treasurer, receives money or its equivalent, or expends or disburses, or promises to expend or disburse money or its equivalent, to an amount exceeding twenty dollars, to aid or promote the success or defeat of a political party or principle in any election, or to aid or influence the nomination, election or defeat of a candidate for office, shall file in the city or town in which he is a voter, the statement required by the preceding section, and shall be subject to all the duties required by this act of a political committee or the treasurer thereof; but no person except a voter of the commonwealth shall receive, expend or disburse any money or its equivalent or promise to expend or disburse any money or its equivalent, for either of the purposes above named, except for personal expenses as is herein provided, or under the authority or in behalf of a political committee.

Candidates to file statements.

Section 362. Every candidate for nomination to a public office shall, within seven days after the last day for filing nominations for that office, and every candidate for election to a public office shall within seven days after the election held to fill the office, file a statement in writing setting forth each sum of money and thing of value expended, contributed, or promised by him, for the purpose of securing or in any way affecting his nomination or election to the office, and the name of the person or political committee to whom the payment, contribution or promise was made and the date thereof.

Filing of statements, oath.

Section 363. The statement required to be filed by a candidate, treasurer or other person shall be filed with the clerk of the city or town in which such candidate, treasurer or other person is a voter. In case the nomination to which such statement relates is a nomination to a state or national office, or the election is a state or national election, a duplicate shall be filed with the secretary of the commonwealth. Whoever makes a statement required by the provisions of this act shall make oath that it is in all respects correct and true to the best of his knowledge and belief.

Statements to be inspected, etc.

Section 364. The secretary of the commonwealth shall inspect all statements filed with him, and the clerks of cities shall inspect all statements relating to nominations and to city elections filed with them, within sixty days after the election to which they relate, and if upon examination of the official ballot it appears that any person has failed to file a statement as required by law, or if it appears to the secretary that any such statement filed with him does not conform to law, or if it appears to a city clerk that such statement relating to a city nomination or election does not conform to law, or upon complaint in writing by five registered voters that a statement does not conform to law, or that any person has failed to file a statement required by law, the secretary or city clerk shall in writing notify the delinquent person. Such complaint shall state in detail the grounds of objection, shall be sworn to by one of the subscribers, and shall be filed with the secretary or with the proper city clerk within ninety days after the election in question, or within sixty days after the filing of a statement or amended statement.

Complaint, form, filing.

Attorney-general to be notified.

Section 365. Upon the failure to file a statement within ten days after receiving notice under the preceding section, or if any statement filed as above discloses any violation of any provision of this act relating to corrupt practices in elections, the secretary of the commonwealth or the city clerk, as the case may be, shall notify the attorney-general thereof and shall furnish him with copies of all papers relating thereto, and the attorney-general, within two months thereafter, shall examine every such case, and if he is satisfied that there is cause, he shall in the name of the commonwealth institute appropriate civil proceedings or refer the case to the proper district attorney for such action as may be appropriate in the criminal courts.

Courts may compel the filing of statements, etc.

Section 366. The supreme judicial court or the superior court may compel any person who fails to file a statement as above required, or who files a statement which does not conform to the foregoing requirements in respect to its truth, sufficiently in detail, or otherwise, to file a sufficient statement, upon the application of the attorney-general or district attorney or petition of any candidate voted for, or of any five persons qualified to vote at the election on account of which the expenditures, or any part thereof, were made or are alleged to have been made. Such petition shall be filed within sixty days after such election, if the statement was filed within the thirty days required, but a petition may be filed within thirty days of any payment not included in the statement so filed. Proceedings under this section shall be advanced upon the request of either party for speedy trial. No petition brought under this act shall be discontinued without the consent of the attorney-general.

Proceedings to be advanced upon request, etc.

Witness not liable, except, etc.

Section 367. No person who is called to testify in any proceedings under the preceding section shall be liable to criminal prosecution under this act or otherwise for any matters or causes in respect of which he shall be examined or to which his testimony shall relate, except to prosecution for perjury committed in such testimony.

Statements to be preserved, etc.

Section 368. All statements shall be preserved for fifteen months after the election to which they relate, and shall, under reasonable regulations, be open to public inspection.

Vouchers, accounts, etc., preservation.

Section 369. Every payment required to be accounted for shall, unless the total expense payable to any one person is less than five dollars, be vouched for by a receipted bill stating the particulars of expense, and every voucher, receipt or account hereby required shall be preserved for six months after the election to which it relates.

Blank forms to be furnished.

Section 370. The secretary of the commonwealth shall at the expense of the commonwealth furnish to the city and town clerks, and in Boston to the election commissioners, blanks in form approved by the secretary and by the attorney-general, suitable for the statements required by law. On the receipt of a list of candidates for public office before a caucus or primary, or upon the filing of a nomination before a municipal election, the election commissioners in Boston, and the clerk of any other city or the town clerk shall transmit to the candidate or candidates put in nomination, and to the treasurers of political committees, the blanks above described. Upon the filing of a nomination before a state or national election the secretary of the commonwealth shall transmit to the candidate or candidates put in nomination, and to the treasurers of the political committees, the blanks above described. To any person required to file a statement such blanks shall be furnished upon application therefor.

Nominations and elections to which provisions shall apply.

Section 371. The provisions of this act relative to corrupt practices shall apply to all public elections, except of town officers, and to elections by the general court and by city councils, and by either branch thereof, to the nomination by primaries, caucuses and conventions and nomination papers of candidates to be voted for at such elections. The term "political committee" as defined in section one, and sections three hundred and forty-eight and three hundred and fifty shall not apply to the proprietors and publishers of publications issued at regular intervals, in respect to the ordinary conduct of their business.

INQUESTS IN ELECTION CASES.

Inquests upon violations of election laws.

SECTION 372. Upon a complaint subscribed and sworn to by any person before a police, district or municipal court or a trial justice, alleging that reasonable grounds exist for believing that any law relating to the assessment, qualification or registration of voters, or to voting lists or ballots, or to primaries, caucuses, conventions and elections, or to any matters pertaining thereto, has been violated, such court or justice may at once hold an inquest to inquire into such alleged violation of the law.

Inquests may be private, etc.

SECTION 373. The court or trial justice may exclude all persons whose presence is not necessary at such inquest; and may also direct the witnesses to be kept so separated that they cannot converse with each other until they have been examined. The attorney-general, the district attorney, or some person designated by either, shall attend the inquest and examine the witnesses.

Examination of witnesses.

Witnesses, attendance, fees, etc.

SECTION 374. Such court, justice or attorney may issue subpœnas for witnesses, who shall be allowed the same fees, whose attendance may be enforced in the same manner, and who shall be subject to the same penalties, as if served with a subpœna in behalf of the commonwealth in a criminal prosecution before such court or trial justice.

Stenographer may be employed, etc.

SECTION 375. Such court or trial justice may employ a stenographer and may have the proceedings reduced to writing; and if he finds that the law has been violated, shall report to the superior court all the material facts and the names of any persons guilty of any such violation.

Witnesses may be bound over to appear, etc.

SECTION 376. The court or trial justice may bind over, as in criminal prosecutions, such witnesses as are necessary, or as said attorney may designate, to appear and testify in the superior court.

Certain persons may be apprehended.

SECTION 377. If a person charged by the report with the commission of an offence is not in custody, the court or trial justice shall forthwith issue a process for his apprehension; but such process may issue before the filing of said report, if otherwise lawful.

Witnesses not liable, etc.

SECTION 378. No person shall be excused from testifying or producing any papers in any inquest proceedings under this act on the ground that his testimony may tend to criminate him or subject him to a penalty or forfeiture, but he shall not be prosecuted or be subjected to a penalty or forfeiture for or on account of any action, matter or thing concerning which he may so testify, except for perjury committed in such testimony.

OFFICERS TO BE ELECTED AT STATE ELECTIONS.

State officers to be elected annually.

Section 379. At the annual state election there shall be chosen by the voters of the commonwealth, as prescribed by the constitution, a governor, lieutenant governor, secretary of the commonwealth, treasurer and receiver general, auditor of the commonwealth, and attorney-general; by the voters in each councillor district, one councillor; by the voters in each senatorial district, one senator; and by the voters in each representative district, such number of representatives as the district is entitled to elect.

Presidential electors.

Section 380. At the annual state election in each year in which presidential electors are required to be elected, a number of electors, equal to the whole number of senators and representatives in congress to which the commonwealth is entitled, shall be chosen by the voters of the commonwealth.

Senators in Congress.

Section 381. At the annual state election in the year nineteen hundred and sixteen, and in every sixth year thereafter, and in the year nineteen hundred and eighteen and in every sixth year thereafter, a senator in congress shall be chosen by the voters of the commonwealth.

Representatives in Congress.

Section 382. At the annual state election in every even numbered year a representative in congress shall be chosen by the voters in each congressional district.

District attorneys.

Section 383. At the annual state election in the year nineteen hundred and thirteen, and in every third year thereafter, a district attorney shall be chosen by the voters in each of the districts into which the commonwealth is divided for the administration of the criminal law.

Clerks of courts.

Section 384. At the annual state election in the year nineteen hundred and sixteen, and in every fifth year thereafter, a clerk of the supreme judicial court for the county of Suffolk, and two clerks of the superior court, one for civil and one for criminal business, shall be chosen by the voters in said county; and, by the voters in each of the other counties, a clerk of the courts who shall act as clerk of the supreme judicial court, of the superior court and of the county commissioners.

Registers of probate and insolvency.

Section 385. At the annual state election in the year nineteen hundred and thirteen, and in every fifth year thereafter, a register of probate and insolvency shall be chosen by the voters of each county.

Registers of deeds.

Section 386. At the annual state election in the year nineteen hundred and sixteen, and in every fifth year thereafter, a register of deeds shall be chosen by the voters of each district for the registry of deeds, and of each county not divided into districts.

County commissioners.

Section 387. At the annual state election there shall be chosen by the voters of the county of Middlesex and of the towns of Revere and Winthrop, one county commissioner for said county and towns, and by the voters of each of the other counties, except the counties of Suffolk and Nantucket, one county commissioner for the county.

Associate commissioners.

At the annual state election in the year nineteen hundred and thirteen, and in every third year thereafter, there shall likewise be chosen by the voters of the county of Middlesex and of the towns of Revere and Winthrop, two associate commissioners for said county and towns, and by the voters of each of the other counties, except the counties of Suffolk and Nantucket, two associate commissioners for the county.

Not more than one commissioner from same city or town.

Not more than one of the county commissioners and associate commissioners shall be chosen from the same city or town. If two persons residing in the same city or town shall appear to have been chosen to said offices, the person only who receives the larger number of votes shall be declared elected; but if they shall receive an equal number of votes, no person shall be declared elected. If a person residing in a city or town in which a county commissioner or an associate commissioner who is to remain in office also resides, shall appear to have been chosen, he shall not be declared elected. If the person is not declared elected by reason of the above provisions, the person receiving the next highest number of votes for the office, and who resides in another city or town, shall be declared elected.

Sheriffs.

Section 388. At the annual state election in the year nineteen hundred and fifteen, and in every fifth year thereafter, a sheriff shall be chosen by the voters in each county.

County treasurers.

Section 389. At the annual state election in the year nineteen hundred and fifteen, and in every third year thereafter, a county treasurer shall be chosen by the voters in each county, except the counties of Suffolk and Nantucket.

Section 390. At the annual state election in the year nineteen hundred and fifteen, and in every tenth year thereafter, nine commissioners shall be elected for the county of Suffolk, for the performance of the duties hereinafter specified. Five of said commissioners shall be residents of and voters in the city of Boston and shall be elected by the voters of that city; two shall be residents of and voters in the city of Chelsea and shall be elected by the voters of that city; one shall be a resident of and a voter in the town of Winthrop and shall be elected by the voters of that town; and one shall be a resident of and a voter in the town of Revere and shall be elected by the voters of that town. Said commissioners shall hold office for one year from the first Wednesday of January next after their election. At their first meeting, they shall organize by choosing a chairman, who shall be one of their number, and a clerk. The city of Boston shall provide them with a suitable office and room for hearings and shall allow and pay to them for compensation a sum not exceeding five hundred dollars each, said sum to be determined by the governor and council, and a further sum of not more than seven hundred dollars for clerk hire, stationery and incidental expenses.

Commissioners to apportion Suffolk county into representative districts.

Term of office, organization.

City of Boston to provide office, etc.

Compensation, clerk hire, etc.

The said commissioners shall, on the first Tuesday of August next after the secretary of the commonwealth shall have certified to them the number of representatives to which the county of Suffolk may be entitled, as determined by the general court, assemble in the city of Boston, and, as soon as may be, shall so divide said county into representative districts of contiguous territory as to apportion the representation of said county, as nearly as may be, according to the number of voters in the several districts. Such districts shall be so formed that no ward of a city and no town shall be divided, and no district shall be so formed that it shall be entitled to elect more than three representatives. The districts shall be numbered by the commissioners, and a description of each district, its number and the number of voters therein shall be transmitted to the secretary of the commonwealth, to the board of election commissioners of the city of Boston, to the treasurer of the city of Boston, to the city clerk of the city of Boston, to the city clerk of the city of Chelsea, to the clerk of the town of Revere and to the clerk of the town of Winthrop and shall be filed and kept in their respective offices.

Duties.

Terms of office of certain officers.

Section 391. District attorneys, county commissioners, associate commissioners and county treasurers shall hold their several offices for terms of three years, and sheriffs, registers of deeds, clerks of the courts and registers of probate and insolvency for terms of five years, beginning with the first Wednesday of January in the year succeeding their respective elections and until their successors are chosen and qualified.

To be residents, etc.

Section 392. District attorneys, registers of deeds and county treasurers shall be residents of the counties or districts for which they are chosen.

Part V.

provisions applying to town meetings.

Town meetings, time of holding, adjournments.

Section 393. The annual meeting of each town shall be held in February, March or April; and other meetings may be held at such times as the selectmen may order. Meetings may be adjourned from time to time, and to any place within the town.

Warrants, notification.

Section 394. Every town meeting, except as hereinafter provided, shall be called in pursuance of a warrant, under the hands of the selectmen, directed to the constables or to some other persons, who shall forthwith give notice of such meeting in the manner prescribed by the by-laws or, if there are no by-laws, by a vote of the town.

Contents.

The warrant shall state the time and place of the meeting and the subjects to be there acted upon, and the selectmen shall insert in the warrant all subjects the insertion of which shall, in writing, be requested of them by any ten or more voters of the town.

Certain actions not valid.

No action shall be valid unless the subject-matter thereof is contained in the warrant.

Warrants may include two or more meetings.

Two or more distinct town meetings for distinct purposes may be called by the same warrant.

Warrants in case of vacancy in board of selectmen.

Section 395. If a majority of the selectmen shall vacate their offices, or if the full number shall fail to be elected or qualified, the selectmen in office may call a town meeting.

Justice of the peace may issue warrants in certain cases.

Section 396. If the selectmen unreasonably refuse to call a town meeting, a justice of the peace, upon the application of ten or more voters of the town, may call a meeting by a warrant under his hand, stating the subjects to be acted upon, directed to the constables of the town if there are any; otherwise to any of the persons applying therefor, directing them to summon the inhabitants qualified to vote in town affairs, to assemble at the time and place, and for the purposes expressed in the warrant.

Moderator, election.

Section 397. At every town meeting, except for the election of state officers, when moderators are not elected for the term of one year, a moderator shall first be chosen.

May be elected for the term of one year.

Any town which has so voted or hereafter votes may at any annual election of town officers elect from the inhabitants thereof by ballot, a moderator to preside at all town meetings except those for the election of state officers. His term of office shall begin as soon as he is qualified, and shall continue until the next annual town meeting and until his successor is elected and qualified. Any town which has elected a moderator for the term of one year shall thereafter elect a moderator at every annual election of town officers, unless at a meeting duly called for the purpose the town votes to discontinue the electing of moderators for said term.

Vacancy.

If a vacancy in the said office occurs during any term it may be filled by the voters of the town at a meeting called for that purpose. If a moderator so elected is absent, a moderator pro tempore may be elected.

Election of moderator for one year in certain towns, proceedings.

In towns where official ballots are used, the vote to elect moderators for the term of one year shall be taken at a meeting held at least thirty days before the annual town meeting at which the vote is to become operative, and at the first annual meeting after the town has so voted a moderator shall be chosen as provided in section four hundred and ten to serve at that meeting, and the moderator elected on the official ballot at that meeting shall act at subsequent town meetings, except those for the election of state officers, until his successor is elected and qualified.

Who shall preside until a moderator is elected.

At every town meeting until a moderator or moderator pro tempore is elected, the town clerk shall preside, but if he is absent or if there is no town clerk, the chairman of the selectmen or the member longest in continuous service shall preside, but if no selectman is present, the justice of the peace calling such meeting, if the meeting is so called, shall preside. Such presiding officer shall have the powers and perform the duties of a moderator.

Powers and duties of moderators.

Section 398. The moderator shall preside and regulate the proceedings, decide all questions of order, and make public declaration of all votes, and may administer in open meeting the oath of office to any town officer chosen thereat. If a vote so declared is immediately questioned by seven or more of the voters, he shall verify it by polling the voters or by dividing the meeting unless the town has by a previous order or by its by-laws provided another method.

Town may pass by-laws for regulation of proceedings at town meetings.

A town may at any town meeting called for the purpose pass by-laws, subject to the provisions of this section, for the regulation of the proceedings at town meetings of the town. Such by-laws shall be approved and published in the manner prescribed by section one of chapter three hundred and forty-four of the acts of the year nineteen hundred and four.

Speaking in town meeting regulated.

Section 399. No person shall address a town meeting without leave of the moderator, and all persons shall at the request of the moderator be silent. If a person, after warning from the moderator, persists in disorderly behavior, the moderator may order him to withdraw from the meeting; and if he does not withdraw, may order a constable or any other person to remove him and confine him in some convenient place until the meeting is adjourned.

Election of Town Officers.

Annual town meeting, officers to be elected.

Section 400. Every town at its annual meeting shall in every year, except as is otherwise provided in the following sections, choose from the inhabitants thereof the following named town officers, who, except as otherwise provided in the following sections, shall serve during the year:

A town clerk;

Three, five, seven or nine selectmen;

Three or more assessors; and, if the town so votes, three or more assistant assessors;

Three or more overseers of the poor;

A town treasurer, whom the town may at any meeting appoint collector of taxes;

One or more collectors of taxes, if the town so votes;

One or more auditors, who shall hold no other town office;

One or more highway surveyors, if the town so votes;

A road commissioner, if the town has provided for such officer;

A sewer commissioner, if the town has provided for such officer;

One or more constables, who shall also be collectors of taxes, unless other persons are specially chosen or appointed as such;

Two or more field drivers;

Two or more fence viewers; and such other town officers as are required by law then to be chosen;

A tree warden.

School committee.

The town shall likewise at its annual meeting choose from the inhabitants thereof members of the school committee, which committee shall consist of any number of persons divisible by three which the town has decided to elect, one third thereof to be elected annually, for the term of three years. If a town fails or neglects to choose such committee, an election at a subsequent meeting shall be valid. Where official ballots are used the number to be so elected shall be determined at a meeting held at least thirty days before the annual town meeting. A town may, at an annual meeting, if official ballots are not used, otherwise at a meeting held at least thirty days before the annual meeting at which such change is to become operative, vote to increase or diminish the number of its school committee. Such increase shall be made by adding one or more to each class, to hold office according to the tenure of the class to which they are severally chosen. Such diminution shall be made by choosing, annually, such number as will in three years effect it, and a vote to diminish shall remain in force until the diminution under it is accomplished.

Women eligible for certain offices.

Women shall be eligible as overseers of the poor and school committee.

Town clerk may be chosen for term of three years, etc.

Section 401. In towns which vote to accept the provisions of this section or have voted to accept the corresponding provisions of earlier laws, the town clerk may, until such acceptance is revoked at a subsequent meeting, be chosen for a term of three years; and such clerk may also serve as clerk of such officers, boards and departments of the town as the town may determine by a vote taken at said meeting or at a subsequent meeting.

Certain towns to elect a highway surveyor.

Section 402. In towns which vote to accept the provisions of this section or have voted to accept the corresponding provisions of earlier laws, there shall be elected at the annual town meeting in each year, until such acceptance is revoked by the town, a highway surveyor, who shall hold his office for one year. Upon the election of such surveyor, the office of road commissioner shall terminate.

Term of office of highway surveyor may be three years.

Section 403. A town which has voted to accept the provisions of the preceding section, or has voted to accept the corresponding provisions of earlier laws, may vote that the term of office of the highway surveyor shall be three years.

When to take effect.

SECTION 404. In towns where official ballots are not used, the question of the acceptance or revocation of the acceptance of any of the three preceding sections shall be voted upon only at an annual town meeting, and such vote shall take effect forthwith. In other towns, the question of acceptance or revocation shall be voted upon at a meeting held at least thirty days before the annual meeting at which such vote is to become operative.

Board of health, election, terms, etc.

SECTION 405. A town may elect a board of health consisting of three persons, who shall serve for terms of one, two and three years respectively, beginning with the day following the meeting at which they are elected, or until their respective successors are chosen and qualified; and thereafter such town shall, at its annual town meeting, choose one member of such board who shall hold office for three years from the day following such meeting and until another is chosen and qualified in his stead. If no such board is chosen, the selectmen shall act as a board of health.

If not elected, selectmen to act.

One member to be a physician in certain towns.

In every town having more than five thousand inhabitants as determined by the latest national or state census at least one member of the board, unless composed of the selectmen, shall be a physician.

When vote shall be taken in towns using official ballots.

Where official ballots are used the question of electing a board of health shall be voted upon at a meeting held at least thirty days before the annual meeting at which such vote is to become operative.

Selectmen and overseers of the poor, election in certain towns.

SECTION 406. A town may, at an annual meeting, if official ballots are not used, otherwise at a meeting held at least thirty days before the annual meeting at which such change is to become operative, vote to elect its selectmen, or overseers of the poor in the following manner: —

If the number fixed by the town is three, it shall, at the annual meeting when such vote is passed or at the next annual meeting, elect one for the term of one year, one for the term of two years and one for the term of three years; if the number is five, it shall elect one for the term of one year, two for terms of two years and two for terms of three years; if the number is seven, it shall elect two for terms of one year, two for terms of two years and three for terms of three years; if the number is nine, it shall elect three for terms of one year, three for terms of two years and three for terms of three years; and at each annual meeting thereafter, it shall elect one, two or three for the term of three years as the term of office of one, two or three expires.

In towns voting to increase or diminish the number of selectmen or overseers of the poor.

Section 407. A town which votes to increase or diminish the number of its selectmen or overseers of the poor, may at the same meeting if an annual meeting, otherwise at the annual meeting next succeeding the meeting at which the vote was passed, elect one or more such additional officers, or omit to elect one or more such officers, so as to bring the number to the limit fixed by the vote of the town, with terms of office expiring in the manner provided in the preceding section; but one selectman and overseer of the poor shall be elected annually. A town which has voted to elect said officers as provided in the preceding section, may at an annual meeting if official ballots are not used, otherwise at a meeting held at least thirty days before the annual meeting, rescind such action; but such rescission shall not affect the term of office of any such officer.

May rescind action.

Assessors, except in Boston, election, terms of office, etc.

Section 408. Each assessor in every city and town of the commonwealth, except in the city of Boston, shall be elected or appointed to hold office for the term of three years and until his successor is duly elected or appointed.

There shall be three, five, seven or nine assessors in each city and town, and as nearly one third as may be of the number shall be elected or appointed annually. A town by vote of a town meeting may change the number of assessors within the limits herein established, but such vote shall not affect the term of office of any assessor serving at the time of its adoption.

Town may vote to elect three road and three sewer commissioners.

Section 409. A town may at an annual meeting if official ballots are not used, otherwise at a meeting held at least thirty days before the annual meeting, vote to elect three road commissioners and three sewer commissioners in the following manner: —

Election, terms of office.

It shall, at the annual meeting when such vote is passed or at the annual meeting next succeeding the meeting at which the vote was passed, elect one for the term of one year, one for the term of two years and one for the term of three years; and at each annual meeting thereafter it shall elect one for the term of three years. A town which has voted to elect said officers as herein provided, may in like manner rescind such action; and thereupon, if at an annual meeting, the offices of road commissioners or sewer commissioners shall be abolished. If such vote is taken at a meeting held at least thirty days before the annual meeting such abolition shall take effect at the next annual meeting.

May rescind action, etc.

Moderator, election in certain cases, ballots.

SECTION 410. The election of a moderator at a meeting for the choice of town officers shall be by ballot and the voting list shall be used thereat. When moderators are not elected for the term of one year, if the number of voters registered for the annual town meeting shall exceed five hundred, no person shall print or distribute for use at the election of moderator at such meeting any ballots unless they shall be of plain white paper, in weight not less than that of ordinary printing paper, not less than five and one half nor more than six inches in length, and not less than three and one half nor more than four inches in width; shall have no printing, engraving, device or mark upon the back thereof, and, if printed, shall be printed in black ink with the name of the candidate in a line parallel with the length of the ballot, and in capital letters not less than one eighth of an inch nor more than one quarter of an inch in height. Ballots for moderator, although not in conformity with the above requirements, shall be received and counted.

Certain ballots to be counted.

Town officers, manner of election.

SECTION 411. The election of town clerk, selectmen, assessors, overseers of the poor, town treasurer, auditor, collector of taxes, constables, road commissioners, sewer commissioners, board of health and school committee shall be by ballot; and the election of all other town officers shall be in such manner as the town may determine, unless otherwise provided by law. A town which chooses its overseers of the poor for one year, may, instead of electing such officers, provide by vote that the selectmen shall act also as overseers of the poor, or both. Such vote shall, in any town using official ballots, be passed at a meeting held at least thirty days before the annual meeting at which such selectmen are to be chosen.

Selectmen may act as overseers of the poor in certain towns.

When voting list is to be used.

SECTION 412. The voting list shall be used and the name of every person voting shall be checked thereon in the election of all town officers whose election is by law required to be by ballot, and in voting upon the question of granting licenses for the sale of intoxicating liquors; but in the election of other town officers the meeting shall determine whether the voting list shall be used.

Ballots to be sealed up, indorsed, etc.

SECTION 413. If the town clerk, selectmen, assessors, treasurer, collector of taxes and school committee are voted for on one ballot, the moderator shall cause all such ballots when canvassed and counted, and record thereof has been made, publicly to be enclosed in envelopes, which shall be sealed and indorsed, and certified in the manner required by section three hundred and four.

Town clerk, oath, etc.

Section 414. A person who is elected town clerk, if present at the meeting, shall forthwith be sworn, either by the moderator or by a justice of the peace, and shall at once enter upon the performance of his duties.

Town officers, term of office, etc.

Every town officer designated by name in section four hundred, unless other provision is specifically made by law, shall enter upon the performance of his duties on the day after his election or as soon thereafter as he is qualified, and shall hold office during the term fixed by law, which shall begin on the day after the annual meeting, and until another person is chosen and qualified in his stead.

Town officers, oath of office.

Section 415. Town officers designated by name in section four hundred shall, before entering upon their official duties, be sworn to the faithful performance thereof. Such oath may be administered by the moderator in open town meeting, or by the town clerk.

Town clerk to notify certain officers.

The town clerk shall forthwith, after the election or appointment of town officers required to take an oath of office, make a list of the names of all such officers not sworn by him or by the moderator, and deliver it with his warrant to a constable requiring him within three days to summon each such person to appear and take the oath of office within seven days after the service of such summons upon him; and the constable shall within said seven days make return thereof to the town clerk.

To appear and take oath within seven days, etc.

Persons so summoned, unless exempt by law from holding the office, shall within said seven days, take the oath of office before the town clerk or before a justice of the peace, and file a certificate thereof with the town clerk.

Exemption from liability to hold town office.

Section 416. No person shall be required to serve two terms successively in the same town office; and no person shall be required to accept the office of constable who holds a commission as an officer of the United States or of the commonwealth, who is a member of the council, of the general court, a minister of the gospel, an engineman, a member of the fire department, or who has been a constable or collector of taxes in the town within the preceding seven years. No person shall be required to serve in the office of highway surveyor oftener than once in three years.

Depositing of certain ballots.

Section 417. At any meeting for the choice of town officers in a town not using official ballots, no ballots shall be received by the moderator unless presented for deposit in the ballot box, open and unfolded, by the voter in person, and so that the moderator can know that only one ballot is presented. No moderator or other election officer shall, before the polls are closed, read or examine, or permit to be read or examined, the names contained upon any ballot.

Ballots not to be read or examined before polls are closed.

Moderator to receive votes of registered voters.

Section 418. The moderator shall receive the votes of any person whose name is on the voting list, or who presents a proper certificate from the registrars of voters.

Ballots for voting on question of granting liquor licenses.

Section 419. The secretary of the commonwealth shall at least seven days before the annual meeting send to the town clerk of each town not using official ballots, ballots upon the question of granting licenses for the sale of intoxicating liquors therein, which shall contain the words: "Shall licenses be granted for the sale of intoxicating liquors in this town?" "Yes." or "No.", and no other words. Ballots of each kind shall be provided in number equal at least to the number of registered voters in such town. They shall be distributed to the voters at the polling place under the direction of the town clerk.

Distribution.

Ballots for women voting for school committee.

Section 420. No ballot shall be received from any woman who votes for school committee in a town which does not use official ballots unless it has the words "For School Committee only", on the back thereof. Such ballots shall be counted only in the choice of members of the school committee, and for no other office or purpose.

Towns may establish precinct voting for town officers and on question of granting liquor licenses.

Section 421. Towns divided into voting precincts may, for their annual town election, establish precinct voting for all town officers to be chosen thereat and for voting on the question of granting licenses for the sale of intoxicating liquors, by accepting the provisions of this section at a meeting called for the purpose and held fourteen days at least before the annual town meeting. The acceptance of the said provisions may be revoked by the town at a meeting called for the purpose and held thirty days at least before the annual town meeting; and if so revoked, the said provisions shall cease to be in force therein. In towns so voting, or which have accepted the corresponding provisions of earlier laws, all matters to be considered at the annual town meeting, other than the election of town officers and the question of granting licenses for the sale of intoxicating liquors, shall be in order only at a town meeting held within thirty days after the date of the annual election, and not later than the thirtieth day of April. The time and place of holding such subsequent meeting shall be stated in the Acceptance may be revoked.

Other matters to be acted upon at a subsequent meeting.

Time and place of holding subsequent meeting, etc.

warrant for the annual election, and said election, subsequent meeting and its adjournments shall be regarded as parts of the annual town meeting. The election of a moderator, except in towns where moderators are elected for the term of one year, shall be the first business in order at said subsequent meeting. Towns are not hereby authorized to vote by precincts at special elections of town officers.

Not to vote by precincts at special elections of town officers.

Section 422. The town clerk and the board of registrars, upon receipt of the returns from the several precincts, shall forthwith canvass the same and immediately declare the result and notify the persons chosen as town officers as provided in section four hundred and fifteen.

Canvass of returns, etc.

PROCEEDINGS IN CASES OF FAILURE TO ELECT, AND VACANCIES IN TOWN OFFICES.

Section 423. If there is a failure at an election to choose a town officer, or if a person chosen shall not accept such office, or if a vacancy shall occur, the town may, at any legal meeting, except as provided in section four hundred and twenty-six, elect a person to such office.

Vacancies in town offices, how filled.

If, at an election of town officers for which official ballots are used, there is a failure to elect a town officer, he may be elected at an adjourned or succeeding meeting; and ballots shall be prepared and furnished for such meeting, containing the nominations already made and such as may subsequently be made for the office.

When official ballots are used.

Section 424. If, at a town meeting, there is a vacancy in the office of town clerk, or if he is absent, the meeting shall elect by ballot a clerk pro tempore. The selectmen shall receive and count the votes and declare the election of such clerk. If, in case of a vacancy, other duties than those required of a town clerk at a town meeting are to be performed, or if he is unable to perform such duties, the selectmen may in writing under their hands appoint a clerk for the performance thereof, who shall be sworn and shall, in the performance of such duties, have the same powers and be subject to the same requirements and penalties as the town clerk, and he shall immediately make a record of his election or appointment.

Town clerk pro tempore, election.

Clerk to be appointed in certain cases, etc.

Section 425. A person chosen constable at a town meeting shall, if present, forthwith declare his acceptance or refusal of his office. If he does not accept the office, the town shall, if official ballots are not used, elect another person to the office, and continue so to elect until some person accepts the office and is sworn.

Constables, election, etc.

Assessors may be appointed in certain cases, etc.

Section 426. If the assessors of a town, or the selectmen acting as such, shall in any year fail to perform their duties, the county commissioners may appoint three or more inhabitants of the county to be assessors for such town, who shall be sworn, shall hold office until the offices of assessors are filled by the town, and shall receive from the town the compensation of assessors.

Treasurer or collector, appointment.

Section 427. If the office of treasurer or collector of taxes is vacant, or if the treasurer or collector is unable to perform his duties, the selectmen may in writing appoint a treasurer or collector pro tempore, who shall be sworn, give bond in like manner as the treasurer or collector chosen by the town, and hold such office until another is chosen by the town and qualified or the disability is removed. If a treasurer or collector does not, within ten days after his election or appointment, give bond, the selectmen may declare the office vacant and appoint another in his place.

To give bond, etc.

Auditor, appointment.

Section 428. If the office of an auditor in a town is vacant the remaining auditors, if any, may perform the duties thereof and may appoint a person to aid them. If there is no remaining auditor, the selectmen shall appoint an auditor to serve until another is chosen and qualified.

Certain officers, appointment, election, etc.

Section 429. If there is a failure to elect, or if a vacancy occurs in any town office, other than the offices of selectmen, town clerk, assessor, treasurer, collector of taxes or auditor, the selectmen shall in writing appoint a person to fill such vacancy. If there is a vacancy in a board consisting of two or more members, the remaining members shall give notice thereof in writing to the selectmen, who, with the remaining member or members of such board shall, after one week's notice fill such vacancy by ballot. A majority of the ballots of the officers entitled to vote shall be necessary to such election. The person so appointed or elected shall perform the duties of the office until the next annual meeting or until another is chosen and qualified.

Vacancies, removal from town.

Section 430. If a person removes from a town, he shall thereby vacate any town office held by him.

Proceedings at special elections.

Section 431. The proceedings in an election held by reason of a previous failure to elect, or to fill a vacancy, and the qualifications of a person to be elected or appointed, shall be the same as in an original election.

TOWN ELECTIONS AT WHICH OFFICIAL BALLOTS ARE USED.

Town may vote to use official ballots, etc.

Section 432. A town may, at a meeting called for the purpose, vote that official ballots shall thereafter be used therein; and may, at the annual town meeting or at a meeting so called and held at least thirty days before the annual town meeting, by a two thirds vote rescind such action. In town elections at which official ballots are used, nominations for town officers elected by ballot shall be made, ballots and other apparatus therefor provided, and elections of such officers conducted, in accordance with the provisions of this act so far as applicable.

Nominations, elections, etc.

Number and terms of office.

Section 433. If a town votes that official ballots shall be used for the election of town officers, it shall at the same meeting determine what officers in addition to those required to be so elected shall thereafter be so chosen, and determine the number and terms of office, if not already fixed. No change shall thereafter be made in the officers to be chosen by ballot or in the number or terms of office thereof, except at a meeting held at least thirty days before the annual meeting at which such change is to become operative.

Change in officers to be chosen by ballot, etc.

PART VI.

PENALTIES UPON OFFICERS.

Penalties on assessor and assistant assessor.

Section 434. An assessor or assistant assessor who knowingly enters on any list of assessed polls, or causes or allows to be entered thereon, the name of any person as a resident of a building, who is not a resident thereof, shall for each offence be punished by imprisonment for not more than six months.

On registrar or assistant registrar.

Section 435. A registrar or assistant registrar who refuses or wilfully neglects to require, under section forty-seven, an applicant for registration to read the five lines from the constitution of the commonwealth in such manner as to show that he is neither prompted nor reciting from memory, or to write his name in the register, unless he is prevented by physical disability from so doing, or unless he had the right to vote on the first day of May in the year eighteen hundred and fifty-seven, or distinctly to announce the name of an applicant for registration before entering his name upon the register, or who knowingly prevents or seeks to prevent the registration of any legal voter, or who knowingly registers the name of any person not qualified to vote, or who is guilty of any fraud or corrupt conduct in the execution of the duties of his office, shall be punished by imprisonment for not more than six months.

On member of listing board or police officer in Boston.

Section 436. A member of the listing board or a police officer in Boston who knowingly enters on any list of male persons or women voters, or causes, or allows to be entered thereon, the name of any person as a resident of a building, who is not a resident thereof, shall for each offence be punished by imprisonment for not more than one year.

Same subject, etc.

Section 437. A member of the listing board or a police officer in Boston upon whom a duty is imposed by this act, who refuses or wilfully neglects or wilfully fails to perform such duty, or who wilfully performs it contrary to law, shall for each offence, if no other penalty is specifically imposed therefor, be punished by imprisonment for not more than one year.

On officer of a primary, caucus or convention.

Section 438. An officer of a primary, caucus or convention who knowingly makes any false count of ballots or votes, or makes a false statement or declaration of the result of a ballot or vote, or knowingly refuses to receive any ballot offered by a person qualified to vote at such primary, caucus or convention, or wilfully alters, defaces or destroys any ballots cast, or voting lists used thereat, before the requirements of this act have been complied with, or declines or wilfully fails to receive any written request made as therein required, or declines or wilfully fails to perform any duty or obligation imposed thereby shall be punished by imprisonment for not more than three months.

On caucus officer who neglects to comply with requirements of section 155.

Any such presiding officer, secretary or clerk of a caucus who wilfully neglects or refuses to comply with the requirements of section one hundred and fifty-five shall be punished by a fine of not more than fifty dollars for each offence.

On caucus officer violating provisions of section 146.

Section 439. A caucus officer who violates any of the provisions of section one hundred and forty-six shall be punished by imprisonment for not more than one year.

On supervisor violating provisions of section 240.

Section 440. A supervisor appointed under section two hundred and forty, violating any provision thereof, shall be punished by imprisonment for not more than one year.

On election officer.

Section 441. An election officer who, before the public declaration of the vote at an election, makes any statement of the number of ballots cast, of the number of votes given for any person, of the name of any person who has voted, of the name of any person which has not been voted on, or of any other fact tending to show the state of the polls, shall be punished by imprisonment for not more than thirty days.

On presiding officer.

Section 442. A presiding officer at a caucus, primary or state or city election, or at an election in a town at which official ballots are used, who, when the right of a person offering to vote is challenged for any legal cause, wilfully or negligently fails to require the name and residence of such person to be written upon the ballot offered by him, and to add thereto the name of the person challenging and the assigned cause, before such ballot is received, shall be punished by imprisonment for not more than one year.

On officer recounting ballots.

Section 443. A primary, election or other officer whose duty it is to recount the ballots cast at a primary or election, who makes any statement or gives any information in regard to a ballot cast by a voter challenged at such primary or election, except as required by law, shall be punished by imprisonment for not more than one year.

On presiding officer at town election.

Section 444. Police officers and constables shall arrest without a warrant any person detected in the act of violating the caucus, primary or election laws. A prosecution for the violation of any provision of this act shall not, unless the purposes of justice require such disposition, be placed on file or disposed of except by trial and judgment according to the regular course of criminal proceedings. It shall be disposed of otherwise only upon motion in writing stating specifically the reasons therefor and verified by affidavit if facts are relied on. If the court or magistrate certifies in writing that he is satisfied that the cause relied on exists and that the interests of public justice require the allowance of the motion the motion shall be allowed and the certificate of the court or magistrate shall be filed in the case.

REPEAL OF FORMER STATUTES.

Section 503. Chapters five hundred and forty-three, five hundred and sixty, five hundred and seventy-nine, and five hundred and eighty-one of the acts of the year nineteen hundred and seven; chapters eighty-three, eighty-five, three hundred and forty-five, three hundred and ninety-one, four hundred and twenty-three, four hundred and twenty-five, four hundred and twenty-eight, four hundred and sixty-one, four hundred and eighty, four hundred and eighty-three, and five hundred and eighteen of the acts of the year nineteen hundred and eight; chapters one hundred and forty-nine, two hundred and thirteen, two hundred and sixty-four, three hundred and forty-four, three hundred and fifty-six, four hundred and forty, and four hundred and ninety-two of the acts of the year nineteen hundred and nine; chapters forty-four, fifty-five, one hundred and forty-seven, one hundred and eighty-two, two hundred, two hundred and forty-six, and five hundred and twenty of the acts of the year nineteen hundred and ten; chapters two hundred and twenty-two, three hundred and four, three hundred and fifty-three, three hundred and fifty-four, three hundred and fifty-five, three hundred and seventy-eight, four hundred and twenty-two, four hundred and thirty-six, five hundred and seventeen, five hundred and eighteen, five hundred and fifty, six hundred and seventy-nine, seven hundred and thirty-five, and seven hundred and forty-five of the acts of the year nineteen hundred and eleven; chapters two hundred and twenty-nine, two hundred and fifty-two, two hundred and fifty-four, two hundred and sixty-one, two hundred and sixty-five, two hundred and sixty-six, two hundred and seventy-three, two hundred and seventy-four, two hundred and seventy-five, three hundred and seven, three hundred and ninety-eight, four hundred and forty-six, four hundred and seventy-one, four hundred and seventy-three, four hundred and eighty-three, five hundred and fifteen, and six hundred and forty-one of the acts of the year nineteen hundred and twelve; chapters two hundred and eighty-six, four hundred and eight, four hundred and thirty-one, five hundred and sixteen, five hundred and fifty-nine, and six hundred and eighty-six of the acts of the Repeal.

year nineteen hundred and thirteen, and all other acts and parts of acts inconsistent herewith, are hereby repealed; but such repeal shall not revive any law heretofore repealed or superseded, and nothing in this act shall be construed as repealing existing provisions in city charters relating to city elections, and such provisions shall continue in full force and effect.

How provisions shall be construed, etc.

SECTION 504. The provisions of this act, so far as they are the same as those of existing statutes, shall be construed as continuations thereof and not as new enactments, and a reference in a statute which has not been repealed to provisions of law which have been revised and re-enacted herein shall be construed as applying to such provisions as so incorporated in this act; they shall not affect any act done, liability incurred, or any right accrued and established or any suit or prosecution, civil or criminal, pending or to be instituted, to enforce any right or penalty or to punish any offence under the authority of existing laws, but the proceedings in such cases shall conform to the provisions of this act. Section 2. The treasurer of the commonwealth shall forthwith send his warrant, according to the provisions of section thirty-four of Part I of chapter four hundred and ninety of the acts of the year nineteen hundred and nine, to the selectmen or assessors of each city and town taxed as aforesaid, requiring them respectively to assess the sum so charged, and to add the amount of such tax to the amount of city, town and county taxes to be assessed by them respectively on each city and town. Treasurer to issue warrant.

Section 3. The treasurer of the commonwealth in his warrant shall require the said selectmen or assessors to pay, or issue severally their warrant or warrants requiring the treasurers of their several cities or towns to pay to the treasurer of the commonwealth, on or before the fifteenth day of November in the year nineteen hundred and thirteen, the sums set against said cities and towns in the schedule aforesaid; and the selectmen or assessors respectively shall return a certificate of the names of the treasurers of their several cities and towns, with the sum which each may be required to collect, to the treasurer of the commonwealth at some time before the first day of September in the year nineteen hundred and thirteen. Payment of assessments.

Section 4. If the amount due from any city or town, as provided in this act, is not paid to the treasurer of the commonwealth within the time specified, then the said treasurer shall notify the treasurer of such delinquent city or town, who shall pay into the treasury of the commonwealth, in addition to the tax, such further sum as would be equal to one per cent per month during the delinquency from and after the fifteenth day of November in the year nineteen hundred and thirteen; and if the same remains unpaid after Notice to treasurer of delinquent city or town.

the first day of December in the year nineteen hundred and thirteen, an information may be filed by the treasurer of the commonwealth in the supreme judicial court, or before any justice thereof, against such delinquent city or town; and upon notice to such city or town, and a summary hearing thereon, a warrant of distress may issue against such city or town to enforce the payment of said taxes under such penalties as said court or the justice thereof before whom the hearing is had shall order.

SECTION 5. This act shall take effect upon its passage.

Approved June 20, 1913.

Chap. 838 AN ACT RELATIVE TO THE RATE OF INTEREST TO BE PAID BY THE CITY OF NEW BEDFORD UPON SECURITIES ISSUED BY THE CITY.

Be it enacted, etc., as follows:

1910, 474, § 1, amended.

SECTION 1. Section one of chapter four hundred and seventy-four of the acts of the year nineteen hundred and ten is hereby amended by inserting after the word "four", in the eleventh line, the words: — and one half, — so as to read as follows: — Section 1. The city of New Bedford, for the purpose of constructing sewers and of providing for the disposal of sewage, may incur indebtedness to an amount not exceeding one million, six hundred thousand dollars, and may issue bonds, notes or scrip therefor, to be denominated on the face thereof, City of New Bedford Sewer Loan, Act of 1910. Such bonds, notes or scrip shall be signed by the treasurer of the city and countersigned by the mayor. They shall be payable at the expiration of not more than thirty years from the dates of issue, shall bear interest at a rate not exceeding four and one half per cent per annum, and shall not be reckoned in determining the statutory limit of indebtedness of the city. The city may sell such securities at public or private sale or pledge the same for money borrowed for the purposes aforesaid, upon such terms and conditions as it may deem proper: provided, that they shall not be sold or pledged for less than their par value.

City of New Bedford Sewer Loan, Act of 1910.

Proviso.

1913, 183, § 1, amended.

SECTION 2. Section one of chapter one hundred and eighty-three of the acts of the year nineteen hundred and thirteen is hereby amended by striking out the word "four", in the eighth line, and inserting in place thereof the words: — four and one half, — so as to read as follows: — Section 1.

The city of New Bedford, for the purpose of sewer construction in that city, may incur indebtedness, beyond the limit fixed by law, to an amount not exceeding one hundred thousand dollars, and may issue bonds, notes or scrip therefor. Such bonds, notes or scrip shall be payable within such periods, not exceeding thirty years from the dates of issue, and shall bear such rate of interest, not exceeding four and one half per cent per annum, payable semi-annually, as the city council shall determine. Except as otherwise provided herein, the provisions of chapter four hundred and ninety of the acts of the year nineteen hundred and nine shall, so far as they may be applicable, apply to the indebtedness hereby authorized and to the securities issued therefor.

City of New Bedford may incur indebtedness for sewer purposes.

Section 3. Section one of chapter three hundred and eighty-five of the acts of the year nineteen hundred and thirteen is hereby amended by striking out the word "four", in the ninth line, and inserting in place thereof the words: — four and one half, — so as to read as follows: — Section 1. The city of New Bedford, for the purpose of repairing and reconstructing the bridge at the foot of Coggeshall street, across the Acushnet river in that city, may incur indebtedness, beyond the limit fixed by law, to an amount not exceeding twenty-five thousand dollars, and may issue bonds, notes or scrip therefor. Such bonds, notes or scrip shall be payable within such periods, not exceeding five years from their respective dates of issue, and shall bear such rate of interest, not exceeding four and one half per cent per annum, payable semi-annually, as the city council shall determine. Except as otherwise provided herein, the provisions of chapter four hundred and ninety of the acts of the year nineteen hundred and nine shall, so far as they may be applicable, apply to the indebtedness hereby authorized and to the securities issued therefor.

1913, 385, § 1, amended.

City of New Bedford may incur indebtedness for repairing certain bridge.

Section 4. This act shall take effect upon its passage.

Approved June 20, 1913.

An Act relative to certain bonds or notes to be issued by the town of Blackstone. Chap. 839

Be it enacted, etc., as follows:

Section 1. Section six of chapter six hundred and sixty-one of the acts of the year nineteen hundred and thirteen is hereby amended by striking out the word "three", in the first sentence, and inserting in place thereof the word: —

1913, 661, § 6, amended.

Payment of loan.

five, — so as to read as follows: — Section 6. Said town shall, at the time of authorizing said loan or loans, provide for the payment thereof in accordance with the provisions of section five of this act; and when a vote to that effect has been passed, a sum which, with the income derived from water rates, will be sufficient to pay the annual expense of operating its water works and the interest as it accrues on the bonds or notes issued as aforesaid by the town, and to make such payments on the principal as may be required under the provisions of this act, shall, without further vote, be assessed by the assessors of the town annually thereafter, in the same manner in which other taxes are assessed, until the debt incurred by said loan or loans is extinguished.

Action of town legalized.

SECTION 2. Any action taken by the town of Blackstone under the provisions of chapter six hundred and sixty-one of the acts of the year nineteen hundred and thirteen shall be deemed to have been taken in accordance with said act as amended by this act without a further vote of the town being required.

SECTION 3. This act shall take effect upon its passage.

Approved June 20, 1913.

Chap. 840 AN ACT RELATIVE TO THE GRANTING OF INJUNCTIONS AND RESTRAINING ORDERS BY THE PROBATE COURTS.

Be it enacted, etc., as follows:

1913, 515, § 1, amended.

SECTION 1. Section one of chapter five hundred and fifteen of the acts of the year nineteen hundred and thirteen is hereby amended by adding at the end thereof the following: — The provisions of this act shall not apply to any proceedings in the probate courts, — so as to read as follows: — Section 1. No preliminary injunction shall be granted without notice to the opposite party. No temporary restraining order shall be granted without notice to the opposite party, unless it shall clearly appear from specific facts, shown by affidavit or by the verified bill, that immediate and irreparable loss or damage will result to the applicant before the matter can be heard on notice. In case a temporary restraining order shall be granted without notice, in the contingency specified, the matter shall be made returnable at the earliest possible time, and in no event later than ten days from the date of the order, and shall take precedence of all matters except older matters of the same character. When the matter comes up for hearing the party who obtained the temporary restraining order shall proceed with his application for a preliminary injunction, and if he does not do so the court shall dissolve the temporary restraining order. Upon two days' notice to the party obtaining such temporary restraining order, the opposite party may appear and move the dissolution or modification of the order, and in that event the court or judge shall proceed to hear and determine the motion as expeditiously as the ends of justice may require. Every temporary restraining order shall be filed forthwith in the clerk's office. The provisions of this act shall not apply to any proceedings in the probate courts.

Granting of preliminary injunctions and restraining orders.

Section 2. This act shall take effect upon its passage.

Chap. 116 RESOLVES TO PROVIDE FOR SUBMITTING TO THE PEOPLE THE ARTICLE OF AMENDMENT OF THE CONSTITUTION AUTHORIZING THE REFERENDUM.

Article of amendment of the constitution to be submitted to the people.

Resolved, That the following article of amendment of the constitution, having been agreed to by the last and present general court and published in the manner required by the constitution, be submitted to the people for their ratification and adoption: —

ARTICLE OF AMENDMENT.

Article of amendment.

Full power and authority are hereby given and granted to the general court to refer to the people for their rejection or approval at the polls any act or resolve of the general court or any part or parts thereof. Such reference shall be by a majority yea and nay vote of all members of each house present and voting. Any act, resolve, or part thereof so referred shall be voted on at the regular state election next ensuing after such reference, shall become law if approved by a majority of the voters voting thereon, and shall take effect at the expiration of thirty days after the election at which it was approved or at such time after the expiration of the said thirty days as may be fixed in such act, resolve or part thereof.

Vote upon article, etc.

Resolved, That the people shall be assembled for the purpose aforesaid, in their respective polling places in the several cities and towns in meetings to be legally warned, and held on Tuesday, the fourth day of November next, at which meetings all persons qualified to vote for state officers may give in their votes by ballot for or against said article of amendment; and the same officers shall preside in said meetings as in meetings for the choice of state officers, and shall, in open meetings receive, sort, count and declare the votes for and against the said article of amendment; and the said votes shall be recorded by the clerks of said cities and towns, and true returns thereof shall be made out under the hands of the mayor and aldermen or board having the powers of aldermen, and of the selectmen, or a major part of them, and of the clerks of the said cities and towns, respectively, and sealed up, and, within ten days after the said meetings, transmitted to the secretary of the commonwealth. So far as the same can be made applicable, the provisions of law applicable to the election of state officers shall apply to the taking of the vote on said article of amendment.

Question upon ballot.

Resolved, That every person qualified to vote as aforesaid may express his opinion on said article of amendment, and the following words shall be printed on the ballot: —

Shall the proposed amendment to the constitution, authorizing the referendum, be approved and ratified?

YES.
NO.

And if said article shall appear to be approved by a majority of the persons voting thereon, it shall be deemed and taken to be ratified and adopted by the people.

Examination of returns of votes, etc.

Resolved, That his excellency the governor and the council shall forthwith open and examine the votes returned as aforesaid; and if it shall appear that said article of amendment has been approved by a majority of the persons voting thereon, according to the votes returned and certified as aforesaid, the same shall be enrolled on parchment and deposited in the secretary's office as a part of the constitution of the commonwealth, and shall be published in immediate connection therewith, numbered according to its numerical position, with the articles of amendment of the constitution heretofore adopted, in all future editions of the laws of the commonwealth printed by public authority.

Governor to issue proclamation.

Resolved, That his excellency the governor be, and he hereby is, authorized and requested to issue his proclamation forthwith after the examination of the votes returned as aforesaid, reciting said article of amendment and announcing that said article has been duly adopted and ratified by the people of the commonwealth, and thus becomes a part of the constitution thereof, and requiring all magistrates and officers and all citizens of the commonwealth to take notice thereof and govern themselves accordingly, or that said article of amendment has been rejected, as the case may be.

AMENDMENT TO THE CONSTITUTION OF THE UNITED STATES.

RESOLUTIONS RATIFYING THE PROPOSED AMENDMENT TO THE CONSTITUTION OF THE UNITED STATES RELATIVE TO THE TAXATION OF INCOMES.

Proposed amendment to the constitution of the United States ratified.

Whereas, The sixty-first congress, at the first session, in both houses passed the following proposal to amend the constitution of the United States, by a constitutional majority of two thirds thereof, in words following, to wit: —

Joint Resolution, proposing an Amendment to the Constitution of the United States.

Resolved by the senate and house of representatives of the United States of America in congress assembled (two thirds of each house concurring therein). That the following article is proposed as an amendment to the constitution of the United States, which, when ratified by the legislatures of three fourths of the several states, shall be valid to all intents and purposes as a part of the constitution:

"Article XVI. The congress shall have power to lay and collect taxes on incomes, from whatever source derived, without apportionment among the several states, and without regard to any census or enumeration"; therefore be it

Resolved, That the said proposed amendment to the constitution be, and the same is, hereby ratified by the legislature of the commonwealth of Massachusetts.

Resolved, That a certified copy of the foregoing preamble and resolution be forwarded by the governor to the secretary of state for the United States, in accordance with section two hundred and five of the Revised Statutes of the United States.

Passed in the Senate February 27, and, in concurrence, in the House of Representatives March 4, 1913.

RESOLUTIONS.

Resolutions relative to an amendment to the constitution of the United States giving congress power to regulate the hours of labor.

Relative to giving congress power to regulate hours of labor.

Resolved, That the general court of the commonwealth of Massachusetts, believing that there is injustice both to industries and labor by reason of the lack of uniformity in the laws of the several states respecting hours of labor, respectfully petitions the congress of the United States that congress propose an amendment to the constitution of the United States giving congress power to regulate the hours of labor and to make the same uniform throughout the United States.

Resolved, That certified copies of these resolutions be sent by the secretary of the commonwealth to the presiding officers of both branches of congress, and to each of the senators and representatives from Massachusetts.

In House of Representatives, adopted, January 30, 1913.
In Senate, adopted, in concurrence, February 4, 1913.

Resolutions in favor of the establishment of an international commission on the cost of living.

In favor of the establishment of an international commission on the cost of living.

Resolved, That the general court of the commonwealth of Massachusetts, believing that the world wide increase in the cost of living and the possibility of a continuance of this increase for an indefinite period is a matter of great importance, and believing that an international commission on the cost of living should be appointed to meet the urgent need to find a scientific basis for any reforms in this respect which can be accomplished by legislation, hereby approves of the effort to bring about such an international commission.

Resolved, That certified copies of these resolutions be sent by the secretary of the commonwealth to the president of the United States, to the presiding officers of both branches of congress, and to each of the senators and representatives from Massachusetts.

In Senate, adopted, January 31, 1913.
In House of Representatives, adopted, in concurrence, February 6, 1913.

RESOLUTIONS RELATIVE TO THE ADOPTION BY THE HOUSE OF COMMONS OF A HOME RULE BILL FOR IRELAND.

On the adoption of a home rule bill for Ireland.

Whereas, The people of Ireland, after a long and bitter struggle which has enlisted the sympathy of all lovers of freedom throughout the world, have at last secured the adoption by the house of commons of a home rule bill for Ireland; and

Whereas, The bill was passed by a majority which appears to ensure the final success of the measure; therefore, be it

Resolved, That the house of representatives of the commonwealth of Massachusetts congratulates not only the people of Ireland but the people of Great Britain in general upon the passage through the commons of the home rule bill for Ireland; and

Resolved, That the secretary of the commonwealth be requested to forward a copy of these resolutions to the Honorable Henry H. Asquith, prime minister; to the Honorable John E. Redmond, leader of the Irish people, and to the Honorable Augustine Birrell, chief secretary for Ireland.

In House of Representatives, adopted, February 14, 1913.

RESOLUTION RELATIVE TO THE SALE BY THE UNITED STATES GOVERNMENT OF A CERTAIN TRACT OF LAND IN THE CITY OF CHELSEA.

Relative to the sale of a certain tract of land in Chelsea.

Resolved, That the general court of Massachusetts hereby requests congress to pass such a measure as may be necessary to procure forthwith the sale by the United States government of a certain tract of land in the city of Chelsea, formerly used for the purposes of a powder magazine, and such parts of the Naval Hospital grounds in the said city as are undesirable for hospital purposes, the secretary of the navy having been authorized in the year nineteen hundred and six to sell the aforesaid land.

In House of Representatives, adopted, February 14, 1913.
In Senate, adopted, in concurrence, February 19, 1913.

RESOLUTIONS RELATIVE TO THE COST OF COAL.

Relative to the cost of coal.

Resolved, That the house of representatives of the general court of Massachusetts requests the members of congress to take such action relative to the cost of coal and the reputed shortage thereof, whether caused by mine owners or railroad companies, as will prevent unreasonable advances in the price of coal in the winter season when the needs of the people make them subject to this form of extortion; and also that congress will confer upon the commissioner of commerce and industry full power to control the price, supply and shipment of coal.

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be sent to the president, to the presiding officers of both branches of congress and to the senators and representatives from Massachusetts.

In House of Representatives, adopted, February 21, 1913.

RESOLUTIONS RELATIVE TO THE EQUIPMENT OF THE CHARLESTOWN NAVY YARD.

Relative to the equipment of the Charlestown navy yard.

Resolved, That the general court of Massachusetts respectfully requests the senate and house of representatives of the United States, through the honorable secretary of the navy, to take such steps as may be necessary so to equip the Charlestown navy yard that it may be utilized to its full capacity for the building and repair of vessels of war.

Resolved, That the members of congress from this commonwealth be requested to make such efforts as they may deem proper to further the purpose of these resolutions.

Resolved, That copies of these resolutions be sent by the secretary of the commonwealth to the senators and representatives in congress from Massachusetts and to the honorable secretary of the navy.

In House of Representatives, adopted, March 14, 1913.
In Senate, adopted, in concurrence, March 19, 1913.

RESOLUTION RELATIVE TO THE PASSAGE BY THE CONGRESS OF THE UNITED STATES OF LAWS RELATIVE TO THE SALE OF SMALL FRUITS.

Relative to uniform legislation governing the sale of small fruits.

Whereas, There is now no uniform legislation in the United States governing the sale of berries, cherries, currants and other small fruits by standard dry measure; and

Whereas, At various seasons berries, cherries, currants and small fruits are shipped from certain states for sale and distribution in other states; and

Whereas, The same are shipped and sold in small boxes, baskets or other receptacles which are not uniform in size or measure, but which are generally of less capacity than standard dry measure; and

Whereas, It is desirable that such berries, cherries, currants and small fruits be sold by standard dry measure, and that the boxes, baskets or other receptacles in which they are to be sold shall contain standard measure; therefore, be it

Resolved, That the general court of Massachusetts hereby requests the congress of the United States to pass laws and regulations which will provide that all berries, cherries, currants and small fruits shall be sold in the United States by standard dry measure, and further that the baskets, boxes or other receptacles in which they are sold shall conform to standard dry measure.

Resolved, That certified copies of these resolutions be sent by the secretary of the commonwealth to the presiding officers of both branches of congress, and to each of the senators and representatives from Massachusetts.

In House of Representatives, adopted, March 17, 1913.
In Senate, adopted, in concurrence, March 20, 1913.

RESOLUTIONS RELATIVE TO AN AMENDMENT OF THE CONSTITUTION OF THE UNITED STATES PROHIBITING THE PRACTICE OF POLYGAMY.

Advocating the enactment of an amendment to the constitution of the United States prohibiting polygamy.

Whereas, It appears from investigations recently made by the senate of the United States, and otherwise, that polygamy still exists in certain parts of the United States, notwithstanding the enactment of prohibitory statutes by the several states thereof; and

Whereas, The practice of polygamy is generally condemned by the people of the United States, and there is a demand for its more effective prohibition by an amendment to the constitution of the United States; therefore, be it

Resolved, That the general court of Massachusetts hereby requests that congress will enact and submit to the states for ratification an amendment to the constitution of the United States prohibiting polygamy and polygamous cohabitation, and giving congress power to enforce such prohibition by appropriate legislation.

Resolved, That the secretary of the commonwealth is hereby directed to send a copy of these resolutions to the president of the senate and the speaker of the house of representatives of the United States, and to the senators and representatives in congress from Massachusetts.

In House of Representatives, adopted, March 28, 1913.
In Senate, adopted, in concurrence, April 2, 1913.

RESOLUTIONS RELATIVE TO THE NATIONAL FORESTS.

Relative to federal control of the national forests.

Whereas, It is for the interest of the whole people that federal control of the national forests should be continued; and

Whereas, The protection, administration and development of the national forests involve a financial burden beyond the ability of any state to assume; therefore be it

Resolved, That the general court of Massachusetts urges that the policy established by the government of the United States in regard to the federal conservation and development of the national forests should be maintained, and that the control of the national forests should not be turned over to any state, or to any individual or corporation.

Resolved, That copies of these resolutions be sent by the secretary of the commonwealth to the presiding officer of each branch of congress, and to each senator and representative from Massachusetts in congress.

In House of Representatives, adopted, April 10, 1913.
In Senate, adopted, in concurrence, April 15, 1913.

RESOLUTIONS OF SYMPATHY FOR THE SUFFERERS BY THE RECENT FLOODS AND FIRES IN THE STATE OF OHIO AND ELSEWHERE.

On the recent floods, etc., in Ohio and elsewhere.

Resolved, That the members of the general court of Massachusetts hereby express their deep sympathy with their fellow citizens in the state of Ohio and elsewhere who have suffered from the terrible storm, floods and fires which have recently devastated certain parts of the west, and especially do they offer their sympathy to those whose near and dear relatives have been torn from them by sudden and violent death; and

Resolved, That the members of the general court regret that they cannot lawfully pass a measure enabling the commonwealth itself to contribute to the relief of the sufferers in Ohio, but they are confident that this deficiency will be more than supplied by the generosity of the individual citizens of Massachusetts, all of whom are shocked and grieved by the catastrophe which has overwhelmed their fellow citizens in distant states.

In Senate, adopted, in concurrence, April 15, 1913.

RESOLUTIONS RELATIVE TO THE TARIFF.

Relative to tariff legislation.

Whereas, On April 3, 1913, his excellency, Eugene N. Foss, governor of Massachusetts, recommended in a message of that date that the legislature address the congress of the United States with reference to the tariff legislation now pending; now, therefore, be it

Resolved, That, in conformity with this recommendation, the legislature of Massachusetts respectfully submits to the congress of the United States the following considerations in regard to tariff legislation: —

With many of the arguments and conclusions presented by his excellency the governor in his message hereto appended, the legislature is not in accord, but is in full agreement with him as to the importance of the subject, representing as do the members of the legislature a state conspicuous both for the extent and the variety of its industries, many of which are gravely affected by the tariff laws of the United States. Be it further

Resolved, That at the outset the legislature respectfully calls attention to the following statement in the message of his excellency the governor: —

"The concrete political expression of the popular demand appears in the election of a Democratic president and a Democratic congress; but the two platforms which endorsed the principle of protection received, in the votes of the candidates who stood upon them, a greater endorsement by the American people at the last election than the platform which repudiated the principle of a protective tariff."

Relative to tariff legislation.

Resolved, That the legislature believes that there is no doubt that a large majority of the voters of the United States cast their votes in favor of maintaining the protective principle in tariff legislation, and that the voters of the United States have given no mandate to congress in favor of tariff legislation based on free trade principles.

Resolved, That the policy of opening the markets of the United States to the unrestricted competition of the rest of the world, advocated by the President in his message, and the pending bill which is a long step toward the complete establishment of that policy, appear to the legislature to be in direct contravention of the wishes of the voters of the United States and especially of this commonwealth as expressed in the last election.

Resolved, That the legislature therefore respectfully urges that any tariff legislation undertaken by congress be based upon the protective principle, and that the legislature is of opinion that there should be a reasonable protection accorded to all industries, sufficient to maintain American wages and American standards of living and to prevent the necessity of reductions either in the rates of wages or in the total amount of the wage fund paid out. Be it further

Resolved, That a tariff commission of disinterested experts, such as we have had in the past, should be re-established in order that tariff changes may be made scientifically, and not be the work of partisan committees irregularly modified by local and sectional interests.

Resolved, That the legislature believes that the maximum and minimum provisions should be continued, because in this way alone can we secure equal treatment in the markets of the world and protect ourselves against unjust discriminations.

Resolved, That the legislature is of opinion that the raw materials of any industry which never have been and cannot be produced in the United States, should be admitted free of duty; that the legislature especially urges upon congress the importance of maintaining a proportionate difference in rates between raw materials which bear a duty and the finished product into which such raw materials are converted; and that, to reduce the duty on the finished product and at the same time to increase or to leave untouched the existing duty upon the raw material of such product, as is done in many instances in the proposed bill, is not free trade or open competition but a wanton destruction of the industries so treated.

Whereas, the pending bill authorizes the President to enter into reciprocal trade arrangements with other countries, a power which he already possesses without action on the part of congress;

Resolved, That the legislature is opposed to any so-called reciprocity which does not bring to the United States advantages which correspond with the concessions made; and that the legislature does not believe in reciprocity which purchases advantages for any industry or section at the expense of other industries or other sections of our common country, but that real reciprocity requires that where duties are removed, as this bill proposes, on certain articles of general consumption, the removal should be made dependent on our securing like concessions from the countries whence these articles are to be imported.

Resolved, That, believing that the principles which have been set forth above are the true principles to be followed in any tariff revision, and that only by adherence to them will the prosperity and business welfare of the country be promoted, the legislature respectfully submits them to the congress of the United States for its consideration.

Resolved, That the legislature respectfully urges upon the senate and house of representatives in congress to give reasonable opportunity to persons and corporations engaged in industries which will be affected by the proposed tariff legislation to be heard before final action is taken by the congress of the United States.

Resolved, That copies of these resolutions be sent by the secretary of the commonwealth to the presiding officers of both branches of the congress of the United States and to each senator and representative from Massachusetts in congress.

In Senate, adopted, April 25, 1913.

In House of Representatives, adopted, in concurrence, May 5, 1913.

The general court of 1913, during its annual session, passed 819 acts and 133 resolves which received executive approval.

Twelve (12) acts entitled, respectively, "An Act relative to promotion of call firemen to the permanent force in the city of Waltham", (chapter 49); "An Act relative to the salaries of the chaplains of the senate and house of representatives", (chapter 450); "An Act relative to the salaries of the deputy assistant district attorneys for the Suffolk district", (chapter 602); "An Act to establish the salaries of the county commissioners of the county of Barnstable", (chapter 603); "An Act to establish the salary of the sheriff of the county of Plymouth", (chapter 637); "An Act to establish the salary of the supervisor of loan agencies", (chapter 638); "An Act to establish the salaries of the county commissioners of the county of Essex", (chapter 651); "An Act relative to the sale and use of eggs unfit for food", (chapter 654); "An Act relative to pensioning laborers in the employ of fire districts and water districts", (chapter 671); "An Act to establish the salary of the official court stenographer for the county of Norfolk", (chapter 674); "An Act to define the extent to which peaceful persuasion is permitted", (chapter 690); and "An Act relative to the secretary employed by the trustees of hospitals for consumptives", (chapter 762), were passed, but failed to receive executive approval; as, however, they were not returned, with objections thereto, within five days after they had been received in the executive department, the general court not having been prorogued in the meantime, said acts have the force of laws, under the provisions of the constitution governing such cases, and have been so certified.

Ten (10) acts entitled, respectively, "An Act to establish the salaries of the officers in attendance at the civil sessions of the municipal court of the city of Boston", (chapter 488); "An Act to increase the salary of the chaplain at the Massachusetts reformatory", (chapter 496); "An Act to establish the office and salary of the chief deputy sheriff for attendance upon the superior court of the county of Suffolk", (chapter 501); "An Act to provide for an additional water supply for the city of Newton", (chapter 683); "An Act to provide for an additional water supply for the town of Brookline", (chapter 684); "An Act relative to wages of employees of the metropolitan park commission and of the metropolitan water and sewerage board", (chapter 685); "An Act to provide better transportation facilities for western Massachusetts", (chapter 765); "An Act to change the name, enlarge the membership and increase the powers of the board of railroad commissioners", (chapter 784); "An Act relative to the hours of labor of employees of street railway companies", (chapter 833); and "An Act to establish the salaries of certain members of the district police", (chapter 834) were passed and laid before the governor for his approval; were returned by him with objections thereto, to the branch in which they respectively originated; were reconsidered, agreeably to the provisions of the constitution, and the vote being taken on passing the same, the objections of the governor thereto notwithstanding, they were passed, and said acts have thereby the force of laws.

Twenty-two (22) acts entitled, respectively, "An Act relative to the licensing board for the city of Boston", "An Act to provide for the election of a board of license commissioners by the town of Clinton", "An Act relative to communication to the court of a former conviction of a defendant in police, district and municipal courts", "An Act to incorporate the Suffolk Law School", "An Act to provide that the officers in attendance on the East Boston district court shall wear uniforms", "An Act to establish a standard for butter and oleomargarine", "An Act to establish the salary of Thomas J. Gorman as messenger of the municipal court of the city of Boston", "An Act to authorize the city of Boston to appropriate money to be added to the rental of the East Boston tunnel", "An Act to prohibit the use of common drinking cups in public buildings and places", "An Act to increase the powers of the Cambridge Electric Light Company", "An Act relative to the listing of voters in the city of Boston", "An Act relative to the conveyance of destitute, neglected, abandoned or lost children", "An Act relative to the enrolment of members of political parties and to the changing and cancellation of party enrolment", "An Act relative to the civil service laws, rules and regulations", "An Act to provide that veterans of the Spanish war and the Philippine insurrection shall receive certain credits in civil service examinations", "An Act relative to the issue of stock and bonds by electric light and power companies and to the issue of preferred stock by certain corporations", "An Act to establish the salaries of the firemen and helpers in the state house", "An Act to provide for reimbursing the town of Arlington for reasonable expenses incurred in the care of persons having no legal settlement who were infected with the smallpox", "An Act relative to the use of the cinematograph and similar apparatus", "An Act to provide a tenure of service for certain teachers in the public schools", "An Act to require the labelling of receptacles containing pasteurized milk and milk produced outside the commonwealth", and "An Act to establish a board of registration of barbers", were passed and laid before the governor for his approval; were returned by him with his objections thereto; were reconsidered, and the vote being taken on passing the same, the objections of the governor thereto notwithstanding, they were rejected, and said acts thereby became void.

Two resolves passed by the general court of 1912, viz.:—"A Resolve to provide for an amendment to the constitution making women eligible as notaries public", and "A Resolve providing for an amendment to the constitution authorizing the referendum", were agreed to, and provision made for submitting the same to the people for their approval and ratification at the annual state election in November of the current year, in order that they may become parts of the constitution of the commonwealth. In addition to the foregoing, the general court of 1913 passed "Resolutions ratifying the proposed amendment to the constitution of the United States relative to the taxation of incomes".

The general court was prorogued on Friday, June 20, at 5.48 P.M., the session having occupied 171 days.

INAUGURAL ADDRESS

HIS EXCELLENCY EUGENE N. FOSS.

At twelve o'clock on Thursday, the second day of January, his excellency the governor, accompanied by his honor the lieutenant governor, the members of the executive council, and officers of the civil and military departments of the government, met the senate and house of representatives, in convention, and delivered the following ADDRESS.

Gentlemen of the General Court.

For the third time the people have entrusted me with the duty of outlining to you a program of legislation.

THE UNITED STATES SENATORSHIP.

Your duty is all the clearer, and its faithful discharge all the more urgent, by reason of the repeated refusal of the last legislature to obey the will of the people, even in respect to giving them the right to choose their next United States senator.

The people have the right to be represented in the United States senate. If you were to ignore that right — if you were to send to the senate not an acceptable representative of the people, but an advocate and champion of our dominant monopolies — you would prove false to your duty.

This is one measure of popular government upon which we come to this session with orders from the people that we cannot disobey. We must take our stand in this matter, either for or against real control of public affairs by the people. The people are not interested in popular government merely as a theory. Their interest goes beyond the formal exercise of the franchise. They wish the pressure of their votes to be demonstrated in concrete results of public welfare. I have long and persistently urged upon the legislature the adoption of a law providing for the election of United States senators directly by the people. The last legislature adopted the principle by its ratification of the joint resolution of congress for the submission to the legislatures of the several states of a proposed amendment to the constitution of the United States providing for direct election of United States senators.

I urged the legislature four times to pass a law to carry out that principle, but they failed to do so.

In the last campaign every party endorsed the principle in its platform and demanded its adoption. I was urged, however, by both my opponents to recall the retiring legislature in special session, and to insist upon the passage of such a law. This I refused to do for the reason that I had already exhausted every means to secure such a law from that legislature. Moreover, I feared that their unfavorable action would be made a basis for the claim that the question had already been decided. I made it an issue that the legislators then to be elected should be ordered in unmistakable terms to pass such a law, and that no reason should be created for the evasion of their duty. The governor and every member of this legislature, under whatever political designation he was elected, stands pledged to bring about the adoption of a law for the election of United States senators by the people.

ELECTION BY A PARTISAN MACHINE WOULD BE AN OUTRAGE.

There can be no justification for the selection of a candidate by a caucus, for the people of this commonwealth have declared that they wish United States senators from Massachusetts to be chosen by popular vote.

LET THE PEOPLE ELECT NOW.

The mandate of the people of Massachusetts clearly does not refer to the election to fill the vacancy that would occur March 4, 1917. Such an assumption would make the issue purely academic. What we are pledged to do is to let the people elect the successor to the United States senator whose term expires March 4, 1913. I believe it is the duty of this legislature to postpone the election of a United States senator, by adjournment of their joint sessions from day to day, to such time as a law shall have been passed and a popular election held under that law.

I also renew my recommendations for the largest possible degree of participation in public affairs by the people, and urge upon you again the passage of laws abolishing party enrollment and providing for the initiative, the referendum, and the recall. These measures received the endorsement of the people in the last election.

GOVERNMENT BY THE RAILROADS OR GOVERNMENT BY THE PEOPLE.

I asserted during the recent campaign that the one issue was whether the New Haven railroad monopoly shall rule Massachusetts, or the people of Massachusetts shall control their own government and regulate the transportation system of the commonwealth. I asserted that in this issue every other issue is involved, including that of popular government. I now assert that the election of a United States senator by a partisan caucus will be a declaration that the control of the legislature which has secured the defeat of every measure designed to effect a regulation of the railroad monopoly is still potent.

The greatest problem before the American people to-day is to maintain the government above railroad domination. This problem has reached a crisis in Massachusetts. The eyes of the nation are upon this legislature, looking to see how Massachusetts will meet this crisis. The country expects that our first step will be to bring about the selection of a United States senator who will be an effective champion of the cause of the people.

The railroad situation in New England, and especially in Massachusetts, is such as to cause the deepest concern.

In this day and generation no public service corporation can prosper if it lacks public confidence. The continued hostility of the press and the public to the great railroad system upon which we depend is sure to lead to serious results.

This hostility has been provoked by acts on the part of the railroad distinctly repugnant to public sentiment, and, indeed, in some instances in violation of law, and has been intensified by the failure of the railroads to afford the public the service to which it is entitled.

The situation to-day clearly demands something more than criticism. Some constructive policy must be adopted by the New England states, so that this great factor in our commercial life may be made to contribute its full share to our prosperity and development, instead of continuing, as at present, a cause of discord and vexatious uncertainty.

THE BOSTON RAILROAD HOLDING COMPANY.

In my two previous inaugural addresses I urged upon the legislature the dissolution of the Boston Railroad Holding Company, and the last legislature appointed a commission to report to the next session upon the desirability of prohibiting holding companies to exist in this commonwealth. Since the appointment of that commission events have occurred which have brought into high relief considerations which far outweigh any arguments on one side or the other which that commission may adduce in support of its recommendations. In the first place, the people declared on election day, with the greatest emphasis, that control of the government of this commonwealth by the New Haven railroad monopoly must end at once. Soon thereafter their wisdom was proved by the disclosures of the New Haven railroad's veto on the construction of the Grand Trunk railway's lines to Boston and Providence. It has been said that an alleged traffic agreement would be as beneficial to New England as the construction of a competing railroad in that it would permit the Grand Trunk to transport freight by way of Boston over the Boston and Maine tracks. But a railroad which must create traffic over its lines to pay cost, upkeep and expenses, affords to the public the benefit of real facilities and real competition. A traffic agreement, by its terms, destroys this competition, and makes sure the absence of these facilities. It leaves traffic to go, as formerly, over the existing lines which the railroad controlling the traffic must pay for and support.

The third event is the decision of the United States supreme court in the Union Pacific and coal roads cases, which makes it probable, and almost certain, that such an agreement of railroads to destroy or forestall competition is a violation of the anti-trust act.

The expressed will of the people, the overt act of the New Haven railroad monopoly, and the decisions of the supreme court of the United States are a combination which leaves no loophole for independent opinion on the part of the legislature. If the Boston and Maine, and the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroads are not competing lines, and if the people of New England believe that this section can best be served by a consolidation of these lines, then the full responsibility of such a combination should be assumed, and proper arrangements should be made in Greater Boston and elsewhere for bringing about an actual physical connection of these railroads. If, on the other hand, these railroads are competing lines, they should not be permitted to combine under one management, as at present, even though the competing points do lie wholly within this commonwealth.

The effect of the destruction of this competition is felt in traffic extending to other states. The stifling of possible competition either within or without the commonwealth, through the law authorizing the incorporation of the Boston Railroad Holding Company, is absolutely unjustifiable. That law is a disgrace to Massachusetts, and should be removed from the statute books without delay.

MASSACHUSETTS SHOULD NOT ASPIRE TO CONTROL RAILROADS BEYOND HER BORDERS, BUT SHOULD EXERCISE FULLY HER REAL POWER TO REGULATE.

The reason asserted for the authorization of the Boston Railroad Holding Company was that the commonwealth might thereby retain control of a railroad system a part of the lines of which lay outside the commonwealth, and prevent the domination of the lines within the commonwealth by interests located in other states. The absurdity of this reason has been fully demonstrated. The authorization of this commonwealth cannot serve as a shelter against the anti-monopoly statutes of this or any other state, or of the national government. Nor would the actual exercise by this commonwealth of its option to purchase the Boston and Maine railroad give the commonwealth power to control more than the lines within the state, even if the commonwealth should determine not only to acquire the Boston and Maine railroad but actually to operate it. Neither the acquisition nor the operation of a single mile of line beyond the limits of the state would be within the power of the commonwealth. The power to acquire lines within Massachusetts and to operate them, the commonwealth has always had; and exactly the same power is possessed by the other states over lines within their borders.

The result of the purchase of the Boston and Maine railroad in its entirety by the commonwealth would almost certainly be the sale of that road by the state to the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad Company. No other purchaser would be forthcoming. Massachusetts must leave the general laws to settle the question whether these roads may combine, without the prejudgment of that question by the act of incorporation of the Boston Railroad Holding Company, or the endorsement of that combination by a title derived from the commonwealth.

ADEQUATE STATE REGULATION THE ALTERNATIVE TO NATIONAL OWNERSHIP AND OPERATION.

It is clear that the commonwealth cannot control the railroad system by ownership merely or by ownership and operation. It is equally clear that if the commonwealth does not control the railroad system, the demand for control by regulation, ownership merely, or by ownership and operation, by the federal government, will soon become irresistible.

When, if ever, the federal government owns and operates the railroad systems of the country, the power of Massachusetts to control the railroad service within its borders, except through its representation in congress, will be absolutely gone. With mere federal regulation Massachusetts may co-operate, but in this co-operation it must secure proper service by its own agencies and efforts. For the regulation which will consider the special needs of the people of Massachusetts, little dependence can be placed upon the general regulation by national agencies. It may become evident that these agencies are inadequate even to correct evils of an interstate nature. The recent coal roads decision, after five years of delay, affords neither present relief nor hope for the future. In the event of failure to satisfy the needs of the people, both within the states and in a national sense, the issue of federal ownership and operation of railroads will have to be met. In the present crisis in Massachusetts, confronted as we are with the necessity of formulating a stable policy for the maintenance of our railroad facilities, it behooves us to take fully into account the probability of the acquisition and operation of the railroad systems of the United States by the national government.

We must do our part, by providing adequate regulation in this commonwealth, to make national ownership and operation unnecessary.

THE ARGUMENT FOR NATIONAL OWNERSHIP OF RAILWAYS.

A generation ago we should have dismissed the question of government ownership as of no importance. The process of amalgamation which during that period has knit the scattered and disjointed lines of railroad into something approaching a national unit, both as to ownership and operation, had not taken place.

There is no longer any basis for the fear that replacing private by governmental initiative will result in stagnation. For, under private initiative, the factor of economic need in determining the location and relations of lines has ceased to be the controlling factor. On the contrary, the people have been shown clearly that the purposes of private initiative are not only generally opposed to the needs of the public, but are actually embodied in a policy of comparative stagnation.

The railroad system has come under the power of a very few men. Its purpose now seems not to be to serve the public, but to levy the heaviest possible charge upon the productive energies of the country, and to expend the surplus in choking off competition.

This charge is paid by the public, and is substantially a tax. When the people pay taxes they insist on control of the rate and the disbursement of the revenue.

Under public ownership the fundamental purpose of the public service would for the first time become purely public, and that advantage would outweigh almost every benefit of private control that may be imagined. The opinion is gaining ground that the government could not possibly serve the country worse than the present masters of the railroad system have done.

THE PROBABILITY THAT PUBLIC OWNERSHIP WILL BE DEMANDED BY THE PEOPLE.

Whether or not the old notion that the government cannot operate railroads efficiently is correct, that notion has lost much of its currency. The management of the postal service, the extension of the rural free delivery, the parcels post, and the inauguration of postal savings banks are steps toward government management that will never be retraced, but will lead rather to a more general adoption of that policy. The postmaster general has already recommended that the government conduct the express business of the country and buy out the existing companies. The wonderful results of the irrigation service of the national government are so real that the demand for more is incessant. The policy of government leasing of oil, gas, coal and other mineral lands has come to stay, and conservation has become a matter of governmental initiative. The construction of the Panama canal is an achievement which will be pointed to for all time as proof that in our democracy the government can conduct large enterprises with complete honesty and effectiveness. Such a program, moreover, would be the logical outcome of the policy of protection to American production, and the advocacy of reliance upon a strong central government. We need not be surprised, therefore, to see this issue taken up by the conservative wing of the republican party.

We may, at all events, expect to have pointed out in the near future the needs of the public which government ownership will meet, and the advantages which the government has over private interests in meeting those needs. It behooves us to consider them as elements of probability that the alternative to adequate state regulation, that is, national ownership and operation, will be seriously considered by the people.

REASONS FOR A DEMAND FOR PUBLIC OWNERSHIP.

The railroads of the United States to-day are in a sense not primarily engaged in public service so much as in private financial operations. The chief interest of their masters is in their stocks and bonds. The public, too, is concerned about railroads as subjects for speculation or investment. Hundreds of millions of dollars are tied up continually to carry the stocks of American railroads, and like amounts are invested in their securities. All of these evidences of railroad indebtedness carry an interest burden of five or six per cent, not counting the initial cost, usually very heavy, of raising the money, and the waste in spending it. This burden is borne by the people, and represents a tax upon American commerce and industry.

If the government owned these roads, at whatever price acquired, the interest rate would be cut in half, even if all the evidences of indebtedness were reissued as government bonds at the aggregate valuation of all the railroad stocks and other securities now issued. And the cost of all future inflation would be saved to the public. As a result of the refunding of railroad securities as government bonds, the hundreds of millions of dollars tied up in speculative transactions would be returned to the ordinary channels of trade and industry. The incentive, moreover, to giving rebates, discriminating, and other practices, which regulation does not seem to be able to eliminate, would at once disappear. So would the distribution of traffic and the arrangement of relations between lines on the basis of private profit. Without control of the railway system the trust system cannot long survive; railway ownership is the chief support of the so-called money trust. Whatever the force of this reasoning, it cannot be doubted that if the people of this country become convinced that it is valid, the day of government ownership and operation will not be long delayed. They will easily be persuaded that for the millions expended by the present New Haven management, for example, as the price of the New Haven railroad monopoly, and to deprive New England of transportation facilities, the government could have built a railroad to every man's door. They will believe that rates could be substantially reduced. They will look for the immediate removal of those unjust exactions which are now added to the cost of necessaries of life by the railroads which control distribution, and, often, the sources of supply. They will believe that the private parlor car and sleeping car monopoly, the private express monopoly and all the other private monopolies which exist in connection with private ownership of railroads would be destroyed.

They will believe that under public ownership the government would adopt a progressive policy of developing the country's resources and improving public property, and could make profitable investments of millions in public improvements and in the public service, without the fear, now ever present, that this money will be diverted from public benefit to the private profit of the railroad monopoly. And they will believe that each section as a unit will get better results from solidarity in representation in congress on railroad matters than any now given by the uncontrolled railroad monopoly of the sections. They will believe that the alleged unjust exactions from the government for carrying the mails, and the anticipated exactions in connection with the parcels post, will disappear. And they will believe that the government will at once apply the pension system, the compensation system and all the other systems supposed to represent modern social justice. They will expect to see, moreover, a just reapportionment of wages, a dignity in the railroad civil service, a career for the many now excluded from the management of our chief public enterprise, the railroads, and a steady job, the foundation of national prosperity, for hundreds of thousands. And they will see in this the settlement of the railroad problem, the labor problem, the trust problem, the currency problem, the "cost of living" problem, including the food and coal problems, and, with the steadying effect of all this, the elimination of the problem of financial panics. As a practical issue, public ownership of railroads may soon be the only policy left. Those who have just given the people proof that foreign capitalists may veto our proposals for new railroads will set up in vain their arguments based upon the supposed impracticability of government ownership and operation. Those who believe that public ownership of public property and public performance of the public service of railroad transportation are socialistic and otherwise undesirable need not look to the present masters of the railroad system to defeat the proposal of government ownership. Most of them desire it, and have been piling issue upon issue of bonds and stocks on their properties in order, if occasion comes, to unload upon the government.

The only way to postpone national ownership of railroads and to retain in the commonwealth the power to regulate our transportation system is to assert that power at once, and to apply it without delay.

A PUBLIC-SERVICE COMMISSION ABSOLUTELY NECESSARY.

I therefore renew my recommendation, repeatedly made, that a powerful public service commission be created, armed with mandatory authority over the public service, so far as this is within the power of Massachusetts to control.

MANY IMPROVEMENTS ESPECIALLY CALLED FOR: SAFEGUARDING LIFE.

The people expect you to make this control strong enough to require from the transportation corporations that they safeguard the lives of their passengers and employees; that they equip the roads with fireproof cars; that they lengthen the cross-over switches to a proper standard; that they provide quick and adequate settlement for damages in case of accident or loss of life or property; and that they make their cars clean, wholesome, and sanitary in every way.

REGULATION OF RATES AND SERVICE.

This commission should have power to compel the adoption of an interchangeable mileage. It should enforce such train schedules as will provide convenient connections between trains at junction points.

This commission should have authority to fix freight and passenger rates on an equitable basis, to examine and audit the books of all transportation companies at any time, and to hold the railroad corporations to a sworn statement of their current operating expenses and disbursements. It must have authority to order the construction of railroad extensions, side tracks, and spurs wherever required.

TUNNELS AND ELECTRIFICATION.

It is equally important that this commission should have power to supervise and force the electrification of all the railroads within the metropolitan area, and their connection through whatever tunnel system is required to unite our principal railroad and water terminals into a complete system, giving us adequate facilities for rail and deep water connections.

If you were to fail in this crisis to create a public service commission with mandatory power, this legislature would fall under just public condemnation.

It is your obvious duty to exhaust every means within your constitutional power to regulate our public service, and to compel from its existing agencies the full discharge of their duty to the public.

PROPORTIONATE PUBLIC REPRESENTATION IN RAILROAD DIRECTORATES AND CO-OPERATIVE REGULATION BY ALL THE STATES.

A second measure, by which the benefits of both private and public ownership may be secured, would be to enact a law providing that henceforth the governor shall appoint a number of the majority of the directors of every corporation which owns, operates or controls a railroad in Massachusetts, proportionate to the mileage of that railroad in the state. Thus, if every state in which the railroad operates shall pass a like statute, the directors representing these states shall constitute a majority of the board of directors of the railroad. The act should provide further that the commonwealth shall obligate itself to purchase at any time, at a price to be fixed by a court of competent jurisdiction, any share of stock offered to it for purchase, unless the commonwealth shall at the time of said offer already have acquired and then hold shares of the capital stock of that corporation equal in its proportion to the total capital stock to the proportionate representation of the commonwealth in the majority of the directorate of that corporation. Also, the directors of any railroad shall not have the power to withhold the declaration and payment of any dividend that has been earned over and above a reserve for depreciation.

Such a measure would accomplish directly every result which could be achieved indirectly through the condemnation, purchase and operation by the commonwealth, or any other state, of every mile of railroad over which it has power. It would also preserve to the public every advantage of private ownership and management. It would not only be fair to the stockholders, but would benefit them.

Now they are subject to the arbitrary control of the small group of stockholders representing a fraction of a majority of the shares of capital stock. Such a group of stockholders, by their solidarity, are able to control the railroad as if it were theirs alone, and to withhold current earnings in order to participate in special dividends declared when they have acquired stock temporarily for the purpose of such participation, and when other stockholders have been discouraged. The obligation of the state to purchase this stock would be a complete justification for participation by the public in the management of the railroads.

Such a measure would preserve all the benefits of federal regulation and state regulation, and at the same time permit co-operation of contiguous states. No New England state would refuse to pass such a law, nor would any state in the country. It would afford the opportunity to penetrate every recess of the twilight zone of railway control without violation of the principle of national unity or the theory of state rights, or any clause of the constitution of the United States. It could be put into effect without delay in any state or in all the states, and would provide an automatic and proportional adjustment of the rights and the wishes of each state as to the ownership, operation and management of the railroads of the country.

Through the passage of such a law this legislature may give a model statute to the other states, and mark the beginning of a sound and just settlement of the railroad problem of the United States.

I am confident that our New England business men and the stockholders of these railroads will give their co-operation to the public authorities of the New England states in their efforts to bring about a solution of the railroad problem that will conserve the interests of these stockholders and those of the public. I propose that Massachusetts take the first step toward concerted action to this end.

WATERWAYS.

The railroads alone, however, cannot furnish cheap and adequate transportation for all the needs of commerce, trade and industry. The improvement of our coast and inland waterways is absolutely necessary. The current development of the port of Boston, important as it is, is only one element of this policy. We must develop commercially the Connecticut, Taunton and Merrimac rivers, and encourage coastwise shipping. While we look to the federal government for co-operation and financial assistance in these important works, we must not throw the burden wholly upon congress. The appropriation of the public funds and the extension of the state's credit to all these enterprises is now absolutely requisite if we are to regain our former commercial prestige. In default of adequate waterways, we now depend upon the railroads for the shipment of many low grade freights which could be carried with far greater economy by water.

The cost of transportation by water is potentially far less than by railroad, and the public should have the benefit of this saving.

But, according to the recent report of the United States commissioner of corporations, in practically all the coast waters of the country, railroad or steamship consolidations dominate water transportation. Water lines along the eastern seaboard have become to a large extent subsidiaries of railroads. The New Haven system has pursued a determined policy of suppressing any effective competition on Long Island sound, and almost completely controls the water traffic between New York city and New England ports.

We must develop our coast and inland waterways, and remove their control from any private transportation interest.

The industries of New England should have their raw materials on practically as favorable a basis as any other section. We should attempt to bring back the industries in which the cost of transportation is a serious factor, which, one by one, as the culmination of a hundred years of short sightedness, have been permitted to be moved westward and southward, where transportation, particularly by water, is cheap and ample.

Cheap rates on low grade freights are the basis of industrial success. These rates may be attained only with an adequate system of waterways, and with water transportation free from railroad domination.

We should co-operate in waterway development with neighboring states, promote concerted action of all the states, and support the efforts of the national government, — if for no other reason than for our own salvation.

Since the general court has placed the rivers of the commonwealth under the jurisdiction of the harbor and land commissioners, I recommend that liberal appropriations be made to them for the commercial development of these waters.

The completion of the Panama canal will form the first important step in the development of our waterways upon a national scale. Our own work of maritime and inland waterway development must now follow rapidly, and upon broad lines, if we are to maintain our proper part in the commercial expansion of our country.

The canal project is, in fact, of especial significance to us in relation to our railroad problems. The canal was demanded by the American people as a protest against the selfish policies of the trans-continental railroads. Its construction by public initiative expresses the popular conviction that such enterprises must be removed wholly from corporate control and influence. And the recent passage of an act of congress prohibiting all railroads from direct or indirect ownership or control of steamship lines which might compete with them, again expresses the determination of the people to set all our transportation services free from monopolistic control.

Massachusetts must abate nothing of her present zeal for the development of our harbors and rivers. To do so would remove from us still further the hope of re-establishing our right to adequate transportation service.

On the contrary, we must proceed with redoubled energy. Fifty million dollars is not an unreasonable sum to place immediately at the disposal of the port directors for the necessary harbor improvements, and the acquisition and development of necessary terminals in the metropolitan district.

We are the nearest ice free port to Europe, and we have behind us the richest continent on earth. The Panama canal will bring us into direct relations with the far east. We must prepare for the tremendous increase in our shipping to which we are entitled, and which we can secure if we are equipped for it.

To extend the public credit in this direction will be the most profitable investment the people can make; and I believe that to continue our past niggardly and short sighted policy would be supreme folly. Our waterfront, harbors, docks and terminals are the commonwealth's greatest asset. To realize upon them we must have modern docks; our railroad terminals must be made effective as part of our seaport development; connecting tunnels must be provided wherever required; the entire power equipment of our railroads within our metropolitan area should be operated by electricity, as required by modern practice; throughout the metropolitan zone a uniform rate should be established; and our principal seaport must be made ready for our work of placing New England once more upon the commercial map.

The directors of the port of Boston deserve much credit for their prompt action in commencing practical work upon the improvement of Boston harbor. This enterprise has,

I believe, contributed more than any other cause to securing for Boston the important new steamship service which is already scheduled.

TOLLS ON THE PANAMA CANAL.

I recommend that the legislature memorialize the congress to open the Panama canal free of tolls to the ships of all nations as a gift of the United States to the cause of commercial freedom, and an earnest of our purpose to lead in the movement for true international reciprocity and the abandonment of the policy of retaliation. The cost of international strain and strife is out of all proportion to any possible advantage; the possible benefits of international generosity are too great to be measured.

FURTHER RECOMMENDATIONS.

There are other important matters to which you will be called upon to give your consideration. Upon many subjects I shall at an early date submit recommendations in special messages. I have in this message confined myself to a discussion of the supreme issue, — the struggle between the people and the transportation monopoly for control of the government. I believe that this session may do much for the maintenance of our prosperity and the ultimate solution of this great problem. I urge you to proceed to the performance of your duty in this matter, mindful of the mandate of the people, by whose votes and as whose servants you hold your present power.

SPECIAL MESSAGES.

THE FOLLOWING SPECIAL COMMUNICATIONS WERE MADE BY HIS EXCELLENCY THE GOVERNOR TO THE GENERAL COURT DURING THE ANNUAL SESSION.

[To the honorable senate and house of representatives, January 3, 1913.]

I have the honor to herewith present, in compliance with chapter 50 of the resolves of 1860, a report of the ninety-eight pardons issued by the governor, with the advice of the council, during the year of my administration just closed. Of the number thus released, thirty-one were in the state prison, twenty-two in the Massachusetts reformatory, twenty-six in houses of correction, fourteen in the reformatory for women, two in jail, one in the state farm and two in the prison camp and hospital. Serious illness was the controlling reason for the discharge of three.

EUGENE N. FOSS.

Pardons.

No. 1. Roy Hamilton. Convicted of attempt to break and enter, Superior Court, Essex county, Jan. 19, 1911. Sentenced to the Massachusetts reformatory on an indeterminate sentence. Pardoned January 10. It was believed that the purpose of his commitment had been accomplished. Immediate employment awaited him.

No. 2. Eben W. Sears, Jr. Convicted of extortion, Superior Court, Essex county, September term, 1911. Sentenced to the house of correction for two years. Pardoned January 10, upon the recommendation of the mayor and many citizens of Lynn. This was his first offence. He served the United States during the Spanish war and later as a member of the police force of Lynn with great credit to himself and the service. It was believed that the prisoner had been sufficiently punished and the ends of justice satisfied.

Pardons.

No. 3. EMERY J. DANIELS. Convicted of stubbornness, District Court of Southern Essex, Oct. 4, 1911. Sentenced to the Massachusetts reformatory on an indeterminate sentence. Pardoned January 17, upon the recommendation of the justice who imposed the sentence, the probation officer, and the mother of the boy who was the complainant, who believed that the purpose of his commitment had been accomplished. He was but fifteen years of age and had a perfect conduct record in the reformatory.

No. 4. WALTER A. SCOTT. Convicted of murder, second degree, Superior Court, Suffolk county, April term, 1895. Sentenced to the state prison for life. Pardoned January 31. Scott fell into bad company and in December, 1894, when he was about nineteen years of age, he, with a man much older and of questionable character, stole a pocketbook from a woman in the Back Bay section of Boston. Both were chased by two coachmen. During the struggle one of the coachmen was shot by his companion and died soon after. Scott was first employed in the knitting department at the prison, but after about two years he was put on electrical work, that being his regular business before commitment. With a consulting engineer from outside, he assisted in installing the complete present lighting system of the prison. He had been in the knitting department for eight years, and at the time of his release was in charge of the machinery in all three of the knitting departments and floorman in charge of the underwear department. This was his first offence, but being a participant in the robbery he was convicted and could only be sentenced to the state prison for life. Immediate employment awaited him. It was believed that he would become a useful and worthy citizen. No one opposed the pardon.

No. 5. CATHERINE AHEARN. Convicted of drunkenness, East Boston District Court, Oct. 25, 1911. Sentenced to the reformatory for women on an indeterminate sentence. Pardoned January 31, upon the recommendation of the justice who imposed the sentence and who believed that she had been sufficiently punished. This was her first offence.

No. 6. WILLIAM SMITH. Convicted of breaking and entering, Superior Court, Suffolk county, Dec. 14, 1910. Sentenced to two years in the house of correction. Pardoned February 14. Smith, while at work in prison, lost the sight of one eye and was fast losing the sight of the other. He was released to go to his home in Connecticut for treatment by an eye specialist. Pardons.

No. 7. JAMES A. HAMILTON. Convicted of bribery, Superior Court, Essex county, Oct. 21, 1910. Sentenced to the state prison for from two and a half to four years. Pardoned February 21, upon the petition of a large number of citizens of Lawrence, where the crime was committed, on the ground that justice had been satisfied by the punishment already endured. The district attorney concurred in the recommendation.

No. 8. SAMUEL KRESS. Convicted of conspiracy, Superior Court, Essex county, July 10, 1910. Sentenced to the house of correction for three years. Pardoned February 21, upon the petition of a large number of citizens of Lawrence, where the crime was committed, on the ground that justice had been satisfied by the punishment already endured. The district attorney concurred in the recommendation.

No. 9. CHIN TOY alias CHARLIE CHIN. Convicted of murder, second degree, Superior Court, Suffolk county, Feb. 6, 1904. Sentenced to the state prison for life. Pardoned February 21. There was reasonable doubt of his guilt. He was sixty-six years of age and not in the best of health, and at the most had but a few years to live. He was pardoned to remove at once to China. The crime in question was the murder of a Chinaman and the wounding of two others in the Chinese quarter of Boston, under circumstances which indicated a determination on the part of one faction to avenge itself upon members of the other. There was no evidence to show that Chin Toy fired the fatal shot.

No. 10. PAULINE GIMPIO. Convicted of neglect of minor child, East Boston District Court, Jan. 20, 1912. Sentenced to the reformatory for women on an indeterminate sentence. Pardoned February 21. This woman was unmarried, and the father of the child was away when she was arrested. He was willing to marry her and give both the woman and child a home. They had been keeping company for several years. She was pardoned upon condition that she marry before leaving the reformatory, which condition was complied with.

No. 11. DAVID MOONEY. Convicted of murder, second degree, Supreme Judicial Court, Suffolk county, Sept. 20, 1881. Sentenced to the state prison for life. Pardoned February 28, as an act of executive clemency. Mooney had served nearly thirty-two years of his sentence. It was believed that the ends of justice had been satisfied by the imprisonment already suffered.

No. 12. PATRICK J. KENNEY. Convicted of assault, Superior Court, Middlesex county, Dec. 24, 1906. Sentenced to the state prison for from eight to ten years. Pardoned February 28, upon the recommendation of the selectmen and nearly all the town officials of Watertown, where the crime was committed. There were many extenuating circumstances at the time of the commission of the offence. The woman who was assaulted also recommended the pardon. He was only twenty-three years of age and was under the influence of liquor.

No. 13. JOHN MCMANUS. Convicted of robbery, Superior Court, Suffolk county, March term, 1911. Sentenced to the house of correction for three years. Pardoned February 28, upon the recommendation of the district attorney, who had become convinced that McManus was innocent of the crime for which he had served nearly a year, and who earnestly recommended that he be pardoned immediately.

No. 14. PARKER ROBBINS. Convicted of assault, Superior Court, Essex county, Feb. 15, 1909. Sentenced to the state prison for from seven to nine years. Pardoned March 5, upon the recommendation of the party assaulted, the district attorney, and many prominent citizens of Gloucester, where the crime was committed. He had never before been convicted of any offence. A good home and employment awaited him in a western state.

No. 15. CARL G. HUTCHINSON. Convicted of larceny, Municipal Court of the Dorchester District, July 14, 1911. Sentenced to the Massachusetts reformatory on an indeterminate sentence. Pardoned March 13, on the ground that the punishment already suffered had satisfied the demands of justice. The articles stolen were worth not over $4. He had no previous record of wrong doing and immediate employment awaited him.

No. 16. DAVID ROSENBERG. Convicted of larceny, Superior Court, Essex county, Sept. 26, 1910. Sentenced to the house of correction for two and a half years. Transferred to the reformatory. Pardoned March 13, upon the recommendation of the mayor, nearly all the city officials of Lawrence and the district attorney, on the ground that the sentence was somewhat excessive and the ends of justice had been served.

No. 17. ROSE BILLODEAU. Convicted of drunkenness, Fourth District Court of Bristol, Oct. 27, 1911. Sentenced to the reformatory for women on an indeterminate sentence. Pardoned March 20, upon the recommendation of her husband, who made the complaint, and the chief of police of Mansfield, on the ground that she had been sufficiently punished and would hereafter lead an orderly life. She had three small children who needed a mother's care.

No. 18. SAMUEL I. GORDON. Convicted of conspiracy, Superior Court, Suffolk county, March term, 1910. Sentenced to the house of correction for three years. Pardoned March 20. The district attorney stated that the condition of this man's wife and children had become almost pitiable, and that they were reduced to a condition very near to poverty. "From all I have learned," he said, "it would seem that he has felt the punishment keenly, and if reformation is to be expected, it would seem that it had been accomplished."

No. 19. RALPH L. FREEMAN. Convicted of breaking and entering, Superior Court, Plymouth county, June 13, 1911. Sentenced to the Massachusetts reformatory on an indeterminate sentence. Pardoned March 20, upon the recommendation of the district attorney, who believed that the young man (who was but eighteen years of age) had seen the error of his ways and should be given an opportunity to redeem himself. A firm in Brockton stood ready to employ him at once.

No. 20. JOHN H. CULLEN. Convicted of larceny, Superior Court, Suffolk county, September term, 1910. Sentenced to the state prison for from four to six years. Pardoned March 20, upon the recommendation of many prominent clergymen and business men of Boston. He was never accused of any crime or wrong-doing before. His many friends had the fullest confidence that further confinement would not serve any beneficial purpose, either for him or for the community. He had a wife and six children of whom only two were partly self-supporting, the others being entirely dependent upon him. Friends stood ready to give him immediate employment. No one opposed the pardon.

No. 21. HARRIETT H. SMITH. Convicted of adultery, Municipal Court of Boston, Aug. 15, 1911. Sentenced to the reformatory for women on an indeterminate sentence. Pardoned March 20, upon the recommendation of the probation officer, on the ground that she had been reasonably punished. She was not represented by counsel at the trial. The man arrested with her appealed from his sentence and in the superior court was fined $20, which he paid.

No. 22. JOHN J. COLLINS. Convicted of drunkenness, Central District Court of Worcester, Jan. 31, 1912. Sentenced to the Massachusetts reformatory on an indeterminate sentence. Pardoned March 20, upon the recommendation of the probation officer, who believed that the ends of justice had been served. He had borne a good reputation, worked steadily and had never been arrested before.

No. 23. AUGUST B. PEARSON. Convicted of larceny, Municipal Court of the Dorchester District, Aug. 1, 1911. Sentenced to the Massachusetts reformatory on an indeterminate sentence. Pardoned March 27, upon the recommendation of the justice of the Dorchester Municipal Court and the probation officer, who believed that the ends of justice would be served by his release at this time.

No. 24. THOMAS LOWE. Convicted of murder, second degree, Supreme Judicial Court, Essex county, Dec. 3, 1884. Sentenced to the state prison for life. Pardoned March 27. The crime was committed when he was under the influence of liquor. He was a young man of good disposition and habits except for a propensity to go upon an occasional spree. He was sometimes a visitor at the house of a Mr. Sullivan, and was fond of his young children and accustomed to make them gifts of candy and other things likely to please children. His relations with the family were most cordial. For more than a week previous to the offence he had been on a drunken spree, and while in this condition he went to the Sullivan house where two of the children were alone. He was seen to leave the house and stagger to the doorstep of a house near, where he was later found in a drunken stupor. One of the little Sullivan girls was found lying on the kitchen floor, having been apparently strangled to death. No suggestion of a motive for the crime has ever been made. After being taken to jail Lowe had a severe attack of delirium tremens, and has always claimed that he had no knowledge of what he had done. The Sullivan family signed a petition for his pardon. He was released upon condition that he return to England, his native country, and never come to the United States again. Pardons.

No. 25. NELLIE MAY WHEELER. Convicted of lewdness, First District Court of Northern Worcester, Jan. 4, 1912. Sentenced to the reformatory for women on an indeterminate sentence. Pardoned March 27, upon the recommendation of justice Walker of the District Court of Northern Worcester. The defendant has always claimed that she was innocent of the crime. The justice stated that there was sufficient evidence of the guilt of the defendant, but he believed that the ends of justice would be satisfied if she were pardoned at this time, as doubtless her punishment had been sufficient, particularly if a suitable place could be found for her where she could have an opportunity to be under good influences. Her sister, who stands very high in the community, was anxious to take her to her home in Boston.

No. 26. DOMINICK ANZELMO. Convicted of adultery, Superior Court, Suffolk county, August term, 1911. Sentenced to the house of correction for two years. Pardoned April 3. Anzelmo had a wife and five children (the eldest child being only ten years old) in very destitute circumstances. The wife condoned the offence and friends secured him employment.

No. 27. JOHN J. HOLIHAN. Convicted of robbery, Superior Court, Suffolk county, Dec. 13, 1909. Sentenced to the state prison for from four to six years. Pardoned April 10. Holihan belonged to a good family and had never been arrested before for any offence. Immediate employment awaited him. At the time of the indictment and at the trial he was not represented by counsel, thereby being unable to take advantage of any legal rights he might have had. The judge who imposed the sentence stated that "if this young man has shown by his conduct in prison that he may be trusted to reform, I see no reason why he should not be pardoned now that he has served a substantial part of his sentence." He had a perfect conduct record in prison.

No. 28. AUGUSTUS WILLIAMS. Convicted of robbery, Superior Court, Suffolk county, March 8, 1909. Sentenced to the state prison for from five to six years. Pardoned April 10, upon the recommendation of the complainant, the present Catholic chaplain and the former chaplain of the state prison, who believed that the young man was completely changed and would hereafter make a good citizen.

No. 29. PATRICK J. DRISCOLL. Convicted of breaking and entering, Superior Court, Essex county, Sept. 27, 1910. Sentenced to the house of correction for three years. Pardoned April 3, upon the recommendation of ex-district attorney Peters and justice John J. Ryan of the District Court of Northern Essex, on the ground that the sentence was excessive and the ends of justice would be served by a release at this time. Steady employment awaited him.

No. 30. MICHAEL J. COYNE. Convicted of larceny, Superior Court, Essex county, Sept. 27, 1910. Sentenced to the house of correction for two and a half years. Pardoned April 3, upon the recommendation of the district attorney and city marshal, who believed that the ends of justice had been accomplished.

No. 31. MORRIS NAYOR. Convicted of receiving stolen goods, Superior Court, Suffolk county, Jan. 15, 1912. Sentenced to the house of correction for two years. Pardoned April 11. The petitioner had made full and complete restitution to all parties. He was well advanced in years and was in ill health, and further confinement might tend to serious consequences. He had always led a good and useful life. He had a large family which was dependent upon him. A party to the offence had made a sworn affidavit that the prisoner was made the victim of a conspiracy and that he never intended to commit wrong. Pardons.

No. 32. HENRY MOREAU. Convicted of receiving stolen goods, Superior Court, Suffolk county, Jan. 15, 1912. Sentenced to the house of correction for three years. Pardoned April 10, upon the recommendation of the district attorney and the probation officer, who were of the opinion that he was not guilty of the crime for which he was committed, and that it was simply a case of larceny, for which two or three months in the house of correction would have been a sufficient sentence.

No. 33. WILLIAM F. DELANEY. Convicted of assault, Superior Court, Bristol county, June 29, 1909. Sentenced to the state prison for from six to ten years. Pardoned April 17, upon the recommendation of the district attorney and many prominent citizens of Newburyport, where the crime was committed. At the time of the assault he was in a weakened mental and physical condition, and was committed while he was on the verge of delirium tremens and under the influence of drugs. It was believed that the ends of justice had been satisfied by the imprisonment already suffered. His relatives promised to secure immediate employment for him.

No. 34. ANNIE MURPHY. Convicted of drunkenness, First District Court of Eastern Middlesex, Jan. 20, 1912. Sentenced to the reformatory for women on an indeterminate sentence. Pardoned April 17. She had a husband and three small children who needed her care and attention. It was believed that she had been punished sufficiently to have learned a lesson, and would hereafter refrain from the use of intoxicating liquor.

No. 35. ABNER PETERSON. Convicted of robbery, Superior Court, Middlesex county, Dec. 21, 1908. Sentenced to the house of correction for five years. Pardoned April 17, upon the recommendation of the district attorney, who believed that the ends of justice had already been served.

No. 36. ROBERT H. LONG. Convicted of assault with intent to kill, Superior Court, Suffolk county, Oct. 19, 1906.

Pardons.

Sentenced to the state prison for from ten to fifteen years. Pardoned April 24, on the recommendation of the wife of the prisoner, who was the party assaulted, the judge who presided at the trial and the assistant district attorney, who believed that the ends of justice had been served and that he had already been sufficiently punished for the crime.

No. 37. PETER LEMBESIS. Convicted of breaking and entering and larceny, Superior Court, Suffolk county, Dec. 18, 1911. Sentenced to the Massachusetts reformatory on an indeterminate sentence. Transferred to the prison camp and hospital March 26, 1912. Pardoned May 1. The prison physician reported that he was suffering from a tubercular trouble of apex of right lung, and on account of active condition of disease his case was a doubtful one. He was removed to a private sanatorium in East Bridgewater.

No. 38. FRANK LLOYD. Convicted of larceny, Second District Court of Eastern Middlesex, Sept. 21, 1911. Sentenced to the Massachusetts reformatory on an indeterminate sentence. Pardoned May 1, upon the recommendation of the justice who imposed the sentence, the probation officer and the chief of police, all of Waltham, where the crime was committed. His wife and two children were entirely dependent on him or on charity for support. A responsible person for whom he once worked was ready to give him employment as soon as he was discharged.

No. 39. ANDREW JENSEN. Convicted of vagrancy, Central District Court of Worcester, Oct. 31, 1911. Sentenced to the Massachusetts reformatory on an indeterminate sentence. Pardoned May 8. This was his first offence. He ran away from his home in Maine with an older companion. No crime was committed. He was eighteen years old. It was believed that he had been sufficiently punished for his escapade.

No. 40. GEORGE YELLAND. Convicted of larceny, Superior Court, Essex county, September term, 1910. Sentenced to the house of correction for two and a half years. Pardoned May 15, upon the recommendation of the district attorney, who believed that the sentence was excessive. He had a wife and three children who were supported by charity. The senator and all the representatives from Lawrence, where the crime was committed, urged the granting of a pardon. Pardons.

No. 41. MARY MORAN. Convicted of being a common drunkard, Municipal Court of Boston, Feb. 14, 1912. Sentenced to the reformatory for women on an indeterminate sentence. Pardoned May 15. She was very much needed at home to care for her five children. The justice who imposed the sentence and the prison commissioners recommended a pardon, believing that she had been sufficiently punished.

No. 42. JOHN J. O'CONNOR. Convicted of assault with a dangerous weapon, Superior Court, Suffolk county, November term, 1911. Sentenced to the house of correction for two years. Pardoned May 29, upon the recommendation of the district attorney, who stated that O'Connor's wife and family were in destitute condition. His previous reputation had been such as to justify the inference that the imprisonment he had already suffered had satisfied the ends of justice.

No. 43. CLARENCE S. SHOVE. Convicted of bigamy, Superior Court, Suffolk county, June 12, 1911. Sentenced to the house of correction for three years. Pardoned May 29. It was believed that he was thoroughly penitent. He had a good record during his confinement. He served in the navy during the Spanish war and had an honorable discharge therefrom. He removed to the far west, where permanent employment awaited him.

No. 44. WILLIAM E. CUNNINGHAM. Convicted of murder, second degree, Superior Court, Middlesex county, Oct. 22, 1892. Sentenced to the state prison for life. Pardoned May 29, on the ground that he had been sufficiently punished for the offence. He had become a competent machinist, and his splendid deportment as a prisoner during his nearly twenty years' imprisonment warranted the belief that hereafter he would be a law abiding citizen. If he had not pleaded guilty the district attorney believed that he might have received a lighter sentence, but the court had no discretion in imposing a sentence for life.

Pardons.

No. 45. JOHN J. TOOMEY. Convicted of drunkenness, First District Court of Essex, March 11, 1912. Sentenced to the Massachusetts reformatory on an indeterminate sentence. Pardoned June 5, upon the recommendation of the justice who imposed the sentence, the probation officer, the city marshal of Lynn and the mayor and aldermen of Beverly, who believed that the ends of justice had been served.

No. 46. EUGENE V. MURPHY. Convicted of breaking and entering, Superior Court, Suffolk county, July 10, 1911. Sentenced to the Massachusetts reformatory on an indeterminate sentence. Pardoned June 12. It was believed from the knowledge of Murphy's conduct in the past that the punishment already inflicted had been a good lesson to him, and that a pardon granted by the authorities would place him under a strong obligation to the commonwealth and be an incentive to him in his future life. Immediate employment awaited him. He had but a month more to serve.

No. 47. WILLIAM R. PHILLIPS. Convicted of breaking and entering and larceny, Superior Court, Norfolk and Middlesex counties, April 17, 1905, and June 16, 1905, respectively. Sentenced to the house of correction for two years and one year, respectively. Pardoned June 19. He was sentenced to a year at hard labor at the Norfolk county jail in 1905, and escaped before he had been locked in his cell. The following October he was arrested in Connecticut and sentenced for burglary there to not less than two nor more than eight years. He would regularly have been entitled to parole in October, 1907, but under the laws of that state he could not be paroled because he was an escaped prisoner from another state. After he had escaped from Dedham he was indicted by the Norfolk county grand jury for escaping and by the Middlesex grand jury for breaking and entering in that county. When he was returned to Massachusetts, April 11, to begin his original sentence, he was given an additional year for his Middlesex offence. Former assistant district attorney Bancroft and former district attorney French expressed the opinion that the additional time served in Connecticut was sufficient punishment for the Massachusetts offences. Phillips was in his teens when he committed the offences and was then addicted to the use of drugs. The jail officials of Connecticut and Norfolk county stated that the young man had recovered from the effects of the drugs, and recommended his pardon. Pardons.

No. 48. ARTIMUS COLLINS. Convicted of robbery, Superior Court, Suffolk county, Sept. 15, 1910. Sentenced to two and a half to four years in state prison. Pardoned June 19, upon the petition of his mother, who was dependent, in which she was joined by the victim of the robbery, Arthur I. Scrannage, and his wife. Scrannage feared that a great wrong might have been done young Collins, as while he was present with the two men who actually robbed him, yet he did not take an active part in the robbery.

No. 49. FREDERICK J. HERTHEL. Convicted of larceny, Superior Court, Suffolk county, Oct. 9, 1911. Sentenced to the house of correction for three years. Pardoned June 19. The money Herthel was charged with stealing was invested in mining ventures in California in which he lost all his own money. He was the friend and adviser of a Mrs. Vance. He went to California and lived there for six years, when he was extradited and brought back to Massachusetts last year. District attorney Pelletier was of the opinion that the time already spent in prison was sufficient to meet the ends of justice. His pardon was recommended by Bishop Lawrence, Rev. Samuel Snelling and ex-Governor Bates.

No. 50. FRED D. ELLSWORTH. Convicted of conspiracy, Superior Court, Suffolk county, March term, 1912. Sentenced to two years in the house of correction. Pardoned June 19. He was sentenced on a charge of conspiracy in connection with the sale of stock of a fictitious corporation known as the Peerless Chocolate Company. He had disposed of but little stock. His family was in a pitiable condition. He had never before violated the laws of this commonwealth. The stock was sold on credit and the amount of money collected on instalments was not large. The district attorney concurred in the recommendation for a pardon.

No. 51. ETHEL GUCCIARDI. Convicted of inducing females under the age of eighteen to have unlawful sexual intercourse, Superior Court, Suffolk county, Jan. 31, 1911. Sentenced to the house of correction for three years. Pardoned June 26, upon the recommendation of the district attorney, because of the severity of the punishment under the circumstances, and the existence of a doubt as to her actual guilt; and also because she had fully expiated her fault, if any, and the ends of justice had been subserved. He advised an immediate pardon.

No. 52. RUSSELL SHACKELFORD. Convicted of forgery, First District Court of Essex, March 18, 1911. Sentenced to the Massachusetts reformatory on an indeterminate sentence. Pardoned June 26, upon the recommendation of the justice who imposed the sentence and the probation officer, on the ground that he had a good home to go to and an offer of employment, and had interested friends to look after him. His conduct record was perfect.

No. 53. S. GRAHAM BENSON. Convicted of forgery, Superior Court, Suffolk county, June 13, 1911. Sentenced to the Massachusetts reformatory on an indeterminate sentence. Pardoned June 26, upon the recommendation of the chief of police of Abington and deputy sheriff Spring of Hingham, who believed that the ends of justice had been met. His mother was an invalid and needed his support. He had a perfect conduct record.

No. 54. THOMAS J. DEMPSEY. Convicted of murder, second degree, Superior Court, Essex county, March 22, 1890. Sentenced to the state prison for life. Pardoned July 2, as an act of executive clemency. He had served more than twenty-two years. He had never been punished or even reprimanded during his long imprisonment. It was believed that the ends of justice had been satisfied, and that he would hereafter lead a life of credit to himself and to the community. At the time of the murder he was living at the house of his brother-in-law, Clarence J. Willey, and there shot and killed him. There were no witnesses to the shooting, and Mrs. Willey says that her husband was ugly, and thinks that acts of cruelty toward her on his part may have caused the quarrel that led up to the tragedy. Dempsey's sister, the wife of the murdered man, strongly urged the pardon. Dempsey had never been arrested prior to this offence.

No. 55. HARRY BAILEY. Convicted of larceny, and larceny in a building, two indictments, Superior Court, Middlesex county, March 17, 1910. Sentenced to the state prison for seven and a half to ten years. Pardoned July 2, upon the recommendation of the district attorney and the chief inspector of police of Cambridge, and also the selectmen and town clerk of Dover and two clergymen of that town, who believed that he had been sufficiently punished and would hereafter lead an orderly life. Friends stood ready to give him immediate employment. Pardons.

No. 56. KATHERINE R. SULLIVAN. Convicted of drunkenness, District Court of Southern Norfolk, May 7, 1912. Sentenced to the reformatory for women on an indeterminate sentence. Pardoned July 3. She was the mother of three children who needed her care and watching. The petitioners believed that punishment was needed in her case, and that she had been sufficiently punished for being a victim of liquor and would hereafter abstain from the use of intoxicating drinks.

No. 57. JESSIE GIBBONS. Convicted of fornication, Superior Court, Suffolk county, Jan. 4, 1912. Sentenced to the reformatory for women on an indeterminate sentence. Pardoned July 17, on the ground that she was innocent of the crime for which she was convicted. She did not have counsel at her trial and consequently the circumstances connected with the case were not presented to the court.

No. 58. WARD LAPOINT. Convicted of breaking and entering, Superior Court, Hampden county, May 8, 1911. Sentenced to the house of correction for two and a half years. Pardoned July 17, upon the recommendation of the district attorney and the prison physician. He was seriously ill with pulmonary tuberculosis, with little prospect of recovering.

No. 59. CATHERINE E. MCKINNON. Convicted of drunkenness, Municipal Court of Brookline, March 15, 1912. Sentenced to the reformatory for women on an indeterminate sentence. Pardoned July 30, upon the recommendation of justice Perkins, who imposed the sentence, subject to the supervision of the probation officer. She had six children who needed a mother's care.

No. 60. ALBERT S. HOOGS. Convicted of larceny, Superior Court, Essex county, Feb. 25, 1910. Sentenced to the state prison for from three and a half to six years. Pardoned July 31, upon the recommendation of some of the best citizens of Beverly, on the ground that he had been sufficiently punished and would henceforth lead a good life and be a useful citizen. The district attorney concurred in the recommendation. An unusually fine business position awaited him.

No. 61. AUGUST LANGNER. Convicted of murder, second degree, Superior Court, Norfolk county, Dec. 8, 1893. Sentenced to the state prison for life. Pardoned August 7. Langner had served nineteen years of his prison sentence, besides one year in the Dedham jail. At that time he spoke little, if any, English, and possessed extremely little education. In the trial the commonwealth depended largely upon the testimony of two young informers who acted in the expectation of obtaining the reward which had been offered for the apprehension of the criminal and for evidence leading to his conviction. Hon. Robert O. Harris, who was then the district attorney, tried the case. Hon. Albert E. Pillsbury, the attorney-general, prepared it, but was prevented by sickness from trying it. Grave doubts have been expressed as to Langner's guilt and the validity of the evidence on which he was convicted. But, irrespective of the question of his guilt, Langner had been a model prisoner, had acquired a fair education and was in the prime of life. It would seem as if twenty years in prison formed a sufficient punishment to meet the ends of justice in this case. All opposition of record to his pardon had been withdrawn, certain attorneys who formerly opposed his release having since signed a memorial withdrawing their objections on the condition that Langner leave the country, never to return. It was on this condition that the council acted. The prisoner had made many friends among responsible and respected German-American citizens, and with their help will undoubtedly be able to take care of himself.

No. 62. JULIUS STERNBERGER. Convicted of forgery, Superior Court, Suffolk county, Feb. 26, 1912. Sentenced to the house of correction for eighteen months. Pardoned July 31, upon the recommendation of the district attorney, who believed that he had been sufficiently punished. He had a wife and child in destitute circumstances in New York, where employment awaited him.

No. 63. JEROME KING. Convicted of breaking and entering and larceny, Superior Court, Essex county, Feb. 15, 1910. Sentenced to the state prison for from twenty to twenty-five years. Transferred to the state farm. Pardoned August 14, upon the recommendation of the district attorney, who stated that he always looked upon the sentence as being too severe and that it was practically a life sentence, taking into consideration his age, fifty-four years. He said: "If he had received a sentence of about ten years I felt, and now think, it would have been nearer right." He was pardoned upon condition that he leave the United States, never to return. Pardons.

No. 64. FRANK J. LINEHAN. Convicted of larceny, Superior Court, Suffolk county, February term, 1912. Sentenced to the house of correction for two years. Pardoned August 14. The considerations actuating the council in this case were: the condition of his family, consisting of a wife and six children in destitute circumstances; the certainty that if released in the summer he could at once secure employment, whereas if release should be delayed till fall or winter — the dull time in his occupation — he could not then get work; the usefulness of his services to the county of Suffolk since his confinement, he probably having saved the county $8,000 or $9,000.

No. 65. JOSEPH STEARNS. Convicted of robbery, Superior Court, Suffolk county, Jan. 14, 1910. Sentenced to the state prison for from five to seven years. Pardoned August 14. The prisoner had a wife and three children. The wife was ill with tuberculosis, and if her husband was pardoned she could be sent to a sanatorium. He had employment awaiting him so that he could support the children during their mother's absence.

No. 66. EDWARD J. BASSETT. Convicted of larceny, Central District Court of Worcester, Nov. 7, 1911. Sentenced to the Massachusetts reformatory on an indeterminate sentence. Pardoned August 14, upon the recommendation of the justice who imposed the sentence, the probation officer and the chief of police of Worcester. He stole a small amount of money from his mother, who also urged a pardon. She had secured immediate employment for him.

Pardons.

No. 67. ROBERT H. CREIGHTON. Convicted of robbery and assault, Superior Court, Essex county, Feb. 3, 1909. Sentenced to the state prison for from six to eight years. Pardoned August 14, on the ground that he had been sufficiently punished, and that continued imprisonment would seriously impair his health. The complainant and the district attorney had no objection to the granting of the pardon.

No. 68. EDWARD F. LINEHAN. Convicted of rape, Superior Court, Suffolk county, February term, 1907. Sentenced to the state prison for from fifteen to eighteen years. Pardoned August 14, upon the recommendation of the assistant district attorney, who prosecuted the case, and who believed that the sentence was excessive, as he had become satisfied that the crime committed was at most adultery, and for such he had paid the full penalty.

No. 69. BENJAMIN F. TAYLOR. Convicted of murder, second degree, Supreme Judicial Court, Suffolk county, May 14, 1891. Sentenced to the state prison for life. Pardoned August 28. Taylor had served twenty-two years of a life sentence for shooting Wilder Hutchins, a North End stable keeper. His story of the incidents leading up to the shooting convinced the members of the council that the deed was done in self defence. Taylor explained, in a letter to the council, that Hutchins had hounded him for some time, endeavoring to extort money, and when Taylor attempted to collect a loan which he had made to Hutchins, the latter assaulted him, and Taylor shot to protect himself. The assistant district attorney, who prosecuted the case, stated: "Taylor impressed me as a strong man who had served his sentence with manliness and courage and with no small improvement to himself in many ways. I believe he will henceforth be a good citizen. On these grounds I am pleased to say that I should be glad to see him pardoned." His conduct record was perfect. He had been a very hard working and industrious man during his entire term, and had become one of the best harness makers that they ever had in the prison. It was believed that if given an opportunity he would become a good, useful and law abiding citizen.

No. 70. CLIFTON C. CORLISS. Convicted of larceny, Police Court of Somerville, Jan. 27, 1912. Sentenced to the Massachusetts reformatory on an indeterminate sentence.

Pardoned August 28, upon the recommendation of the justice who imposed the sentence, the probation officer of the police court of Somerville and the complainant, who believed that the demands of justice had been satisfied. Pardons.

No. 71. HERBERT S. DUDLEY. Convicted of breaking and entering, Superior Court, Middlesex county, June 23, 1911. Sentenced to the state prison for from four to six years. Pardoned September 11, upon the recommendation of the district attorney, on the ground that one Timothy Meas had confessed to committing the crime for which Dudley was sentenced. Meas made confession to the prison chaplain shortly before his death. Dudley had a previous prison record. He was not a drinking man nor addicted to the use of drugs, but attributed his career to lack of employment and bad associates. Friends were ready to give him immediate employment upon his release.

No. 72. FLORIAN J. HITCHCOCK. Convicted of escape from jail, Superior Court, Franklin county, Dec. 20, 1910. Sentenced to four and a half to five years in state prison. Pardoned September 25, upon the recommendation of the district attorney, who prosecuted the case, the present district attorney of Franklin county, the master of the house of correction, and the district police officer who made the arrest, on the ground that the sentence was excessive. The escape was without assault. The usual sentence for escape is from six months to one and a half years. He had served nearly two years of his sentence. Immediate employment awaited him in another state.

No. 73. FREDERICK W. BALL. Convicted of larceny, Superior Court, Suffolk county, Feb. 11, 1911. Sentenced to the house of correction for two and a half years. Pardoned October 2, upon the recommendation of the district attorney, the present mayor and two ex-mayors of Medford, where the prisoner resided; also his employers from whom the money was stolen. The district attorney believed that the sentence he had already served would be as effectual as a much longer term.

No. 74. CELESTINO ARDOLINO. Convicted of assault, Superior Court, Suffolk county, Sept. 16, 1910. Sentenced to the state prison for from eight to twelve years. Pardoned October 2. Up to the time of his arrest and conviction he had borne an excellent reputation in every respect. Since his trial new and material evidence had been discovered which if presented or available at the time of the trial it was believed would have resulted in a different verdict. The party assaulted voluntarily signed the petition for his pardon. He had a wife and child and had no previous criminal record.

No. 75. PATRICK J. CAHILL. Convicted of polygamy, Superior Court, Essex county, Sept. 20, 1911. Sentenced to the house of correction for two and a half years. Pardoned October 7, upon the recommendation of his wife, who believed that he had been sufficiently punished for the crime which he committed under somewhat extenuating circumstances. He had two children who needed a father's support. It was believed by the pardon committee that he had received sufficient punishment.

No. 76. ELLEN FURLONG. Convicted of drunkenness, District Court of Northern Berkshire, May 27, 1912. Sentenced to the reformatory for women on an indeterminate sentence. Pardoned October 9, upon the recommendation of the justice who imposed the sentence, the probation officer and the chief of police of North Adams, on the ground that she had been sufficiently punished.

No. 77. JOSEPH FASTA. Convicted of assault, Superior Court, Suffolk county, Sept. 26, 1910. Sentenced to the house of correction for three years. Pardoned October 16, upon the recommendation of the assistant penal institutions commissioner of Boston. He had but three months more to serve and steady employment awaited him, provided he could secure the position at once. He had done a great deal of valuable work in the cement and bricklaying line at the house of correction. It was believed that he would hereafter lead an upright and honorable life and was deserving of release at that time.

No. 78. JOSEPH S. CHABOT. Convicted of breaking and entering and larceny, Superior Court, Worcester county, Jan. 18, 1912. Sentenced to the Massachusetts reformatory on an indeterminate sentence. Pardoned October 30, upon the recommendation of the complainant, from whom the property was stolen, who believed that he had reformed and would become a law-abiding citizen. Pardons.

No. 79. WALTER DOYLE. Convicted of robbery, Superior Court, Suffolk county, Nov. 21, 1910. Sentenced to the state prison for from seven to nine years. Pardoned November 6, upon the recommendation of the district attorney, who certified that, "Since he has been committed to prison I have talked with him on several occasions, and he has aided the police since then in the further prosecution of two criminals. From all that I know about the petitioner, his assistance to the government and the likelihood of his complete reform, I am of the opinion that it is a case where clemency might well be exercised."

No. 80. HATTIE B. PATNAUDE. Convicted of drunkenness, Central District Court, of Northern Essex, June 8, 1912. Sentenced to the reformatory for women on an indeterminate sentence. Pardoned November 13, upon the recommendation of the justice who imposed the sentence, who believed that the purposes of the commitment had been fully satisfied.

No. 81. GEORGE E. COLE. Convicted of larceny, Superior Court, Norfolk county, Dec. 14, 1910. Sentenced to the state prison for from two and a half to four years. Pardoned November 13, upon the recommendation of the district attorney, who believed that he had been sufficiently punished in view of the nature of his offence. He was a man sixty years of age. His home was in Ohio, where his mother, who was about eighty-two years old, resided. Her health was not good, and on account of her age and infirmities it was improbable that she would live until the prisoner's minimum sentence expired. She wished to see him before her death, and joined in the petition. Immediate employment awaited him there.

No. 82. GERTRUDE ABBOTT. Convicted of assault, First District Court of Essex, July 6, 1912. Sentenced to the reformatory for women on an indeterminate sentence. Pardoned November 13, upon the recommendation of the justice who imposed the sentence, the probation officer and the city marshal of Salem, who believed that she should be allowed to go to her mother in Maine. She had two young children who needed a mother's care. Her husband was a hard working man and was amply able to care for her.

No. 83. LUKE F. MCDONALD. Convicted of arson, Superior Court, Suffolk county, May 16, 1912. Sentenced to the Massachusetts reformatory on an indeterminate sentence. Pardoned November 20. There were grave doubts regarding his guilt. He was intoxicated when arrested. He had no previous record. Employment awaited him.

No. 84. LEWIS F. GATES. Convicted of larceny, Superior Court, Suffolk county, July 11, 1911. Sentenced to three years in the house of correction. Transferred to the prison camp and hospital. Pardoned November 20, upon the recommendation of many prominent citizens, who believed that he had been sufficiently punished and who had provided immediate employment for him in the Dominion of Canada.

No. 85. GEORGE B. HALL. Convicted of robbery, Superior Court, Suffolk county, May 15, 1912. Sentenced to the Massachusetts reformatory on an indeterminate sentence. Pardoned November 27, upon the recommendation of Father Gasson of Boston College and the chaplain of the jail, on the ground that he had been sufficiently punished.

No. 86. WONG CHUNG. Convicted of murder, second degree, Superior Court, Suffolk county, February term, 1904. Sentenced to the state prison for life. Pardoned November 27. Four of the five principal witnesses against him have since been convicted of murder in the first degree, and the fifth has been convicted of assault with attempt to murder. During the course of the fusillade of shots Wong Chung fired to defend himself, but always maintained that he and his cousin, who was killed, were on the same side. He was pardoned upon condition that he go to China, never to return.

No. 87. EDWIN H. HANCOCK. Convicted of manslaughter, November term, 1911, Superior Court, Bristol county. Sentenced to the Bristol county jail for three years. Pardoned November 27. Hancock, on April 19, 1911, was running an automobile from Pawtucket, R. I., to Attleborough, Mass. While proceeding in a northerly direction on Washington street, Attleborough, the automobile which he was driving struck two young people who were about to be married and who were walking in a northerly direction on the east side of said street. The young man was instantly killed and the young woman died of her wounds in a hospital at Pawtucket on the following day. Hancock was a business man of good standing in North Attleborough, with no previous criminal record. He had been a good prisoner, was deeply repentant, and it was believed would never put himself in a position to violate the laws of the commonwealth again. The pardon was recommended by the parents of the young people who were killed, the county commissioners of Bristol county, the keeper of the county jail and several hundred of the leading citizens of Attleborough and North Attleborough. Pardons.

No. 88. JOHN R. DAVIS. Convicted of assault, Superior Court, Suffolk county, Feb. 27, 1911. Sentenced to the house of correction for three years. Pardoned November 27, on the recommendation of the district attorney. Davis was an old man, seventy years of age. His age, physical condition and previous good character, with the kind offer of his sister to care for him, seemed to justify the exercise of the pardoning power.

No. 89. ANNE GREALISH. Convicted of being idle and disorderly, Police Court of Lawrence, July 26, 1912. Sentenced to the reformatory for women on an indeterminate sentence. Pardoned November 27, upon the recommendation of the selectmen of Andover and the probation officer of the police court of Lawrence. She belonged to an old and respectable family, and this was her first offence and the only dark spot on her record. She had three children who needed a mother's care.

No. 90. HARRY W. RAYNARD. Convicted of larceny, Municipal Court of Boston, March term, 1911. Sentenced to three years in the house of correction. Transferred to the Lowell jail. Pardoned December 4, upon the recommendation of the keeper of the jail, who believed that his future conduct in life would be such as to prove the wisdom of extending mercy in his case. The recommendation was made without solicitation on the part of the prisoner and without his knowledge.

No. 91. JOSEPH MCLAUGHLIN. Convicted of robbery, Superior Court, Suffolk county, Dec. 12, 1910. Sentenced to the state prison for from five to seven years. Pardoned December 4. McLaughlin, at the risk of his life, saved the life of Martin Leftovitch, an instructor in the tailoring department at the state prison, when the latter was being murderously assaulted by a prisoner. Leftovitch was rendered unconscious and McLaughlin leaped from the ranks of sixty prisoners present and snatched the ironing board from the hands of the assailant while he was in the act of beating Leftovitch, who was lying prostrate on the floor. The warden of the prison said: "I feel it to be my duty to call the attention of the governor and council to the fact that before the officer could arrive upon the scene, McLaughlin, although a small man compared with the assailant, immediately took action, and the officer feels that his action was the only thing that saved his life."

No. 92. SAMUEL MITCHELL. Convicted of murder, second degree, Superior Court, Essex county, June 17, 1887. Sentenced to the state prison for life. Pardoned December 11. The crime was committed while he was intoxicated and there were other circumstances which mitigated the offence. His pardon was recommended as an act of executive clemency by the warden of the state prison, the mayor and a number of the leading lawyers and business men of Lynn, where the crime was committed. He had an absolutely perfect record in the prison and had never even been reprimanded during his term of imprisonment. By advice of counsel he pleaded guilty to murder in the second degree. This advice was not unanimous, a majority of said counsel being of the opinion that Mitchell was guilty of manslaughter only. A responsible person promised to give him immediate employment.

No. 93. HARRY SMITH. Convicted of attempt to commit larceny, Superior Court, Suffolk county, Aug. 17, 1911. Sentenced to the house of correction for two years. Pardoned December 11. This prisoner pleaded guilty to the indictment by advice of his counsel, who believed that he could not receive a sentence in excess of three months in the house of correction, the usual sentence being from three to six months. His home was in another state, where friends stood ready to give him employment. Pardons.

No. 94. ALFRED D. SHEA. Convicted of abortion, Superior Court, Suffolk county, May 13, 1912. Sentenced to the state prison for from seven to twelve years. Pardoned December 11, upon the recommendation of the mayor and a large number of the prominent physicians and citizens of Cambridge, who believed that Dr. Shea was absolutely innocent of the crime for which he was convicted. The evidence in the case was entirely circumstantial. Dr. Shea was called to attend the patient, and found her temperature was not high nor her pulse very rapid. He assumed that miscarriage had already occurred and, after leaving a few tablets to relieve her pain, he departed, returning the next morning. He made several visits and recommended to the family that she be removed to the Massachusetts General Hospital, which they refused to have done. It was believed by reputable physicians in Cambridge that another doctor was responsible for the abortion, which had occurred before Dr. Shea was called in. This report was also current in the neighborhood where the patient lived. Dr. Shea's broad sympathy, his unfailing generosity and unselfishness, his skill and his constant devotion to the best principles of his profession, had endeared him to many friends in Cambridge and vicinity. When working among the poorer class he never allowed the failure of compensation to deter him from giving his best thought and skill. Not infrequently he supplied from his own resources food and fuel to those in need. It was this eagerness to help those in distress which made him attempt to save the life of the poor Polish girl without giving a thought to himself or his own protection. He did not stop to reflect that he was working among foreigners who could not understand what he said and who, through ignorance, could not understand what he did. He did not consider the difficulty or importance of subsequently procuring evidence of his own innocence to defeat an allegation of crime based wholly on circumstantial evidence.

No. 95. THOMAS M. BURNS. Convicted of breaking and entering, Superior Court, Suffolk county, Jan. 8, 1912. Sentenced to the Massachusetts reformatory on an indeterminate sentence. Pardoned December 18. It was believed that he had been sufficiently punished for the crime committed. His assistance was needed at home. His term was to expire in about a month. It was thought that a pardon at that time would encourage him to lead a correct life in the future.

No. 96. JOSEPH P. MCDONALD. Convicted of breaking and entering, Superior Court, Plymouth county, June 18, 1912. Sentenced to the Massachusetts reformatory on an indeterminate sentence. Pardoned December 18, upon the recommendation of the district attorney, who certified that McDonald had taken his sentence very seriously, had conducted himself in a very exemplary manner, and made a perfect conduct record in the institution. He believed that the young man had fully realized the error of his ways and was penitent; and in the belief that he had fully reformed, he recommended the granting of a pardon.

Nos. 97 and 98. WILLIAM J. and JOSEPH P. O'CONNOR. Convicted of drunkenness, Municipal Court of Brookline, May 6, 1912, and June 3, 1912, respectively. Sentenced to the Massachusetts reformatory on an indeterminate sentence. Pardoned December 24, on the recommendation of the justice of the Brookline court who imposed the sentence, and who said: "These prisoners were brothers, and at the time of their commitment the home conditions of the family to which they belonged were very undesirable and the influences surrounding the young men were very bad. I am informed on good authority that employment is now awaiting both of them, and that their home conditions have been greatly improved. In view of the fact that their terms of imprisonment would terminate soon, I think it would be advisable to encourage them by releasing them at the present time, and I therefore recommend it." The probation officer heartily endorsed the recommendation of the justice.

[To the honorable senate and house of representatives, January 7, 1913.]

FEDERAL INCOME TAX.

Action upon the proposed amendment to the federal constitution, granting to the congress of the United States power to levy without apportionment a direct tax upon income, should be had by this legislature at the earliest possible moment. Thirty-four out of the forty-eight states have already ratified this amendment, and it is now evident that ratification by at least two more states will be had during the present winter. It is unfortunate for Massachusetts that her name is not already on the list of assenting states, and I recommend favorable action upon this amendment in order that our state may not be placed in the position of dissenting to an amendment conferring upon the nation a power vital to its welfare and even its safety.

TAXATION OF WILD AND FOREST LANDS.

At the last election the people of the commonwealth approved, by an overwhelming vote, the constitutional amendment approved by the two preceding legislatures, conferring upon the general court power to adopt such methods of taxing wild and forest lands as may conduce to the conservation and development of the forest resources of the commonwealth. The legislature is now in a position to carry out the expressed will of the commonwealth and I urge you to give this subject careful consideration.

Massachusetts has a large amount of land, probably not less than three fifths of its total area, which is unsuited for agriculture and can be best utilized for forest purposes. The large demand of our dense population and numerous industries for forest products makes timber a valuable crop which can be grown to better advantage in this state than in almost any other place in the country. Up to the present our unwise and impracticable method of imposing a heavy annual tax upon a growing crop of timber, has made the adoption of proper forestry methods a practical impossibility, and it is fortunate that the legislature now has the power to remedy this situation.

The framing of a proper law is a work that will demand careful study and consideration. We should proceed at once with an investigation of the problem in all its practical details, and, in order to avoid mistakes, should study carefully the experience of other states and countries in the taxation of forest lands. I therefore recommend that the legislature authorize the appointment of a commission which shall investigate the entire subject as soon as practicable. It may be possible for a commission giving its whole time to the work to report definite recommendations before the end of the present session. If so, the present general court will be able to enact the necessary legislation. But the commission should be authorized, in case of need, to devote a longer time to its investigation. This is a matter in which we should act without unnecessary delay, but with due care and only after full consideration.

THE TAXATION OF PERSONAL PROPERTY.

Our laws relating to the taxation of personal property remain in the unsatisfactory condition to which I have called the attention of previous legislatures.

A comparison of the property returned for local taxation with the valuation of estates passing through the probate courts shows that whereas in the commonwealth at large the amount of personal property is at least three times the amount of real property, we succeed in placing upon the local assessment list only one third as much personalty as realty. After making due allowance for the considerable amount of personal property which is exempt from taxation under our laws, it appears certain that we do not reach more than one fifth, and probable that we reach even less than one fifth, of the personalty legally subject to taxation. These conditions are a reproach to the state and productive of gravest inequality in the distribution of taxation. The subject should receive your serious attention and some remedy should be devised.

I again urge upon the attention of the legislature the desirability of introducing, in place of our present tax upon income yielding personal property, a tax upon the income derived therefrom. The details of such a plan and the considerations which seem to make it more desirable and practicable than any other were fully presented in special messages to the legislatures of 1911 and 1912, which outlined a plan that received the approval of the tax commissioner and a large measure of popular support.

During the past year the state of Wisconsin has put into successful administration an income tax which has proved a remedy for the evils formerly connected with the taxation of personal property in that state, and her example is likely to be followed by other commonwealths. I strongly urge upon this legislature the enactment of a constitutional amendment which will make it possible for Massachusetts, at any time the general court shall deem it desirable, to impose a tax upon the income derived from any class or classes of property which it has proved impracticable to reach by our present methods of taxation.

The ratification of the federal income tax amendment will probably be followed by the establishment of a federal tax on incomes, as part of a comprehensive plan for securing a more just distribution of the burden of national taxation. When this is done, the defects of our present methods of state and local taxation will be greatly intensified and our people will demand a reform. Since a federal tax on incomes is certain, it is obvious that the natural and most desirable course is to remodel state and local taxation upon similar lines. If we are to have two direct taxes, one state and the other federal, it is obvious that it will be more convenient for the taxpayer as well as the tax administrator, to have the two taxes as nearly alike as possible. No double taxation would arise, because the two taxes would be for the support of different governments, each of which is entitled to levy direct taxes for its use.

The time for timid conservatism in this matter has passed. The methods of taxing personal property in Massachusetts have become intolerable and reform is absolutely necessary. I trust that this legislature will deal boldly and intelligently with the conditions that confront us, and provide the commonwealth with a just and strictly enforcible system of taxation.

[To the honorable senate and house of representatives, February 6, 1913.]

I return herewith without my approval An Act relative to the licensing board of Boston, and providing for a substantial increase of salaries.

All proposed increases of salary should be considered with the utmost caution. A comparison of the salaries now paid the public servants in this state with corresponding salaries in other states, indicates that Massachusetts is paying, on the whole, a very liberal average salary.

Public office in Massachusetts is, and always has been, regarded as an honor. Public positions in this commonwealth are sought by men and women of the highest standing, as a means of giving their services to the State. This principle has been so widely extended that we now have a large number of unpaid boards and commissions supervising many branches of the public business.

Office holders in other branches which call for special qualifications or for a larger degree of personal attention, are paid salaries which have been fixed mainly by the legislature in full recognition of the rights of the taxpayer on the one hand, and of the office holder on the other.

Moreover, chapter 719, of the acts of 1912, creating a commission on economy and efficiency, places upon that commission the duty of examining the estimates of expenditures, including those for salaries, which are submitted annually to the auditor by the various boards and commissions of the state.

One of the principal purposes for which this commission was created would be defeated if the legislature were to increase the salaries of our public servants without the recommendations of that commission.

It has been my experience throughout two administrations, and thus far during a third administration, that the commonwealth has, in general, no difficulty in obtaining the services of highly qualified men and women to fill vacancies in the public service at the existing rates of compensation.

Moreover, many serious objections may be raised against the general policy of greatly increasing the salaries of our public servants. Public office in Massachusetts must never be sought for personal profit.

In specific cases where the need of larger compensation has been demonstrated and the service of the public is suffering for want of adequate appropriations for salaries, I shall concur with you heartily in meeting these contingencies as they arise, or even in urging them upon your attention if the occasion appears to warrant such action.

I object also to this bill because the members of the licensing board are not required to give their entire time and attention to the duties of their office, while this bill, if approved, would grant them salaries considerably in excess of the sums paid for equally important services in other departments requiring the entire time and attention of the office holder.

[To the honorable senate and house of representatives, February 14, 1913.]

Herewith I return without my approval An Act to provide for the election of a board of license commissioners by the town of Clinton.

If this bill were signed, and ratified by the town of Clinton, the local administration of the liquor laws would be given to a board of three men elected solely for this purpose. At present such laws are administered by the selectmen, a board similarly elected by the people.

This act therefore implies no apparent change in respect to local self-government; but in a self-governed town such as Clinton, liquor licenses should be considered not apart from, but in connection with, other questions of the public welfare; for the administration of the liquor laws plays an extremely important part in the social life of a small community.

Moreover, there is no doubt that, in the election of a licensing board, those persons who benefit financially by a lenient administration of the liquor laws would exercise an undue weight in the selection of candidates favorable to them, and in securing their election.

Legislation of this character, therefore, tends to defeat the very principle of local self-government, and offers to selfish and special interests the opportunity to accomplish results favorable to themselves.

I am aware that previous legislatures have in at least two instances passed statutes of this general character, thus establishing a precedent for the present bill; but I have made careful inquiries of judicial officers, well informed as to the practical workings of liquor legislation in such cases, and the consensus of their opinions is unquestionably against legislation of this sort.

I believe that the selectmen, chosen to represent in the broadest sense the life of the community, should be held, as at present, rigidly to account for a proper administration of the liquor laws, and that the public good can be conserved best by denying to any special faction or interest the advantages which this bill would open to it.

[To the honorable senate and house of representatives, February 21, 1913.]

The industrial accident board, created under chapter 751 of the acts of 1911, has acted upon 51,020 accident cases reported to it in accordance with the provisions of that chapter, between the dates of July 1, 1912 and February 1, 1913. In the course of this work the board has abundantly justified the action of the legislature in creating it, and the statute has unquestionably placed Massachusetts in the lead along this line of modern industrial progress.

Under this act the working people of Massachusetts now have a more definite assurance that, in the event of an industrial accident, the injured ones will receive full and immediate compensation without the necessity of a lawsuit, and without any delay or uncertainty.

As originally planned, the board was also to investigate and enforce measures for the prevention of industrial accidents.

It is obvious that no amount of compensation for injuries received can offset the economic loss to a community represented by the accidents themselves. Hence the prevention of accident is, on an economic as well as a humanitarian basis, even more important than the compensation for injuries received.

However, no legislation was provided whereby the industrial accident board could regulate and enforce the use of safety devices.

To meet the failure of previous legislation properly to ensure the enforcement of the labor laws and the factory inspection laws, the board of labor and industries has now been created under chapter 726 of the acts of 1912; its duties to begin on June 1, 1913.

With these two boards in operation, the authority of the state over the subject of industrial accidents and their prevention will be divided.

Our experience with the division of state authority in other fields should prove to the legislature that in general such divided authority fails of its function.

There is serious danger that the division of authority in the present instance may destroy in part the effectiveness of the statutes involved.

The new board of labor and industries will not only have supervision over the means for preventing industrial accidents, but will administer the law in respect to hygienic and sanitary conditions of labor, the hours of labor and the inspection of industrial establishments in relation to the welfare of the employees therein.

It is also obvious that it was the intention of the legislature, in establishing the workmen's compensation act and creating the industrial accident board, to pave the way toward the control and prevention of occupational diseases, and to improve the sanitary and hygienic conditions of industrial establishments in Massachusetts.

All these subjects are closely related to the duties of the industrial accident board; and there appears to be no sufficient justification for placing them under different administrative heads.

For the protection of Massachusetts workmen, I believe that there should be one strong, centralized authority in the field, having jurisdiction over the subject of industrial accidents, the compensation for injuries received, the enforcement of labor and factory inspection laws, and the installation of apparatus in shops and factories for the prevention of accidents.

Thus far I have spoken mainly of the humanitarian considerations involved in this subject. But on both humanitarian and economic grounds, it appears that the original intention of the legislature can now be carried out more effectively and the industrial interests of the commonwealth better safeguarded by combining these two boards.

I therefore recommend to the legislature that a careful study of the problems thus outlined be instituted immediately, in the expectation that new legislation may be speedily enacted for uniting the functions of these two boards.

[To the honorable senate and house of representatives, February 24, 1913.]

I transmit herewith a letter, dated February 21st, from the attorney general, asking for an additional appropriation of $15,000 to carry on certain litigation now pending between the public authorities of the commonwealth and the Haverhill Gas Light Company, and affecting the rates for the sale of gas.

The case involves the principle of public regulation of our public service or so-called quasi public corporations; and at this juncture it is highly desirable that the commonwealth should take all necessary measures to safeguard this principle. I therefore ask that your earnest consideration be given to the attorney-general's request.

DEPARTMENT OF THE ATTORNEY-GENERAL,
BOSTON, February 21, 1913.

SIR: — As a matter of grave public concern, I desire to call to the attention of your excellency the existing situation with respect to certain litigation affecting rates for the sale of gas now pending between the public authorities of the commonwealth and the Haverhill Gas Light Company, a corporation engaged in manufacturing, distributing and selling gas in the city of Haverhill.

This company was incorporated by chapter 8 of the acts of 1853, for the purpose of manufacturing and selling gas in the city of Haverhill, and by chapter 163 of the acts of the same year it was authorized to extend its pipes into the town of Bradford, now a part of the city of Haverhill. It had originally a capital stock of $50,000, which, in 1872, was increased to $75,000, the shares having a par value of $50. In 1899 the whole of this capital stock was acquired by the Haverhill Gas Securities Company, a corporation organized under the general laws of this commonwealth, which thereupon issued capital stock of the par value of $500,000 and issued and sold bonds to the amount of $500,000, secured by a deposit with a trustee of the entire capital stock of the Haverhill Gas Light Company and by a mortgage of the plant and property of the latter company, the Securities Company having no other property or assets than an equity in the capital stock of the Haverhill Gas Light Company.

On February 1, 1900, the board of gas and electric light commissioners, upon petition of the mayor of the city of Haverhill, and under authority of what is now Revised Laws, chapter 121, section 34, after due notice and hearing ordered a reduction in the price of gas sold by the Haverhill Gas Light Company from $1.00 net to 80 cents net per thousand cubic feet. The company, however, instead of complying with such order, brought a suit in equity in the circuit court of the United States for the first circuit against the members of the board of gas and electric light commissioners and the attorney-general to enjoin its enforcement. The defendants filed a demurrer, which was overruled on June 16, 1901, but, although the company continued to maintain the price of the gas manufactured and sold by it at $1.00 per thousand cubic feet, no further action was taken until 1907, when the attorney-general began a suit in the supreme judicial court of the commonwealth to enforce such order, whereupon the circuit court granted a preliminary injunction restraining the members of the board of gas and electric light commissioners and the attorney-general from any further action to enforce such order pending a final disposition of the case in that court. This was followed by a reference to a master on March 18, 1908, and hearings were held from time to time during that and the following year until its final disposition. During the latter year and while the case was pending before the master, the firm of Stone & Webster acquired all of the stock and bonds of the Haverhill Gas Securities Company.

On December 23, 1909, the municipal council of the city of Haverhill, being duly authorized thereto in the premises, under Revised Laws, chapter 34, section 2, passed the first of the two votes necessary to authorize a city or town to acquire a municipal gas plant. Thereupon the Haverhill Gas Light Company, through its officers, and the Haverhill Gas Company, organized and controlled by the same interests which controlled the Haverhill Gas Light Company, opened negotiations with the municipal council of the city of Haverhill by submitting thereto, certain proposals, which were substantially that the city of Haverhill should grant to the Haverhill Gas Company the necessary franchise to lay and maintain pipes in the streets of the city and that the company, upon legally acquiring the property of the Haverhill Gas Light Company, should make certain reductions in the price of gas to the city of Haverhill and to consumers generally, should make certain annual payments to the city in addition to the taxes assessed against the company, and should place in the hands of a trustee, to be distributed to consumers, the sum of $21,000 as a rebate upon the sums paid for gas between July 1, 1909, and June 30, 1910. While these proposals were pending before the municipal council a second vote to acquire a municipal gas plant was presented to the council, and was laid upon the table. The Haverhill Gas Company was organized as hereinbefore stated and made formal application to the municipal council for authority to lay its pipes in the streets, lanes and highways of the city, and, on June 30, 1910, the proposals were accepted and an instrument, entitled "Franchise and Consent of City of Haverhill to Haverhill Gas Company," was executed by the city of Haverhill, the Haverhill Gas Company and the Haverhill Gas Light Company. The execution of this instrument was brought to the attention of the board of gas and electric light commissioners, and, in consequence thereof, they and the then attorney-general assented to the entry of a final decree enjoining them as defendants from enforcing the order made in 1900 and to a final decree dismissing the proceeding brought by the attorney-general in the supreme judicial court of this commonwealth.

On January 19, 1911, the Haverhill Gas Company filed with the board of gas and electric light commissioners, under the provisions of Revised Laws, chapter 109, section 24, an application for the approval of an issue by said company of capital stock of the par value of $900,000, of which the proceeds of stock of the par value of $630,000 were to be applied to the acquisition of the plant and property of the Haverhill Gas Light Company and the proceeds of the remainder were to be applied to the cost of reconstructing and adding to the plant. This application was opposed by the municipal council of the city of Haverhill upon the ground that the proposed sale of the plant and property of the Haverhill Gas Light Company was prohibited by law, that no part of the proceeds of the capital stock of the Haverhill Gas Company could lawfully be used for the purpose of acquiring such plant and property, and that in any event it would be unlawful to issue therefor the amount of stock proposed in such application. On December 30, 1911, the board of gas and electric light commissioners dismissed the application of the Haverhill Gas Company. On June 21, 1912, the Haverhill Gas Light Company gave formal notice that it proposed to convey, and was in process of conveying, its plant and all of its property to the Haverhill Gas Company, and thereupon the attorney-general brought an information in equity in the supreme judicial court seeking to enjoin the Haverhill Gas Light Company from making such conveyance, and this suit is now pending before the full court.

The immediate situation which more particularly requires attention is caused by the fact that on January 19, 1911, and February 16, 1911, certain consumers and the municipal council of Haverhill, respectively, filed petition for a reduction in the price of gas supplied by the Haverhill Gas Light Company. The board of gas and electric light commissioners held numerous hearings, the date of the last hearing being December 14, 1911, and, on December 31, 1912, made a recommendation that "on and after the first day of February next, the price of gas sold by the Haverhill Gas Light Company shall not exceed 80 cents a thousand cubic feet." This recommendation was not accepted by the company, and, on January 29th of the present year, the board voted that it be "Ordered, that on and after the first day of February next, the net price for gas sold and delivered by the Haverhill Gas Light Company shall not exceed 80 cents a thousand cubic feet."

Immediately upon publication of this order, and before the date when it was to become effective, namely, on January 30, 1913, the Haverhill Gas Light Company filed in the district court of the United States for the district of Massachusetts a bill of complaint in substance setting forth that in respect of the complainant such order was unjust and unreasonable and amounted to a confiscation of the complainant's property contrary to the provisions of the fourteenth amendment to the constitution of the United States, and praying for an injunction to restrain the members of the board of gas and electric light commissioners and the attorney-general from taking any proceedings to enforce such order. A hearing was had before the court upon the question of such preliminary injunction on February 11th, and the court ordered that, upon the filing by the complainant of a stipulation that it would deposit monthly with the clerk of the district court of the United States all sums collected by it in payment for gas in excess of 80 cents per thousand cubic feet, together with affidavits setting forth the persons from whom the money was collected and the amount due to each such person, a preliminary injunction might issue restraining the defendants from in any manner enforcing such order. The stipulation was duly filed and the preliminary injunction was issued on February 15th last.

It results, therefore, that the public authorities who are the defendants in the proceedings in the district court of the United States may not take any action to secure the enforcement of the order of the board of gas and electric light commissioners until the termination of the proceeding in that court, and it becomes of the greatest importance that such proceedings should not only be speedily terminated but should be so terminated upon the fullest and most careful presentation of all the facts and evidence which are material to the issues raised by the bill of complaint, since such determination will vitally affect the public policy of the commonwealth and the enforcement of our laws with respect to quasi-public corporations generally throughout the commonwealth, and particularly with respect to quasi-public corporations engaged in the manufacture and sale of gas and the authority and efficacy of the board of gas and electric light commissioners in matters of supervision and control.

For the emergency created by the necessary employment of experts and other expenses required for the proper presentation of the case for the representatives of the commonwealth, the present appropriation for the department of the attorney-general is inadequate, and there is no special fund from which he may meet it. In view of the importance of the question involved in this litigation, which will probably be carried to the supreme court of the United States, I respectfully suggest for the consideration of your excellency the advisability of requesting in a special message to the legislature a further appropriation for this department of $15,000, to be expended by the attorney-general, so far as it may be necessary, solely for or in connection with the said litigation.

I am, with great respect,

Very truly yours,

JAMES M. SWIFT,
Attorney-General.

[To the honorable senate and house of representatives, February 27, 1913.]

I call to your earnest attention one feature of our present method of punishing crime which, in my judgment, is not in keeping with the spirit of our day.

Many of the acts which our statutes designate as crimes are so petty that they are properly punishable by the imposition of a fine. Thus, in 1911 (no later figures are available) out of the 68,690 sentenced in our courts, 45,366 were merely fined.

Of this latter number there were 11,550 cases in which the offenders, having no money with which to pay the fine, were sent to jail. These eleven thousand cases were, as a whole, no different in character from the others in which commitments were avoided by the payment of fines. These latter either had money in hand at the time of being sentenced or were able to get it before commitment. The others were less fortunate.

These cases were of such a nature that the ends of justice could be fully met by fines. This fact is demonstrated by the verdict of the court itself in imposing such fines in the first instance. In effect, therefore, these eleven thousand imprisonments resulted from the inability of the offenders to pay their fines.

In the commitment of these eleven thousand persons it is presumed (as it was in the old days of imprisonment for private debt) that the prisoner will thus be coerced into making payment. Experience has proved the unsoundness of this presumption.

In 1911, out of these 11,550 commitments in default of the payment of fines, only 2,321 persons succeeded in paying their fines and securing their freedom.

Moreover, in many instances, the money thus collected from men under commitment is obtained at the cost of seriously impoverishing their wives and children, and rendering themselves and their innocent families destitute, while the stigma of imprisonment remains as the hardest of all possible obstacles in the path of the prisoner seeking to regain his self-supporting independence.

Grave as these evils are, we must proceed conservatively in seeking a remedy, bearing equally in mind the duty of dealing fairly with the convicted person on the one hand, and of protecting society from the real criminal on the other.

Our present statutes give the courts the privilege, in all cases of non-payment of a fine, of placing the convicted person on probation for a sufficient time to enable him to earn and pay off his fine. But the great numbers of commitments (11,550) indicate the unfortunate failure of some of the courts to permit the use of this humane privilege. Thus, for example, in a group of nine courts, all in the same county of this commonwealth, the proportion of imprisonments for non-payment of fines varies from eight in a hundred, in one court, to fifty-four in a hundred in another court. Both courts operate under the same statutes, and deal substantially with cases of the same general character.

But this is not all. In one of these courts the proportion of cases fined to the total cases begun is thirteen in a hundred; in another court the ratio is sixty-four in a hundred.

In considering these figures it must be borne in mind that the collection of fines in cases placed on probation for that purpose is in general practicable, nearly $32,000 of such fines having been collected last year by the courts of the state which respected and observed this humane provision.

There is a serious flaw in our present statutes to which these inequalities are directly traceable. I refer to the phraseology of the law which authorizes our justices to place cases on probation for the payment of the fine, and in fact requiring them, in cases where the fine does not exceed ten dollars, to do so, "if the court finds that the defendant will not probably default."

A large majority of the courts see in this language of the statute that its intent is to give men time to pay their fines; but there are many others, not in sympathy with the law, who put emphasis upon the qualifying words. They rarely suspend sentences for the non-payment of fines. They are not compelled to do so unless they "find that the defendant will not probably default." They do not so "find," (using the word in a technical sense) at all: and therefore order imprisonment.

Such inequalities beget disrespect for law. The case has added seriousness, because the poorer and more ignorant people get their ideas of justice almost exclusively from the operations of our lower courts, and the facts cited show injustice.

We maintain in this commonwealth a probation system designed to protect society and the criminal, to avoid the needless degradation of the weak and the unfortunate, and to surrender the hardened criminal to the rigors of prison life. What do these provisions avail us if they are not used?

I append hereto the draft of a bill which I believe offers a conservative remedy for these inequalities. The bill merely incorporates a change in the wording of the present statute, to the effect that a court must suspend the execution of a sentence unless it finds, affirmatively and definitely, that the delinquent will probably default if given time to pay his fine, or that his release would be detrimental to the interests of the public. This would tend to bring the administration of the law throughout all our courts into harmony with the practice now established in our most progressive courts.

I submit this matter to your attention, fully convinced that in general the administration of justice in Massachusetts has reached a very high level; and I suggest these needed changes because we should not cease our efforts for improvement until the administration of justice in this commonwealth is brought to the highest possible standard.

[To the honorable senate and house of representatives, March 18, 1913.]

On February 27th last I sent to the general court a message setting forth the number of jail commitments in this state which were ordered by our courts in default of the payment of fines by the persons so sentenced. I showed that 11,550 persons were sent to jail in Massachusetts in 1911, not for crimes requiring such punishment under our laws, but for failure to pay fines; and I urged the legislature to give a more emphatic expression to our probation law, and thus bring all our courts up to the standards established by those now acknowledged to be the most wisely administered.

I find, now, that our parole system equally requires improvement. Both the parole and the probation system must be brought up to high efficiency. Common humanity demands such results. But aside from this, we now incur an enormous economic loss through the failure of both systems. We must bear in mind the costs of committing and maintaining in jail the many thousands of men and women who are sent there solely from failure to pay fines. We must remember that, under our present system, prison inmates are either idle or put to some work which shows no appreciable economic return; and that on their release all prisoners are handicapped for life and their chances of earning a living greatly reduced. It is these economic, as well as humanitarian considerations, that must be respected.

I am convinced that the legislation which authorizes the prison commissioners to delegate their powers to the chairman is very unwise, especially in reference to our parole system. No one man can do what is expected of the chairman; and in any event the concentration of so much authority in one person is undesirable. Each of the commissioners should feel a personal responsibility for the administration of our prisons; otherwise we could as well dispense with the commission. I submit herewith the draft of a bill to revoke the present law, which authorizes the commission to delegate its duties to the chairman, and requiring that three members of the commission shall act in person as a board of parole for each of our penal institutions; the chairman to be a member of each of these boards. Each such board should be required to meet at least once a month at the institution for which it acts. Candidates for parole should be seen in person by this board, and no permits to be at liberty should be granted unless signed by two members of the board. The undoubted failure of our present parole methods, and the large percentage of persons recommitted to jail, make these reforms of method absolutely imperative.

Also, the supervision of paroled prisoners lacks the thoroughness and effectiveness which is absolutely essential if the best results are to be obtained. The most thorough supervision of paroled prisoners, and prompt return for the violation of parole conditions, are vital to success. An organized parole department, which shall have a large part of the attention of a competent deputy, seems to be essential.

The method of granting paroles from the state prison is unsatisfactory. I am told that in some other states a grading and classification system prevails under which men demonstrate their fitness for release. One of its greatest advantages is that it removes all reason for believing that favoritism prevails. When men secure release by their own efforts, they have no grounds for dissatisfaction with the administration. It must be of great advantage, also, as an inspiration to effort on the part of the prisoner. It is to be regretted that no attempt has been made to establish the grading and marking system authorized by law.

The law which requires agents to obtain employment for those who are to be released from state institutions is only partially complied with. The agents are not required to give their entire time to the work of gathering information regarding prisoners committed to the state institutions, and to the care of discharged prisoners. Some of them are used to transfer prisoners from one institution to another, and receive extra compensation for work done in time paid for by the state. I am certain that we are spending too little money and too little effort upon the after-care of prisoners. We ask no questions about appropriations of millions for police, courts and prisons, but grudge a few thousands for the restoration of those who have been imprisoned.

As far as is possible, all prisoners should have work found for them before discharge. In some cases they can do this themselves, but many must have it done for them. Otherwise they are penniless soon after they are released, and are under great temptation to repeat their crimes. I have no doubt that if the agents were relieved of transfer work, and were required to give all their time to their other duties, many discharged prisoners could be kept from relapsing.

COUNTY PRISONS.

The county prison has no place in a model prison system, and no logical reason for continued existence. On this point I cannot do better than to quote one of my predecessors, Governor Wolcott, who, in 1899, in his inaugural, said:

> There appears no sufficient explanation in theory of the fact that the state controls certain institutions in which is confined a portion of the criminal population, while the remaining portion is in institutions controlled wholly by the several counties.
>
> Nor is there any clear line of division between prisoners convicted of minor offences who are supported by the state and those supported by the counties. For many offences prisoners are committed either to a state or county institution at the discretion of the judge before whom the case is tried.
>
> All offences, of whatever nature, are committed, both in fact and in contemplation of law, "against the peace of the commonwealth," and not of any particular locality, and are heard and determined before magistrates holding the commission of the commonwealth.

This divided control of penal institutions, not justifiable on any easily comprehensible theory, results in practice, as might be expected, in lack of uniformity of discipline, diet and employment; in imperfect classification of the inmates as regards sex, age and degree of criminality and degradation, and in consequent unnecessary difficulty in the application of reformatory treatment.

CLASSIFYING MINOR OFFENDERS.

But the county prison can be greatly improved, even though it remains in the control of the county. It now receives prisoners committed for all kinds of offences; of all grades of criminality. It is inevitable that under these circumstances it shall be a school of corruption rather than a place of correction.

For many years the law has authorized the prison commissioners to classify county prisoners, but they have never attempted to do so. If all the men who have long sentences could be gathered in a few county prisons, it would be possible to employ them to better advantage. Prison schools could also be established in county prisons, if prisoners were classified. There is a growing belief that when the state has a man in its custody, it should do its utmost to improve him, mentally, physically and morally. The prison school is one of the most effective agencies. In the state prison, it has accomplished a great work. Rarely has a man returned who has learned to read and write there. The long sentenced offender, in the county prison, should have as good an opportunity as the man who is sent to the state prison for the gravest crime.

I can conceive of no condition more likely to produce a confirmed criminal than that of a man of average intelligence confined in a prison on a long term. Practically no appeal is made to him along the lines of his higher nature. Many hours of every day he is idle; and if he thinks at all, it is likely to be about the pleasures of his old life. Nothing is done to improve his mind, or to give him a larger or better view of life. All his wants are supplied without any effort of his, and his companionships tend to draw him downward. Such a process produces mental and moral weaklings, ready to yield to the first temptation. The prison school would do much to improve these conditions, and classification would make prison schools possible and practicable.

I submit herewith the draft of a bill providing for the better classification and education of prisoners.

[To the honorable senate and house of representatives, March 19, 1913.]

Herewith I transmit a letter from Col. Edward O. Skelton, chairman of the Massachusetts commission on the fiftieth anniversary of the battle of Gettysburg, together with the draft of a resolve, also submitted by the chairman of the commission, to provide for the transportation and expenses of veteran soldiers and other persons who are to take part in the celebration of the fiftieth anniversary of the battle of Gettysburg.

I place these papers before you for your consideration.

BOSTON, March 3, 1913.

Hon. EUGENE N. FOSS, Governor, Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

EXCELLENCY: — The commission appointed by you May, 1911, to arrange for the participation in the celebration of the fiftieth anniversary of the battle of Gettysburg July 1–4, 1913, by the veterans of the civil war, who participated in that battle, or who were in the reserve, and who are now residents of the state of Massachusetts, beg leave to report that they have arranged for the transportation of 1,600 veterans, residents of this state, at the expense of the commonwealth, from their homes, which are located in 353 cities and towns of the commonwealth, to Gettysburg and return, and that the transportation for each veteran will average $16.50, making a total expense to the commonwealth of $26,400, and as the number of veterans who are eligible to receive this courtesy from the state will be probably increased between this date and July 1 next, this commission very respectfully asks that a sum not exceeding $30,000, or so much thereof as may be required, be appropriated by the general court for the purpose enumerated above, and that the payment of all bills connected therewith be made by the treasurer of the commonwealth, upon receipt of vouchers, approved by the chairman of this commission and the governor and the council.

It may be pertinent to also say that this commission have also received requests to arrange for transportation of about 1,700 veterans residing in the state, who will pay their own transportation, making a total of 3,300 veterans who have indicated to this commission their intention to attend the celebration of the battle of Gettysburg next July from this commonwealth.

We have the honor to be,

Very respectfully,

MASSACHUSETTS–GETTYSBURG COMMISSION.

EDWARD O. SKELTON,
Chairman.

[To the honorable senate and house of representatives, March 20, 1913.]

I call to your attention the need of providing more adequately for the housing of reformatory inmates and the inmates of our state and county prisons.

The state prison was built many years ago, and its buildings are for the most part unfit for use.

The reformatory buildings at Concord are by no means ideal for their present use, but might possibly be utilized to better advantage as a prison.

The buildings of the reformatory for women at Sherborn are declared by competent authorities to be wholly unfit for their purpose. They were built when there was little knowledge about the class of women to be provided for or about their treatment.

Some of the counties possess excellent jail buildings, not fully utilized and not adapted to short term men, such as drunkards, who need out of door work; but which would be available under a better prison system for certain classes of long term prisoners.

It is clear that we should institute a better system of utilizing the buildings we now possess; that we should also ascertain what new buildings are necessary, assuming we are to demand the best possible use of the present ones; and ascertain also to what extent prison labor may be utilized in further building operations.

Merely to build a new state prison and add it to the present penal equipment of the commonwealth would be of little, if any, advantage. Our first requisite is a modern method of classifying prisoners, locating in one institution all who require the same general type of custodial care, at another those suited to instruction and remedial treatment, and so on.

With our present state prison, no such classification of its seven hundred inmates on the basis of character is remotely possible. This prison was constructed mainly at a time when no attempt was made at classification.

The attempt to classify our present prison population must take into account not only the state prison but the state reformatories for men and women and the several county jails. At all of these three types of institutions there are many long sentence prisoners; and what to do with them is one problem, — not three problems. But the present lack of any coherent method has greatly complicated even this problem.

However, there is one very important class of delinquents for whom we now make no real provision whatever, but for whom we must provide immediately, for the protection of society. I refer to those unfortunates of both sexes who are now punished by our laws but who, nevertheless, are admitted to be constitutionally lacking in some quality of self control or mental balance. They cannot be adjudged insane, but through an unfavorable heredity they are "defective." If left at large in the community they constitute one of our gravest social dangers. But neither the prison nor the asylum is adapted to their incarceration, and they are rarely capable of reform.

For these "defective delinquents" we should make provision forthwith. Chapter 595 of the acts of 1911 requires the maintenance of "departments for defective delinquents," and it is now obvious that special cottage buildings are needed for this purpose.

I therefore recommend that provision be made for erecting two such cottages for male patients at the state farm, where they can be administered under the medical director of the hospital for the criminal insane and where these buildings can be utilized by that hospital when the time comes for establishing a separate institution for the defectives.

To provide for female defectives, I recommend the purchase of cheap land at Sherborn, near but not within the present reformatory grounds, and the erection of two or more cottages thereon.

While the future of the present Sherborn reformatory as such is in doubt, it is not likely that the commonwealth will abandon the existing plant and establishment. Reconstruction on a more enlightened plan seems more probable; and the proposed new buildings will not be inconsistent with such reconstruction.

So much can be done at once. But as to the further modernizing of our general penal system, I feel strongly that the problem should be studied in all its bearings before the public funds are expended in this direction. Especially should we consider the taking over by the state of all county jails, with complete disregard of the personal interests and protests of county officials who depend largely for their political power and patronage on retaining the county system intact.

Our first business should be to investigate carefully the possibility of establishing state care for all prisoners in the commonwealth who are serving long sentences; to devise a proper prison system on modern lines; and then to construct a prison to fit the system.

Accordingly, I submit herewith the draft of three bills. The first of these provides for new buildings for "defective delinquents;" the second calls for the appointment of an expert alienist to assist in the proper treatment of female defective delinquents; and the third calls upon the prison commission to report as to the best method of providing institutional accommodations for our present prison population and for the state care of all prisoners within the commonwealth who are convicted felons.

[To the honorable senate and house of representatives, March 21, 1913.]

I call your attention to the urgent need of more adequate banking and credit facilities in our rural communities.

The capital invested in Massachusetts farms is approximately $226,000,000. The value of their annual product is estimated at nearly $100,000,000.[1]

These properties are, in effect, manufacturing enterprises and as such they cannot be properly managed without suitable financing. Money must often be borrowed for improvements and extensions. Money is necessary to purchase raw materials; to pay labor; to maintain the property during the winter season; to raise the annual crops, and to carry them to market. These financial operations are as necessary on a farm as in a factory. In either case, cash should be readily obtainable to meet current needs, provided adequate security can be given in return.

In general, the security of productive real estate is stronger than that furnished by many other classes of property. This is clearly recognized in our laws which authorize savings banks to make loans on real estate and prohibit such loans on certain personal property. Nevertheless, although the security offered by our productive farms is so strong that savings banks may accept it, the American farmer pays for his borrowed capital an average interest rate of eight and one half per cent, while men engaged in manufacturing or merchandising are able to secure cash loans for lower rates and often on security which is intrinsically no better than that offered by the farmer.

At present in Massachusetts a large proportion of the savings of the people are deposited in the savings banks; the operations of which are confined very largely to cities and towns; and their deposits are not readily available for immediate agricultural needs.

The European farmer, under a far more equitable system, is able to operate his properties on a far more business-like basis. He can readily secure capital for either short or long periods; he can finance the production of his crops and the distribution of his farm products on credit; and he is able to maintain his property in first-class working condition.

All this he is able to do under an average rate of interest, in France and Germany, of approximately one half of the rate which is charged the average American farmer.

The adverse conditions under which our farmers operate are eliminated in Europe to a great extent by several well-established financial methods. One of these is the so-called "Credit Union," a scheme of financial co-operation among the farmers of a community which has reached the greatest development in Germany and Italy.

The extent to which these credit unions have obtained a foothold in Europe is astonishing; and their financial soundness is unquestioned. In France I understand these associations hold a record of never having lost a cent. In Italy they now do one third of the total banking business of the country. In Germany their combined operations equal that of the commercial banks.

In Belgium there are nearly 500 of these banks with a membership of 25,000 and outstanding loans of $4,000,000.

In Austria there are 6,000 such banks with a membership of 725,000 and outstanding loans of nearly $100,000,000.

In Italy there are nearly 700 such banks with a working capital of over $170,000,000.

In Germany there is one such bank for every 1,600 of the population and the total business done is nearly $5,000,000,000.

The most significant feature of these European credit associations or banks is that they charge an average of one or two points less than commercial banks and yet earn a substantial profit on their capital.

The famous Raiffeisen banks of Germany are mutual associations and make loans to their members on the basis of character security. These are not utilized for the purpose of mortgaging farm properties in general. They represent a cash reserve from which the farmer can, on the basis of his standing in the community, obtain a loan of money from his associates in the society at a moderate rate of interest, and for longer or shorter terms in accordance with his necessities.

These banks represent therefore to the farmer the same sort of credit facilities that obtain among financiers and manufacturers for the securing of personal credit to carry on their business enterprises with the least possible delay or formality. With this great power of financial co-operation the farmer who lives up to his obligations as a member of the association can secure all the credit he needs and is not hampered in the development of his farm for lack of funds.

The Massachusetts legislature of 1909 legalized the formation of such credit unions in this commonwealth and the first concern to start under this law was formed at Springfield with a membership of 105, a capital of $3,000 and $10,000 of outstanding loans. Since that time twenty-six new unions have been formed with 2,862 members and total assets of $94,080.-41.[1] Last year these associations made loans to 752 members.

At present the more rapid growth of these credit unions in Massachusetts is prevented by the lack of information among the farmers as to the purposes and the value of such associations and by a feeling of reluctance on the part of the individuals to have their financial condition known to their neighbors who would normally be their associates in the local credit union. But as soon as it becomes realized that this system is the financial safeguard and life preserver of the Massachusetts farmer, it is bound to come into wide application.

I therefore urge the legislature to make provision whereby the bank commissioner, the department of agriculture, the state agricultural college, and the county agricultural societies and schools may disseminate information regarding these systems; and thus lead to the establishment of local credit unions throughout the state. An appropriation of public money, made for the preparation and distribution of pamphlets and the work of practical co-operation in establishing such systems, would, in my judgment, be a wise public investment.

In addition to these credit unions we must consider the establishment of local societies or corporations for the purpose of issuing land mortgages. In Germany these societies of borrowers, under the name of "Landschaften," have very generally eliminated the private money lender. They are associations pure and simple, have no shares, and pay no dividends. Profits, if any, are used to reduce the loans. The management is gratuitous; the borrowers make up the body of the association and they are thus able to lend the money safely at lower rates of interest than any other form of corporation.

These associations assume direct responsibility for the loan, give cash to their members for mortgages, and for this purpose they raise funds by issuing and selling bonds. They have abolished the practice of requiring mortgages to be paid in lump sum and have instituted mortgage loans repayable by annual installments through a long period of years, these installments being reserved to redeem the bonds.

This scheme of deferred serial repayments, known as "amortization," has revolutionized the mortgage system of Europe. Three elements are necessary to it; first, the debenture bond upon which funds are raised; second, the system of serial repayment or amortization; and third, the establishment of sinking funds for the cancellation of the original bonds. The combination of these three elements is absolutely necessary to success in order to attract a steady flow of cheap money to agriculture; but this combination has never been used in the United States for the benefit of the farmer, and it is not used to-day in Massachusetts in connection with credit unions as it should be. Hence foreclosure proceedings are a daily occurrence and the farmer hesitates to raise money to carry on his business through fear of legal action by the mortgagee.

In spite of the example furnished by Europe for many generations, we are still permitting mortgages to be issued largely as a matter of brokerage, while mortgages are drawn up either for short terms or in the form of a "demand note."

Under the European method of amortization, mortgages run for twenty to fifty years and are retired by the payment of small annuities, no principal remaining to be repaid at the end of the amortization period. The prevailing interest rates on these amortizing mortgages in France is at present four and three tenths per cent. In France the farmer can extinguish his mortgage debt in twenty years by the annual payment of seven and one half per cent, at the end of which period no further cash payment remains to be paid, the mortgage being cancelled in full.

There are many farmers in Massachusetts who will bear witness to having paid higher rates of interest for longer periods than this at the end of which time their mortgage has remained at its original amount or materially increased.

The importance of studying these systems is shown in the report of Ambassador Myron T. Herrick (see senate document No. 967, sixty-second congress, third session) that the farmers of the United States, who are adding over $8,000,000,000 to the wealth of the country each year, are doing this on a borrowed capital of $6,000,000,000. Under our present system this borrowed capital is derived from outside sources, and, at the maturity of the loans, must be refunded in full, besides the heavy annual interest charges.

Under the European systems of co-operative credit all this working capital would be obtained by the combined resources of the farmers themselves and none of the principal or the interest would be permanently withdrawn from the field of agriculture but every penny of it would find its way back into the service of the farmers.

Our farmers are now paying an aggregate annual interest charge of over $5,000,000 on these farm loans. A co-operative system would return all these charges to the field of agriculture whether the average rate were more than as at present, over eight per cent or were reduced to the level of the average European mortgage rates of from three and one half to four and one half per cent.

In 1911 we exported $385,000,000 worth of foodstuffs and this enormous amount represents only approximately three fourths of the interest charges on mortgages which the farmers paid out during that year.

Through the establishment of agricultural credit unions and land mortgage banking associations the $6,000,000,000 of borrowed capital now used by our farmers would be very largely drawn from their own communities and the bonds and other securities, while sufficiently liquid for wide distribution, would, in general, remain in the community also.

Not only would the farmer have the advantage of quick and ample borrowing facilities at low rates of interest, but the present tendency toward the undue concentration of securities in our principal cities would be immediately checked.

The financial success of the European farmer has followed the establishment of means whereby European agricultural communities may finance their own operations securely and at moderate rates of interest. Practically speaking, we have absolutely no equivalent of these European systems.

Should the legislature be disposed to encourage the extension of rural credits and land mortgage banking associations in this commonwealth, I feel that the first step to take would be to authorize the governor to send properly qualified delegates to the forthcoming session of the southern commercial congress which is to meet during the summer months of this year at the international institute of agriculture in Rome and under the general direction of the Hon. David Lubin, the American delegate to the international institute.

Authorization for the expenditure of sums up to but not exceeding $2,400 would be required for this purpose.

For the information of the legislature in this connection, I transmit herewith a letter, under date of October 11, 1912, from President Taft, together with the official reports of Ambassador Herrick and other governmental papers bearing on the subject of agricultural credit unions, and land mortgage banking associations.

THE WHITE HOUSE, WASHINGTON, October 11, 1912.

MY DEAR GOVERNOR FOSS: — For some months past, at my direction, the department of state, through its diplomatic officers in Europe, has been engaged in an investigation of the agricultural credit systems in operation in certain of the European countries. Although the investigation is still under way, a preliminary report has been submitted, together with recommendations of Ambassador Myron T. Herrick in connection with my proposal to adopt this system in the United States.

A study of these reports and of the recommendations of Ambassador Herrick, which I am sending you, convinces me of the adaptability to American conditions of the co-operative-credit plan as set forth in the organization of Raiffeisen banks of Germany. The establishment and conduct of such banks, however, are matters for state control. I suggest, also, the establishment of land-mortgage banks under state charters and the formation of co-operative mortgage-bond societies along the lines of the Landschaften societies of Germany, provided that uniform state legislation can be secured to govern their organization and operation. As a later step I favor the enactment of laws by congress permitting the organization of national land-mortgage banks, to be operated under strict government supervision, with the power to guarantee and market the guaranteed debenture bonds of the state land-mortgage banks or co-operative societies. I recommend for your consideration the report and recommendation of Ambassador Herrick, now published by the department of state for general distribution. This report should receive the attention of every one interested in the problem of agricultural finance and, indeed, of all persons interested in the welfare of the American farmer.

The need for the establishment of an adequate financial system as an aid to the farmers of this country is now quite generally recognized. The governmental initiative, taken by the department of state under instructions issued by my direction to the diplomatic officers in Europe on March 18th last, have been effectively supplemented by the American bankers' association, the Southern commercial congress, and by many other bodies by whom this question has been agitated, and valuable work has been done in studying and disseminating knowledge of those great instrumentalities which have been created in foreign lands to extend to their agriculturists credit facilities equal in benefits to those enjoyed by their industrial and commercial organizations. The handicap placed upon the American farmer through the lack of such a system and the loss sustained by the whole citizenship of the nation because of this failure to assist the farmers to the utmost development of our agricultural resources is readily apparent.

The twelve millions of farmers of the United States add each year to the national wealth $8,400,000,000. They are doing this on a borrowed capital of $6,040,000,000. On this sum they pay annually interest charges of $510,000,000. Counting commissions and renewal charges, the interest rate paid by the farmer of this country is averaged at eight and one half per cent, as compared to a rate of four and one half to three and one half per cent paid by the farmer, for instance, of France or Germany.

Again, the interest rate paid by the American farmer is considerably higher than that paid by our industrial corporations, railroads, or municipalities. Yet, I think, it will be admitted that the security offered by the farmer in his farm lands is quite as sound as that offered by industrial corporations. Why, then, will not the investor furnish the farmer with money at as advantageous rates as he is willing to supply it to the industrial corporations? Obviously, the advantage enjoyed by the industrial corporation lies in the financial machinery at its command, which permits it to place its offer before the investor in a more attractive and more readily negotiable form. The farmer lacks this machinery, and, lacking it, he suffers unreasonably. This is not theory. Through all the changing conditions of a century the soundness and practicability of such financial machinery, based upon the peculiar credit needs of the agriculturist, has been tried out, and so successful has been its operation that in Germany, in times of financial stress, money has been taken out of the commercial field and placed in the keeping of that empire's agricultural co-operative banks for safety. The value of this assistance to the farmer receives unquestionable testimonial in the growth of the system in the countries of Europe. More specifically this advantage may be seen in the fact that through this machinery the German farmer has received money, at times, at rates lower than those current in commercial loans.

But the advantages to be gained by the adoption of this plan go beyond the direct saving in interest charges to the farmer. The great necessity which prompted the establishment and extension of this plan throughout Europe was that of checking the rapidly advancing increases in the cost of foodstuffs, brought about by the inevitable increase in consumption and the failure of the long-drained soil to afford a corresponding increase in production. That problem faces the people of this country to-day — not in so severe a form as it threatened the older countries of Europe, but, still, as a great and pressing economic problem.

In Europe this problem has been successfully met, first, by reducing the cost to the farmer of producing his crops and, secondly, by increasing his production through the adoption of improved methods of cultivation. Both the federal and state governments in this country have done much to afford the farmers instruction in improved agricultural methods. But it still remains for us to reduce the cost of the farmer's production by affording him the necessary capital for the exploitation of his soil upon the most advantageous terms. He must be afforded the money necessary for him to adopt improved methods. It must be made profitable for him to place every acre of his ground under cultivation. This offers the consumer relief from the increasing cost of foodstuffs.

It is this portion of the task that still remains to be performed in this country, and it is in this task that I invite your co-operation.

This country enjoys to-day great prosperity. The factories are busy, the workmen employed, and everywhere the wheels of industry hum. The farmer shares in this general prosperity. We have come to look upon the farmer of to-day as one of our most prosperous citizens. The proposal which I make is not to subsidize the American farmer. Fortunately for this country he does not need it, nor would he accept it. What this plan offers is a means to secure to this country greater productivity, at less cost, from the farms that are now under cultivation, and, above all, to give us more farms and more farmers. It will make it profitable for the farmer to return to the cultivation of the abandoned farms of the east and to open up the vast areas of untilled land in the west.

All this can be done, and I am convinced that in this country it must be done, by the efforts of the farmer himself. It is natural that some of the European governments should have extended a paternal protection over the systems of agricultural finance and to have given them financial as well as legal assistance. This, however, must be guarded against in this country. We must establish a credit system of, for, and by the farmers of the United States. It were better, otherwise, not to consider the matter at all. It is an interesting commentary on the value of paternalistic governmental support to note that this plan of agricultural co-operative credit has thrived best — in fact, has enjoyed a substantial development only — in those countries where the movement has grown up from the farmers and where the government has to the greatest degree refrained from attempts artificially to nurture the plan by subsidy and has restrained its interference to the proper field of imposing restrictional legislation for the purpose of preventing speculation.

The entire field of agricultural co-operative credit is properly divisible into two parts: First, the co-operative societies of farmers, formed for the purpose of obtaining personal credit; and, secondly, the societies or private corporations formed to create sound security in land mortgages for the purpose of gaining a national or international market for bonds based upon farm-land mortgages. Both of these forms of co-operative credit may be found in many of the European countries under varying forms of organization. The general principles, however, are very much the same.

It is not practicable here to go into the details of the organization followed in European countries in the formation of these co-operative societies. A very good law has been enacted by the state of Massachusetts allowing the incorporation of credit unions, which should furnish an excellent example for other states. Their establishment is generally a matter for state legislation and encouragement, their organization and management are wonderfully simple, and the experience of the European countries shows that their success is practically inevitable where the environments are congenial to their growth and where proper laws are passed for their conduct. Although undoubtedly the organization followed in the European countries could not be adopted in its entirety in this country, I would advocate the general principles followed by the so-called Raiffeisen banks of Germany. These smaller societies should restrict their loans to personal credit. They are not intended to make large loans on land mortgages, although, indirectly, the lands of all the members form the security. Above all, the cardinal principle should be followed that all money loaned should be for a strictly creative purpose. No loan for the purchase of anything merely for consumption should be tolerated.

The business of furnishing money as loans on real estate is the proper province of the co-operative societies or private corporations, which I have placed in the second class. In Germany this is done through co-operative societies known as Landschaften and through mortgage banks. In France it is done through the Credit Foncier.

The chief advantages brought to farmers through such institutions are lower interest rates and easy amortization, whereby the borrowing farmer may repay his loan bit by bit, extending these payments over a long number of years. Thus, his obligations are made proportionate to his annual receipts from the exploitation of his soil, and the danger of foreclosure is vastly reduced. To appreciate what this amortization plan would mean to the farmers of this country, it is only necessary to consider the foreclosure records of some of our states.

It is not my purpose here to lay down any one plan as necessarily the one most suitable for adoption in the United States. From the reports of our ambassadors and ministers in Europe and from the recommendations of Ambassador Herrick, to whom was given the task of compiling from these the general report, I am inclined to suggest the suitability of organizations similar to the German land-mortgage banks for incorporation under state charters in this country. It will be most desirable, if not, indeed, essential, that the laws creating and governing such institutions should be uniform throughout the states, in order that they might be well understood by the investor, and their debentures should be given character both at home and abroad. As a later step it may prove advisable to urge the enactment by congress of laws permitting the creation of national land-mortgage banks similar to those of Germany and France, with limited privileges, and surrounded and guarded by strict supervision, but with sufficient appeal to American initiative and opportunity, with the power to guarantee and market a guaranteed debenture bond of the state mortgage bank or co-operative society. Securities issued by such national institutions would probably find a ready market in Europe at low rates of interest, since they are a favorite and familiar form of investment in those countries by the conservative investor.

The most essential point to bear in mind is the need for the assumption by the federal and state governments of the responsibility for economically and honestly conducted institutions. Such assumption is the essential precedent for obtaining the confidence of the American as well as the European investing public. In this field, as in all others, there is room for harmful exploitation for personal gain. That must be guarded against. Therefore, I invite you to make this matter the subject of earnest study and exchange of views between the state executives, and I now extend to you, with the governors of the other states, a cordial invitation to confer with me in Washington, on the occasion of the next annual conference of governors, in order to consider means for the adoption of an agricultural credit system as a benefit to the American farmer. I understand that the congress of governors is to occur in December. Were not the interval so short, my conviction of the importance of this subject would impel me to invite you to a special conference at a still earlier date.

Renewing my request for your hearty co-operation in a work of such nation-wide benefit to the farmer, the consumer, and, indeed, to the nation at large,

I am, my dear Governor,

Very sincerely yours,

WM. H. TAFT.

[To the honorable senate and house of representatives, March 22, 1913.]

Herewith I return without my approval An Act to incorporate the Suffolk law school, which includes in its provisions that this school shall be empowered to confer the degree of Bachelor of Laws.

The bill in its principal features is substantially the same as the bill which I vetoed last year; and the same considerations govern me now that led to my veto on March 6, 1912.

The argument for this bill rests very largely on the fact that the degree-granting privilege was given many years ago to a charitable institution which maintains a world-wide organization and which possesses very large resources.

The claim is made for this bill that what has been done for one institution should be done for another, notwithstanding the fact that "two wrongs never make a right." The argument upon which this bill rests is one which comes up continuously in the hearings before legislative committees and on the floor of the general court. This argument is urged repeatedly for special favors and considerations of all kinds, and is used in general as a substitute for those public considerations which ought solely to control all governmental acts. It is the foundation of practically all the pernicious measures which are urged each year before the legislature.

I heartily sympathize with the desire of ambitious young men and women to study law; and this opportunity is now open to them, not only in the Suffolk law school, but in other institutions throughout the commonwealth. The present bill does not in any way increase these opportunities, nor does my veto abrogate them. The whole question turns primarily upon the granting of degrees.

From the beginning this commonwealth has stood prominently before the entire world for the excellence of her educational methods and institutions. This acknowledged leadership of Massachusetts is one of the proudest possessions of the state and it is not only a proud but a most valuable possession.

Duly accredited graduates of our Massachusetts institutions are received in all quarters of the world with honor and respect. They enter positions of responsibility and receive high rates of compensation.

It does not appear to be the part of wisdom to nullify the benefits which the people of Massachusetts have conferred upon themselves in insisting upon the maintenance of the highest standards in education.

These standards are maintained by the commonwealth, which delegates the degree-making power to institutions only upon adequate proof that this power will be applied wisely and in strict accord with the high ideals of Massachusetts.

The Suffolk law school, however worthy its purposes, is a self-supporting institution; and universal experience proves that an institution equipped properly for the expensive and intricate processes of education cannot be self-supporting but must depend upon the grants of either public or private funds. The present bill carries absolutely no guarantee that the school in question is able, or ever will be able, to maintain from the fees of students that quality of instruction requisite whenever the seal of the commonwealth's approval is to be conferred through an academic degree.

In passing upon this petition of the Suffolk law school, we should give full consideration to the individual interests of the school itself and to those of its students, present and prospective; but infinitely above these considerations rises the public policy of the commonwealth, and it is this policy which is now involved.

The question is perfectly clear and simple. Are we to maintain these standards at their present height? Is a Massachusetts education to continue as one of the most valuable assets a young person can possess? Is an accredited graduate from one of our institutions to be received all over the world with honor and given profitable employment? Or on the other hand, is it better for the commonwealth and for her citizens to lower her standards, to stamp with the approval of the state a course of study of doubtful sufficiency?

This measure is opposed by the state board of education, which regards it as a step in the wrong direction. Against it the Suffolk Bar Association and the Massachusetts Bar Association have earnestly protested. I cannot avoid the conclusion that, if I were to approve it, I should thereby consent to a lowering of the educational standards of the commonwealth; and I have therefore no course but to veto the measure.

[To the honorable senate and house of representatives, March 24, 1913.]

Herewith I transmit the recent report of the board of Panama-Pacific managers for Massachusetts, setting forth the present condition of the exposition project and outlining the plans of the Massachusetts commissioners for the promotion of Massachusetts and New England interests in connection with the exposition.

The commissioners advise that adequate appropriation be made for an effective representation of the social, industrial and commercial life of Massachusetts at the exposition; and further advise that for this purpose a Massachusetts building be erected which shall be patterned after the Bulfinch front of the state house, with the dome, and including the memorial hall. This building could be erected of staff or other temporary construction material, and would undoubtedly be most effective for the purpose.

The commissioners furthermore propose to co-operate with the commissioners appointed or to be appointed by other New England states, for the purpose of grouping the buildings of the several New England states in such a way as to centralize and co-ordinate the interests of this region.

They furthermore propose a plan for collecting and disseminating among Massachusetts manufacturers certain valuable information regarding the trade possibilities in the western and oriental countries.

The significance of the commissioners' recommendations is clearly seen in a statement that the countries directly tributary to the Pacific and Indian oceans comprise a population of 900,000,000 exclusive of our own states and of Canada and Alaska; and that the imports of these countries in 1911 were valued at $2,590,000,000. Of these imports the United States furnished only from two tenths of one per cent in the case of the Dutch East Indies to fifteen per cent in the case of Japan.

The commissioners point out that the opening of the Panama canal will facilitate the exportation of American products to the orient, and that the manufacturers of Massachusetts will find in the Panama-Pacific exposition a valuable means of increasing and extending their export business.

I am heartily in accord with the principal recommendations of the commissioners, and I sincerely urge the legislature to give their report most careful consideration and to provide adequately for the erection and maintenance of suitable exposition buildings and equipment.

REPORT OF THE BOARD OF PANAMA-PACIFIC MANAGERS FOR MASSACHUSETTS.

OFFICES OF THE BOARD OF PANAMA-PACIFIC MANAGERS,
TREMONT BUILDING, BOSTON, March 1, 1913.

To His Excellency the Governor, and the Honorable Council, Senate and House of Representatives.

Chapter 144 of the resolves of 1912 reads as follows:—

RESOLVE TO PROVIDE FOR THE REPRESENTATION OF THE COMMONWEALTH AT THE PANAMA-PACIFIC INTERNATIONAL EXPOSITION.

Resolved, That for the purpose of exhibiting the resources, products and general development of the commonwealth at the Panama-Pacific International Exposition to be held at San Francisco in the year nineteen hundred and fifteen for celebrating the completion and the opening to commerce of the Panama canal, the governor, with the consent of the council, shall appoint a board to be called the Board of Panama-Pacific Managers for Massachusetts, to consist of five residents of the commonwealth, of whom two at least shall be women. The said board shall have charge of the interests of the commonwealth and its citizens in the preparation and exhibition at the said exposition of the natural and industrial products of the commonwealth and of objects illustrating its history, progress, moral and material welfare and plans for its future development, and of all other matters relating to said exposition. The board shall communicate with the officers of the exposition, and shall obtain and disseminate throughout the commonwealth all necessary information regarding the exposition, and in general shall have and exercise full authority in relation to the participation of the commonwealth and its citizens in the exposition. Said board is authorized to confer with similar boards or commissions of the states of Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, Rhode Island and Connecticut for the purpose of considering the advisability of grouping, so far as may be practicable, the buildings of each state at the exposition and of the establishment of a permanent united exposition of New England products in suitable quarters after the close of the said exposition. The board shall report to the governor and council and to the general court not later than March first, nineteen hundred and thirteen, and shall thereafter expend for the purposes of this resolve such sums as may be appropriated by the general court.

In order to carry out the provisions of this resolve there may be expended from the treasury of the commonwealth during the current year a sum not exceeding fifteen thousand dollars for defraying the travelling expenses of the board, the salary and expenses of an executive secretary, the cost of offices and office force and equipment, and such other expenses as may be approved by the governor and council. [Approved June 5, 1912.

Pursuant to such authority the governor with the consent of the council on November 20, 1912, appointed as members of the board:

PETER H. CORR,
MRS. CHARLES S. HAMLIN,
ALEXANDER SEDGWICK,
MRS. JOHN HAYS HAMMOND,
GEORGE F. MEAD.

For the purpose of conferring with the officers of the Panama-Pacific international exposition and of fully, by actual observation, determining the plan and scope of the exposition and its educational and commercial values to the people and industries of this commonwealth, three members of your board visited San Francisco. It is a source of regret to us that all of your board could not do so but, even as it was, considerable time elapsed before a visiting quorum could be secured.

Peter H. Corr, Mr. Alexander Sedgwick and Mr. George F. Mead, representing your board, reached San Francisco on January 30, 1913, and were most cordially welcomed by the officials of the exposition, representatives of the New England society and prominent citizens of California, who all vied in extending kindly greetings and considerate but unobtrusive hospitality. From the first we were impressed by the earnestness of purpose displayed by those with whom we came in contact, and an evident intent and determination to make the exposition of 1915 far-reaching in results, worthy of the union and in harmony with the great event which our nation has invited all peoples to join in celebrating. The vital importance of a task involving the reputation of San Francisco and California as custodians of the dignity of the United States is thoroughly understood, and it is accepted with a determination equal to that which met and overcame the great disaster of 1906 and has built a San Francisco better and greater than the city destroyed by fire. The quality of New England blood which displayed its forcefulness and indomitable resourcefulness after the Boston fire, and again after the Chicago fire, again asserted itself in stricken San Francisco, and now it reasserts itself in the planning and building of a universal exposition by which our nation officially will celebrate the opening of the Panama canal. No one can see what those men of California have done, the breadth and scope of their plans and the intensity of their purpose to deserve the confidence of the nation, without awakening to the fact that the Panama canal celebration of 1915 will have greater educational and commercial values than have been present in any exposition ever given in this country or abroad. The time is ripe for gathering together the peoples of the earth and the Panama canal makes it possible, appropriate and universally most convenient to locate such concourse at San Francisco, the metropolis of our Pacific coast.

Your board, after carefully studying conditions, is convinced that by so much as the commonwealth and citizens of Massachusetts add to the success of the Panama-Pacific international exposition, by that much will intellectual, commercial and industrial interests of Massachusetts benefit both immediately and in the future. Therefore your board advocates notable participation by the commonwealth and advises ample provision by the honorable general court for an unmistakably typical Massachusetts building of which our citizens and those with New England blood in their veins will be justly proud.

A state or a national building at an international exposition has several distinctly practical values. It should illustrate the history, thought and purpose of a community. We of Massachusetts believe that in these respects, if properly presented by us, no state has more if indeed so much cause for honest pride. There is available a vast abundance of material from which to select and present unmistakable evidences of what this commonwealth has been, is, and purposes to be.

A state building can be made of distinct advertising value. This the Germans, for example, understand very well; and though that nation is thrifty, the Deutsche house at an international exposition is always imposing and attracts attention — its purpose and applied uses are to advertise Germany and German industries reaching out for trade development in foreign markets.

The provision of a meeting and resting place where citizens of a state may feel at home, learn of their friends and keep in touch with home news is proper, and particularly desirable when an exposition is located at a distance such as San Francisco is from Massachusetts. Your board believes that the opening of the Panama canal and the great interest our people have in it and all things connected with it, will attract an unusual number of visitors from this commonwealth to the exposition. The railroads invariably make special exposition rates of fare, but on this occasion these will be reduced even lower by steamship competition. It will be possible at an exceptionably moderate cost to see both canal and exposition.

Although the foregoing statements include references to the history, progress, ambitions, exploitation and pride of a state, and reasonable provision for the comfort of a material number of its citizens, a further and very important — perhaps the most important — value of a state building rests in its adaptability for use by the exhibiting producers of that state as a means for creating and cementing associations with exhibitors from other states or foreign countries. Its usefulness in this respect depends upon the commissioners or board of managers in charge; their understanding of their proper functions, powers and privileges. For example, assume your board discovers — and it is part of its duty to discover — desirable opportunities for Massachusetts trade development in Australia; the proper official formula being board or commission to and through board or commission, your board should and desires to invite the Australian commission and through it the Australian exhibitors to a function — state or by subscription — whereat to meet the Massachusetts exhibitors. Such meetings will be productive of results in proportion to the impression made by the Massachusetts house and the managers in charge. Always the official etiquette of an international exposition calls for a return function, a similar exchange of courtesies. Thus two opportunities result for Massachusetts exhibitors to meet and exchange information with the producers and traders of Australia. This, the true basis for successful business — knowledge of both people and markets — can and in our opinion should at San Francisco be made available to the manufacturers and merchants of Massachusetts. The opportunity will be universal, for a programme similar to that illustrated with Australia can be carried out with the commission from each and every important nation or state on earth, or such as may appear to your board to be of sufficient value to Massachusetts. Given that you equip your board of managers to discover and present desirable opportunities, we venture the prediction that our industries will benefit greatly, for, in general, all a Massachusetts man needs is opportunity — he will do the rest.

But apart from its future duties in San Francisco and at the exposition your board considers a present important duty is to inform the manufacturers of Massachusetts concerning the character, purpose and probable trade potentiality of the Panama-Pacific international exposition, to give information regarding cost of freight, transportation, installation, operation and living expenses sufficient to enable a producer to estimate the expense of exhibiting his wares and the probable productivity of such exhibit. Your board is informed that European nations maintain a force of exposition experts, trained to define with reasonable accuracy the commercial value to specific lines of endeavor probably possessed by an exposition proposal. Such information is there available to those interested. So far as we are aware, no such safeguarding of industrial interests obtains in this country, but we believe that some such system is desirable, and so far as Massachusetts is concerned we propose to inaugurate it in our work for the Panama-Pacific exposition and, within the limits of our functions, to encourage exhibits which promise success and discourage those foredoomed to disappointment; therefore your board desires to establish — within reasonable lines — a bureau of information devoted particularly to the service of the citizens and interests of Massachusetts.

Your board conceives its duty is to proceed on business lines, to bring the best possible results at the least possible expense to the citizens and industries of the commonwealth. In the discharge of this duty we feel obliged to state that the occasion is so great and the opportunities so unprecedented as to demand ample provision of means wherewith to demonstrate the importance and maintain the dignity of Massachusetts.

Concerning the character, architecturally, of Massachusetts house we hesitate to express an opinion; but if it should appear feasible to reproduce in staff or other inexpensive material the 1795 end of our state house, with gilded dome illuminated at night, and Memorial Hall, we can conceive of no stronger appeal to the pride and sentiment of the people of Massachusetts or of Massachusetts blood, or to the interested attention of the world. Whatever the architecture of Massachusetts house may be — and this must largely be determined by the means placed at our disposal — your board hopes that as fully as possible it will exemplify the history, thought, art products and workmanship of the commonwealth. We expect to invite loans of articles of historic significance or appropriate art. We see no reason why, in almost its entirety, the materials used in the building should and may not be products of Massachusetts mine, forest, mills, shops and artisans, shipped by vessel from Boston through the Panama canal and delivered for assembling and erection directly to the exposition grounds.

Your board found that the exposition site embraces about 625 acres — almost exactly the area of the Chicago "World's Fair" — of which nearly one fourth are in the Presidio, a U. S. government reservation. The grounds are so situated that no taint of a land scheme can attach to the site, for it is bounded on the north by San Francisco bay, on the east by U. S. Fort Mason and a fully developed boulevard (Van Ness avenue), on the south by the finest residential portion of the city and on the west by the Presidio. The location is extremely picturesque and inviting. Relative to the financial, shopping and residential centres in each city, the exposition corresponds very closely in San Francisco to the Back Bay district in Boston. Transportation is by trolley cars or by ferries to the exposition docks. All of the national, state and foreign buildings are to be located on U. S. government property, a condition which impressed us most favorably because it insures all occupants of equitable treatment not only during the construction and open periods but also in the removal period after the close of the exposition. Those commissions which at a former exposition found their state buildings on private land, subject to immediate confiscation and hence devoid of salvage value, will appreciate the advantage of being located upon federal land at the Panama-Pacific international exposition.

Although your board was unable to visit San Francisco and select a site as early as we desired, nevertheless aided by the respect Californians have for Massachusetts we were able to obtain ample ground located most advantageously; in our opinion equal to any in the exposition. The transfer or lease of the site to your board was an impressive ceremonial in which the exposition forces, U. S. regulars and various societies participated before a large number of spectators. The proceedings showed dignity and evidenced sincere regard for Massachusetts. One of the orators for the exposition called attention to the fact that Massachusetts was the first state to help and send relief to the stricken people of San Francisco after the disaster of 1906. For what we did then a cordial recognition still exists.

Without exception the president, directors and executive officers of the Panama-Pacific international exposition were ready and anxious to fully inform your board on all plans and methods adopted or proposed. Whatever information we sought was promptly and intelligently supplied. The impression made on us was of a vast and complicated machine, its members selected because of special ability to accomplish certain tasks, all under the control of a broad-minded business management uninfluenced by either political or personal gain, but actuated by intense purpose to accomplish great results. We are confident that the determined energy displayed will insure a great success.

On one point the management lays great emphasis: it asserts that the main section of the exposition, the exhibit palaces, courts and esplanade — all of the construction work to be done by the exposition authorities — will be finished by June, 1914, over eight months before the official opening of the celebration on February 20, 1915. The indications are that this will be accomplished. The grounds are fenced and practically graded, a sand pump fill of 70 acres is complete, sewerage, water and electric systems are being installed, the administration building is finished and occupied, the palace of machinery is in process of erection and we are informed that the contract for another exhibit palace — horticulture — has been let. A systematic programme of starting new buildings at regular intervals of about two months is in force and the management are very insistent that the exposition shall set a practical example of forehandedness to all states and nations. Unpreparedness has been the serious fault of all former expositions — serious because unfair to participating states and nations with houses completed and in order at the appointed time; unfair to exhibitors and unfair to the public. The exposition management further urges that the early completion of buildings and installation of exhibits will make for economy because the costs of labor and materials invariably advance locally during the period immediately prior to the opening of an international exposition.

Your board was informed that at the Panama-Pacific international exposition all exhibits in competition for award will be installed according to classification in the exhibit palaces erected by the exposition at a cost of about twelve million dollars ($12,000,000) for construction and equipment. These palaces with their courts and approaches will occupy nearly four hundred acres. No charge is made for exhibit space and none for sites for state or national buildings. In every detail the desire is evidenced to reduce to a minimum the cost of exhibiting or participating and to encourage the devotion of expense to the perfection of the articles exhibited. This policy will in the opinion of your board add much to the intrinsic value of the exposition as an arena wherein the best products of men and nature are installed in friendly competition.

Your board will be glad to confer with similar boards or commissions from the other New England states for the purpose of assisting in grouping the houses of the six states.

As the section — about 125 acres — of the exposition devoted to national, state and foreign buildings is all within the Presidio, a U. S. army post, your board is of the opinion that the very desirable project of a permanent "New England building," to be maintained in San Francisco for the purpose of exhibiting New England products to the trade tributary to the Pacific and Indian oceans, should be taken up when the boards or commissions from the several states can be brought together after each has had an opportunity to study the trade centre question in San Francisco. Then tentative plans may be evolved and discussed with the New England exhibitors.

Your board purposes preparing a pamphlet naming the countries tributary to the Pacific and Indian oceans and the population; value of annual imports and percentage of such imports drawn by each country from the United States. The Panama canal will bring all of them nearer, and on the average given New England produces a shorter freight haul through safer seas than from European ports. In approximate figures we are able to state now that the population total is 882,000,000 exclusive of our Pacific coast states, Canada and Alaska. The imports of these same countries in 1911 valued $2,590,000,000.

Selecting the largest purchasing countries the record is: —

British India imports, .	$450,000,000;	from United States	3.8%
Australia imports, . .	326,000,000;	from United States	11.6%
China imports, . .	314,000,000;	from United States	8.5%
Japan imports, . .	256,000,000;	from United States	15.8%
Straits Settlements imports,	226,000,000;	from United States	0.8%
Dutch East Indies imports,	139,000,000;	from United States	0.2%
Chile imports, . .	127,000,000;	from United States	12.4%
New Zealand imports, .	95,000,000;	from United States	8.6%
Ceylon imports, . .	54,000,000;	from United States	1.0%

While the compilation and circulation of such information is not directly a part of our exposition functions, we feel that the trade possibilities created by the Panama canal and the opportunities made available by the exposition to transform these possibilities into realities, should be brought to the attention of the merchants and manufacturers of Massachusetts.

[To the honorable senate and house of representatives, March 24, 1913.]

Herewith I return without my approval An Act to establish the salaries of the officers in attendance at the civil sessions of the municipal court in the city of Boston. The argument upon which the bill is based is that other court officers are receiving salaries of $1,700, and that the three court officers concerned in this bill, but who are now getting $1,500, should receive the same pay.

As I have said before, this is the basis upon which much legislation is now sought, and it leaves wholly out of account the general question of salary adjustments.

There are now pending in various stages before the legislature or its committees many bills seeking to increase salaries in offices in the Suffolk county and land courts. The bill in question is one of these. If they were all passed and approved, they would increase the annual expenditure of the taxpayers of Boston by at least $39,000.

I object to these measures only for the reason that they come before the legislature separately, and are not at any stage considered co-ordinately in the broad view of the taxpayers' interests. Each measure, in general, proceeds upon the personal petition of some interested party, and is argued from his point of view.

In 1892 a recess committee of the legislature said that: —

> The committee are of the opinion that a general scale of salaries should be adopted for all the district courts of the state, and such scale, when adopted, should not be changed upon individual application; but whenever any change is made it should be by a general revision based upon the changed conditions of population and business.

In 1903 a special legislative committee was appointed to investigate the adjustment of salaries in our judicial and other departments. This committee construed its instructions to mean that it must, if possible, "report some plan or system of compensation applicable in all the counties of the commonwealth, whereby the salaries of the officials mentioned may be so equitably adjusted as to relieve the general court from consideration of the numerous petitions for increase of pay which each year consumes much valuable time of the two houses and their committees."

As a result of the deliberations of the committee appointed in 1903, a system of compensation was established for the clerks of the courts and other county offices under chapter 451 of the acts of 1904; for the salaries of registrars of deeds and assistant registrars under chapter 452; and for the justices, clerks and assistant clerks of certain police, district, and municipal courts under chapter 453. Similar salaries for the chief justices, associate justices, clerks, and assistant clerks of the municipal court of Boston were established under chapter 454; and salaries of the judges, registrars and assistant registrars of probate under chapter 455.

The provisions of chapter 451 were founded upon the ratios of population between the various counties. In chapter 453 a similar provision was made. In chapter 452 the average yearly receipts of the registry were taken as a basis in determining salaries. In chapter 455 the provision made was based mainly upon population.

If the adjustments fixed by these several statutes are now inadequate and not in keeping with the needs of the current year, they should be amended in accordance with the recommendations of the committee of 1903; that is, "not upon individual application but by a general revision based upon the changed conditions of populations and duties."

If the salaries in question were paid by the commonwealth, these various measures would have come before the board of economy and efficiency, which would have had the opportunity to compare them, secure evidence as to their relative merits, and report to the legislature with recommendations. But as these salaries will be paid by the city of Boston, such action by the board of economy and efficiency has not been taken, and as that board is fully occupied with the duties already imposed upon it, I do not advise referring the subject to that board. Instead, I urge the legislature, without prejudice to any of these pending measures, to refer the matter of salary adjustment to a committee duly qualified to co-ordinate and readjust them.

In taking this position with respect to these measures, I call the attention of the legislature to the accompanying letter from the Boston finance commission, earnestly protesting against the current method of determining increases of salaries.

BOSTON, March 24, 1913.

To His Excellency EUGENE N. FOSS, Governor of Massachusetts.

SIR: — The finance commission respectfully calls your excellency's attention to the subject of Suffolk county expenditures which are borne by the city of Boston. The commission in a report to the mayor and city council, dated August 29, 1908, called attention to the increase in county expenditures and the resulting increase in the financial burdens borne by the city of Boston.

Thus, it appeared that the general expenses of the county, excluding payments for the penal institutions department, payments on the county debt, interest, sinking funds requirements, and certain other minor items, were $520,009.12 in the financial year 1892–93; that in 1907–08 they amounted to $1,023,833.95, an increase of ninety-six and eight tenths per cent, while the income from the departments making such expenditures had increased from $129,422.72 to $181,917.26, or only forty per cent and that the estimated increase of population and valuation in the same period was only thirty-two per cent and fifty-one per cent respectively. These figures are shown in detail in a table in the report of the commission of August 29, 1908. (Vol. I, p. 394.)

Since the year 1907–08 the general expenses of the county have increased fifteen and three tenths per cent, the amount expended in 1912–13 having reached a total of $1,181,263.09, and the estimates for the financial year 1913–14 are $1,266,650, an increase of seven and two tenths per cent over the preceding year. The estimates for 1913–14 have been cut down by the mayor and the appropriations are still pending in the city council, but there has been complaint on the part of the county officials that the reductions made by the mayor will leave an amount insufficient for the conduct of the county's business, and it is fair to assume that substantially the amounts requested by the county officers will be appropriated.

The total increase in general county expenses for the twenty years ending with the year 1912–13 was $677,439, an increase of one hundred and thirty-four per cent; and the increase for the twenty-one years ending with the year 1913–14 will be, upon the basis of the present estimates, $762,826, an increase of one hundred and fifty-one per cent.

Much of this increase was justified by the growth of county business, but a considerable part of it has been due to increases in salaries made by the legislature from time to time on the request either of the Suffolk county officers themselves, or of persons who represented them. When such increases are made by the legislature they leave no discretion to the city of Boston as to the amount of salaries paid, for the acts are mandatory and the city of Boston must appropriate the money necessary to meet the increases established by the legislature. The system under which salaries of subordinate county officers are increased by the legislature is open to serious criticism. The committees hear the requests of officers of particular county departments and, while considering each case upon its merits, have not sufficient opportunity, owing to lack of time, to consider the salaries of each department in their relation to all other departments of the county of Suffolk; and it often happens that the mere fact that one set of officers has received a salary increase under legislative acts creates a desire on the part of officers of other departments to obtain increases for themselves.

It seems to the finance commission that some means should be taken to consider the salaries of Suffolk county officers as a whole and to fix the amount with reference to the value of the services actually performed by each set of officers and to the ability of the city of Boston to bear the financial burdens thus entailed. A number of bills providing for increases in several of the Suffolk county departments have been presented to the legislature this year, and one of them — senate bill No. 302 — has been passed by the legislature and is now before your excellency, awaiting official action. Without passing upon the merits of this particular bill, the commission recommends that it be vetoed, together with all bills of a similar nature which may be passed this year and which affect the finances of the city of Boston; and that your excellency consider the expediency of recommending the appointment of a commission to consider the whole subject of salaries for officers of Suffolk county, including those connected with the various courts, the registry of deeds, the registry of probate, and the office of the sheriff.

If your excellency gives this suggestion favorable consideration and such commission be established, its findings can be availed of by the legislature of 1914 to such effect that succeeding legislatures will, for a number of years at least, be relieved of the burden of considering a great variety of special bills affecting particular officers of Suffolk county.

Respectfully submitted,

THE FINANCE COMMISSION,
By JOHN A. SULLIVAN,
Chairman.

[To the honorable senate and house of representatives, March 24, 1913.]

Herewith I transmit a letter from the secretary of the commonwealth, accompanied by a certified copy of a recent joint resolution of the New Jersey legislature, creating a board of three commissioners to act with commissioners from the states of Maine, Vermont, New Hampshire, Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Connecticut, New York, Pennsylvania, Delaware and Maryland, for the purpose of advising amendments to the laws in these several states relative to motor vehicles, in order to co-ordinate the statutes and establish uniform legislation.

I have been advised, by the chairman of the highway commission, that the members of that commission met several years ago with the commissioners of the other New England states for the purpose of adopting a uniform automobile law and that this law has been adopted in Massachusetts. Therefore, for the purpose of complying with the request of the New Jersey legislature, I suggest that the legislature of Massachusetts authorize our highway commissioners to meet and co-operate with the special commissioners who may be appointed by the other states hereinbefore mentioned and for the specific purposes set forth in the resolutions of the New Jersey legislature.

[To the honorable senate and house of representatives, March 24, 1913.]

Herewith I return without my approval An Act to provide that the officers in attendance on the East Boston district court shall wear uniforms, and furthermore authorizing the appropriation of one hundred dollars per annum for each such officer, for the purpose of purchasing uniforms.

At present it is not the custom for the officers of the district courts of the city of Boston, so far as can be learned, to be uniformed. I suggest that the matter be referred to a committee, to determine whether it is desirable to equip all our officers in these courts with uniforms; and if so, to draft legislation which will apply to all alike.

[To the honorable senate and house of representatives, March 26, 1913.]

I return herewith without my approval An Act relative to communication to the court of a former conviction of a defendant in police, district and municipal courts.

I do this reluctantly, being in sympathy with the main purpose of the bill. The question of the guilt or innocence of a defendant is one of fact, to be decided upon evidence. To introduce the record of previous convictions during the trial will almost inevitably affect the mind of the judge, and ordinarily should not be permitted.

But under one of our statutes, in cases of drunkenness, the court is authorized to release an arrested person without arraignment. The question whether he shall or shall not be so released is decided mainly upon his record, which is furnished by the probation officer.

This provision is an excellent one, and is used in many thousands of cases every year, to great advantage. If the probation officer is forbidden to produce a record, the use of this humane statute must be greatly diminished, for the principal source of information for the court will be cut off.

The law would also encourage a defendant to testify falsely in his own behalf. The value of his testimony depends upon his standing. If he knows that the probation officer cannot testify to his record, no matter how bad, to impeach his testimony, a powerful restraint against misstatements is removed. If there is a record, the court should know it, that it may properly estimate the value of his testimony.

This, too, may happen: A police officer who is allowed to testify in impeachment of a defendant's testimony, has his record, but may not be able to identify the defendant as the one to whom it belongs. The probation officer can do so, and is the only person who can, but under this bill he would be prohibited from testifying. This seems to be carrying the protection of the accused beyond reasonable limits.

If this bill shall not be passed, I shall request your consideration of a bill to accomplish the main purposes of this, but permitting a probation officer to testify like any other person in impeachment of the character of a witness, and also permitting the production of a record by a probation officer, on the question of releasing without arraignment a person arrested for drunkenness.

I have received an earnest protest against this measure in its present form from the chief justice of the superior court of the commonwealth, together with suggestions for an alternative measure which would undoubtedly remove the reasons for which I am impelled to veto it.

[To the honorable senate and house of representatives, March 26, 1913.]

Having laid before the general court the reasons which have impelled me to veto house bill No. 908, relative to the communication to the court of a former conviction of a defendant in police, district and municipal courts, I now submit herewith the draft of a bill to which I urge the attention of the legislature as a substitute for the prior measure.

The proposed bill prohibits probation officers from informing the court as to previous convictions of a defendant prior to the pronouncement of sentence, except that they may testify if necessary to impeach the testimony already given by the defendant, and providing further that probation officers may communicate to the judge, in case of a prisoner arrested for drunkenness, the record of previous convictions within the preceding year.

I urge this new measure as a substitute for house bill No. 908, in order to meet the serious objections which have been raised against that measure by chief justice Aiken of the superior court of the commonwealth and by chief justice Bolster of the municipal court of Boston; and in the effort to co-operate with the general court in securing legislation which will deal justly not only with the prisoner but with our judicial system, upholding equally the rights of the defendant and the course of justice in our courts.

[To the honorable senate and house of representatives, March 27, 1913.]

Herewith I transmit the recommendations of the free public library commission in respect to library work for foreigners.

It appears to be of the utmost importance that we should take steps toward the education of our immigrant population in order that they may understand the ideals and conditions of American life. The assimilation of our foreign population cannot proceed effectively unless they are brought into sympathy with, and given an understanding of, the aims and purposes of our democracy.

There have been many illustrations of the dangers which confront us through an increasing alien population that is out of harmony with our society and that follows blindly the lead of ignorant and vicious agitators. For the protection of society, and particularly for the protection of our laboring population, including the foreigners themselves, we must not omit any reasonable measure for the proper education and training of the foreigner who makes his home in Massachusetts.

I need not dwell upon the obvious gravity of the situation, nor do I consider the present measure in itself sufficient to meet all the requirements of the situation; but I earnestly request of the legislature that it accord to the free public library the very moderate extension which it now seeks.

BOARD OF FREE PUBLIC LIBRARY COMMISSIONERS,
STATE HOUSE, BOSTON, MASS., March 25, 1913.

His Excellency EUGENE N. FOSS, Governor of the Commonwealth, State House, Boston, Mass.

DEAR MR. FOSS: — I beg to submit herewith recommendations from the free public library commission of Massachusetts in reference to library work with foreigners. Accompanying the recommendations is a draft of "An Act to provide for the appointment of a foreign agent or secretary by the board of free public library commissioners, and for expenses connected therewith."

The opportunity to extend the usefulness of the commission in this direction is so apparent that we trust you may see your way to recommending to the legislature that a field secretary, with appropriate expenses, be authorized.

Respectfully yours,

CHARLES F. D. BELDEN,
Chairman.

Since last fall the free public library commission has been interested in aiding libraries in work with foreigners, both by providing books and by organized efforts to introduce the library to the foreign speaking population. Under authority of law the activities of the commission in giving direct aid is limited especially to those towns whose valuation is under $600,000. The efforts so far made by the commission relating to library work with foreigners have been received with so much enthusiasm, and so many requests have come from the larger towns and cities, that the commission feels that it should receive authority and means whereby immediate attention can be given to this important work in all sections of the commonwealth.

The free public library commission, therefore, recommends the employment of a special field agent or secretary who can study the problems involved, select the books, co-operate with existing associations, and visit the local foreign societies in different towns and interest the librarians, trustees, teachers, and others in the furtherance of their activities with the foreign population.

Libraries are recognized as wholly non-political and non-sectarian, and therefore have a special opportunity to welcome newcomers to this country and interest them in all that pertains to good citizenship.

Provision should also be made for occasional assistance from competent representatives of the non-English speaking races in different localities for lectures, addresses, etc., and for other incidental expenses.

CHARLES F. D. BELDEN,
Chairman.

[To the honorable senate and house of representatives, April 3, 1913.]

I deem it my duty to call your attention to a course of events which is of great importance to the people of the commonwealth, and to urge your co-operation in bringing about the public action which the situation demands.

THE RECENT POLITICAL REVOLUTION ORIGINATED IN MASSACHUSETTS.

Three years ago there was inaugurated in this commonwealth a political revolution which spread rapidly throughout the nation and was consummated the fourth day of March in a complete change of the national government. Each step in this movement was decisive, and the impelling motives and forces behind it were irresistible.

The first manifestation of the change in popular opinion was the election on the twenty-second day of March, 1910, in the fourteenth Massachusetts congressional district. In this great manufacturing centre, a traditional republican majority of 15,000 was turned into a democratic majority of 6,000, an overturn of 21,000 in a total vote of 24,500. In the state election in 1910, the democratic candidate for governor turned the Taft majority of 110,000 into a democratic majority of 36,000, a change of 146,000 in a total vote of a little over 400,000. In the state election of 1911, the only state election held in a pivotal northern state, the democratic candidate for governor overcame the massed forces of the whole national republican party. In these three elections this candidate was the only democrat elected. In the national election of 1912, the same democratic candidate received a plurality of almost 50,000, was elected for the third time a democratic governor of republican Massachusetts, and led the national ticket by 30,000 votes.

A NON-PARTISAN STRUGGLE FOR AN ECONOMIC PRINCIPLE.

The reason for these four successes was that the candidate who attained them individualized the precise issue upon which the revolution turned.

The conditions which caused this movement still exist. No statute has been passed in response to it and so far as the public is informed none has been framed. But legislators elected with a mandate to make such response are about to meet. It is the highest interest of the American people that the meaning of this revolution be not misconceived, that its purposes be not thwarted, and that its objects be promptly and definitely realized in law.

The movement originated in Massachusetts. The people of this commonwealth were the first, as they have so often been, to sense the dangers confronting them and the whole country. These dangers were more apparent to those who had the needs of Massachusetts in mind but the quick recognition by the rest of the country of the justice of the revolt of Massachusetts against existing conditions showed that the arguments of the leaders in the movement applied with almost equal force to the entire country.

The movement was in no sense political. The apparent reversal of political opinion in Massachusetts is shown by analysis to amount to a non-partisan demand for a specific economic policy, which, heretofore, no political party has espoused. This Massachusetts doctrine appealed to the entire country. The legislature of Massachusetts may with propriety, and having in mind its duty to the people, it should appeal to the congress of the United States to apply to existing economic conditions the economic policy which the people have so emphatically demanded and endorsed.

THE DEMOCRATIC PARTY SHOULD APPLY THIS PRINCIPLE.

The concrete political expression of the popular demand appears in the election of a democratic president and a democratic congress; but the two platforms which endorsed the principle of protection received, in the votes of the candidates who stood upon them, a greater endorsement by the American people at the last election than the platform which repudiated the principle of a protective tariff.

A DEMAND FOR THE MASSACHUSETTS PRINCIPLE OF TARIFF REDUCTION.

The popular movement is a non-partisan demand for a revision of the tariff. It is to be expected that the president will outline a policy in his forthcoming message to congress. Up to the present the only indication of the democratic attitude is to be found in the bills prepared by the last special session. These measures were not satisfactory from the point of view of those who desire to see the tariff question settled upon the broadest basis of public interest. It is to be hoped that the president's message will outline a policy that will lead to such a settlement. He has invited the co-operation of all in his work. It seems fitting that we in Massachusetts, who have so much at stake in the proper settlement of the tariff question and who have had so important a part in the struggle which led to his election, should contribute an expression of what we have contended for as the true method of tariff-adjustment.

The policy demanded by the American people during the past three years was a reduction of the tariff for the benefit of all the people. No considerable part of the voters were willing to support the doctrine of free trade advocated in the democratic platform or the policy of deliberative and postponed reduction promised by the two wings of the republican party. But the great body of the people, without reference to political allegiance, desired the immediate adoption of a policy of tariff reduction which should benefit American industry and American trade, advance American production of every kind, and relieve the people from unjust tariff burdens. It was a non-partisan demand for economic reform. It was a demand for the policy which constituted the appeal for the revolution at its first beginnings in Massachusetts, — the Massachusetts policy of constructive tariff reduction.

The Massachusetts plan of constructive tariff reduction was formulated in 1902 by the candidate who appealed to the people upon it four times with such marked success. He was then a republican candidate for congress in open revolt against the tariff policy of his party. His unremitting agitation, continued for eight years, had brought him into the democratic party. He secured the adoption by that party in Massachusetts of the tariff policy which he had advocated, made that policy the slogan upon which four democratic victories, the first for many years, were won, and showed it thus to be the motive of the political revolution just consummated. Carrying the burden of the national battle unaided in the state election of 1911, he formulated the issue concisely against the republican party and established by his victory the basis of democratic success. The issue was stated in the Massachusetts platform of 1911: —

> The Payne-Aldrich law should at once be revised by eliminating the protection which promotes monopoly, produces private profit instead of public revenue, and obstructs free domestic competition and the sale of American products in foreign markets.
>
> We declare for removal of all duties on foodstuffs which enter into general popular consumption and on the raw materials of our manufactures.
>
> We favor a broad program of reciprocal trade agreements with other nations, that our commerce may be developed and new markets opened to the products of American industry.

THE TRUE PRINCIPLE LIKELY TO BE MISCONCEIVED.

The democratic candidate for governor had summed this platform up during his ten years' conflict inside the republican party and outside, in these words, "elimination of superfluous protection, free raw materials, no free trade but reciprocity and fair trade." Nothing could be clearer than the endorsement of that policy by the American people. But almost equally clear is the danger that precisely the reverse of this platform in each of its three parts will be put into effect in tariff legislation by the special session of congress about to meet.

In all tariff legislation three purposes must be kept in mind, the raising of revenue for the government, the encouragement of domestic production, and the maintenance of the conditions necessary for private profit to domestic producers. No one of these purposes should be favored to the exclusion of the others. The combined consideration of the three purposes tends to the advancement of each. Yet the record of tariff legislation and of proposals for tariff legislation offers nothing but illustration of misconception of these principles.

THE REPUBLICAN GUARANTEE AND THE DEMOCRATIC DISREGARD OF PROFIT BOTH BAD.

Both parties offend in this respect. The democratic party asserts its principle of tariff revision so broadly that the defeat of its purposes may be forecasted in advance. The republican party, in its national platform of 1908, set up a principle of tariff-making so erroneous that to overturn it was the purpose of the recent political revolution. To meet this principle squarely is the duty of the democratic congress. The republican platform declared for "such duties as will equalize the cost of production at home and abroad together with a reasonable profit to American industries." Such a tariff attempts to guarantee profits for some. The obvious result is to make it difficult for producers generally to earn them, to curtail production, to discourage importation, and to restrict the raising of revenue by tariff taxation. "The democratic policy", announced by one of the leaders, March 10, 1912, "clearly excludes the idea of protecting manufacturers' profits." This policy is more pernicious than that of the republican party. It excludes not only the idea of guaranteeing profits but all consideration of the conditions under which manufacturers may earn them. It not only defeats the purposes of encouraging domestic production and assuring private profit to domestic producers, but also, through the curtailment of importations of the materials of manufacture, defeats the very purpose itself of raising revenue.

PROTECTIVE REDUCTION THE TRUE PRINCIPLE.

A tariff for revenue would seem to require increases of duties as well as decreases and the democratic house of representatives proposed certain increases for revenue purposes at the last session. But an increase in the rate of a duty may defeat the purpose of protection and the purpose of revenue at the same time. If the increase is in the duty on raw materials of manufacture, the industry may be wiped out and both the profits and the public revenue terminated. Decreases in duties on raw materials may result, by reason of the effect in increasing the actual protection upon the manufactured product, in unjust enrichment at the expense of the public revenue. The duties on sugar, for example, are the principal source of tariff revenue, yet these duties are, by reason of the application of the principle of compensation, also a chief source of unjust private enrichment from the tariff at the expense both of the revenue and of all the people. The failure to consider the protective effect of a rate is to throw overboard the chart and compass of tariff making and to drift upon the sea of fallacy, log-rolling, private tariff privilege, and corruption. If the compass is retained, and read aright, it will point steadily to the pole star of tariff reduction. To increase duties is never necessary for revenue purposes. That object may always be attained by well-directed reductions when some duty remains after the superfluous part has been eliminated. The determination of such a duty should be the object of all tariff making and such a duty should be the main source of tariff revenue. It provides an automatic balance between the producers and the people and applies a constant stimulus to American manufacturers not to be content with the home market but to compete with the foreigner in foreign markets. It is true that the determination of the exact rate of duty is not easy but it is not less evident that the true course which leads to that determination is clear. It lies not in the path of decreases and increases that hurt American industry but in decreases which help.

REDUCTION AND PROTECTION NOT INCONSISTENT.

Our recent tariff history is full of illustrations of decreases in duties which help American producers. An emphatic demand for resolute tariff reduction is in no way hostile to American industry. A downward revision of the tariff has been going on for forty years. It is untrue to say that American industry has been held in check by protective duties. The truth is that these duties have resulted in the phenomenal growth of American industry during that period. The evil lies in the failure to continue the process of reduction, to apply it generally, to reduce decisively, and to establish as a rule of law the proper method of such reduction.

This method is indicated by experience in its application. In steel rails, for instance, the tariff was originally made in 1867 at forty-five per cent ad valorem, when American railroads were paying British manufacturers $145 to $166 per ton. In 1871 the tariff was reduced to $28 per ton, then to $25.20, and finally advanced in 1875 to $28 again. This was in force until 1883, when a reduction to $17 was made. In 1890 another reduction was made to $13.44, and under this duty the country produced over 15,000,000 tons in a year, and the price of rails fell here below that in England. In 1894 the duty was reduced to $7.84 per ton and in 1909 to $3.92. At the end of this period of progressive, protective reduction, there had been established a great industry in this country and American railroads were able to buy domestic rails below the British price and at a lower price than iron rails had ever been purchased for in either country.

On pig iron, during the civil war, the duty was $9 per ton. In 1870 it was reduced to $7 per ton, and in 1873 to $6.30. In 1883 it was $6.72 per ton, and this was the rate until the democrats revised it downward in 1894 under the Wilson bill to $4. In 1909 the rate was reduced by a republican congress to $2.50.

In the Payne-Aldrich tariff, the rate on iron ore was reduced from 40 cents a ton to 15 cents a ton and the rate on iron in pigs, wrought and cast, was reduced from $4 a ton to $1 a ton, yet the value of exports of iron and steel manufactures, the rate being unchanged upon the finished product, increased from $144,951,357 in 1909 to $179,133,186 in 1910, and to $230,725,252 in 1911.

In the Payne-Aldrich tariff, the tax of fifteen per cent was taken off hides and they were admitted free, the rate on boots and shoes was reduced from twenty-five per cent to ten per cent, the rate on saddlery was reduced from thirty-five per cent to twenty per cent, and the rates on other manufactures of leather were much reduced. Yet under the reduced rates, the value of our exports of leather manufactures increased from $42,974,795 in 1909 to $52,646,755 in 1910, and $53,673,056 in 1911.

The rate on agricultural implements was reduced from twenty per cent to fifteen per cent, yet the value of exports of agricultural implements increased from $25,694,184 in 1909 to $28,124,033 in 1910, and to $35,973,398 in 1911.

THE SILK INDUSTRY BUILT UP ON FREE RAW MATERIALS.

The most striking proof, however, of our ability to manufacture in competition with the rest of the world is afforded by the history of the silk industry in the United States. The raw material of silk manufactures, unlike the raw material of manufactures of cotton and of wool, is not produced in the United States. Nor were the manufactures of silk regarded as necessaries of life, as manufactures of cotton and of wool undoubtedly are, and silk goods were considered peculiarly a European product.

MARVELOUS GROWTH FROM SMALL BEGINNINGS.

In 1869 there were only 139 silk establishments in the United States with a total capital of $2,926,980 and a value of products of only $6,607,771. In 1870 our output of silk was worth twelve million dollars; in 1880 it was forty-one millions. In 1883 the duty on raw silk was abolished. In 1890 our output of manufactured silk was worth eighty-seven millions; in 1900, — panic and protracted hard times having intervened — it was worth one hundred and seven millions; and in 1910, it was worth one hundred and ninety-six millions. In the decade between 1900 and 1910, manufactures of silk in the United States increased more than eighty-seven per cent, — or about four times as fast as population.

COMMAND OF THE RAW SILK SUPPLY LED TO CONTROL OF THE DOMESTIC MARKET.

While in the year 1868–1869, the importations of raw materials of silk manufactures into the United States aggregated only 726,695 pounds, with an invoice value of $3,312,726, the importations for the year 1909–1910 were 20,363,377 pounds — or twenty-eight times the weight of forty-one years before — and of the invoice value of $65,424,784 — or about twenty times that of the earlier period. The American consumption of raw silk is now far in excess of that of any other country, and imports have advanced in the last ten years by over eighty-three per cent, while the increase in imports of manufactured silk goods was only seventeen per cent.

WE MANUFACTURE MORE SILK AND AT LESS COST THAN ANY OTHER CIVILIZED NATION.

In the decade between 1899 and 1909, American manufactures of silk dress goods, the foreigner's specialty, doubled both in quantity and in value, and, with free raw silk, despite the duties on other raw materials of silk manufacture and the general protective cost level, silk was manufactured in the United States at a less cost than in Europe. I believe that the same would be true of every other product of American industry under like conditions.

THE DEMOCRATIC THREAT OF DESTRUCTIVE UPWARD REVISION.

But this situation does not suit the democratic party. Their first desire is to apply at any cost the theory of a "tariff for revenue only." The thing which made possible the phenomenal growth of the silk industry was the removal of the duty long imposed on imports of raw silk. To grow silk in this country has been found impossible. The duty had cut off revenue, the growth of the industry, wages and the creation of a supply within the reach of the people of an article of great use. The practice of taking off the duty on raw materials wherever proper has been responsible since the civil war for the guarantee to the silk industry of the advantage upon which its growth depended. The democratic majority of the house of representatives, however, in the recent session proposed to take up the revision of the silk schedule and the leaders announced that a twenty-five per cent duty on raw silk was to be imposed. The annihilation of the two hundred million dollar silk industry that would surely follow this anti-protection, "for revenue only," revision upward provision would be a high price for the American people to pay for an experiment in tariff making.

The average citizen would prefer the protective rates of the McKinley tariff, which transferred the tin plate industry to the United States and in a few years made us large exporters to the so-called reductions which annihilate domestic industries and place the United States at the mercy of the foreign producer for its supply.

It will be conceded that a slow reduction of the tariff which reduces and stays reduced is better than a quick reduction which does not reduce at all. Reduction that benefits the country and sticks is based upon the same theory of the general welfare as protection. The two go naturally together.

The systematic policy of tariff reduction was continued in the Payne-Aldrich tariff law.

On the basis of actual imports of merchandise during the thirty-four months that law had been in operation down to May 31, 1912, it appears that the amount of goods imported without paying duty was a considerably larger percentage of the total of importations than under the Wilson law or the Dingley law and that the average amount of duties paid per dollar both of dutiable imports and of all imports was very considerably lower.

THE TRUE POLICY IS TARIFF FOR PUBLIC REVENUE.

The Payne-Aldrich law produces ample revenue for the government with a larger free list than the Wilson law, which did not produce sufficient revenue, and with lower ad valorem rates both as to dutiable goods and as to all imports.

Under the Dingley law the average per cent of the imports that came in free was forty-four and three tenths per cent in value of the total importations; the average per cent in value of the imports which have come in free under the Payne law is fifty-one and two tenths per cent of the total importations. The reduction in duties from the Dingley law to the Payne law was ten per cent, and considering reductions on all imports, it amounted to twenty-one per cent.

THE MAXIMUM AND MINIMUM PLAN TO REDUCE THE TARIFF FOR AMERICAN ADVANTAGE.

The Payne-Aldrich law contained provisions for the imposition of minimum rates instead of maximum in the discretion of the president in return for equivalent consideration from other countries.

ENCOURAGEMENT TO AMERICAN INDUSTRY BY REDUCTION.

Whatever reasons may have existed for high protection in the past, none of them is valid to-day; the very considerations that brought about the imposition of high rates now operate in favor of reductions. The mistake of the republicans consisted in their failure to apply correct principles consistently and for the public benefit. The democrats will perpetrate a worse error if they abandon these principles.

In recent years the republicans have taken "encouragement to domestic production" to refer merely to the establishment of a greater aggregate price value for American products and not to the creation of more real wealth and welfare for the country. The denial to industry, for example, of free access to raw materials, and, to workers, of free access to necessaries of life, subtracts just so much from the working capital of the country, diminishes the annual product by a much greater amount, and acts not only as a discouragement to production but as an actual blight.

Even the farmer, who relies largely upon natural forces for his product and is subjected to the competition of the world market, and is, thus, actually concerned very little about the tariff on what he raises, pays much more in duties on the things he uses than could possibly be figured as his benefit from protection, — and this benefit, besides, he does not get. He, too, is discouraged. The discouragement arises from the artificial increase in the cost of production caused by the misapplication of the protective principle. With the demand in the home market for all the food products of the country, the farmer is relieved of his concern for protection to his product.

When we compare, therefore, the cost of production at home with the cost of production abroad, for the purpose of ascertaining what rates will equalize the cost, we should figure the cost at home as what it would be if domestic producers had free access to raw materials for their industries and untaxed necessaries of life for their workers. And this will not work unfavorably upon the domestic producers, if any, of the raw materials. With the cost of production at home lessened in this way there would be a decrease in the necessary compensation in the tariff rate and a diminished burden to be distributed among the different classes of producers, including domestic purveyors of raw materials and necessaries of life.

A tariff framed upon this basis would not create a constant necessity of increased protection but would open the door to all those influences which make for lower cost of production, such, for example, as increased consumption, wider and steadier markets, enlarged scale of production, and capacity use of men and machinery, and would tend to make protection unnecessary.

"Encouragement to domestic production," therefore, in the same way as a "tariff for revenue only," must be looked upon, under conditions existing at the end of a sixty-year test of high tariff rates, as an object to be attained only by the elimination of superfluous protection and a constant reduction of the tariff. With raw materials free and necessaries of life untaxed, there can be no question that the United States can produce manufactured articles which now enjoy protection at as low a cost as any other nation and protection will be to a greater extent superfluous and subject to be eliminated without damage to American industry.

NO REDUCTION WITHOUT A QUID PRO QUO.

But it does not necessarily follow that because protection is superfluous it should be eliminated. As the imposition of duties can be justified only on the ground of benefit to American industry, so is such benefit the only justification for the removal of a duty. A tariff tax is the price of admission to a market. In many cases the foreigner pays the price. If this condition exists without harm to American industry or the public welfare, it should not be disturbed except for a benefit to American industry and the American people. A market of one hundred million of the greatest consumers on earth is a possession of tremendous value. It is a possession of the American people. Every duty removed is a door opened to foreigners to enter upon this market. Every duty removed by the democratic congress without benefit or consideration to the American people will be a free gift to our foreign competitors of a valuable thing belonging to the American people.

NEITHER RETALIATION NOR FREE TRADE BUT FAIR TRADE.

The day for duties merely for protection to American industry has almost passed. But the time for free trade has not come. The régime of high protection established the policy of international retaliation but it merely postponed and made more desirable the day of fair trade. The policy of free trade would make impossible the establishment of fair trade and would not only throw away but would in addition forever rob of its highest use the country's most valuable possession — its market of one hundred million consumers.

RECIPROCITY THE TRUE BASIS OF TARIFF-LEGISLATION.

The advocates of free trade usually pride themselves upon being supporters of international peace, and of economic stability, and social justice. As a matter of fact, they are the victims of an illusion. The greatest possible harm to international peace would result from an Amercian policy of free trade. We should, it is true, be ready to open up our markets to foreign producers whenever it can be done without injury to our own people and we should at all times aim at the greatest volume of international trade which can be carried on with the greatest profit to the United States. But if it is true that we cannot sell unless we buy, so it is true that we cannot buy unless others buy from us. If we have the greatest market on earth, it is equally true that our greatest need is foreign markets. While formerly our exports were made up largely of food products, these have been relegated to a subordinate rank, and, according to present tendencies, before an interval of many years, we will be importers rather than exporters. The stimulation of manufactures has become necessary by reason of our decreased ability to export food owing to the demand for nearly all the product in the home market, and without a market such stimulation would be useless. If we are to continue to meet our foreign obligations, pay for foodstuffs and raw materials imported, and avoid actual national bankruptcy, an expanded market for American manufactures is absolutely imperative. In the year 1898, for the first time, we sent abroad a larger value of articles from our factories than we imported, and the value of manufactured articles, partly or entirely completed, reached a total of forty-five and seven hundredths per cent of our total exports in the year 1911, while exports of all classes of foodstuffs had fallen to nineteen and thirteen hundredths per cent. While our food exports attained a maximum volume in 1898, they had reached their maximum proportion of the total of productions in 1880.

Our need of foreign markets for our manufactures is so great that to give away any share of our market without a quid pro quo in return to the people of the United States would be little short of treasonable. The true policy of tariff reduction should have for its primary purposes to open to American manufactures the markets of the world. In other words, and in the last analysis, the beginning and ending of all tariff legislation in the United States should be the policy of commercial reciprocity.

SCIENTIFIC REVISION, A TARIFF COMMISSION, AND RECIPROCITY.

For the steady administration of any tariff, a permanent board of non-political experts, working in co-operation with our diplomatic service, our consular service, and the treasury department, can be of great usefulness to the country. The object of all scientific tariff-making is to adjust rates to changing conditions in the markets of the world. The true proposal for a tariff commission and for a scientific tariff is for the application of the policy of general reciprocity.

RECIPROCITY IS INTERNATIONAL CO-OPERATION.

Commercial reciprocity is an exchange of markets, a mutual gift of trade opportunities, the conferring of reciprocal privileges as regards customs or charges on imports and in other respects, the removal, by means of mutual agreements, of provisions for the protection of the domestic markets of two countries which constitute obstacles to trade between them; it is neither free trade nor commercial retaliation, but fair trade through a complement, correction, and counterbalance of the policy of protection, evidenced not by a surtax on goods coming from countries which discriminate against one another but by the substitution of minimum for maximum rates between countries which favor one another; it is a means of taking the tariff out of politics, a permanent basis for the automatic adjustment of trade relations to commercial and industrial needs, and for scientific tariff-making upon that basis, a remedy for commercial depression caused by tariff changes, a shock absorber on the road of tariff legislation, a stimulus to domestic production through the creation of markets for domestic products, a provision for the mutual exchange of commodities essential to the continued growth of export trade, for the taking from customer nations of such products as may be used without harm to domestic producers, in order that they may take the excess of domestic production above domestic consumption; it is the recognition and turning to use not only of domestic industrial and economic strength but that of other nations as well, the contemplation of the need the nations have for one another's resources, the substitution of commercial friendship and co-operation for the suspicion, distrust, and the industrial, political, and military reprisals which lead up to, constitute, and follow commercial war, and the broadest possible foundation of mutual self-interest between the nations for the superstructure of international peace.

RECIPROCITY THE BASIS OF NATIONAL WELFARE.

Reciprocity, in short, gets markets. The one thing without which industry cannot go on is the market. The one great requisite without which American prosperity cannot continue is the market for the products of American industry. We have built up through the artificial stimulus of protection the most wonderful productive forces ever combined in one nation. But this structure can escape ruin only with the aid of the natural stimulus of commercial reciprocity. Although our most inspired statesmen have urged this policy as just the one thing necessary for our economic welfare, it is just the thing successive administrations have failed to apply. Jefferson, Blaine, and McKinley, patron saints of two great opposing parties and advocates of two conflicting theories of tariff taxation, are the leaders among the many great American statesmen, who, though diametrically opposed to one another on almost every other economic policy, are agreed in their insistence upon the absolute necessity to the welfare of the United States of the policy of international reciprocity.

JEFFERSON THE FATHER OF RECIPROCITY.

During the first administration of Washington, in 1791, congress desired to do something for the development of the commerce and navigation of the United States, but felt itself lacking the necessary information on the subject. The house of representatives passed a resolution requesting the secretary of state to report to congress on the nature and extent of the privileges and restrictions of the commercial intercourse of the United States with foreign nations, and the measures which he should think proper to be adopted, for the improvement of the commerce and navigation of the same.

Mr. Jefferson's report, submitted after two years of inquiry into the facts, presents the conditions of our infant commerce of that day. Small as it was, the foreign restrictions upon the trade, and upon our vessels engaged in it, were extremely various and vexatious, especially in all that related to commerce with the colonies of European powers. After reciting them he asks the question, "In what way may they best be removed, modified, or counteracted?" He answers the question as follows: —

As to commerce, two methods occur: First, by friendly arrangements with the several nations with whom these restrictions exist; or second, by the separate act of our own legislature for countervailing their efforts. There can be no doubt but that, of these two, friendly arrangement is the most eligible.

Some nations, not yet ripe for free commerce, in all its extent, might still be willing to modify their restrictions and regulations for us in proportion to the advantages which an intercourse with us might offer. Particularly, they may concur with us in reciprocating the duties to be levied on each side, or in compensating any excess of duty by equivalent advantages of another nature.

Here was foreshadowed exactly the reciprocity of to-day. He proceeds as follows: —

But should any nation, contrary to our wishes, suppose it may better find its advantage by continuing its system of prohibitions, duties, and regulations, it behooves us to protect our citizens, their commerce and navigation, by counter prohibitions, duties, and regulations also. Free commerce and navigation are not to be given in exchange for restrictions and vexations; nor are they likely to produce a relaxation of them.

He prefaces his recommendations with this expression: —

The following principles, being founded in reciprocity, appear perfectly just, and to offer no cause of complaint to any nation.

He admits the inconvenience of a system of discriminating duties, but supports it as necessary to avoid greater evils; and comes to the following conclusion:

Still it must be repeated that friendly arrangements are preferable with all who will come into them; and that we should carry into such arrangements all the liberality and spirit of accommodation which the nature of the case will admit.

Here is absolute proof that Thomas Jefferson, at that early date, advocated reciprocity and recommended it as a ruling principle.

BLAINE THE PROPHET OF RECIPROCITY.

The great republican statesman, James G. Blaine, summed up his advocacy of this policy in the pithy phrase: "Reciprocity is the highest form of protection."

MCKINLEY, PROTECTION'S HIGH-PRIEST, BASED PROTECTION ON RECIPROCITY.

What will go down in history as McKinley's farewell address contained these paragraphs: —

Only a broad and enlightened policy will keep what we have. No other policy will get more. In these times of marvelous business energy and gain we ought to be looking to the future, strengthening the weak places in our industrial and commercial systems, so that we may be ready for any storm or strain.

By sensible trade arrangements which will not interrupt our home production we shall extend the outlets for our increasing surplus. A system which provides a mutual exchange of commodities is manifestly essential to the continued healthful growth of our export trade. We must not repose in fancied security that we can forever sell everything and buy little or nothing. If such a thing were possible it would not be best for us or for those with whom we deal. We should take from our customers such of their products as we can use without harm to our industries and labor.

Reciprocity is the natural outgrowth of our wonderful industrial development under the domestic policy now firmly established. What we produce beyond our domestic consumption must have a vent abroad. The excess must be relieved through a foreign outlet and we should sell everything we can and buy wherever the buying will enlarge our sales and productions, and thereby make a greater demand for home labor.

The period of exclusiveness is past. The expansion of our trade and commerce is the pressing problem. Commercial wars are unprofitable. A policy of good will and friendly trade relations will prevent reprisals. Reciprocity treaties are in harmony with the spirit of the times; measures of retaliation are not. If perchance some of our tariffs are no longer needed for revenue or to encourage and protect our industries at home, why should they not be employed to extend and promote our markets abroad?

GENERAL RECIPROCITY THE KEY TO FOREIGN MARKETS AND PROSPERITY.

There is a way to get the markets required for the development of American industry and to keep the wheels of industry going at full speed. Reciprocity is the way — reciprocity as a settled and general policy, a permanent part of a reasonable protective system. And reciprocity is the way to permanent general prosperity.

The case for reciprocity is proved by actual experience. We had reciprocity with Canada between 1854 and 1865. From the day it went into effect and until the civil war broke out, our exports to Canada rapidly increased. Reciprocity had been an unqualified success. The treaty was abrogated by us, not for commercial but for political reasons arising out of the civil war. We closed the door against Canada in 1865 and Canada refused to reopen it in 1911.

But reciprocity is not to be judged by our relations with Canada or any single country. Reciprocity is a policy for universal application.

THE RECENT CANADIAN TREATY NOT TRUE RECIPROCITY.

The case for general reciprocity should now be considered quite apart from Canadian experience. In fact the recent reciprocity treaty, which resulted in the opening of the American market to wood pulp without quid pro quo and put the American industry under free trade unconditionally and without reference to the acceptance of the treaty by Canada, is an illustration of what reciprocity is not and of what is not scientific tariff revision. Trade relations with only one country do not afford a basis for the consideration of international reciprocity. The great mistake in the Canadian treaty itself was that it was framed without reference to the general tariff system of the United States and without any consideration of the economic and political relations of either Canada or the United States with Great Britain.

THE TRADE COMMISSION TO CENTRAL AND SOUTH AMERICA.

There are other countries with which our trade is much more important than with Canada. The nearest to us are the republics of Central and South America. After much discussion, some investigation, and a little experiment, the opportunity for American products in Central and South America is still unseized. The commercial conditions existing among the countries of North America and South America are the same that existed in the United States before the adoption of the constitution. Alexander Hamilton, the father of protection, found it consistent with that doctrine, to remove all the restrictions upon commerce between the states. What followed justified his foresight. That other high-priest of protection, James G. Blaine, contemplated a policy of universal fair trade over both American continents, from Hudson's bay to Cape Horn. In 1881, President Arthur sent a trade commission to South and Central America to plan an American Zollverein or "Customs Union". The results were mainly educational, save that the Hawaiian reciprocity treaty was negotiated, with results that became important and historic in annexation twelve years later.

THE PAN-AMERICAN CONGRESS AND THE MCKINLEY BILL.

The second national impulse toward general reciprocity began in 1889, when Blaine again became secretary of state. The momentous Pan-American congress was then convened at Washington. To the representatives of All-America, as well as to our own congress, Mr. Blaine submitted his plan for an American customs union. The result was a clause in the McKinley tariff bill, then pending, providing that "the president be authorized without further legislation to declare the ports of the United States free and open to all the products of any nation of the American hemisphere, whenever or so long as such nation shall admit," the flour, cornmeal, breadstuffs, and so forth, of the United States free of all taxes. The secretary urged congress to seize this opportunity to open the markets of forty million people to the products of American farmers. But Blaine's plan was killed by the senate under leaders acting for the wool-growers and their allies, the beneficiaries of the wool tariff, the notorious schedule K. Nevertheless, a modified form of the Blaine proposal did get into the McKinley tariff bill of 1890. It was great in its consequences though wrought in a grudging spirit. For the principle was admitted and reciprocity was established as a permanent part of the American protective system. Under the "reciprocity section" of the McKinley tariff of 1890 the president was authorized to withhold free entry of certain free-listed goods — raw sugar, molasses, coffee, tea, and hides — from any nation that should refuse to grant us a quid pro quo.

A LITTLE RECIPROCITY PROVED A POWERFUL LEAVEN.

Under this niggardly provision a dozen trade agreements were entered into. All these agreements with foreign countries were greatly to our advantage. Germany abolished its long standing prohibition against American hogs, and gave us the full benefit of its "conventional" tariff on all agricultural products. Austria-Hungary gave us the rates of "the most favored nation" on 2,000 separate items of American export.

But all these reciprocity arrangements under section three of the McKinley bill were brought summarily to an end on August 27, 1894, by the passage of the Wilson tariff bill, which annulled that section.

Meanwhile this second national effort at general reciprocity had abundantly justified itself. It fell in an era of unprecedented commercial depression. It lightened that depression by a marked stimulation of foreign trade. Thus, for example, our annual exports to Germany just before the beginning of this experiment amounted to ninety millions. In the midst of the four-year period of reciprocity they rose to one hundred and three millions; and immediately after the cancelling of the reciprocity agreement they fell to eighty-eight millions.

RESULTS UNDER THE DINGLEY TARIFF JUSTIFIED RECIPROCITY.

Our third national movement toward general reciprocity began in 1897. The Dingley tariff bill empowered the president, with the consent of the senate, to make a reciprocity treaty with any country. He was authorized to offer three inducements: (1) Reduction of the duty upon any article in the whole tariff list, to the extent of not more than twenty per cent; (2) Transfer to the free list of any article that was a natural product of the foreign country, but not of ours; (3) Guaranty that any article on the free list should be kept there. Secretary Hay negotiated and signed eleven advantageous treaties with foreign nations under this section four of the Dingley act. They were all pigeon holed and killed in the United States senate by the same senatorial powers of privilege that cut the heart out of the Blaine reciprocity plan.

But the Dingley bill contained another reciprocity section — section three. Under this section certain limited reciprocity agreements could be entered into, without the consent of the senate.

Nine trade agreements have been made under section three, and seven of them are still in operation. Secretary Hay made extraordinary bargains with France, Germany, Italy, and Portugal.

Germany, for instance, conceded to all imports from the United States the full and unqualified benefit of her "conventional" tariff — a specially low tariff created by Germany for her European neighbors.

Without injury to a single American industry, without eliciting a single murmur of complaint in this country, Secretary Hay secured from Germany a guaranty against discrimination in any article of our export trade. This agreement, so cheaply purchased, was of marked political advantage also. It established more amicable relations than had ever before existed between the German and American peoples.

The immediate effect was a decided increase in our exports to Germany from $155,800,000 in 1899 to $191,800,000 in 1901, and to $249,555,926 in 1910. Our imports from that country in 1910 were $168,805,137.

This reciprocity agreement with Germany was terminated on the 7th of February, 1910.

FURTHER SUCCESS UNDER PAYNE-ALDRICH MAXIMUM AND MINIMUM PROVISIONS.

The Payne-Aldrich tariff contained provisions for the imposition of minimum rates instead of maximum in the discretion of the president in return for equivalent consideration from other countries. The minimum rates have been generally granted. Under this policy, the exports of the United States increased from a value of $1,744,984,720 in the year ending June 30, 1910, to a value of $2,204,422,409 in the year ending June 30, 1912, and imports increased in the same period from $1,557,819,988 in 1910 to $1,653,264,934 in 1912, an increase in the total volume of international trade from $3,302,804,708 to $3,857,687,343, and an increase in the excess of exports over imports from $187,164,732 to $551,157,475 or a difference of $363,992,743 in two years. We have given reciprocity several brief trials and in every trial our foreign trade has increased. Our experience has been just sufficient to show that reciprocal trade agreements always find a response in stimulated foreign trade.

OUR FAILURE TO APPLY GENERAL RECIPROCITY TO FOREIGN TRADE DISGRACEFUL.

But we cannot congratulate ourselves upon our success in building up a foreign trade. As a matter of fact, considering the obvious possibilities, the record of the United States is one of disgraceful failure. Our exports, it is true, almost equal those of Great Britain, but our population is twice as great, and our area thirty times as great. Our imports are about half those of Great Britain. Germany, with a population only two thirds as great and an area one eighteenth as great, almost equals us in exports and exceeds us by one third in imports. The volume of exports of the United States is, moreover, still made up largely of foodstuffs and crude materials for use in manufacture which our prosperity should require us to retain for our own use.

OUR NON-RECIPROCAL POLICY EXCLUDES AMERICAN MANUFACTURES FROM FOREIGN MARKETS.

The exports of Great Britain increased from $1,463,000,000 in 1904 to $2,094,467,000 in 1910, the latest year in which figures for comparison are available, or almost fifty per cent, and the imports from $1,051,000,000 to $3,300,738,000, or over three hundred per cent. The exports of Germany increased from $1,242,000,000 in 1904 to $1,778,969,000 in 1910, or more than forty-five per cent, and the imports from $937,000,000 to $2,126,322,000, or more than one hundred and twenty-five per cent. The exports of the United States increased from $1,117,000,000 in 1904 to $1,744,984,720 in 1910, an increase of fifty-six per cent and the imports increased from $731,000,000 to $1,557,819,998, or one hundred and nine per cent. Of the increase in the exports of the United States, however, twenty-five per cent was in exports to North America, and over twenty per cent was in agricultural products, which should be required at home by reason of expanding manufactures. Whereas a considerable part of the volume of exports from the United States is still made up of agricultural products, only about eleven per cent of the merchandise sold abroad by Germany can by the most liberal construction be classified as such. Great Britain, moreover, sends forth nothing of this class that cuts an appreciable figure. In 1904 the manufactures of Great Britain, our closest competitor, constituted eighty-two per cent of her sales to foreign countries, while farm products, including wool and hides, accounted for only three per cent of the remainder. Almost one dollar in every three which came to Great Britain from her foreign business was paid for textiles, while the United States received for these, out of every dollar, only two cents. Some sixty-five per cent of our total exports in 1904 are represented by the six items, cotton, provisions, breadstuffs, mineral oils, lumber, copper, and animals. Raw cotton alone represented twenty-five per cent.

FIFTY-EIGHT MILLION DOLLARS THE TOTAL INCREASE IN SEVEN YEARS OF AMERICAN EXPORTS TO THREE FOURTHS OF THE EARTH.

Our growth in exports to Europe was from $1,057,930,131 in 1904 to $1,308,275,778 in 1911, or less than twenty-five per cent as against an increase in exports to North America from $234,909,959 in 1904 to $457,059,179 in 1911, or almost one hundred per cent. The exports from the United States to Asia and Oceanica in 1904 aggregated $93,002,028 but in 1905 they reached $161,584,046, which figure they never reached again, being in 1911, only $151,489,741. The decrease from the 1904 total exports to Africa and other countries of $24,230,126 varied each year, the figure in 1911, being $23,600,607. The increase of exports to South America was from $50,755,027 in 1904 to $108,894,894 in 1911. This increase of fifty-eight million dollars in exports to South America represented the total gain in the exports of the United States to three great continents during the most progressive period of their history out of a total gain in exports of $896,549,000, or about six per cent increase in exports to an area outside of the North American continent equal to more than three quarters of the earth. The percentage increases, moreover, in the foreign trade of the United States are calculated upon aggregates representing beginnings disgracefully small. Despite these apparent increases the painful truth is that in foreign trade, the United States of America, the greatest and most progressive nation on earth, has not made a start.

GAIN ELSEWHERE LIMITED TO "DUMPED" PRODUCTS OF MONOPOLY.

Practically the only American manufacturers getting a substantial share of the trade in foreign markets are those enjoying a domestic monopoly and even they are required in most cases to sell their products in the foreign market at a far less price than the American people pay for them at home. The proportion of these products in our total exports is very large. Exports of manufactures of iron and steel, for example, including agricultural implements, practically all of which manufactures are monopolized in the United States and sold abroad at lower prices than at home, aggregated in 1912, $273,794,267, or almost fourteen per cent of our total exports.

WE ARE HOPELESSLY OUTSTRIPPED IN LATIN AMERICA.

Our failure is most conspicuous in Central America and South America. Until 1904 our exports thitherto remained practically stationary for twenty years, and to some countries we now sell less than we did eight, ten, and fifteen years ago. But the purchases of the countries in this territory have not remained stationary. The markets, always potentially great, have expanded under the efforts of European interests.

In 1904 we supplied less than thirteen per cent of the $374,000,000 bought in that year by South American countries. This means that South America spent seven dollars in Europe to every one dollar in the United States. In 1904 the South American countries took a less percentage of our total exports than in 1870. Yet South America presents a market of 45,000,000 people.

AFRICA BUYS ALMOST NOTHING FROM US.

In 1904, the total import of Africa was greater than that of all North America, but we supplied only five and one half per cent of it. And Africa presents a market of 170,000,000 people.

OUR EXPORTS TO ASIA INSIGNIFICANT.

In Asia, too, but for the improvement in the Japanese and Chinese trade, the showing would now be paltry. The total jump was made in one year and it was almost one hundred per cent upon the small total of our trade at that time. In China, in 1904, we sold less than eight per cent of the total import, and in Japan less than fifteen per cent, yet these two countries present a market of 475,000,000 people. Had each of these in 1903 bought ten cents' worth from us during the year, our export would have been $8,000,000 more than it was. Compare this with the fact that the purchases of Cuba from us at that time averaged fifteen dollars per head per annum and from Canada twenty-three dollars per head per annum.

ONE BILLION CUSTOMERS BUT NO BUSINESS.

These are the bases upon which the illusory percentages are figured. These are the true facts as to American progress in markets containing more than one billion potential customers outside of North America and Europe. Asia and Oceanica alone contain 900,000,000 inhabitants. Our rivals sell them twelve times as much as we sell them. It is estimated that our total exports of merchandise to all South America, Oceanica, and Asia combined, brought in 1904 a per capita return to the people of the United States of less than fifteen cents a month. The British East Indies, with a population of three and a half times that of our own country, spend ninety-eight and one half cents out of every dollar with other countries than the United States.

RECIPROCITY THE REMEDY FOR THE RESULTS OF EXCLUSION.

The conditions which have been set forth are the result of a deliberate policy of exclusion adopted and maintained by the government of the United States for a half century. These conditions can be brought to an end only by a deliberate policy of commercial reciprocity. The large quantities of sugar, wool, flax, and many other food products that we import from abroad do not come into competition in the ordinary sense with the domestic products. In many of these things we are not, and there is no indication that we ever shall be, able to supply our domestic demand from domestic sources. In some most important articles, like wool, hides and skins, lumber, and sugar, the domestic supply as compared with the demand, or even the consumption, is lessening all the time. Yet we have been unwilling to give either the domestic buyer or the foreign seller the benefit of any reduction in duties on this class of articles.

SUPERFLUOUS PROTECTION DESIGNED TO CLOSE FOREIGN MARKETS TO AMERICAN PRODUCTS.

The result of the policy of high protection has been three fold and it has been ruinous in every way. The tax on imports has been made a burden on production equivalent to a tax on the exportation of the goods into the cost of producing which the tax enters. Instead of a means of keeping foreign products out of the United States, it has become primarily the means of keeping the products of the United States out of foreign markets. The tax on imports has become a tax on exports. This policy has also established an artificial price level which has kept our products, without any advantage to the United States, out of foreign markets. And it has left unused the quid pro quo which we might offer, with benefit, in addition, to ourselves, of admission for the products of foreign countries free to our markets in exchange for admission of some of our products to theirs.

EXCLUSION DESIGNED FOR THE ADVANTAGE OF MONOPOLY.

As a matter of fact, American manufacturers are producing almost everything today cheaper than their foreign competitors. It is clearly obvious that the only need American manufacturers have of a tariff is to protect them in high exactions from American people. The sale of American goods abroad at a lower price than that demanded of domestic consumers is a fixed rule. The total cost of "making the market" is charged to the American consumer and the sales cost is a considerable proportion of the retail price, on many articles as much as one half. The establishment by fair competition of a reasonable price level would reduce the sales cost, or cost of distribution, in both the home market and in foreign markets. How much more could be sold in the foreign markets if only a reasonable "one-price" level were established and the import tax which works as an export tax were abolished! The average manufacturer would accept willingly a reduction in duties if he could be assured that a steadier and greater volume of sales would result. Every expansion of American industry beneficial to the people has resulted from such reductions. They have been too rare.

REDUCTIONS SHOULD BE MADE TO BENEFIT ALL.

Some Massachusetts shoe manufacturers were alarmed at the sale in this country of a small order of English shoes as a result of the recent reduction of the protection on shoes from twenty-five per cent, until it was pointed out that the same reduction was followed by an enormous increase of exports of Massachusetts-made shoes.

There is no reason why our people should not have the peculiar kind of shoes bought from England nor any reason why our manufacturers shouldn't be challenged to make them. That is the best possible lead for manufacturers who desire to capture foreign markets.

In the same way there is no reason why the Dutch standard of color should be maintained in the tariff on sugar to keep out the low priced pure dark sugar, which our people were formerly glad to use, just to give the sugar trust a monopoly of sugar refining.

Tariff reduction is, therefore, desirable in itself; reductions should be made wherever fairness and the common interest will permit them.

GETTING SQUARE WITH BIG BUSINESS A DANGEROUS BASIS OF REDUCTION.

The recent general increases in exports are made up largely of the products of the great monopolistic combinations. They have not been beneficial to American industry generally or to the people, and have resulted from superfluous rates of duty. The present high tariff has unquestionably fostered monopoly. The democratic congress is undoubtedly resolved upon a tariff policy that will punish the monopolies for their exactions from the people. But such a policy will surely result in two years or four years of depression under ill considered tariff legislation to be followed by a popular rebuke to the democrats for giving their attention to a rebuke to the monopolies instead of to the interests of the people, and the tariff will be made a political foot-ball for years to come. Emphatic notice should be served upon them that no rate in the existing tariff law should be changed unless it can be shown that such change will open up new markets to American industry, reduce the cost of production at home, or benefit the great mass of the American people.

Manufacturers must readjust their business to every change in the tariff and impending tariff changes are always regarded with apprehension by the business world and attended by commercial depression and hard times.

There is no justification for any tariff change which brings about such results. Such results are absolutely unnecessary. Tariff changes in the future should be such that they will be looked forward to by manufacturers as an assurance of new and favorable markets for their goods, or of opportunities to reduce the cost of production, by the commercial world as indications of better times, and by the people generally as a means of reducing the cost of living. Every tariff change should have its quid pro quo for the people and no legislator should dare to lay a finger upon existing rates except for the benefit of the people.

FOREIGN TRADE AND MERCHANT MARINE GO TOGETHER.

The same neglect which has resulted in our lack of foreign trade has caused us to be without an adequate merchant marine. We have abandoned the foreign markets and the carrying trade to other nations. The two go together. The total foreign trade of Great Britain for 1910 was $5,395,205,000; the foreign trade of the United States for that year was $3,302,804,708. The tonnage of the merchant navy of Great Britain in 1910 was 19,133,870; that of the United States for that year was 7,508,082. It is reasonable to suppose that an increase in our foreign commerce will result in an increase in our carrying trade and the establishment of an adequate American merchant marine.

BOTH MAKE FOR INTERNATIONAL PEACE.

Even if peace is to be preserved only by war, the enlarged merchant navy which an expanding foreign trade will produce is absolutely necessary. But in any case a merchant marine is a better aid to international peace than warships and commercial relations of mutual profit which produce the merchant navy are a surer guarantee of international friendship than treaties of peace or of arbitration.

It is the duty of congress to adapt its readjustment of tariff schedules through provision for reciprocal commercial agreements to the purposes of international peace. This may be done at the same time and by the same provisions by which our foreign commerce and our merchant marine are to be built up.

FOREIGN TRADE AND THE MERCHANT MARINE THE SOLUTION OF THE CURRENCY PROBLEM.

But all trade relations are reducible to terms of money. The test of an economic system is the financial system it produces. If congress cannot correct evils in the financial system of the United States through tariff changes no changes would better be made. The protection which has kept our products out of foreign markets has been an irresistible inducement to domestic competitors, limited to the home market, to combine to restrict production in that market, and thereby to secure the total margin of price between the low price level, where domestic competition ceases, and the high level, where foreign competition begins. This kind of protection has been the shelter for the exactions of monopoly, and the real cause of almost all restraint of trade. The tariff has been the mother of trusts but the tariff combine has been the trust of trusts. The monopolized industries of the United States have come into the power of the so-called money trust which has a monopoly of credit. The tariff has, in the same way as credit, been turned, by natural evolution and concentration, from its original purpose of stimulating domestic production to a means of holding American industry within such limits as suit the private interests which, as the political trust, has heretofore enjoyed, and may hereafter enjoy, the power, based upon its control of the tariff and monopolized industries and as the basis of such control, to manipulate credit.

A VOTE AGAINST RECIPROCITY A VOTE FOR THE SO-CALLED MONEY TRUST.

Now the basis of credit is gold. With the abandonment of our foreign trade and the carrying trade we abandoned our share in the control of the world's gold supply. By reason of our failure to secure markets for the potential products of our vast producing machinery we do not export enough to pay the interest on foreign money invested in the United States. We are a debtor nation. We lend no real money, we control no real money. Our financiers do not represent us but a foreign money power. Their tariff policy has not been inconsistent with their obligation to serve their foreign principals. Precisely the trap into which the unwary democratic legislator is likely to fall is the reduction of duties without reference to the opportunity of American manufacturers generally in the foreign markets and the favoring of importers, without quid pro quo, who are really allied with the foreign interests which profit by our monopolistic tariff policy of exclusion of our own products from foreign markets. The products of the monopolies get to foreign markets, it is true, but at a low price level for which American industry generally and the American consumer must compensate in the payment of artificially high domestic prices. The purpose of tariff reductions should be to bring about as low a price level at home as that met by our monopolies in foreign markets, so that not foreign consumers and foreign producers may profit from those prices but our consumers and our producers as well and so that all may enjoy equal opportunities to get trade in foreign markets. Under such a system our merchant marine will expand and we shall retain part of the three hundred million dollars in freight money paid by us to foreign shipowners for carrying freight originating and controlled in large part in the United States and the amount to be added thereto by the expansion of the carrying trade of our merchant marine. Freight money means gold and a free American merchant marine means an unconcentrated American control of gold, the basis of credit. Since it is universally conceded that the chief difficulty in our financial system is the concentration of the control of credit and the unreal and therefore inelastic basis of our banking credits represented by bonds which, as the president says, the government made the basis of our banking and currency system fifty years ago only that it might market them, it is evident that the real remedy for the evils of our banking and currency system is to draw a share of the world's gold to our banks through the earning of freight money in the carrying trade and the expansion of our foreign trade to that end through reciprocity. It is in this same way and in no other that proper financial credit is to be apportioned to agricultural enterprise and the grip of the so-called money trust on natural resources, through their use of other people's money and their monopoly of credit, is to be loosened. In all these things the legislator's mind should dwell upon the quid pro quo for the whole American people and the application of the principle of reciprocity, for that is the beginning and the ending of the true method of tariff making in the interest of the American people.

RECIPROCITY AND THE PANAMA CANAL THE BEGINNING OF A NEW ERA.

The opening of the Panama canal will inaugurate a new era in commercial history. Distances hitherto almost prohibitive of trade will be utterly annihilated. The ends of the earth will be brought within reach of one another for the transportation of commodities. The American people should celebrate this event by bringing their industries, through reciprocity, into communication with the most distant markets and preparing to share in the tremendous increase of foreign trade to which the opening of the canal will give its impetus. The policy of reciprocity is just as workable as the policy of high protection or the policy of free trade. The main difference between these policies and the policy of reciprocity is that reciprocity alone aims neither at retaliation nor the abandonment of the power to retaliate, but at the recognition of that power in others, and at the use of that power not for mutual damage but for mutual benefit.

THE LEGISLATURE'S DUTY TO MEMORIALIZE CONGRESS.

Gentlemen of the general court: A large majority of you are republicans. Yet you stood with the democrats, in the political revolution which we have witnessed, for a common principle. If you had not done so, this revolution would not have been brought about. You know that democratic victory in the last election was a declaration for protective downward revision through the application of the policy of general reciprocity — the Massachusetts plan of constructive tariff reduction. But you also know that precisely the reverse of this plan is likely to be put into effect by the democratic congress, a non-protective, tariff for revenue only, unreciprocal, destructive upward and equally destructive downward revision. It is your right, it is your privilege, it is your duty to memorialize congress in behalf of this commonwealth against such a peril to the interests of Massachusetts. The president has invited all, irrespective of party allegiance, to co-operate with him in the purposes outlined in his inaugural address. Sound tradition and good principle justify a memorial of a state legislature to congress. I recommend that through such a memorial you communicate to congress the desire of the people of Massachusetts that in all tariff making it apply the principle of protective reduction through reciprocity to the end that the tariff question may be put in the way of permanent settlement and a progressive policy of development of American commerce entered upon.

WHAT RECIPROCITY AND PROTECTIVE REDUCTION WILL DO.

Let the United States get her foodstuffs free of duty, and free raw materials for her industries, and her manufacturers will not only not ask for unreasonable rates to protect their manufactured products but will soon give willing consent to constant reductions until a fair trade basis the equivalent of a free trade basis shall be, if ever, safely reached. Equal opportunity in the home market and a fair chance in the foreign market is all that the American manufacturer asks. With the reduction of the tariff will come an expansion of our foreign trade. When we have secured the foreign markets, concern for the home market will be past. Unless we gain the foreign markets, the home market will cease to expand to its normal measure. Increased exports will bring about the establishment of an American merchant marine; the drawing of American freight money to our banks will strengthen our financial position, give us profits that we now abandon to other nations, and furnish us with a basis of a sound monetary system. The carrying trade is, thus, an integral part of a national system of industry and commerce. Free intercourse with other nations has a value in itself. A merchant marine is a better aid to international peace than warships, and commercial relations of mutual profit are a surer guarantee of international friendship than treaties of peace or of arbitration. With the policy of reduction should be coupled, therefore, a program of reciprocal trade agreements with all nations. To fail to reduce the tariff and to abandon reciprocity at this time, is to abandon the future of American commerce, to give up hope, and to give way to complacency — or despair. The republican attitude assumed that there are no more markets open to American producers. We should say most emphatically that to the products of American labor no market should be closed. Take off that part of the price which results from superfluous protection and the demand will be increased fifty per cent in the domestic market alone and, through his new found power to compete and sensible reciprocity arrangements, the American manufacturer will have his share in the new commerce to arise from the opening of the Panama canal and the American people will have their part in the expansion of every continent on earth.

[To the honorable senate and house of representatives, April 7, 1913.]

Herewith I return without my approval An Act to establish the office and salary of the chief deputy sheriff for attendance upon the superior court of the county of Suffolk.

Under the revised statutes the sheriff is given full authority to appoint deputies who, under proper bonds and regulations, may perform certain duties of the sheriff. No exigency therefore exists for the appointment of any special deputy at an increased salary as provided in this bill. The measure therefore resolves itself to the authorization by the legislature of an increased compensation for one county employee in distinction from many others who will continue to perform duties of the same general nature, without such increase.

I would, therefore, draw the attention of the legislature to my message of March 24, 1913, in disapproval of An Act to establish the salaries of officers in attendance at civil sessions of the municipal court of the city of Boston, which provided substantial increases of salary for two of these officers above the regular compensation of the other court officers.

My objection to these and other similar measures rests on my conviction that the adjustment of salaries should be made upon a general basis and with equitable regard to the public service and the taxpayers. I believe it is impossible to accomplish equitable results by special legislation of this character, and I again urge upon the general court the necessity of referring to a special committee the careful analysis of the public pay roll, in order to arrive at recommendations which shall meet the situation as a whole. The present tendency leads toward the bestowal of special favors upon individuals rather than an adjustment of expenditures which will be fair to all. Such a legislative study was authorized by the legislature of 1903, and a readjustment of salaries was then effected. Conditions have doubtless changed during the ten years since that adjustment was made, and, in my opinion, the time has come for a new adjustment in which the interests of the taxpayers, and the interests of the public service shall be most thoroughly conserved.

[To the honorable senate and house of representatives, April 7, 1913.]

I return herewith, without my approval, An Act to authorize the city of Boston to appropriate money to be added to the rental of the East Boston tunnel, and providing in effect, though not in substance, that the sums now collected through the one cent toll are to be collected by direct taxation from the taxpayers of Boston.

I earnestly desire to see the East Boston tunnel freed from the present toll; but a careful examination of this measure indicates clearly that that result cannot be reached by this means.

The tunnel was built through bond issues, which were taken up by individuals, and it is a condition incorporated on the face of these bonds that the receipts from tolls are pledged to the payment of the interest thereon.

Many of these bonds are held by citizens of Boston who, if this bill becomes a law, will be obliged to pay in part the guaranteed dividends on their investment, through their taxation. I am advised that any individual bondholder who objected to this procedure could nullify the proposed law by application to a court of jurisdiction.

Moreover, the attorney-general, under date of March 12, 1913, rendered an opinion to the legislature that the bill as then drafted was unconstitutional. That bill provided, under section 1, that money should be raised by taxation to apply to the payment of the interest and sinking fund requirements for the bonds issued for the construction of the East Boston tunnel. Subsequently to this decision the bill was amended by striking out the provisions that the funds thus raised by taxation should be applied to the payment of interest on the bonds. Clearly, the present bill represents only an attempt to circumvent the constitutional objections as pointed out by the attorney-general.

Furthermore, the measure provides that the appropriation of $125,000 to be raised by taxation for the purposes of this bill may be initiated by the mayor or the city council. The amendments to the Boston city charter, as authorized by chapter 486 (section 3) of the acts of 1909, provide that such appropriations shall be initiated only by the mayor. The proposed bill therefore sets aside one of the principal provisions of the new city charter by authorizing the city council to initiate appropriations.

This proposed bill, furthermore, illustrates notably the absurdity of the present situation, in which the people of Boston are exclusively taxed to maintain improvements which are of benefit chiefly to the suburban communities. In the present instance, the tunnel offers to the people of Revere, Chelsea and other communities to the eastward of Boston, but beyond the city limits, a means of quick access to Boston. It improves the value of their property and enables them to take a more remunerative part in the industrial and business affairs of our metropolis. The same is true of many other city improvements which, under our existing methods, are constructed and offered gratis by the city of Boston to the residents of our suburban communities.

[To the honorable senate and house of representatives, April 7, 1913.]

Herewith I return without my approval An Act to establish the salary of Thomas J. Gorman as messenger of the municipal court of the city of Boston.

My objections to this measure are the same as those I expressed in my veto of March 24th, relative to an act establishing the salaries of the officers in attendance at the civil sessions of the municipal court in the city of Boston.

In substance these objections were to the effect that no general adjustment of salaries has been made on broad lines since 1903, and that in my judgment further revisions of salaries should now be made only after the adjustments then authorized have been reviewed as a whole, in the attempt to meet whatever changes of conditions have arisen since that time.

[To the honorable senate and house of representatives, April 7, 1913.]

Herewith I return without my approval An Act to increase the salary of the chaplain at the Massachusetts reformatory.

The present salary is $2,000, the same as the salary of the chaplain at the state prison. The proposed increase to $2,500, instead of rectifying any disparity in the present pay roll of the commonwealth, merely introduces another inequality in favor of one individual.

In this connection, as in my earlier message of this date relative to a public employee of the county of Suffolk, I earnestly request that the legislature authorize some adequately constituted committee to investigate the entire subject of salaries of public servants, as was done under authority of the legislature of 1903.

I believe that no useful purpose can be accomplished by an attempt to adjust individual salaries separately. This method beclouds the main issue, and in the attempt to meet the requirements of some specific case leaves out of the account the organization and administration of the public service as a whole.

[To the honorable senate and house of representatives, April 10, 1913.]

I note with much interest that several measures are pending before the legislature on the subject of municipal markets and distributing stations for foodstuffs, coal and other necessities of life, as a means of meeting the high cost of living.

In my judgment it will require the fullest legislative inquiry in order to determine in general whether such plans of municipal or public distribution are desirable.

However, there is one conspicuous possible application of the principle of public distribution to which I earnestly direct your attention: — namely, the distribution of pure milk from Massachusetts farms for Massachusetts consumption.

In the present status of the milk industry in Massachusetts, the farmer is undoubtedly receiving on the average a price which does not return him any direct profit; and I am informed that cattle are now being kept upon the farms of this commonwealth only because they form an integral part of the general farming operations.

The farmer is receiving on an average considerably less than one half the price paid by the consumer. Under these circumstances it is not strange that the number of milch cattle in this state has been diminishing at the rate of 3,300 cows per year for the past five years, according to the returns of the assessors.

Here is obviously a condition which calls for immediate legislative attention, because the abandonment of dairy operations in this commonwealth renders the public dependent upon milk imported into the state from a considerable distance and from sources of supply which are beyond any effective and continued control by Massachusetts authorities.

An adequate supply of pure, fresh milk is one of the prime requisites of a community, and any state policy under which this supply must be taken from other states and from Canada, as at present, reveals a menace to the public health.

A further handicap under which the dairy business is now conducted in Massachusetts is the policy of the contractor, who mixes the milk from Massachusetts dairies with milk received from outside the state. The contractor is therefore in a position to demand from the Massachusetts farmer a supply of the highest grade, but the public does not benefit by this, for the reason that the contractor mixes this milk with inferior supplies which he imports from New York, Canada and other shipping points. At the same time the Massachusetts farmer is compelled to accept a low price for his milk under the continued apprehension that if he does not accept these prices he will lose his trade altogether inasmuch as the contractor is now free to seek his supply wherever he pleases provided he maintains an average quality which will suit the legal requirements of the commonwealth.

Until these conditions are changed little can be expected in the way of health protection by increasing the severity of the regulations under which the Massachusetts farmer now operates, as the tendency of these added restrictions will be to still further diminish the supply of Massachusetts milk and increase the proportion of our total supply which is now drawn from distant points, — the latter milk reaching the consumer after from forty-eight to sixty-four hours delay.

In view of all these circumstances I deem it my duty to call your attention to the method of milk production under public auspices and of milk distribution by public agencies now being followed successfully in and around New York city.

The municipality of New York owns and operates fifty-five retail milk distributing depots located in those sections of the city where the population is densest and poverty the most common. At these stations milk of the best quality is distributed in sealed containers to all comers at a moderate price. These stations are not strictly competitors of the general milk contractors and dealers, inasmuch as no milk is distributed from them by teams.

The milk supplied to these distributing depots comes from a central dairy station established in the dairying communities of the state. All milk cans and containers used by the farmers are sterilized and sealed at this station, received by the farmers and returned filled with the next milking. The station is thus responsible for the cleanliness of the dairy utensils and the farmer is held responsible for the cleanliness of his stock and barns. All milk immediately upon its receipt is tested and graded either as "Grade A," "Grade B," or "Grade C."

"Grade A" corresponds, roughly, to our "certified milk" in that it possesses a very low count of bacteria. For this milk the farmer receives the maximum price.

"Grade B" consists of that milk which falls below "Grade A" but which is still wholesome for human consumption.

Under "Grade C" are included all other deliveries which are accepted by the stations but which are required to be sterilized before being used for human consumption.

A system has been worked out by which these tests can be made promptly and accurately. The tests of each delivery are recorded and those farmers whose average shows the highest monthly quality are given, in addition to their cash payments, a substantial bonus.

By the New York method, the farmer is encouraged to produce the best milk and the public is guaranteed an immediate delivery of first-class milk from nearby sources, in a fresh state and at a moderate price.

I am informed that under this method of distribution in New York city the infant death rate has been reduced to the lowest point ever recorded in that city. Inasmuch as all our current discussion of the milk question is based on the needs of children for pure milk, I believe that the success of the New York plan is very significant.

Under the existing method in Massachusetts, the farmer loses his due share of the profit by reason of the exactions of the contractor. The public has no guarantee of high grade milk because of the large shipments which the contractors receive from other states and which therefore cannot be fresh when received, although they may satisfy the requirements of law as regards infection and contamination.

Having in mind the obvious dangers of unwise legislation in regard to further handicapping the Massachusetts milk industry, and having also in mind the statement of federal dairy authorities that, notwithstanding the disadvantages I have mentioned, Massachusetts ranks among the first four states in respect to purity of milk, — I believe we may safely proceed along lines substantially the same as those known as the "New York" plan.

I further believe that encouragement should be given to Massachusetts dairymen by the legislature, and that a liberal appropriation should be made to the state board of agriculture for distribution among practical dairy farmers in the way of prizes for superior product, and the spreading of information leading to more economical production and handling of milk and milk products.

[To the honorable senate and house of representatives, April 15, 1913.]

Following my veto message of April 7th, in relation to house bill 2186, I transmit herewith the draft of a bill which I believe, if enacted, will lead to abolishing legally the existing East Boston tunnel toll.

I am fully in sympathy with the effort to remove this toll, and for this reason I am anxious to see effective legislation enacted to this end.

The accompanying bill authorizes the city of Boston, subject to the ratification of the people at the next city election, to appropriate from the tax a sum of money sufficient to meet the situation, provided the holders of the existing tunnel construction bonds consent to a waiver of the pledge expressed on the face of such bonds, that the whole amount of the tolls shall be devoted to meet the principal and interest of the bonds. If a majority of the voters of Boston ratify this measure, I believe that the bondholders will readily agree to its terms.

[To the honorable senate and house of representatives, April 15, 1913.]

Herewith I return without my approval An Act to prohibit the use of common drinking cups in public places.

Chapter 428 of the acts of 1910, authorized the state board of health to prohibit the providing of common drinking cups in "such public places, buildings, or vehicles, as it may designate."

Under the authority of that statute, the board of health has issued regulations prohibiting common drinking cups in public parks, streets, railroad stations, railroad cars, steam, or ferry boats, and in any building or premises used as a public institution, hotel, theatre, public hall, or public school.

The present bill, if approved, cancels the authority of the board of health and makes a sweeping prohibition against the use of common drinking cups in all the before mentioned places and also in any place of business where more than twenty-five persons are employed.

I am advised, on the highest medical authority, that the public health is safeguarded in respect to public drinking cups, by the before mentioned statute of 1910, so far as legislation of this sort can accomplish that result.

I am convinced that even the existing law acts to interfere seriously with the free use of drinking water by the general public and that such use is necessary to health, particularly during the summer season.

It is true that this law has led to the very general use of particular types of waxed paper cups, but these cups are now handed about from mouth to mouth and they do not reveal the presence of injurious matter as readily as a clear glass cup.

There is grave reason to question whether the introduction of these patented cups has really served the purpose upon which arguments for their introduction were based.

Moreover, it is common experience that there still remain very many public places, previously supplied with abundant drinking water, in which no such supply is now available. The statute is therefore acting, as I have said, to cut down seriously the consumption of water and it undoubtedly favors the use of other beverages less desirable from the standpoint of public health.

I particularly object to that clause of the bill which prohibits the use of drinking cups in places of business as I believe that any unnecessary restrictions upon the use of drinking water in such places, by working people, is objectionable.

Whatever dangers may arise from possible infection through contaminated drinking glasses, may be very largely removed by cleansing these under running water. So generally is this admitted that to a great extent surgeons are now using running water to cleanse their surgical instruments, whereas formerly powerful disinfectants would have been utilized.

I heartily favor the wide introduction of the so-called "bubble" water fountains in public places and in places of business, factories, and workshops, but I believe that legislation which, without securing this result, merely prohibits the use of common glass vessels, is distinctly against the public health. Its sole argument rests on the possible dangers from dirty glasses and wholly ignores the universal necessity of an abundant supply of drinking water.

I believe that the board of health can be safely trusted to prescribe and administer all necessary regulations in this respect. If this is not true then the legislature, and not the board of health, should assume all the responsibilities regarding the public health, now resting upon that board.

[To the honorable senate and house of representatives, April 16, 1913.]

Herewith I return without my approval An Act to increase the powers of the Cambridge Electric Light Company, and bestowing upon that corporation the right to generate, distribute, and sell steam and other forces, except gas, for light, heat, power and other lawful uses, and authorizing it to construct, maintain, and operate all necessary machinery, pipes, conduits, and other equipment for such purposes.

This measure would give to the Cambridge Electric Light Company an extension of corporate rights, powers, and privileges of a far-reaching character. It authorizes the corporation to construct conduits or other means of transmission as may be necessary through the public streets, and wherever required; but it proposes no sort of regulation over these new classes of service other than the existing laws relative to electric light companies within their customary field of service.

This measure furnishes an illustration of the present tendency to confer extremely valuable additional rights upon existing companies and thus in effect to reconstruct them under a far more valuable franchise than they originally held, but without any equivalent return to the public. Legislation of this sort is objectionable and dangerous.

This bill also shows the great importance of providing immediately, without equivocation, for the more effective public regulation of our public service corporations before bestowing additional legislative benefits upon any such existing corporations.

[To the honorable senate and house of representatives, April 18, 1913.]

Herewith I return, without my approval, An Act to establish a standard for butter and oleomargarine, and providing punishment for dealers who sell butter containing more than sixteen per cent of moisture.

While this law belongs to the general class of pure food laws, and while I am heartily in sympathy with the protection of the public health through suitable legislation, I feel that this law, if approved, would serve to discredit the general plan of equitable health regulating legislation.

I am informed that good butter normally contains eleven per cent of moisture; that this percentage may be slightly greater if the butter is not sufficiently worked subsequent to churning; and that there is no simple and economical test by which the exact percentage of moisture can be determined.

Whether a tub of butter contains eleven or sixteen per cent of moisture can be determined only by a laboratory test which involves considerable expense; for example, from two to five dollars per test. The butter dealer, unable to determine for himself the exact amount of moisture, is condemned by this bill to pay a heavy fine if the moisture exceeds sixteen per cent, irrespective of his entire ignorance of the conditions under which the butter was made and of the fact that the greater part of our butter is supplied from distant points. Therefore, in order to comply strictly with this law, the dealer will be compelled to test each shipment, or even each tub or package of butter, and this inevitably will bring an immediate rise in the retail price of butter, probably amounting to several cents per pound.

If this increase in price were necessary for the protection of the public health I would sign this bill notwithstanding. But the issue in this instance is not the introduction of any injurious substance into the butter, but merely that of excess moisture.

In my judgment, the case does not justify either the imposition of a fine upon a dealer guiltless of unlawful intention, or the rise in the price of this commodity which would follow the enforcement of the law.

The Massachusetts dairy interests operate at present under such unfavorable conditions that the larger part of our butter is imported from other states. The trade thus comes under the jurisdiction of the federal government which has very properly established rigorous laws relative to butter and other foodstuffs. Two of these laws relate specifically to oleomargarine and to butter, and under both laws a limit is fixed for the percentage of moisture which shall be permitted.

In my judgment, the enforcement of these laws should be left to the federal government, the only agency which can reach the real source of the trouble, namely, — the producer who is unscrupulous or careless in the manufacture of his product. This is the custom followed now very generally in regard to meats and package goods and, in my judgment, it is entirely applicable to the butter industry.

I would earnestly warn against the passage of legislation which, while it purports to safeguard the public health, will have for its chief result the imposition of some added burden or hardship upon the people.

[To the honorable senate and house of representatives, April 22, 1913.]

Herewith I return without my approval senate bill 212, being An Act relative to the listing of voters in the city of Boston.

Under the codification of election laws provided by chapter 560 of the acts of 1907, the listing of voters in Boston is effected under a listing board, by the police officers through visits made to every building in the city and a diligent inquiry to ascertain the names, ages, occupations and residences of persons eligible to vote. This work is done through the first seven week days of April. (See amendment section 2, chapter 440, acts of 1909.)

To provide for the registration of voters subsequent to this general listing, the police commissioner maintains at police headquarters, in Pemberton square, the requisite office equipment for investigating and passing upon the applications of all such persons. The office is open for this purpose for about six months between April first and the state election, and this year will be open for an additional month or six weeks between the state and city elections. During the last month prior to an election the office hours are from 6 A.M. to 10 P.M., and on the last day of the registration period the hours are from 6 A.M. to 12 midnight.

This work of registration requires the attendance of police inspectors and clerks in order that all applications may be properly prepared and sworn to. The listing system is admirably administered and out of the total registration of over 200,000 voters an average of only about 800 voters appear for registration subsequent to the regular listing.

The police department of the city of Boston is, in my judgment, one of the best administered police bodies in the world and, in all matters affecting the efficiency of that department, I invariably seek the advice of commissioner O'Meara. Having done so in the present instance, I have been informed by the commissioner that if this bill is enacted into law the regular police work of his department will be badly interfered with, inasmuch as the measure requires that not only police headquarters, but all the station houses within the city of Boston, be operated as places of registration for voters throughout a period of several months each year. Nevertheless, the average number of individuals for whose benefit each station house would be operated as a place of registration, is not more than forty-five, the grand total of persons eligible to vote in Boston, and not listed, but applying for subsequent registration, being about 800.

The police commissioner has thoroughly established the entire system of centralizing registration at police headquarters and, unless grave reasons exist for changing this plan, I cannot approve of throwing open all the station houses of Boston to this work of registration.

The proposed bill places upon the captains and lieutenants at the station houses a form of duty entirely outside the scope of their regular police work and it is of the utmost importance that these men, instead of being burdened with additional clerical duties, should be left as free as possible to carry on the work for which they are employed, namely, — the protection of the city from crime and the preservation of public order.

Another reason for disapproving the present bill is that under its provisions each station house would become a center of political activity. Candidates and their campaign workers would recognize in the bill a new agency for enlisting the support of the voters and of conducting them in person to the nearest place of registration and supervising the work of registration in their own interests. For these various reasons I believe the bill is a step in the wrong direction.

[To the honorable senate and house of representatives, April 28, 1913.]

Herewith I return without my approval An Act relative to the conveyance of destitute, neglected, abandoned or lost children, which provides that no such child shall be conveyed in a patrol wagon to a station house or to a court house except in extreme cases of emergency.

Patrol wagons are now used in Boston for the conveyance of lost children when, in the judgment of the police, no other means of taking care of them is more desirable.

When a child is lost the first consideration is to restore it to its parents or guardian, and for this purpose a policeman may at his discretion take the child on foot or by trolley car to the nearest station house. A description of the child is then telephoned to all the station houses throughout the city, and the child is thus put into communication with its parents or guardians with the least practicable delay.

There are sometimes instances in which the use of the patrol wagon for the conveyance of such children appears to be the only practicable measure, — in cases for example where the patrolman is unable to leave his beat or the condition of the child calls for the quickest possible attention.

In protesting against this proposed measure commissioner O'Meara says that he "cannot appreciate the humanity which forbids the quick conveyance of children in covered vehicles sheltered from the weather and from observation and would prefer that in the custody of policemen they should be led through the streets or carried in street cars, exposed to the gaze and comments of the curious public."

Last year 2,069 lost children were restored to their parents by the Boston police, and of these 538 were conveyed in patrol wagons.

While I have specifically referred to the case of lost children, the same reasons hold with respect to abandoned or neglected children as well. In each instance the child must be taken care of in the most advisable and expeditious manner.

There may be objections to the use of a patrol wagon in any other than a criminal case, and I would greatly prefer to see these wagons provided with ambulance signs, as is now done in some centers.

In further objection to this measure, I quote as follows from a letter of protest against this bill from commissioner O'Meara dated April 14th: —

> It is a peculiarity of bills of this character that while magnifying the smaller matters they overlook the larger. The Boston police in 1912 had to do with 2,248 delinquent or wayward children. Of these, 1,409 were before the courts on summonses and were therefore presumably not under physical arrest. But there were 939 who were actually arrested, with or without warrants. All were under seventeen years of age and according to the juvenile law the proceedings against them are not to be regarded as criminal; but the proposed statute gives them no consideration. The Boston police department, on the contrary, long ago appreciated the situation, and a rule which has been in force for years provides as follows: —
>
> "No prisoner under seventeen years of age shall be carried in a vehicle which is occupied at the same time by prisoners above that age; but when an enclosed van is used a prisoner under seventeen years of age may be placed in a compartment separated from that occupied by the older prisoners; and in emergencies, or when a prisoner under seventeen years of age has been arrested in the company of an older person or for complicity in the same offence, such prisoner may be carried in the same vehicle with persons above seventeen years of age, provided a police officer accompanies them within the vehicle."
>
> That standing rule represents, in my opinion, the limit to which humane feeling can be carried if tempered by common sense and practical necessity.

[To the honorable senate and house of representatives, April 29, 1913.]

House bill 340, recently enacted, to prohibit the misuse of the flag of the United States, will go into effect on May tenth and will prohibit the importation or sale of any commodities carrying the representation of the United States flag.

Earnest representations have been made to me that this act will impose great hardship upon many thousands of dealers throughout the commonwealth, unless it is so amended as to give the merchants of the state sufficient time to dispose of such goods as they have already ordered or have in stock, upon which the prohibited imprint appears.

I therefore request that the legislature consider the enactment of an amendment to chapter 464 of the acts of 1913, deferring the date when it shall go into effect for a sufficient period to meet the manifest necessities of the merchants of the state.

[To the honorable senate and house of representatives, April 30, 1913.]

I return herewith, without my approval, house bill No. 2151, being an act relative to the enrolment of members of political parties and to the changing and cancellation of party enrolment.

The law now provides that in order to effect a change in enrolment in a party at any primary, such change must be made ninety days before the date of the primary by appearance in person before the election commissioners of Boston, the city clerks in other cities and the town clerks in towns.

House bill No. 2151 extends such time to the last day for filing nomination papers for such primary, which in the case of a primary for a regular election is the fourth Tuesday preceding the primary, and in the case of a primary for a special election, the second Tuesday preceding the primary.

Therefore, in effect, it grants an extension of time for making changes in party enrolment. It recognizes the hardship imposed upon the voters by party enrolment, but in my opinion does nothing to relieve it.

The difficulty at present arises not from the necessity of appearing before the constituted authorities ninety days before a primary, but in being compelled to make such appearance at all. Men find it difficult to attend to such matters during working hours, the offices of the election commissioners or city or town clerks are rarely open evenings, and it is generally a matter of great inconvenience to the voter to make such visit even when his mind turns towards such a question of politics.

The general experience has been that voters give little attention to such matters until immediately prior to the primaries. This statement receives ample demonstration in the fact that although a great new political party was created at the last election, with thousands of avowed followers, the number of voters enrolled in such party at the present date is almost infinitesimal.

House bill No. 2151 has been passed in response to a petition to allow voters to change their party enrolment at the time of voting at the primary. It is obvious that the spirit of the petition is not in the least respected by the bill as it stands.

In my opinion the proper remedy is the abolition of party enrolment, with a party column ballot in the primary and the confining of voters to the column of one party if party responsibility is deemed desirable.

As former lieutenant governor Luce has said, "The open primary leads to a greater participation in the nominating process. Tradesmen, clerks, employees of all sorts, and many professional men who feel the loss of usefulness or profit if they take sides in politics, are kept away by the closed primary." If the legislature is unwilling to surround the voter with the same safeguards in making his choice between parties at the primaries that it has surrounded him with in making his choice between candidates at the election under the Australian ballot, then I believe it should at least go as far as does the original bill which accompanied the petition on which this act was based.

[To the honorable senate and house of representatives, May 2, 1913.]

Herewith I return without my approval An Act to provide that veterans of the Spanish war and the Philippine insurrection shall receive certain credits in civil service examinations.

Substantially the same measure was passed by the legislature of 1912. In vetoing the measure at that time I said: —

> Our existing civil service rules afford extra credit, with respect to "experience" papers, to persons who have served in the United States army or navy or the state militia, in recognition of their special training for faithful public service.
>
> The present bill extends special credit to veterans of the Spanish war, upon all subjects of examination, and thus gives them the preference over other candidates solely on the score of their military service.
>
> I cannot believe that the young men who volunteered for the Spanish war, and who thus manifested their loyalty to our government and our institutions, have so far forgotten that loyalty as to pull down the standards of our public service.
>
> Individual fitness and ability should be the prime requisites for admission to public office. To enter upon the public pay roll any one who cannot meet on terms of equality with his fellow citizens the just requirements of public employment is an act destructive not merely of efficiency in such service, but of the very foundations of democratic government and of good citizenship itself.

I am unable to see that the present measure justifies any different action from that which was accorded to the measure of last year; and the same reasons are now binding upon me which I then set forth.

[To the honorable senate and house of representatives, May 2, 1913.]

Herewith I return without my approval, An Act relative to the civil service laws, rules and regulations, which provides that all persons eligible for appointment as civil engineers of the senior grade, shall be retained on the eligible list for ten years.

I transmit herewith a letter of protest against this measure, from the civil service commission, under date of May 1, 1913; and I sustain this protest, believing as I do that ten years is an unreasonable length of time during which to maintain the eligibility of any candidate under the civil service after having taken an examination.

Particularly does this appear to be true in respect to engineers, as the engineering sciences are rapidly advancing at the present time, and an examination which, if passed, would constitute an adequate credential to-day, would probably not be suitable ten years hence.

I believe that in general, and particularly in respect to clerical and minor positions, candidates should not be required to present themselves at such frequent intervals for re-examination as is now required. Therefore, if this present bill applied generally throughout the civil service field, and not to a particular class, and if the extension of the present time limit which it proposes to make were reasonable, I would approve it.

OFFICE OF CIVIL SERVICE COMMISSION,
ROOMS 151–152, STATE HOUSE, BOSTON, May 1, 1913.

To His Excellency EUGENE N. FOSS, Governor, State House, Boston, Mass.

YOUR EXCELLENCY: — The civil service commission desires to file its objection to the approval of house bill 1352, providing that persons who have been eligible for appointment as civil engineers, senior grade, shall be retained upon the eligible list for ten years, for the following reasons: —

First: The bill gives a preference for ten years to men who happen to have been fortunate enough to obtain a position in the classified civil engineering service, senior grade, even though they may have left such service of their own accord and to their own financial advantage, and to the disadvantage of the service of the commonwealth, if within the ten years they desire to return to such service. They are then given, under the proposed law, a preference over other applicants. This seems to the commission to be unjust to those who have more recently been examined and qualified for the service.

Second: Ten years seems to be an unreasonable length of time in which to keep the eligibility of any person alive, except after a re-examination.

Third: There is no provision as to how a person under this proposed law shall be considered for certification if placed upon the eligible list. Shall he be certified in preference to all others, or only when the commission is requested to certify him by some appointing officer? This question the commission is unable to decide.

Fourth: The legislation is asked for by one man who, after having been employed for several years in the United States service at Panama, now wishes to be restored to the service of the commonwealth. So far as the commission is informed, no one else seems to be particularly interested in the matter.

Very respectfully,

WARREN P. DUDLEY,
Secretary.

[To the honorable senate and house of representatives, May 5, 1913.]

I transmit herewith a letter from Dr. L. Vernon Briggs, of the state board of insanity, urging the necessity of more effective supervision of the families of the inmates of our institutions.

In this connection I would draw attention to our present failure to accord adequate protection to the dependent wives and children of men who are shut up by the state in our institutions, whether because of crime, sickness or insanity.

Our institutions are conducted primarily for the protection of the public. At the same time, our system ignores very largely the fact that, in removing the bread winner of a family, we expose that family to the very conditions of destitution and helplessness which are most of all conducive to crime and permanent pauperism.

We are, for example, sentencing drunkards to long terms of imprisonment, clothing, feeding and housing them, and giving them expert medical service. In a majority of cases these men possess some wage-earning capacity, but in shutting them up we permit their families to be turned out on the streets, to get what they can from public or private charity, or both. The time will come, in my judgment, when we shall recall this present practice with profound humiliation.

After mature consideration of the various classes of persons confined within our institutions, I have come to the conclusion that we should first of all consider the dependent families of those who are confined in our insane asylums.

Moreover, every step which the commonwealth can take to relieve our institutions of any of their charges and make them self supporting and useful members of the community should be taken at the earliest possible moment; also every possible step toward the after care of our mentally ill and the prevention of such illness.

These steps are requisite in view of the crowded condition of our institutions and the increasing demands for additional buildings.

I am informed on the highest authority that our present policy is leaning too much in the direction of merely shutting up mild cases of insanity.

In other countries, — notably in Scotland, — public policy has established a system of removing mild cases from the institutions and finding suitable private homes in which they may be cared for.

While we are now making, to a very limited extent a somewhat similar provision, I have become convinced on the testimony of officials connected with our institutions that we could probably discharge from five to ten per cent of the insane now confined in the institutions of the commonwealth if we maintained any adequate means of locating them either in their own homes or in other places in which they could be boarded out.

I would, therefore, direct the attention of the legislature to the recommendation made by Dr. Briggs in favor of the establishment of a so-called social service to be conducted by the state under the supervision of the board of insanity.

Social service as understood and practiced elsewhere to-day aims to furnish friendly advice and co-operation on the part of the state for the benefit of the wives and children from whom the wage-earner of the family has been removed through the operation of law. For example, a mechanic becomes suddenly afflicted with some form of insanity and public safety demands his immediate seclusion in an institution. Surely, the commonwealth owes some obligation to the wife and children who are thus suddenly and without any provision or warning deprived of their means of support.

In many instances friendly counsel and advice in regard to the economical organization and conduct of the household, or in respect to securing positions for the wife, and the children of proper age, would be sufficient.

Moreover, many insane people retain sufficient reason to brood over the helplessness of the families from whom they have been removed, and whom they have been forced to leave without protection. This fact in itself may be sufficient to preclude the hope of a cure in many cases.

I believe that social service work should also be established with respect to the families of our prisoners, and that the latter should be more efficiently occupied in productive labor.

I have repeatedly called public attention to this latter consideration, and am confident that the pending reconstruction of our penal system will result in the establishment in Massachusetts of these much needed improvements.

I transmit the accompanying letter from Dr. Briggs, and with it the draft of a proposed statute, in the sincere hope that this legislature will take cognizance of the conditions herein set forth, and will make a beginning, at least, toward an ultimately complete provision for the protection and assistance of the families of our insane, in all cases where other than public means are lacking.

If we continue to ignore the possibilities of this modern method of providing for the insane, we must continue to make rapidly increasing appropriations, as at present, for the permanent state custody of practically all cases of insanity within the commonwealth, however mild the form of the disease may be.

BOSTON, April 25, 1913.

Governor EUGENE N. FOSS, State House, Boston, Mass.

MY DEAR GOVERNOR FOSS: — While the present legislature is in session I hope you will present to them the need of taking some action toward definitely and intelligently stopping the increase of the state's dependents. Up to the present time the state has in the main devoted its resources to housing propositions so far as this class is concerned. I feel that the commonwealth should now take immediate action toward the prevention of the constant increase in this class who are multiplying faster than we can build institutions to accommodate them.

Social service properly organized is our first great step. This does not mean a body of untrained volunteer workers untactfully entering the homes and grappling with the private affairs of our citizens, but a body of trained workers without regard to sex or creed who experience has proved are welcome in every home and community in our land. They can do as good or better work among the mentally ill than is now being done by an army of faithful workers to stamp out tuberculosis throughout the state.

One or two of our state hospitals are doing some work along social service lines and one or two are doing some work on eugenics, but there is no organized work and no means have been provided for organizing and carrying the work out properly.

If the state would provide the small amount of money necessary to organize this year it would be saved the care of a good many dependents who will have to be taken care of the rest of their lives if we delay another year.

Sincerely yours,

L. VERNON BRIGGS.

[To the honorable senate and house of representatives, May 8, 1913.]

Herewith I return without my approval An Act providing for an increase of wages for laborers directly employed by the Metropolitan park commission and the Metropolitan water and sewerage board within their several districts, to $2.50 a day.

At this time the public is much concerned with the question of a minimum wage. The legislature of 1912 created a minimum wage commission for the express purpose of providing for the determination of minimum wages for women and minors. At my earnest recommendation also, a board of labor and industry was created by the last legislature, having broad powers over the conditions of industry and labor.

With these marked advances in the public policy of Massachusetts, we must make further progress in strict accordance with the experience which will accumulate from the operation of these and other new and progressive labor laws.

The present bill sweeps aside all the just considerations of the industrial field in general and establishes arbitrarily a high standard of pay for unskilled laborers without any reference whatever to the workman's individual fitness, character, length of service or other qualifications.

It also takes the entire matter out of the hands of the Metropolitan park commission and the Metropolitan water and sewerage board, and leaves them no discretionary power whatever. We maintain these boards at a great expense, to administer the work of their departments; and they should have authority to pay such wages as the conditions call for. Not only is this proposed legislation really injurious to the just cause of labor in itself, but it will prejudice the entire subject of wage legislation in the future.

It places an artificial price level on the value of a laborer's time and leaves absolutely out of account the relation between such labor and the labor of other classes of working people who must equally be maintained, directly or indirectly, by the public.

Legislation such as the present bill does not originate through humanitarian motives but solely through political considerations, and it can carry no positive justification on moral or humanitarian grounds.

If the legislature persists in yielding to the sort of pressure represented by this bill, then the public, in self defence, will be forced to withdraw from the present widespread movement toward the establishment of better wages in general wherever such wages can be properly justified, and no real progress will be made.

In my judgment, the present bill is hostile not only to the best interests of labor, but to that sound public policy which it is the function of the legislature and the executive to establish and support.

[To the honorable senate and house of representatives, May 9, 1913.]

I call your attention to the unsatisfactory condition of our laws respecting the punishment and control of drunkenness.

Under our system the same person may be recommitted from forty to fifty times to the same institution for being intoxicated.

Obviously, the ends of justice cannot be met by the imposition of so ineffectual a punishment that the person returns fifty times in succession to undergo the same repeated sentence.

In fact, a study of our methods of punishing inebriety in general leads to the conclusion that it is quite futile. The habitual and excessive use of liquor breaks down the power of the human will to a point where a court sentence has no effect to help the drunkard in regaining his self-control.

In such instances punishment therefore falls not upon the man himself, but upon his family. In an institution the inebriate is given the necessities of life, — food, clothing and shelter. But his family is unmercifully punished, being subjected to public disgrace and deprived of whatever earning capacity the drunkard may have possessed.

Under our present system almost no attempt can be made by the court to ascertain the causes of drunkenness. Proof that a man was drunk is the basis of the action of the court.

The court has no facilities for ascertaining the underlying causes in any instance, and it is not reasonable to expect that in the few minutes given to a case solely on the testimony of a policeman, and without the assistance of a physician, the court can ascertain the cause, or wisely decide what treatment is needed.

I am persuaded that the time has come to change our method of dealing with inebriety; and in this connection I request your consideration of the plan recently adopted by the city of New York under jurisdiction of a board of inebriety.

In 1910 the charter of greater New York was amended by the New York legislature in relation to the treatment of public intoxication and inebriety, — (see chapter 551, acts of 1910 of the state of New York). This act, which was accepted by the city in 1911, creates a board of inebriety which has general supervision of all cases of public intoxication. The New York legislature of 1911 furthermore extended the provisions of a similar act to other cities subject to their accepting it.

Under the general operation of this law in New York city and other communities which may establish boards of inebriety, the court having jurisdiction may dismiss the complaint upon receipt of a written request for release, and upon the receipt of a report from a probation officer of the board of inebriety favoring such release. Or the inebriate may be committed to the custody of the board of inebriety on an indeterminate sentence. The indeterminate sentences, under special conditions, may be for periods not exceeding six months, or, in other circumstances, not exceeding three years.

Furthermore, in case an inebriate has been in the custody of the board of inebriety, and the board has then applied to be released from his care and custody, the inebriate may be sentenced to a place of confinement in accordance with law.

The function of the board of inebriety is to give each case the precise sort of attention which seems most likely to effect a cure. Under its discretionary power, the board may parole the drunkard, place him on probation or release him, or it may send him to a farm colony maintained under the control of the board, where he is put to work and given proper medical and hygienic treatment.

The purpose of this policy is in general twofold. First, it recognizes that a criminal conviction for drunkenness constitutes a permanent handicap to the prisoner by publicly disgracing him and his family and by cutting down his wage-earning status in the community. It therefore aims to avoid a criminal conviction in the case of those who have not become habitual drunkards and to offer them whatever moral strength may be conferred through the exercise of leniency.

Second, recognizing the futility of often repeated sentences for chronic inebriety, the board offers to the habitual drunkard an asylum for an indefinite period where he may be protected against his own weakness of will and where he may be given wholesome and productive employment.

If it be objected that this proposition entails too much expense, it should be noted that, whatever the expense may be, it is unlikely to equal the present economic loss to the community occasioned by the chronic destitution of the drunkard's family and by his repeated arrests, trials and imprisonments.

I am persuaded that we are at present making no progress whatever toward the control of drunkenness in Massachusetts. The number of arrests and convictions for drunkenness is on the increase. The entire system of handling these cases throughout the state leaves out of account the destitution of the inebriate's fanily.

I transmit herewith copies of the New York statute under which the board of inebriety in New York city operates. This board is at present constructing and equipping a farm colony of eight hundred acres in Orange county, with accommodations for five hundred inmates.

It should be noted that this New York system was initiated as a result of the policy of Massachusetts in inaugurating the Norfolk hospital for dipsomanics. The New York system, however, in addition to providing a hospital, has largely taken over the functions of the judge in determining the disposition of the drunkard's case. I think the time has come when we should proceed further along the same line.

It is impossible for the judge to follow personally and in detail the future course of all the cases of drunkenness which come before him. The sentences which he imposes must therefore be more or less arbitrary and perfunctory.

A board of inebriety, on the other hand, may be so constituted and equipped that it can keep closely in touch with the individual cases and release them when in its judgment they are fit to be restored to the community.

This is a logical and helpful application of the general principle of the indeterminate sentence, which we have not thus far succeeded in applying advantageously in this commonwealth.

It will be noted that the New York system makes the municipality the unit in dealing with this problem, and leaves it optional with cities and towns to adopt the new method or not. I believe the Massachusetts view of problems of this kind is wiser — that the entire state has an interest in men of this class, and should provide whatever treatment is necessary, no matter where they live. Only in this way can uniformity, and the use of the best methods, be secured.

Inasmuch as the questions involved in this undertaking are far reaching and will necessitate prolonged study, I recommend legislation authorizing the appointment of an unpaid commission to report its recommendations to the next general court upon the subject-matter of this message, and I submit herewith a draft of a resolve to this effect.

[To the honorable senate and house of representatives, May 9, 1913.]

Herewith I return without my approval, senate bill 376, being An Act to provide for an additional water supply for the town of Brookline.

Under separate cover I am returning, with an accompanying message, senate bill 468, to provide for an additional water supply for the city of Newton.

My objections to both bills are substantially identical.

The metropolitan water system was established in the expectation that it would be used by the towns and cities which constitute our metropolitan district. In order to provide an adequate supply for this purpose reservoirs have been established at great distances from the metropolitan centre and the cost of aqueducts and other equipment has been correspondingly large. In fact the system has cost up to date over $42,000,000.

Similarly, the legislature has created a large number of important and costly metropolitan improvements, not exclusively for the benefit of Boston but for the benefit of the entire metropolitan district. There is a marked tendency among some of the smaller communities within this general territory to evade their just share of this metropolitan expense.

For example, we find the city of Boston maintaining, mainly for the benefit of the suburban towns and cities, an expensive system of transportation, including tunnel and subway construction.

Thus the tax rate of our principal city is unduly increased and our prosperous suburban communities, which are still further enriched by their ready access to Boston, are in some instances benefited unjustly by their failure to share in the expenses of these metropolitan improvements which are among the principal sources of their wealth.

In respect to the metropolitan water system, there are now several towns, notably Dedham, Brookline, Newton, Cambridge and Waltham, which are obtaining from the Charles river watershed for their own uses a supply of water independent of the metropolitan service.

These pending bills, if approved, would authorize the town of Brookline and the city of Newton to abstract from the Charles river watershed three million gallons of water a day in addition to their present supply, and to obtain this water at the expense of the Charles river district, at a cost considerably less than the cost of the metropolitan service.

If in the present instance Brookline and Newton were to obtain their supplies of water exclusively from the metropolitan service, they would jointly pay toward the maintenance of that service an assessment of about $143,000 a year; and it is estimated that at least $100,000 of this assessment would represent a net gain to the remainder of the district, and would to this extent relieve the assessment throughout the district, inasmuch as these communities are wealthy and the assessment which they would be called upon to pay is based in part upon the relative assessed values of the communities which participate in the metropolitan service.

These bills, therefore, propose to grant to the town of Brookline and the city of Newton special benefits which, however, the remainder of the metropolitan district must pay for through the failure of these communities to participate equitably in the metropolitan assessment.

I can see no justification whatever for these proposed bills and others of similar character, by which local communities are authorized to draw for their special benefit from the rivers which are common to the whole metropolitan district.

It would seem as if whatever water supply is properly available from the Charles river should be utilized for the general benefit of the entire metropolitan section and not abstracted for the particular benefit of any one of the local communities.

Again, the metropolitan district has constructed, at great expense, the so-called Charles river marine park or basin, and it is becoming a serious engineering problem to obtain from the Charles river an adequate supply of water to maintain this marine reservation.

At the present time Brookline and Newton possess legislative authority to abstract from the Charles river watershed five million gallons of water each per diem, without the payment of one cent of tribute for this special favor. In each instance the average daily consumption of water abstracted from the Charles river region is in the neighborhood of two and a half million gallons and the bill now in question (S. 376), providing an additional daily supply of three million gallons, is requested only for the purpose of enabling the town of Brookline to maintain its daily supply of water throughout the summer months, when the daily consumption greatly exceeds the average of the year.

However, in this instance, as in the case of Newton, the extra requirements of the summer months could be met just as well by constructing additional local storage reservoirs, to be filled during the season of abundant flow and utilized through the drier months of the summer.

To avoid this perfectly just local expenditure, Brookline is asking the legislature to make it a further grant of water from the general water sources within the metropolitan district and thus enable it to render itself still more independent of the metropolitan water system.

The withdrawal of water from the Charles river has been repeatedly authorized by the legislature for the special benefit of some community which seeks to avoid meeting its due share of the metropolitan expenditures, and the total daily amounts of water which the local communities are now authorized by law to withdraw from the river are as follows: —

Dedham,	1,500,000 gallons.
Brookline,	5,000,000 gallons.
Newton,	5,000,000 gallons.
Cambridge,	2,400,000 gallons.
Waltham,	5,000,000 gallons.

The total of these items is 18,900,000 gallons a day, and the actual quantity which is now being drawn by these communities from the Charles river region is nearly 12,000,000 gallons per day. I find by referring to the engineers' reports that during certain dry seasons the remaining water in the Charles river, as measured over the dam at Waltham, may fall to 1.3 million gallons per day. While this abstraction of water may not be a serious matter under normal conditions and while in fact it is stated that it does not normally affect the water levels in the lower regions of the Charles river, there can be no question whatever that in a season of drought, when the abstraction of water reaches its maximum, the Charles river bed is far too largely uncovered, and that unwholesome conditions are engendered. In my judgment this practice has now reached dangerous proportions.

The question has repeatedly come before the Massachusetts legislature; and in 1910, under resolve No. 101 of that year, the Metropolitan park commission was requested to investigate and report upon the general problem of improving the sanitary and healthful condition of the Charles river. This action was authorized in response to a petition signed by the mayor of Newton and the mayor of Waltham, in which it was asked that the Metropolitan park commission should take by eminent domain or acquire by agreement or otherwise such rights or easements as might be required in order to restore the river to a sanitary condition.

This report of the Metropolitan park commission was duly rendered to the legislature of 1911. The preliminary conclusions of the commission were:

> Whether viewed as to the effect of the sanitary condition of the river and the health of the public in cities and towns along the river, or as to the convenience and health of those who use the river for recreation, it appears that the changes of water level which take place each year in Charles river are unsatisfactory and seemingly dangerous. The only facts which need to be stated to warrant this conclusion are the apparent ones of the alternating flooding and exposing of mud flats; the gradual increase in size of these areas, as vegetation forms upon them; the obstruction of the channel, to the extent of leaving only small ponds in some portions of the river during the dry season of each year; the increase of mosquitoes, which annoy and probably disseminate disease; and the odors, which, whether injurious to health or not, are very obnoxious. In all these respects the condition of the river appears to have grown worse in the past few years.
>
> These bad conditions extend over the entire portion of the river between the lower dam and Watertown and Newton Upper Falls, and are aggravated by more or less impure or unsightly discharges from mills and drains and street wash outlets into the river.
>
> Dredging and filling will improve the conditions, but will not fully remedy them unless extended along the entire river according to a plan prepared to provide for deep channels with banks free from mud and vegetation, together with some regulation against artificial lowering of the water level at certain seasons of the year, and against befouling the river by noxious discharges into it.

These recommendations, however, were carried over and the legislature of 1911 referred the whole matter to the legislature of 1912.

The board has asked for authority and appropriations to provide for dredging, to regulate the discharges into the river, and to regulate the present withdrawal for local purposes.

In this connection it is fair to state that the condition of the Charles river above Waltham is very largely controlled by the Boston Manufacturing Company and its subsidiary concerns, this corporation maintaining a dam at Waltham and being enabled at present, under an old mill act, to draw off the water from the upper portions of the river for power purposes and also to furnish a supply of water to the bleachery which it operates further down the stream.

The power of this corporation is such at present that it is able to secure damages from towns and cities which abstract water from the river; and it would be highly desirable, in my judgment, to restore this water power to the commonwealth under the right of eminent domain.

Such water power as might properly be supplied to this or other companies could then be leased by the commonwealth, with the stipulation that the water levels in the river should be maintained as required by sanitary conditions. Such leasing of the water supply might also very properly embody provisions prohibiting the pollution of the stream through chemicals or other agencies.

I believe this step should be taken before any further abstraction of water from the river is permitted. The Charles river, like any other stream in the commonwealth, is primarily a natural resource common to the public; and the value of this public resource should not be diminished in favor of any special or particular interest, whether a corporation or a community.

I am strengthened in my conclusion by the declaration of our public authorities concerned, that both Brookline and Newton have ready access at present to the mains of the metropolitan water system; that the water thus obtainable is pure; and that no hardship whatever will be occasioned by the requirement that no further abstractions of water from the Charles river shall be permitted.

[To the honorable senate and house of representatives, May 9, 1913.]

Herewith I return without my approval senate bill 468, being An Act to provide for an additional water supply for the city of Newton.

My objections to this act are identical to those expressed in my veto message of this date on senate bill 376 in relation to the water supply of the town of Brookline, a copy of which[1] is attached hereto.

[To the honorable senate and house of representatives, May 22, 1913.]

Herewith I return without my approval senate bill 415, being An Act relative to the issue of stock and bonds by electric light and power companies and to the issue of preferred stock by certain corporations.

Chapter 725 of the acts of 1912, Part II, section 4, provided that railroad corporations might issue bonds to the amount of twice their paid in capital, provided that such bonds are secured by a mortgage.

The present bill grants this right to electric light and power companies, but sweeps away the provision concerning mortgages. The bill says that such companies may issue mortgages, but does not obligate them to do so.

The practical effect of the bill is therefore a declaration by the Massachusetts legislature that these public service corporations may bond their property to twice the amount of the capital, and to twice the amount now allowed by our laws, but without the safeguard of a mortgage.

The second section of the bill, by the use of the word "twice" after the words "exceeding at any time", enlarges the power to issue preferred stock until it may be double the common stock. The existing law, which is to be found in section one of chapter 441 of the acts of 1902, allowed the issue of preferred stock only up to the amount of the par value of the common. The provision for preferred stock was new in our law in 1902. There was an earlier provision existing since 1870 providing for what was called "special stock" which, however, could only be issued under certain very carefully prescribed restrictions. While the act of 1902 allowed preferred stock to an amount equal with the common, this section allows preferred stock to twice the amount of the common. For an illustration of the effect of the two sections thus far described, it may be noted that a corporation desiring to issue $900,000 of securities might divide them into bonds $600,000; preferred stock $200,000; common stock, $100,000. The title of the bill, which mentions only electric light and power companies as affected by the act, is also to some extent misleading, since all companies acquiring any rights in the streets, such as the street railways, come within its provisions.

Section 3 of the bill changes radically the law as now fixed by section 58 of chapter 110 of the revised laws. Sections 58 and 59 impose a contingent liability for the debts and contracts of the corporation upon the president and directors when the "debts exceed its capital"; upon the president, directors and treasurer when the property conveyed in payment of stock is "not taken at a fair valuation"; upon the president, directors and other officers for the "debts contracted before the original capital has been fully paid in"; upon the stockholders or members of the corporation for "debts contracted before the original capital is fully paid in"; where "special stock" is created "until the special stock shall have been fully redeemed" and "for all money due the operatives for services rendered within six months before demand made upon the corporation and its neglect or refusal to make payment." Section 3 of this bill provides that all of the statutory liabilities above cited of section 58 may be defeated by covering the debts described by a mortgage or pledge "of all or any part of the property of the corporation," and such a course is absolutely and without limitation in the power of the corporation.

There is probably no restriction at common law upon the power of a corporation to mortgage a portion of its property. There may be some question as to the right and propriety in mortgaging all of its property, especially corporations of this class referred to in the bill, but the requirements of section 58 may be entirely defeated by a mortgage of even a portion and it may be a small portion of the company's property, respecting which its right to mortgage may be unquestionable. The original necessity for section 12 of chapter 121, expressly permitting a mortgage and providing for the rights of the mortgagee, was solely for the purpose of enabling the corporation to mortgage all of its property and its franchise. The limitation of bonds in section one of the bill to twice the capital stock applies to bonds only, while section three now under discussion includes obligations of all other kinds. There is no restriction in the existing law nor in the present bill upon the amount of such obligations, except that which may be indirectly due to the contingent liability which section 58 imposes and which it is now proposed by this bill to virtually repeal.

The policy of the commonwealth toward its public service corporations, in view of the fact that they are so largely and essentially monopolies, has been one of conservatism in respect to the issue of their securities, recognizing the importance of such restrictions to the interests of the customers of such companies, as well as of the investors whose money makes possible the existence of such companies and the extension of their facilities.

One purpose of the existing limitation upon the amount of bonds and preferred stock was undoubtedly to secure for the corporation the benefits resulting from the active interest of those possessing a substantial share in the securities of the company. Bondholders have no voting power, preferred stockholders frequently have none, that power being usually vested in holders of the common stock only, who, however, under this bill may have in all not more than approximately a ten per cent interest in the property. A larger interest responsible for the actual management of the property would undoubtedly tend to increase security for all classes of the company's investors. Control by a small interest invites more to stock speculation and corporate manipulation than to economical operation and management.

It is fair to say that nothing has yet occurred to indicate a need by existing gas or electric light companies for abandoning the limitation in the present law. With rare exceptions, these companies are financed under existing laws by the issue of a single class of stock and not at all by bonds, nor are they likely to need such legislation for the promotion of the public interest, unless hereafter, through mismanagement or the issue of an undue burden of securities, their stock issuing credit shall become seriously impaired. The aggregate capital stock of the gas companies in this state is now $36,426,283, but they have only $1,644,000 bonds. The aggregate capital stock of the electric lighting companies is $26,647,250, but they have only $2,957,200 of bonds outstanding.

It will not answer my objections to say that these new issues are contingent upon the approval of the gas and electric light commissioners. The bill makes no such provision, and even if it be held that our existing law to this end will still be binding, even so, the legislature, having now declared for the general principle of issuing twice the amount of bonds now allowed, cannot look to other public agencies to nullify its provisions and ignore its declaration of a perverted policy, when once that policy has become spread upon our statutes.

The bonds and stocks of our present electric light and power companies have been issued upon a conservative basis and are regarded as high class securities. They have been bought by trustees and individuals upon the assumption that the commonwealth would protect their intrinsic value and not permit it to be diminished through any wild cat scheme of financeering.

If our public service corporations are now to receive permission to swell their bond issues in some instances to double or more than double the present amount, then all outstanding issues of stock and bonds must suffer proportionately; and these securities, which have until now been held in high estimation, will depreciate.

Thus Massachusetts, now holding a most honorable position as regards the securities of her corporations, would stand as sponsor for a policy of inflated and insecure financeering. Moreover, these present securities, being sound, are saleable at a low rate of interest. This interest is paid out of earnings and these are contributed by the public. Therefore the public is vitally concerned to keep these securities sound, and their interest rate low, so that the burden of interest charges borne by the public shall be low.

If you now weaken the securities of these corporations by permitting inflated issues of imperfectly secured bonds, then these bonds will not be saleable at a low interest rate and a higher interest rate must be guaranteed. The interest charges will immediately increase, and the public must contribute them through increased rates and poorer service.

I have watched with amazement the complacency with which this legislature has favored several schemes of this same character; and the final enactment of this bill (the first of its class to reach me) bodes ill for the financial future of this commonwealth, unless the people succeed in holding their representatives to a higher ideal of public duty.

If the legislature is acting under the impression that this policy can be foisted upon the state, then it greatly underestimates the intelligence and the temper of the people of Massachusetts.

[To the honorable senate and house of representatives, May 23, 1913.]

Herewith I transmit a letter dated May 21, 1913, from acting secretary of war Breckenridge, and enclosing the draft of a bill, which I also transmit herewith, to approve the purchase by the United States of the island in Boston harbor known as Outer Brewster island and to cede jurisdiction over the same to the national government.

Such approval and cession are requested in order that Outer Brewster island may be utilized for the purposes of national defence.

In the draft of the bill which the acting secretary of war has submitted, the condition is expressed that the commonwealth shall retain a concurrent jurisdiction with the United States in and over the island so purchased, so far as that all civil processes and such criminal processes as may be issued under the authority of the commonwealth against any person or persons charged with crimes committed without the said island may be executed therein in the same manner as though this cession had not been granted.

I accordingly urge upon the legislature the advisability of prompt and effective co-operation with the federal government in this matter.

WAR DEPARTMENT, WASHINGTON, May 21, 1913.

His Excellency the Governor of Massachusetts.

SIR: — I have the honor to enclose herewith draft of an act granting the consent of the commonwealth of Massachusetts to the purchase by the United States of the island in Boston harbor known as Outer Brewster island, for the purposes of national defence, and ceding jurisdiction over the same; and respectfully request that you will submit said draft to the general court of the commonwealth and use your good offices to secure the passage of the act by the legislature during its present session.

Very respectfully,

HENRY BRECKENRIDGE,
Acting Secretary of War.

[To the honorable senate and house of representatives, May 27, 1913.]

On January first, 1906, the net direct debt of the commonwealth was $14,215,765, and the net contingent debt was $59,301,763, or a total of $73,517,528. On May first, 1913, the net direct debt was $25,152,894 and the net contingent debt was $58,624,481 or a total of $83,777,375. Thus in a period of 7 years and 4 months the net debt of both kinds increased $10,259,847. Of this amount $4,547,122 was incurred between December 1, 1912, and May 1, 1913. In addition to this three measures now before the general court call for bond issues aggregating $8,500,000 to be made during the next five years.

For the year 1905 the actual running expenses of the state government were $9,619,715 and the state tax was $4,000,000. For the year 1912 the actual running expenses were $15,762,799 and the state tax was $6,250,000. For the year 1913 the actual running expenses bid fair to be some $18,000,000 and the state tax will be nearly or quite $8,000,000. In the year 1905 the cities and towns raised by taxation $57,476,660; in 1912 this amount had become $74,552,306; in 1913 it is likely to be at least $77,000,000.

The enormous and rapid increase in municipal and state expenditures is in response to the increasing demand of society that new and increasing functions be performed by government. The care of the sick and defective, the safeguarding of the public health, the development of our industrial possibilities, the amplification of our educational activities, the granting of pensions to public employees and to certain classes of private citizens, — these and many other matters have in the last few years called for the expenditure of increasing amounts of public money or are now engaging the attention of those concerned with the improvement of social welfare and social justice and are likely in the near future to secure appropriations from public funds. There is in the air an increasing demand for more and greater governmental control and action.

In responding to this demand of the people the legislature is but reflecting and performing the will of a large part of the body politic. And yet during the past few years no new source of public revenue has been discovered except the direct inheritance tax enacted in 1907. Always eager to spend money at the request of its constituents, the general court has been strangely inactive in trying to provide revenue to pay its bills and in endeavoring to improve a revenue system long ago outgrown and a method of taxation designed for a simply organized society with few needs and small appropriations. While our expenditures have been increasing with almost unparalleled rapidity we have been content that they shall be met by bond issues or by increases in that most easy and inequitable source of revenue, the state tax.

Of the $75,000,000 raised by taxation by the cities and towns in 1912, practically all was raised by the general property tax under the rule of proportionality laid down in a constitution first adopted more than one hundred years ago and unchanged since its adoption. In criticism of the general property tax as a method for raising such amounts of revenue too much cannot be said. Whatever its virtues for a society with small needs whose forms of property were few and with difficulty concealed, this method of taxation results in the greatest inequality and injustice in social and economic conditions such as exist in this commonwealth at the present time. Tax rates in Massachusetts cities and towns vary from as low as three dollars to as high as $28.30 per thousand of valuation. The change of residence of the wealthy from a town having a high tax rate to another town having a low tax rate is notorious. I am informed that one town is likely to have no tax levy at all in 1913. Whether or not this proves to be the fact, it is entirely easy for large property holders to so arrange their legal domicile as to contribute but scantily to the public revenue. In replying to an order of the house of representatives passed on March 12, 1913, the tax commissioner estimates that over $4,500,000,000 of taxable personal property of residents of the commonwealth escapes taxation, and he states that during the last five years various recommendations for legislation looking to improvement in the administration of our tax laws have been summarily rejected by the general court. In fact, the legislative record shows that on the very day this reply was received from the tax commissioner the house of representatives rejected a recommendation of that official for legislation empowering him to secure information necessary for impartial administration of the inheritance tax law, — legislation giving to him only such power as is possessed by tax officials of other states. Besides the recommendations of the tax commissioner designed to improve the administration of our present tax system there have been presented to the general court during the last half dozen years recommendations for a modification of the constitution itself. The constitutional amendments proposed have varied all the way from a broad provision which would leave the general court unhampered in tax legislation to such narrow change as would make it possible to establish a partial income tax. But whatever the character of the changes proposed, all alike have been rejected. Thus the general court has put itself in the position of refusing to provide for an improved administration of our present system or of changing our fundamental system and establishing in its place a method of taxation which can be enforced and which when enforced will more equitably distribute the cost of our municipal and state governments.

About the failure of the working of the general property tax under the constitutional rule of proportionality there is and can be no great difference of opinion. Those who conscientiously, but mistakenly, I believe, hold that reform should be by improvement of administration of our present system and those who, with a wiser and truer vision maintain that the solution of our difficulties is by securing fundamental changes, — both and all refuse to give even a partial defense to our present revenue laws as they are administered. The essential facts as to the operation of the general property tax have been often stated and ought to be well known to every intelligent citizen of the commonwealth. The situation as set forth in the report of the tax commission of 1897 has not been improved. The evidence is overwhelming that the inequalities then found to exist continue at the present time. We still have the favored towns with low tax rates to which go men of wealth that their taxes may be small. Information reaching the tax commissioner in the administration of the inheritance tax laws shows numerous cases in which personal property has been successfully concealed from the assessors for many years. Cases are not infrequent where by the gift of a school or library a family of wealth has practically bought tax exemption and has secured a reputation for liberality, — a reputation bought and paid for by those whose property has been fully assessed. The evidence submitted to the joint special committee on municipal finance which reported to the general court this year led that committee to conclude that in very many communities property is not viewed and newly valued every year, that there have been attempts to make low valuations for the purpose of reducing the town's proportion of the state and county taxes, that by low assessments property and industries have been invited to locate in the towns or when once there not to remove, and that assessors have done much less than their full and honest duty because of fear of political punishment. These facts show a situation the like of which would not be tolerated in any large industrial corporation. In the investigations of the past few years into the affairs of insurance companies, railroad corporations and industrial businesses conditions have been found to warrant the resentment and disgust of right thinking people; but I submit that conditions existing in our own revenue system and known to the general court for years are as bad as any discovered in private business. And yet aside from giving a little advisory power to the tax commissioner no remedial legislation has been enacted. We have seen public expenditures increasing enormously, we have seen billions of property escaping all assessment, we have seen towns jockeying to avoid fair contributions to the state and county taxes, we have seen the rise and success of "tax dodgers' retreats," we have seen the increasing burdens of government increasingly borne by people of small means and yet we have done practically nothing to alleviate these conditions by any improvement of our present tax code and its administration. The least that should have been done was to strengthen the administration of our present system for the raising of public revenues and to secure some improved method for the distribution of the franchise taxes of public service corporations to the end that the rich towns shall not thereby be further enriched. A rapidly increasing state tax serves to increase the bad effects of the inequalities of assessments in the different towns. The larger state tax is, like the municipal taxes, levied on only a part of the taxable property. Thus it becomes an added burden upon those least able to bear it. This year for the first time the tax commissioner has had and has exercised authority to equalize municipal assessments in establishing the basis for the state and county taxes. He has added some $300,000,000 of property values to the different towns. He reports to me, however, that this amount is entirely inadequate and that it will always be true as it has proven true in other states, that no public official can adequately correct the inequalities of local assessment. The state tax is levied to meet the appropriations of the legislature over and above the revenue of the state derived largely from the taxation of corporations and legacies. In a state as wealthy as is Massachusetts there ought to be no state tax, at least when the assessment of property is so inequitably made. The revenues of the commonwealth ought to be large enough to pay the bills of the commonwealth without resorting to so unscientific and unfair a source as a state tax is and must be.

However, such improvements as can be made in our present revenue system without changing its fundamental character will, in my judgment, prove to be entirely inadequate for the permanent improvement of our condition. The states of the Union which have passed the most searching tax laws and have established the most inquisitorial administration for their enforcement under the rule of proportionality have utterly failed to secure the adequate taxation of personal property. Their experience as well as the investigations and conclusions of economic students and writers show beyond a doubt that different classes of property must be differently taxed, that their assessment must have some reasonable relation to the income they produce and that no revenue system ought to continue on the statute books which cannot be evenly applied to all persons and to all property. We need a constitutional amendment in order that to a greater or less degree the general court may from time to time diverge from the rule of proportionality and may fit the tax laws to such economic and industrial conditions as may exist.

But nearly all proposals for tax reform whether of statute or of constitution are summarily rejected by the general court which seems content to increase expenditures and to make no adequate provision therefor. Last week the house rejected a constitutional amendment under which the general court could have done much for the improvement of our taxing system. And at the same time the legislature is seriously considering the matter of changing our policy with reference to the capitalization of certain classes of corporations in such a way that our public revenues may be seriously depleted. Indeed one such measure has been already enacted and has been vetoed. In these measures it is proposed to allow the corporations to finance themselves by issuing increased amounts of bonds so that the relationship of bonds to stock shall be as two to one. So far as I am aware the effect of such legislation upon the matter of the taxes to be paid by these corporations has received no consideration. And yet the two matters are closely related. With reference to public service corporations it is true that only a part of their tangible property is taxed by the municipalities in which it is situated. Thus with railroads the rights of way, valued at scores of millions, are exempt from local taxation, as are the rails and structures thereon, and the rolling stock. In the case of corporations having tracks, conduits or pole lines in the public streets some of this property is taxed by the towns and some of it is exempted from taxation. But in no case is the municipality empowered to tax the corporation for the valuable rights granted to it to carry on its business. This is as it should be, — I do not suggest that to the municipalities should be given power to tax franchise values. These franchise values have been and should continue to be taxed by the commonwealth herself. The method by which they have been taxed for nearly fifty years is called corporate excess taxation. The full value of the outstanding stock has been the measure of the assessment; such part of the value as has not been taxed by the municipalities under their limited powers has been taxed by the commonwealth. The bonds of the corporation from which have been derived perhaps fifty per cent of the capital of the corporation have not been considered in the determination of the value of the corporate franchise but have been taxable as personal property of the bond owner. Large amounts of these bonds are held by non-residents of the commonwealth and thus are beyond our reach for purposes of taxation; still larger amounts of them are owned by Massachusetts residents, but as is usually the case with securities, they are untaxed because undiscovered by the assessors. Outstanding bonds being an obligation of the corporation must be satisfied before the stock. By the issuance of the former the value of the latter is reduced. Thus when we have taxed corporate stock and have failed to tax corporate bonds either because of non-resident ownership or because of undiscovered resident ownership, we may have by no means taxed a value as great as the value of the corporate property and privileges.

Our system of corporate franchise taxation has much to commend it, but the fact that it has many times produced handsome revenues ought not to blind us to the other and more significant fact that it is only partially adequate as a measure of taxation. So long as the bonded indebtedness of the corporation did not exceed the capital stock liability it has proved fairly satisfactory. Now it is proposed, however, to allow the corporations to secure increased proportions of their capital by the issuance of other than mortgage bonds, belonging to that class of securities which cannot or will not be taxed. The proceeds of these bonds will be invested largely in properties or valuable franchises in this commonwealth. The amounts are expected to be many millions. The properties thus acquired will be largely exempt from taxation by the towns, and since the stock of the corporations will not have been increased it will be impossible for the state to tax these values in the taxation of the franchise. In fact, since the bonds are a security senior to the stock, it may be reasonably expected that the present outstanding stock of at least some of the corporations will actually fall in value upon the issuance of more bonds. Thus while the properties and franchises of the corporations will have been enormously increased in value by the introduction of new capital the contributions of the corporations to the public revenues will have increased little if any and probably will have actually diminished. The significance of this fact cannot be overestimated. While apparently it has not been considered by the general court, he would be rash indeed who hazarded the opinion that its full meaning had escaped the attention of the beneficiaries of this proposed legislation. The conclusion is inevitable that in its continued failure to enact remedial tax legislation and constitutional reform, the general court has neglected public business of the gravest import. Evidence is accumulating that in devising this new method of corporate capitalization, the general court has been devoting itself to the interests and cunningly devised plans of certain enterprises which have already flaunted the authority of the commonwealth and are now planning to escape just contribution to her treasury.

I cannot believe that the people of the commonwealth approve. It is inconceivable that a majority or even a respectable minority of our citizens desire neglect of matters vitally affecting the whole scheme of municipal and state finance and just taxation and at the same time will approve of any action which will grant enormous privileges to any public service corporations attended with what amounts to exemption from commensurate taxation. The line between the welfare of the whole body politic and the advantage of certain classes of corporations appears to be clearly drawn. Devotion to the one will receive the hearty approval of the right thinking; the serving of the other will meet vigorous condemnation.

Therefore I suggest the drafting and approval of a constitutional amendment which will make it possible for the general court to establish kinds and methods of taxation which are now beyond its power to enact. It will be at least two years before such an amendment can become effective and laws enacted under its provisions.

Therefore, I suggest further that there be immediately enacted laws that will give to the tax commissioner the power he needs for the impartial administration of the laws committed to him and of other laws which shall secure by the local assessors a fuller assessment of all classes of taxable property.

And, further, to decrease the injustice as between towns occasioned by so large a state tax as now impends, I suggest the immediate passage of legislation which shall cause the commonwealth to retain the franchise taxes paid in this and succeeding years by the railroads, telephone and telegraph companies, trust companies and gas and electric light companies. In these directions lies the duty for the performance of which the people have sent their representatives. Private interests with their selfish desires may wait, but the public weal ought not to be further postponed.

[To the honorable senate and house of representatives, May 28, 1913.]

Herewith I return without my approval An Act to establish the salaries of the firemen and helpers in the state house, providing for a substantial increase of pay in these instances.

I desire to see all public employees in Massachusetts receive the highest rate of wages consistent with the standards of the commonwealth and the conditions of their several duties; but I have repeatedly called public attention to the public wrong which is done when a scale of wages is established arbitrarily and at an artificially high level.

In this instance the public is asked to donate an appropriation on behalf of firemen and helpers in the power plant of the state house, notwithstanding the fact that the cost of power per horse power hour per year in the state house is at present $222 and that for average service in business concerns the cost of this power unit is only from $35 to $40. Even under exceptional conditions, with the power plant of an industrial or business concern or an office building running twenty-four hours a day, the cost of this unit does not ordinarily exceed $85.

This fact was very clearly established on authentic engineering data supplied to the governor and council and transmitted by me to the legislature on April 26, 1911. (See pages 1187–9, acts and resolves of 1911.)

At that time it was found that the firemen were doing only one half the amount of duty required in good business practice. And yet the legislature is willing to authorize an increase of expenditure in this department.

I am convinced that no attempt is made to operate the state house in a businesslike or economical manner; and I repeat what I said in the paper referred to, that this is no fault of the sergeant-at-arms but of a vicious system which persists in regarding public office as a means of paying political debts, in engaging more men than are required to operate the public works and therefore cutting down the duties expected of each man in order that more men may be retained on the public pay roll.

Under date of June 23, 1911 (see page 1239, acts and resolves of 1911), I transmitted documents proving that a local electric corporation agreed to take over the operation of the electric light and power and steam heat now used in the state house, at a saving of $12,000 a year out of the present list of items comprising $50,000.

I believe that the entire cost of operating the state house, which amounts to $148,000 in the department of the sergeant-at-arms alone, can be cut down in a similar or even greater ratio by the state itself, if it will observe ordinary business principles.

On the date last referred to I submitted to the legislature a proposition that the Edison Company would share with the commonwealth equally the cost of making a detailed investigation to determine what further economies (in addition to the $12,000 guaranteed economy) might be conserved.

In the face of these facts, the legislature now stands ready, not to introduce the modern methods of business management which I advocated at that time, but to increase the boiler and engine room expenses which, as stated, on the basis of horse power hours are already from three to five times as large as they need to be.

I have repeatedly been required by my public duty to disapprove of measures of this same general character, which were evidently not based on business principles but actuated solely by political considerations.

I disapprove of them first of all in the interest of the workingman himself, who under our vicious tax system now bears the greater part of the burden of taxation thus imposed; and because I believe that neither the interests of the laborer nor the commonwealth can be conserved but that both will be injured by this species of profligacy.

[To the honorable senate and house of representatives, May 28, 1913.]

Herewith I return without my approval An Act to provide for reimbursing the town of Arlington for reasonable expenses incurred in the care of persons having no legal settlement who were infected with smallpox.

It appears that seven persons became afflicted with the smallpox in Arlington in January and February, 1912. The laws of the commonwealth required that the town of Arlington should immediately report these cases to the state board of health. In five of these seven cases the town of Arlington failed to comply with this law, and thereby, under our statutes, forfeited its claim upon the commonwealth for reimbursement.

Moreover, chapter 380 of the acts of 1909 requires that in cases of aid rendered by cities and towns to persons afflicted with dangerous diseases proper notice and fair evidence of liability shall be given by the authorities claiming reimbursement to the state board of charity.

In these requirements also the town of Arlington failed.

Cases have frequently occurred in which towns and cities have forfeited their right to reimbursement through failure to meet the requirements of the state laws in these several respects; but I understand that never until the present instance has an act been passed setting aside the statutes in favor of any town or city which has thus failed of its duty.

In a recent decision of the attorney general, it is clearly shown that "nothing in the law is better settled than that statutes of the class affecting this question are to be strictly construed, and that the giving of the notice required by these statutes in proper form is a condition precedent to the right of reimbursement."

It is necessary for the protection of the public health that towns and cities be held rigidly to the observance of these laws; and it is my judgment that if they fail to comply therewith, the least that can be done in disavowal of their acts is to deny any petition which may result for the reimbursement of their expenses.

[To the honorable senate and house of representatives, May 29, 1913.]

Herewith I return without my approval house bill No. 2320, introduced on the petition of the American federation of labor, and being An Act relative to the use of the cinematograph and similar apparatus.

I call your attention earnestly to the following provisions of this measure: — first, that nobody shall operate certain moving picture apparatus without a first class license from the state police, nor obtain such a license without having first held a second class license; second, that nobody shall hold a second class license (giving the right to operate such an apparatus only in the presence of the holder of a first class license) unless he has been employed for six months as an assistant under the holder of a first class license; and third, that nobody can become an assistant within the meaning of this section of the act except upon the endorsement of the holder of a first class license.

Persons who have operated such apparatus under a license previously issued by the state police may, under certain conditions, however, obtain a first class license, and this provision applies also to persons who have operated such apparatus outside the commonwealth for a period of six months, providing they pass the examination of the state police.

The significance of these provisions is very notable, and the underlying principle of this act, if approved and placed upon the statutes, will be revolutionary in respect to the industrial future of Massachusetts.

The bill declares that the vocation of operating moving picture machines in this state shall rest only in the hands of persons now eligible to operate them under our laws or of other persons whom they shall specify and definitely nominate and select. The exception noted allows persons from other states to come here and operate machines without having subscribed to the terms of this bill; and conversely it will compel citizens of this state, desiring to enter this line of work but unable to secure permission from those now engaged in it, to go to some other state.

I trust that the attention of the legislature will be again given, with deep and earnest study, to the provisions of this bill, and that the entire public of the commonwealth will also take immediate cognizance thereof.

The constitution of Massachusetts declares in its preamble that the end of government, in its institution, its maintenance and its administration, is to furnish the individuals who compose it with the power of enjoying in safety and tranquility their natural rights.

In this bill the policy of the commonwealth would be turned directly counter to the fundamental principles of personal liberty and equality of opportunity which are the safeguards of the state, and which it is our duty to maintain.

If this bill becomes a law, then, no man can possess the right to the particular means of livelihood involved unless he first secures the permission of the men already qualified and engaged in such occupation.

This is precisely as if the bill should say that no one could become a farmer in Massachusetts without first securing the permission of other farmers, or that no one could operate a store without the permission of other merchants; or earn his living as a machinist without the permission of organized machinists.

In so far as the bill provides that nobody shall operate a particular and dangerous class of apparatus unless duly certified thereto by the state police, I am in sympathy with it. In fact our existing laws contain this requirement. In so far as the bill requires that nobody shall operate such a machine without the additional sanction of those already interested in this particular business, I am unalterably opposed to it.

The bill, in my judgment, is a dangerous piece of legislation, for if we recognize this principle in legislation then it will undoubtedly form a basis for other repressive measures, vastly greater in their scope.

[To the honorable senate and house of representatives, June 3, 1913.]

Herewith I return without my approval senate bill No. 540, being An Act to provide a tenure of service for certain teachers in the public schools.

The public schools of Massachusetts have reached their present remarkable development under a system which has received concrete expression in chapter 43 of the revised laws.

Under this chapter teachers are in general elected by the local school committees. This law places the school committee in a position of responsibility and power. Its most important duty consists in the selection of competent teachers, in order to maintain the schools at the highest obtainable point of efficiency. For this purpose also teachers may be dismissed from employment by the committee.

In short, the efficiency of our teaching force is maintained, and must be maintained, by a sort of weeding out process, whereby teachers whose usefulness has diminished may be promptly eliminated.

In substance, the proposed bill now provides that five years of consecutive employment of any teacher by the school committee of a city or town shall establish his right to continued employment during good behaviour and efficiency, and prohibits his removal until charges have been preferred and a hearing given.

This bill will make it practically impossible for a school committee to dismiss a teacher who has completed five years of service. Inasmuch as a teacher under this bill cannot be discharged except on certain rigidly defined lines, it is obvious that the gradual letting down of his efficiency will not lead to his dismissal, because this sort of personal deterioration is insidious and cannot be expressed in technical charges supported by affidavits, such as would hold in a case at law.

A teacher will, therefore, be virtually assured of permanent employment, and his incentive to keep himself thoroughly abreast of the latest advances in his profession will be lost.

I am advised by the highest authorities in our educational field that this bill, if approved, will accomplish a distinct demoralization of the school system in certain towns and cities of the state. School committees are elected for the purpose of administering a school system; but under this bill their subordinates, the teachers themselves, would be rendered very largely independent of the committee; for only in extreme cases would formal charges be drawn up as required by this bill, in the event of a teacher's inefficiency becoming marked.

I realize that this bill is in a way an application of the principles of civil service to our public schools. With the fundamental purpose of the civil service I am in sympathy. One of its principal provisions is to prevent the removal of public servants for political reasons. But the effect of this bill would be to maintain in the public service persons who had become inefficient, but against whom a presentation of formal charges would be difficult if not impracticable. In fact the basic weakness of the civil service at its best is its tendency to protect the inefficient when once vested with office; and I would not favor the extension of the civil service principle, especially to our public schools, until it had been rendered more adaptable to the practical requirements of the public service.

I call attention also to section 8, which provides that the question of accepting or rejecting this measure shall be placed before the people of the various towns and cities on the ballot, but the form of the question is merely as follows:

Shall an act to provide a tenure of service for certain teachers in the public schools be accepted?

No definition is to be given of the act; no information in regard to its terms and conditions is submitted to the voter. A referendum of this kind is vicious for it acts only in one way. It enables a very small minority who are personally interested in a measure to secure its acceptance at the polls, inasmuch as those who are not in touch with its provisions naturally omit to vote.

Such a referendum, to be effective, should provide that every voter shall have before him the full text of the measure to be voted upon, even if this plan necessitates the mailing of such document to every individual voter in the community, or its official distribution in any other practicable way. I have called attention before to the fact that a referendum ballot, unaccompanied by explicit explanations as to the meaning and results of the ballot, is not a proper use to make of the principle of the referendum.

[To the honorable senate and house of representatives, June 9, 1913.]

Herewith I return without my approval An Act to require the labeling of receptacles containing pasteurized milk and milk produced outside the commonwealth.

This bill provides that milk which is imported into Massachusetts from other states for consumption in this state shall be marked with the words "Out of State." Furthermore, all milk "pasteurized" and sold must be marked "Pasteurized."

Among the reasons urged in favor of this bill are: —

1. "Out of State" milk is in general produced at points further distant from Massachusetts markets than milk produced within the state.

2. Fresh, pure milk being a necessity for infants, and purity diminishing rapidly with the age of the milk, it is said that the consumers should be able to see on the label whether or not the milk is produced within Massachusetts or at points presumably more distant than if produced within the commonwealth.

3. In respect to the process of pasteurizing, the advocates of the bill desire to have all milk which has been treated by heating as a means of killing its contained bacterial life, marked with an appropriate designation, inasmuch as many people believe that milk not thus treated is more desirable.

4. Under our unjust and discriminatory railroad system, milk is now shipped into Massachusetts from distant points outside the state, and delivered in Massachusetts at lower rates than are charged in some instances against the farmers of this state.

I appreciate fully the importance of all these arguments. I am willing and in fact anxious to do all that can be done in fairness to foster the agricultural interests of Massachusetts; and to do all that can properly be done to protect the public health of this commonwealth.

I have accordingly given to this bill the most careful consideration; but I find arrayed against it a consensus of sentiment not only on the part of the public and the milk producers themselves, but of health officials and others who have given protracted study to the subject of milk supply and regulation.

Moreover, my own judgment is that the bill is bad. Not only is it grossly unfair for Massachusetts to discriminate against the producers in other New England states, but if she takes this step, then she must expect the immediate establishment of severe reprisals. Massachusetts products which are exported into other states will be discriminated against in retaliation for this measure, and in the long run this policy, which in itself is reprehensible, will prove injurious to the state and to the agricultural producers within this commonwealth.

I find that all the arguments urged in favor of this bill can be met by proper regulations, either state or local. If the milk supply of any community is not satisfactory, that community is at liberty to make, and should make, regulations to meet the situation. This is done with notable success in Boston, and similar measures should be taken by other large communities in Massachusetts. The Boston board of health sends its inspectors to all points from which milk is shipped into Boston, whether out of the state or within; and milk cannot be sold unless produced under conditions acceptable to the Boston board of health, transported in a manner to maintain its purity and freshness, and sold in establishments which are made to conform to all necessary hygienic requirements.

New England is, geographically, historically and in all human interests, a unit. Our legislation should be so drafted as to conserve this essential unity. Measures such as the present bill, which tend to break up this unity, are essentially vicious. Even if the bill would not result in the establishment of reprisals by the other states, Massachusetts should not be the first to set up measures hostile to her neighboring states. The obligation of maintaining this New England unity rests most of all upon Massachusetts, for in Boston we have the common metropolitan centre of the entire New England region. If we now erect barriers against the freedom of interstate commerce, we must expect to see Boston lose her metropolitan character in respect to New England, and to see Massachusetts also lose her position of leadership, — a position which all the New England communities now accord her, by reason of her capital, her industrial strength, her location and the fact that she possesses the greatest city and the principal seaport in New England.

I take this occasion to say also that in any legislation, no matter how advantageous its ends may seem, no benefit is to be expected unless it is made to conform to our highest standards of equity and justice. In this respect the present bill fails, and for that reason, if for no other, it should not become a law.

[To the honorable senate and house of representatives, June 11, 1913.]

I return herewith without my approval house bill 2465, entitled An Act to provide better transportation facilities for western Massachusetts.

This act is the last of a series of measures conceived in the interest of the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad Company, by which it has been sought to break down the established laws and policy of this commonwealth. It purports to provide better transportation facilities for western Massachusetts, but in fact has been skilfully drafted in such manner as to legalize unlawful acts hitherto committed by the railroad company without giving any satisfactory assurance that the transportation facilities needed in western Massachusetts will ever be provided. This measure will merely disappoint the expectations of all who have supported it in good faith, while it carefully confers upon the railroad company the precise privileges it has so long sought. That this measure will disappoint the expectations of the people of the western counties can be readily shown by analysis of its provisions.

Section 1 grants to the Berkshire Street Railway Company the power to purchase various street railways, control of which was originally acquired by the New York, New Haven and Hartford Company in defiance of the laws and policies of the commonwealth. Sections 9 and 10 provide for the financing of the Berkshire Street Railway Company by the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad Company, which now owns and controls that corporation. These sections, if they ever go into effect, will fully legalize the illegal acts originally committed by the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad Company, and will consolidate under the control of that company practically all the street railways in the central and western counties of the Commonwealth.

In return for this grant of immunity and monopolistic privilege, section 2 appears to provide for the construction of a large number of trolley lines by the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad, through the agency of the Berkshire Street Railway Company. Some of these lines are those which the hill towns of the commonwealth desire, but a careful analysis of section 2 reveals the fact that it authorizes the construction of approximately 292 miles of trolley lines, many of which are not in western Massachusetts, but are located in the centre of the commonwealth, reaching to the east as far as Ayer, Clinton, Sterling, West Boylston, Millbury and Grafton. Substantially half of them appear to be east of the Connecticut river and considerably more than one third are in Worcester and Middlesex counties. Berkshire county is allotted only 54 miles, while Worcester county receives 105 miles. Hampshire and Hampden counties together are allotted but 20 miles more than Worcester county. Instead of providing merely for the needs of western Massachusetts, this measure provides for a complete monopoly of all means of transportation in the very centre of the commonwealth.

This long list of proposed lines, amounting to 292 miles, is undoubtedly well calculated to enlist support for the measure both within and without the legislature, but under the provisions of the bill, the greater part of these lines will never be constructed. For section 2 limits the required expenditure for new railways to the sum of $5,000,000, and a simple calculation will show that only a fraction of the proposed lines will ever be built. I am informed by the chairman of the board of railroad commissioners that the cost of constructing and equipping the new lines "would be likely to be over rather than under $50,000 per mile." We may estimate, therefore, that the $5,000,000 provided by this bill would, if honestly and economically expended, build and equip about 100 out of the 292 miles of railway so attractively set forth in section 2. But if expended by the present New Haven management, under improvident and wasteful contracts such as have been recently exemplified in the construction of the Hampden County railroad, the $5,000,000 will build considerably less than 100 miles of trolley lines. If we may judge by the capitalization of the Berkshire Street Railway, at least $66,000 per mile are necessary to construct and equip a trolley line under the control of the present New York, New Haven and Hartford management. Upon this basis we might expect that under the five million dollar limitation, something like seventy-five miles of railway would be built out of the 292 miles of extensions which this measure seems to promise. It is evident, therefore, that section 2 has enlisted support for this measure under gross misconception of the benefits to accrue to the people of the commonwealth.

It is furthermore evident that when a selection is made of the lines to be built there is a strong probability that only the more profitable lines will be constructed. This will be, of course, greatly to the interest of the railroad company, and it would seem to be the result contemplated by section 16 of this bill, for that section provides that the railroad commission must certify that the Berkshire Company and the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad "are financially able to comply with the provisions of this act." It is evident, then, that the people of our hill towns, under the provisions of section 2, are doomed to bitter disappointment, and will never secure the railway facilities this bill purports to offer as the consideration which the railroad gives the commonwealth in return for the grant of immunity and monopolistic privilege. I find, therefore, that if sections 1 and 2 of this bill ever go into operation, their effect will be to legalize the past illegal acts of the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad, consolidate under its monopolistic control all the trolley lines in the central and western part of Massachusetts, and permit it to construct some 75 miles of extensions in presumably the most profitable territory. Of the construction of unprofitable lines in the small hill towns the bill affords only the remotest possible prospect.

Quite in keeping are the provisions of section 4, which purports to provide for the construction of additional extensions to the lines described in section 2. This section seems to require the Berkshire Company to build such extensions as may be designated by the board of railroad commissioners, but it contains the significant proviso that the board may not order such extensions until it can certify that the Berkshire Company has earned in the preceding fiscal year a reasonable return upon its property over and above all expenses of operation, interest, taxes, rentals and other lawful charges, including "a reasonable amount for depreciation." Now it is a matter of common notoriety that the street railways of the state are not able, even in the sections where traffic is greatest, to make any considerable allowance for depreciation; and it is certain that if they were required to do more than maintain their property in its existing state of efficiency few companies, if any, would be able to pay a dividend. It is obvious, therefore, that section 4 makes the construction of the additional extensions by the Berkshire Railway conditional upon a requirement which the most prosperous street railway in the commonwealth would find it difficult to meet. Clearly this proviso is cleverly contrived to deprive the western counties of the whole amount of additional construction which section 4 purports to require.

But the greatest objection against the bill is that section 1 provides that the Berkshire Company may purchase and hold the capital stock of the Attleborough Branch Railroad Company, the Interstate Consolidated Street Railway Company, and "any of the companies whose railways are leased or operated as aforesaid." Thus the bill explicitly authorizes the holding of stocks in corporations located in the southeastern portion of the commonwealth as a part of this plan of providing transportation facilities in western Massachusetts. It also makes this power extend to any street railways leased or operated by the Springfield, Worcester and other railway companies mentioned in lines 5 to 9 of this section. While it may limit such stock ownership to lines now in existence, or lines now leased and operated, it does not limit the future expansion of those lines to any extent that may be desired, so that for all practical purposes it opens the door to an indefinite extension of the operations of the Berkshire Street Railway Company. Thus this bill creates the basis for a complete monopoly of street railway transportation in eastern, as well as western Massachusetts.

Here, then, we come to the chief purpose of house bill No. 2465. The measure purports to provide for the construction of needed railway facilities in western Massachusetts, but by sections 2 and 4 it skilfully withdraws from the public a large part of the consideration promised in return for validating the illegal acts of the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad Company. It then provides for the creation of a holding company which is given all the authority necessary to extend the New Haven Railroad's control over street railways into any and every portion of the commonwealth. The authorization of the holding company is not necessary for any of the purposes the act professes to contemplate, and these provisions have no natural or logical place in the measure. They discredit the entire bill; and I cannot doubt that, with their purpose revealed, the legislature will defeat this attempt of the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad to complete its monopoly of all means of transportation in the commonwealth. But, in any event, I should fall short of my duty if I failed to make clear to the people of Massachusetts the real purpose of this measure, which, skilfully contrived to foist upon the commonwealth a gigantic transportation monopoly, will disappoint all the expectations of the people of our western counties.

Even if this bill provided in good faith for the construction of the trolley lines our hill towns need, and did not authorize a gigantic transportation monopoly, it would be a serious question whether the commonwealth could afford, for a pecuniary consideration, to depart from its established policy and legalize acts which the New Haven Railroad sought originally to do in violation of the law. In my opinion the railroad long ago should have divested itself of even an indirect interest in the trolley lines it illegally acquired, and not until it does so can it regain the confidence of this commonwealth. But this bill offers only a pretence of a consideration in exchange for the favors sought, and under it very few trolley lines need ever be built in the counties which expect to benefit by the bargain.

[To the honorable senate and house of representatives, June 12, 1913.]

I return herewith without my approval house bill 2485, entitled An Act to change the name, enlarge the membership, and increase the powers of the board of railroad commissioners.

I have urged upon three successive legislatures the need of strengthening the control of the state over public service corporations.

The original purpose of this bill, to provide effective regulation of our railroads, is one of the principal objects for which I have given three years to the public service; and nothing would gratify me more than to sign a measure that would provide such regulation. In the early stages of its progress through the legislature the act gave assurance that the people of Massachusetts, after years of effort, were to receive recognition of their demands.

But at a certain point in the proceedings the demand was made that the bill be amended by inserting financial provisions foreign to its real purpose and having no legitimate place in the measure. Against the protest of the bank commissioner, these provisions were finally incorporated in the bill; and are now offered as the price for which the people of Massachusetts can purchase the right to control the railroads of the commonwealth.

The merits of sections 15 and 16 of this act I find it unnecessary to consider because, whether good or bad in themselves, they are out of place in the measure, and are, as everyone knows, the price exacted by the railroads for their permission to enact the other provisions of this bill. They present but a single question for the legislature and the people of the commonwealth to consider: Is Massachusetts ready to purchase from the railroads the right to enact this law? If I have any knowledge of the purposes and desires of the people of this commonwealth, they will not approve this humiliating bargain, and I trust that Massachusetts will never purchase the right to enact this or any other measure.

To all who have supported the measure in the belief that it represents a step forward in the control of railroads, I reply that no law, however desirable in other respects, is worth having if it has to be purchased by a bargain discreditable to the commonwealth. I unhesitatingly veto the measure in full confidence that the people of Massachusetts will emphatically repudiate such legislation.

In opposition to this measure I lay down the simple principle that Massachusetts should not buy the right to regulate railroads; and I submit the issue to the candid consideration of the citizens of this commonwealth.

[To the honorable senate and house of representatives, June 13, 1913.]

I transmit herewith a letter under date of June 11, from Mr. Charles C. Doten, harbor engineer for the town of Plymouth, setting forth that an act of congress approved March 4, 1913, provided an appropriation of $83,500 for the improvement of the harbor of Plymouth on condition that the state contribute a similar amount.

With the letter are enclosed copies of the recommendation of the chief of engineers of the U. S. army and a report of the board of engineers for rivers and harbors; also a letter from our state harbor and land commission suggesting favorable action in co-operation with the U. S. government.

Inasmuch as the general appropriation bill for the improvement of Massachusetts harbors and rivers has not been passed by this general court, I recommend to your careful consideration the passage of an act authorizing the expenditure of $83,500 for the purpose stated, in order to meet the terms of the act of congress referred to and thus secure the benefit of this important financial co-operation by the federal government.

BOSTON, June 11, 1913.

To His Excellency the Governor of Massachusetts, State House, Boston.

It is respectfully represented that by Act of Congress approved March 4th, 1913, an appropriation for improvement of the harbor of Plymouth, Massachusetts, of $83,500 was made, on condition that the state contribute a similar amount. Official memorandum of the act as passed, together with copy of house document No. 1194 containing recommendation of the chief of engineers of U. S. army, and report of the Massachusetts board of harbor and land commissioners suggesting that favorable action in co-operation with the government be taken by the legislature, herewith submitted.

Through failure of passage of the general harbor bill by the senate, the appropriation of the United States government, and the much needed improvement of one of the most important ports of the state doing a foreign import business exceeding $5,000,000 annually, will be lost to the commonwealth.

These facts are brought to the attention of your excellency, with the urgent request that you communicate the same to the legislature, with such recommendations as you may deem expedient.

Very respectfully,

CHAS. C. DOTEN,
Harbor Engineer for the Town of Plymouth.

[To the honorable senate and house of representatives, June 14, 1913.]

Herewith I return without my approval house bill 2518, being An Act relative to the hours of labor of employees of street railway companies and providing substantially that a day's work of such employees shall not exceed nine hours and shall be so arranged as to be performed within eleven consecutive hours.

The bill further provides that if an employee so desires, he may, for extra compensation, work more hours than those prescribed in this act; but the employer shall not require such extra work of him and shall be punished by a fine of from one hundred to five hundred dollars for violating this act or any provision of it.

Chapter 533 of the acts of 1912, of which the present bill is an amendment, provided that for certain employees of street and elevated railways a day's work should be constituted of nine hours and should be arranged to be performed within twelve consecutive hours. That act was approved on April 25, 1912, to go into effect January 1, 1913. It was accepted by both employers and employees as a provisional solution of all matters in controversy, with the tacit understanding that a reasonable time should be given to work out details under its provisions.

Eight days after that act went into effect a petition was filed in the house of representatives embodying the principal features of the present bill, and this bill is obviously in response to said petition.

The law of last year stipulated a nine hours' working limit substantially in the terms of the present bill, provided, however, that if a schedule could not be so arranged as to furnish a day's work of approximately nine hours' time, one not exceeding nine and one half hours should be arranged by schedule. The present bill, if it becomes a law, will remove this provision and compel all street and elevated railway companies to make provision for the employment of their men on a basis of nine hours' work to be performed within eleven consecutive hours.

The justification for legislation of this general character rests on the principle that the state must exert its authority to ensure the health and general welfare of its citizens. It has accordingly become recognized that the state has the right to limit the hours of labor in that unhealthful conditions have undoubtedly resulted from past failures to enforce reasonable limitations upon working time.

This bill, however, cannot well be construed as limiting the hours of labor on behalf of health because it explicitly declares that no employee concerned shall be prevented by this act from working, if he so desires, more hours than those prescribed therein. The bill leaves the employee free to work as long as he likes but restricts the employer as to the number of hours which he may require.

As to the justification for this law on general economic grounds, I am informed that the employing companies affected by this bill had not had the opportunity to adjust themselves properly to the law of 1912 before this further concession was demanded.

In my judgment, the law of last year went as far as legislation of this character can well go for the present, and I take this occasion to say that I believe that those who advise the workingmen of Massachusetts in respect to these repeated demands are rapidly defeating their purposes and injuring the true interests of labor in Massachusetts by forcing their always increasing requirements faster than economic conditions in this state justify.

This present bill indicates how rapidly and with what little reason these demands are being made at the present time. At a date when the law of 1912 with respect to the employees of street railways had been in effect only eight days, this demand was made for a further change in the law which would upset the schedules of all the corporations concerned, put them to much added expense and still further act to discourage the investment of capital in these corporations.

[To the honorable senate and house of representatives, June 18, 1913.]

Herewith I return without my approval senate bill 578, An Act to establish a board of registration of barbers.

In my judgment, this bill is too far-reaching and would impose serious hardships upon those seeking to earn a living through the barber's trade.

I recognize the imperative necessity of protecting the public from unsanitary conditions in barber shops, but I would direct the attention of the legislature to the regulations already enforced by local boards of health and to the authority now vested in such boards under our statutes to issue such regulations.

I attach hereto, for example, a copy of the regulations which were issued, under date of June 7, 1912, by the Boston health department. Other towns and cities within the commonwealth in which adequate regulations are not now enforced owe it to themselves to set these matters right of their own initiative without looking to the general court.

If this bill were to become a law it would impose the following restrictions upon those who wished to take up the work of a barber, in addition to the requirement of registration by the board. The applicant would have to be at least eighteen years of age and would have had to study the business of barbering for a period of two years as an apprentice or one year as a student in a school under the instruction of a qualified barber; or he would have had to study as an apprentice or practice as a barber in another state for a period of not less than three years.

I believe that these restrictions are unnecessary and that it is unwise to impose legislative handicaps and restrictions upon any honest trade or vocation unless such restriction is clearly demonstrated to be necessary in the interests of the public.

HEALTH DEPARTMENT, 100 SUMMER STREET,
BOSTON, June 7, 1912.

At a meeting of the board of health, this day, the regulation respecting barber shops adopted May 4, 1900, was amended so as to read as follows:

REGULATIONS FOR BARBER SHOPS.

The place of business, together with all the furniture, shall be kept, at all times, in a cleanly condition.

Mugs, shaving brushes, razors, scissors, and all other utensils used in shaving and hair cutting shall be sterilized by immersion in boiling water for a period of at least one minute after every separate use thereof.

A separate clean towel shall be used for each person, and no towel that has been used on a previous customer shall again be used until relaundered.

All rubber discs and appliances of a massage vibrator coming in contact with the skin in the process of massaging shall be thoroughly cleansed and rendered aseptic after each operation and before being used on another customer.

Alum, or other material, used to stop the flow of blood shall be so used only in powdered form, and applied on a clean towel.

The use of powder puffs and sponges is prohibited.

Every barber shop shall be provided with running hot and cold water.

No person shall be allowed to use any barber shop as a dormitory.

Every barber shall cleanse his hands thoroughly immediately after serving each customer.

A true copy.

Attest. F. H. SLACK,
Secretary.

[To the honorable senate and house of representatives, June 18, 1913.]

Herewith I return without my approval An Act to establish the salaries of certain members of the district police, and which would involve an annual increase of salary for forty-seven members of the force amounting to $250 each, with other advances in favor of twenty-six other members and officers of the force, the total increase amounting to approximately $14,000 per annum.

I object to this measure because it arbitrarily fixes the compensation of the state police, or so-called district police, department, on the basis of length of service. For example the act provides that "all members who have served in the department five years or more shall receive an annual salary of $2,000; four years, $1,900; three years, $1,800; two years, $1,700, and one year $1,600."

I cannot see that this measure takes into consideration any question of individual fitness on the part of the men benefited. For example, in the case of the forty-seven men who will receive the maximum benefit of this bill, and all of whom will receive $250 additional compensation, I feel confident that some of these men must have shown superior fitness and ability, and that power should be vested in the department to give to these individuals a greater financial advantage than is given in the case of other individuals. This bill takes all such authority out of the hands of the department, or its chief, and imposes an arbitrary ruling as to salaries.

It must be remembered that under our civil service system public employees are rarely discharged for merely indifferent service. Actual incompetence and inability must ordinarily be demonstrated in order to effect such discharge. Consequently the public service, which is now largely protected as regards the appointment of new men from political motives, nevertheless suffers the handicap that the force cannot be improved by letting the inefficient worker go and replacing him by someone better fitted for the position. In the face of this handicap it is unfair to ask the people of the state to provide increased compensation for any public servant or employee merely on the basis of length of service.

The civil service itself recognizes this difficulty by requiring examinations as a condition of promotion. Imperfect as that provision may be, it is better than nothing. But the present bill offers absolutely no guarantee that all its beneficiaries are worthy of such increase of salary.
